Eyes of Vecna have strong connections to Vecna, and their powers can inflict withering attacks upon enemies, rotting the flesh.

| Nothic Eye of Vecna | Level 22 Lurker (Leader) |
|---|---|
| Medium aberrant humanoid | XP 4,150 |
| Initiative +23 | Senses Perception +15; darkvision, truesight 10 |
| Soul Decay aura 3; each undead ally within the aura at the start of the nothic eye of Vecna's turn makes a melee basic attack against an enemy as a free action. | |
| HP 162; Bloodied 81 | |
| AC 36; Fortitude 34, Reflex 36, Will 32 | |
| Speed 6 | |
| ⊕ Claw (standard; at-will) ✦ Necrotic | |
| +27 vs. AC; 2d12 + 6 necrotic damage, and the target is immobilized and takes a –2 penalty to saving throws (save ends both). | |
| ⊹ Mobile Melee Attack (standard; at-will) | |
| The nothic eye of Vecna moves its speed and makes a claw attack during the move. The eye of Vecna does not provoke opportunity attacks while moving away from the target of this attack. | |
| ⊹ Eye Rot (minor; recharges when the nothic eye of Vecna is not invisible to any creature) | |
| Close burst 10; targets enemies; only one attack roll against all enemies; +28 vs. Fortitude; the eye of Vecna is invisible to the target (save ends). | |
| Invisible Advantage | |
| When a nothic eye of Vecna hits a creature that cannot see it, one ally adjacent to the target makes an opportunity attack against the target. | |

Nothic Lore

Dungeoneering DC 18: Nothics are aberrant creatures that have drifted into the world and into other planes from the Far Realm. They have a semblance of intellect, but their hold on sanity is tenuous. A nothic can be identified by its awkward gait and its single eye, which can afflict enemies with various conditions. Nothics cackle maddeningly for no apparent reason.

Dungeoneering DC 23: Nothics serve powerful creatures that enjoy their erratic and amusing behavior. Nothic are also vicious combatants; they defend their masters with devotion.

Dungeoneering DC 25: Nothics live among the undead and in cults of Vecna, serving as guardians and jesters. Nothics in Vecna cults develop terrible gifts granted by the god of secrets. Their strong psychic connections to the Maimed God allow Vecna to see through the eye of any such nothic upon which he focuses attention, allowing him to gather secrets and keep tabs on those in his service.

Encounter Groups

The typical nothic is a cross between a court jester and a torturer in the court of a powerful evil creature. Barely sane, nothics perform functions other creatures might not consider.

Level 14 Encounter (XP 5,400)
- ✦ 1 mind flayer infiltrator (level 14 lurker, MM 188)
- ✦ 2 nothic cacklers (level 15 artillery)
- ✦ 2 war trolls (level 14 soldier, MM 254)

Level 18 Encounter (XP 10,000)
- ✦ 2 aboleth lashers (level 17 brute, MM 8)
- ✦ 1 death hag (level 18 soldier, MM 151)
- ✦ 2 nothic mindblights (level 19 controller)

Level 21 Encounter (XP 16,550)
- ✦ 3 bodak reavers (level 18 soldier, MM 36)
- ✦ 1 dark naga (level 21 elite controller, MM 194)
- ✦ 1 nothic eye of Vecna (level 22 lurker)

CHIPPY

Deceptive humanoids imbued with supernatural powers, oni dominate their surroundings, becoming leaders to be reckoned with.

Oni Devourer

Oni devourers commonly serve more powerful, evil spellcasters. By day, they disguise themselves as ascetics, beggars, and priests. At night, they become ghoulish monstrosities hunting humanoids for food.

Oni Devourer Level 7 Soldier
Medium natural humanoid XP 300

Initiative +8 Senses Perception +3; darkvision
HP 78; Bloodied 39
AC 23; Fortitude 19, Reflex 19, Will 18
Speed 6, climb 4

⊕ Claws (standard; at-will)
+14 vs. AC; 1d6 + 3 damage, and the target is slowed (save ends).

↓ Devour (standard; recharge ⚄ ⁞⁞)
+14 vs. AC; 2d6 + 3 damage, and the target takes a -5 penalty to saving throws (save ends).

↷ Hypnotic Glare (standard; encounter) ✦ Charm, Gaze
Ranged 10; +12 vs. Will; the target is pulled 5 squares and dazed (save ends).

Deceptive Veil (minor; at-will) ✦ Illusion
The oni devourer can disguise itself to appear as any Medium natural humanoid. A creature can see through the disguise with a successful Insight check versus the devourer's Bluff check.

Alignment Evil Languages Common, Giant
Skills Bluff +13, Stealth +11
Str 17 (+6) Dex 17 (+6) Wis 11 (+3)
Con 14 (+5) Int 10 (+3) Cha 14 (+5)

Oni Overlord

Brutal thugs devoted to avarice and bloodshed, oni overlords command groups of violent cronies. Oni overlords aren't as subtle as their brethren, and they make ostentatious displays of wealth and power.

Oni Overlord Level 12 Elite Brute (Leader)
Large natural humanoid XP 1,400

Initiative +7 Senses Perception +8; darkvision
Threatening Leader (Psychic) aura 5; each ally within the aura gains a +5 bonus to damage rolls and takes 5 psychic damage if it misses all targets with an attack.
HP 296; Bloodied 148
AC 24; Fortitude 25, Reflex 24, Will 26
Saving Throws +2
Speed 7, fly 8 (clumsy)
Action Points 1

⊕ Greatclub (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon
Reach 2; +15 vs. AC; 4d4 + 6 damage, and each creature adjacent to the target takes 5 damage.

↓ Overlord's Smash (standard; at-will)
The oni overlord makes a greatclub attack, shifts 1 square, and then makes a second greatclub attack against a different target.

✧ Overlord's Blast (standard; recharges when first bloodied) ✦ Necrotic, Poison
Close blast 5; +16 vs. Fortitude; 5d6 + 5 necrotic and poison damage, and the target gains vulnerable 5 necrotic and vulnerable 5 poison until the end of the oni overlord's next turn.

✧ Crush the Will (free, when the oni overlord damages an enemy; recharge ⚄ ⁞⁞) ✦ Fear
Close burst 5; targets enemies; +15 vs. Will; the target grants combat advantage to the overlord until the end of the overlord's next turn.

Violent Reward (immediate reaction, when an ally within 10 squares of the oni overlord damages an enemy; at-will)
The triggering ally gains 5 temporary hit points.

Deceptive Veil (minor; at-will) ✦ Illusion
The oni overlord can disguise itself to appear as any Medium or Large humanoid. A creature can see through the disguise with a successful Insight check versus the overlord's Bluff check.

Alignment Evil Languages Common, Giant
Skills Arcana +15, Insight +13, Intimidate +17
Str 21 (+11) Dex 12 (+7) Wis 14 (+8)

| Speed 8, teleport 8 | |
| ⊕ Spiked Chain (standard; at-will) ✦ Thunder, Weapon | |
| Reach 3; +28 vs. AC; 1d12 + 5 damage plus 1d8 thunder damage, and the target is grabbed and pulled into a space adjacent to the oni. | |
| Thunderclap Portal (standard; recharge ⚅) ✦ Teleportation, Thunder | |
| The oni thunderer teleports 8 squares before or after the attack: close burst 2; targets enemies; +25 vs. Reflex; 2d12 + 8 thunder damage, and the oni thunderer pushes the target 2 squares. If the thunderer has the target grabbed, the attack deals 2d12 extra damage to the grabbed creature, and the grab ends. | |
| Chain Dance (immediate reaction, when the oni thunderer is hit by an attack; at-will) ✦ Teleportation | |
| The thunderer teleports 3 squares. | |
| Deceptive Veil (minor, at-will) ✦ Illusion | |

Oni Lore

Nature DC 16: Oni devourers disguise themselves by day, attacking and eating victims at night.

Oni overlords are tyrants that rule over an organization of lackeys. They seek wealth, power, and control, and don't care who they step on to get it.

Nature DC 21: Oni devourers serve a variety of masters, including oni, vampires, hags, and cultists of Zehir. In isolated areas of the world, large groups of devourers infiltrate and take over monasteries, small towns, and trading outposts, using such locations' innocent appearances as a cover. In one case, a group of oni devourers occupied a mountaintop monastery for almost thirty years before adventurers linked them to cases of missing pilgrims and petitioners.

Although they love combat and bloodshed, oni overlords sometimes negotiate with potential victims if they can see an easy benefit. They take on a human appearance when they do so, but are usually identifiable by their excessive jewelry.

Nature DC 26: Oni thunderers serve powerful creatures, including dragons, demons, and even undead. They command respect from their masters, leaving employers at inopportune moments if slighted.

Encounter Groups

Oni keep packs of shadow hounds or trolls as pets or guardians. They fight alongside death giants and titans, and serve powerful dragons or balor demons.

Level 7 Encounter (XP 1,700)
- ✦ 2 oni devourers (level 7 soldier)
- ✦ 1 oni night haunter (level 8 elite controller, MM 200)
- ✦ 1 troll (level 9 brute, MM 254)

Level 12 Encounter (XP 3,900)
- ✦ 1 oni overlord (level 12 elite brute)
- ✦ 3 minotaur warriors (level 10 soldier, MM 190)
- ✦ 2 scytheclaw drakes (level 10 skirmisher)

Level 22 Encounter (XP 20,750)
- ✦ 2 death giants (level 22 brute, MM 120)
- ✦ 3 oni thunderers (level 22 skirmisher)

The only purpose oozes serve in the world is to wipe clean the dilapidated, forgotten, and ruined places and free them of vermin, refuse, and adventurers.

Abolethic Skum

Sometimes an aboleth's enslavement of a humanoid foe goes wrong and the foe becomes a barely sentient pile of aqueous sludge. Out of its remnants of fear and shame, the abolethic skum hungers to destroy anything that reminds it of what it once was.

Abolethic Skum Level 18 Minion Brute
Medium aberrant beast (aquatic, blind, ooze) XP 500

Initiative +13 Senses Perception +14; blindsight 10, tremorsense 10
Psychic Dissonance aura 1; each creature within the aura gains vulnerable 5 psychic damage.
HP 1; a missed attack never damages a minion.
AC 30; Fortitude 32, Reflex 30, Will 26
Immune gaze; Resist 20 acid
Speed 2, swim 8

⊕ Slam (standard; at-will)
+20 vs. Fortitude; 16 damage, and the target is pushed 1 square or slowed until the end of the abolethic skum's next turn.

Aqueous Form
An abolethic skum is invisible while in water.

Alignment Unaligned Languages –
Str 16 (+12) Dex 19 (+13) Wis 11 (+9)
Con 23 (+15) Int 4 (+6) Cha 4 (+6)

Abolethic Skum Tactics

An abolethic skum likes to fight in its element, slamming enemies into nearby water. Without water nearby, or if accompanied by a master that has psychic attack powers, the skum keeps enemies close and slowed.

Black Pudding

This mercurial ooze slithers on the ground like a massive pool of tar, waiting to turn anything it encounters into sludge.

Black Pudding Level 8 Elite Brute
Large natural beast (blind, ooze) XP 700

Initiative +6 Senses Perception +4; blindsight 10, tremorsense 10
HP 163; Bloodied 86
AC 20; Fortitude 22, Reflex 20, Will 18
Immune gaze; Resist 15 acid
Saving Throws +2
Speed 4, climb 3
Action Points 1

⊕ Slam (standard; at-will) ✦ Acid
+9 vs. Fortitude; 2d6 + 4 acid damage, and ongoing 5 acid damage (save ends).

Engulf (standard; at-will) ✦ Acid
Close blast 3; +9 vs. Fortitude; 2d6 + 4 acid damage, and the target is grabbed. Sustain Standard: The black pudding sustains the grab, and the target takes 2d6 acid damage and loses a healing surge. A target that has no healing surges instead takes damage equal to its level.

Mercurial Body
A black pudding ignores difficult terrain and does not provoke opportunity attacks by moving.

Split (when the black pudding is hit by a weapon attack; at-will)
A black pudding spawn appears in a square adjacent to the black pudding or in the nearest unoccupied square.

Alignment Unaligned Languages –
Str 15 (+6) Dex 14 (+6) Wis 11 (+4)
Con 19 (+8) Int 1 (-1) Cha 1 (-1)

Black Pudding Spawn Level 8 Minion Brute
Medium natural beast (blind, ooze) XP 88

Initiative +6 Senses Perception +4; blindsight 10, tremorsense 10
HP 1; a missed attack never damages a minion.
AC 22; Fortitude 24, Reflex 22, Will 20
Immune gaze; Resist 15 acid
Speed 4, climb 3

⊕ Slam (standard; at-will) ✦ Acid
+9 vs. Fortitude; 10 acid damage.

Mercurial Body
A black pudding spawn ignores difficult terrain and does not provoke opportunity attacks by moving.

Alignment Unaligned Languages –
Str 15 (+6) Dex 14 (+6) Wis 11 (+4)
Con 19 (+8) Int 1 (-1) Cha 1 (-1)

Black Pudding Tactics

A black pudding has no discernible tactics, seeking only to eat the closest targets. It has no sense of self-preservation.

Gray Ooze

Wretched piles of stinking pus, gray oozes seek to dissolve the bones of other creatures into slime, which they use to increase their bulk.

| Gray Ooze | Level 2 Skirmisher |
|---|---|
| Small natural beast (blind, ooze) | XP 125 |
| Initiative +5 | Senses Perception +2; blindsight 10, tremorsense 10 |
| Stench aura 2; each creature within the aura takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls. | |

| AC 15; Fortitude 13, Reflex 15, Will 13 | |
| Immune gaze; Resist 5 acid | |
| Speed 5, climb 3 | |
| ⓘ Bone Melt (standard; at-will) ✦ Acid | |
| +5 vs. Fortitude; 1d6 + 5 acid damage, and the target takes a cumulative -2 penalty to Fortitude each time it hits (save ends). | |
| Slimy (minor; at-will) | |
| The gray ooze shifts 2 squares. | |
| Alignment Unaligned | Languages – |

| Con 19 (+5) | Int 1 (-4) Cha 1 (-4) |

Gray Ooze Tactics

Gray oozes attack in groups, softening up enemies with bone melt so their attacks are increasingly likely to hit.

Green Slime

The green slime slithers up cavern walls and waits to drop on sources of heat. It devours flesh, bone, and metal with equal aplomb.

| Green Slime | Level 4 Lurker |
|---|---|
| Medium natural beast (blind, ooze) | XP 175 |
| Initiative +9 | Senses Perception +2; blindsight 10, tremorsense 10 |
| HP 47; Bloodied 23 | |
| AC 20; Fortitude 23, Reflex 17, Will 20 | |
| Immune gaze; Resist 5 acid; Vulnerability 5 fire, 5 radiant | |
| Speed 4, climb 4 | |
| ⓘ Engulf (standard; at-will) ✦ Acid | |
| +7 vs. Reflex; 1d6 + 3 acid damage, and the target is engulfed (save ends). While engulfed, the target takes ongoing 5 acid damage and is restrained. While a target is engulfed, attacks that target the green slime deal half damage to the slime and half damage to the engulfed creature. While it has a creature engulfed, the slime can make attacks only against the engulfed creature. | |
| Rapid Dissolution | |
| A green slime's attacks deal 1d6 extra acid damage to a creature that is taking ongoing acid damage. | |
| Alignment Unaligned | Languages – |
| Skills Stealth +11 | |
| Str 11 (+2) | Dex 16 (+5) Wis 11 (+2) |
| Con 17 (+5) | Int 3 (-2) Cha 1 (-3) |

Green Slime Tactics

In battle, a green slime attacks the nearest creature and uses rapid dissolution to dissolve the creature into slime.

Ooze Lore

Nature DC 10: Gray oozes are major nuisances in archaeological expeditions. Having fed on buried bones, they seek fresher targets among excavators and adventurers.

Dwarves consider green slime to be among the greatest nuisances hindering mining. The best way to destroy green slime is with fire or light.

Nature DC 14: Black puddings are dungeon-scavenging oozes covered in thick coatings of tarlike acid that eats away at everything, including rock, bone, and metal.

Nature DC 15: Gray oozes are especially dangerous in numbers or in close proximity to monsters that can take advantage of their bone-softening threat.

Nature DC 20: Abolethic skums are the results of failed attempts by aboleths to turn humanoids into servitors.

Nature DC 25: Aboleths and other psychic monsters use an abolethic skum's jarring psychic presence to soften up enemies for psychic attacks.

Encounter Groups

Oozes show up everywhere, regardless of whether other denizens of their environs want them or not.

Level 4 Encounter (XP 900)
- ✦ 1 ankheg (level 3 elite lurker)
- ✦ 2 green slimes (level 4 lurker)
- ✦ 2 gray oozes (level 2 skirmisher)

Level 8 Encounter (XP 1,750)
- ✦ 2 black puddings (level 8 elite brute)
- ✦ 1 darkmantle enveloper (level 8 lurker)

Level 19 Encounter (XP 12,200)
- ✦ 10 abolethic skums (level 18 minion brute)
- ✦ 2 aboleth lashers (level 17 brute, MM 8)
- ✦ 1 aboleth overseer (level 18 elite controller, MM 8)

PHOELARCH

The plumed humanoid phoelarch and the bird-like phoera represent two forms of one creature, half natural and half elemental. Phoelarchs are humanoid creatures with flames rippling over their skin. They seek freedom and adventure. When the phoelarch is slain, it is consumed in a burst of fire and the phoera explodes into being from the Elemental Chaos, intent on revenge.

Phoelarch Mage

Phoelarch mages harbor souls of fire that burn with the desire for freedom.

Phoelarch Mage Tactics

A phoelarch mage prefers to hang back, using its potent ranged and area attacks.

| Phoelarch Mage | Level 12 Artillery |
|---|---|
| Medium natural humanoid | XP 350 |
| Initiative +10 Senses Perception +12 | |
| Phoenix Heat (Fire) aura 1; each creature that enters the aura or starts its turn there takes 5 fire damage. | |

| ⊕ Phoenix Ray (standard; at-will) ✦ Fire Ranged 20; +17 vs. Reflex; 2d8 + 5 fire damage. | |
| Rise from the Ashes (when the phoelarch mage drops to 0 hit points) ✦ Fire, Zone Close burst 2; +13 vs. Reflex; 3d8 + 5 fire damage. Effect: The burst creates a zone of fire that lasts until the end of the encounter. Each creature that enters the zone or starts its turn there takes 5 fire damage. In addition, when the phoelarch mage's next turn would occur, a phoera appears within the zone. | |
| Flames of the Phoenix (standard; recharge ⚄ ⚅) ✦ Fire Area burst 2 within 20; +15 vs. Reflex; 1d8 + 5 fire damage, and ongoing 5 fire damage (save ends). | |

| Con 15 (+8) Int 16 (+9) Cha 18 (+10) | |
| Equipment dagger | |

Phoelarch Mage Lore

Nature DC 16: Phoelarch mages harness their innate command of fire. They prefer adventuring with mentors to researching ancient knowledge. Some mages search for their phoera counterparts in the hope of improving their magic.

Phoelarch Warrior

Phoelarch warriors are brave in the face of danger, often flitting among the blades of their enemies and responding with fire.

Phoelarch Warrior Tactics

The phoelarch warrior takes risks, deliberately provoking opportunity attacks to test an enemy's willingness to be harmed by burning step.

| Phoelarch Warrior | Level 12 Skirmisher |
|---|---|
| Medium natural humanoid (fire) | XP 350 |
| Initiative +14 Senses Perception +8 | |
| Phoenix Heat (Fire) aura 1; each creature that enters the aura or starts its turn there takes 5 fire damage. | |

| Rise from the Ashes (when the phoelarch warrior drops to 0 hit points) ✦ Fire, Zone Close burst 2; +13 vs. Reflex; 3d8 + 5 fire damage. Effect: The burst creates a zone of fire that lasts until the end of the encounter. Each creature that enters the zone or starts its turn there takes 5 fire damage. In addition, when the phoelarch warrior's next turn would occur, a phoera appears within the zone. | |
| Burning Step ✦ Fire Any creature that hits the phoelarch warrior with an opportunity attack takes 3d6 fire damage. | |
| Alignment Unaligned Languages Common, Primordial | |
| Skills Acrobatics +17, Athletics +12 | |
| Str 13 (+7) Dex 23 (+12) Wis 14 (+8) | |
| Con 10 (+6) Int 10 (+6) Cha 18 (+10) | |
| Equipment falchion | |

Phoelarch Warrior Lore

Nature DC 16: Phoelarch warriors are seldom found in armies, preferring the freedom of mercenary work. As creatures that value liberty, all but the most unscrupulous phoelarch warriors refuse to work for those that keep slaves.

Phoera

Phoeras soar through the Elemental Chaos with concerns alien to their phoelarch counterparts.

Phoera Tactics

A phoera fights in a violent rage and often harms allies as well as enemies with its close attacks. It starts combat by using feathers of flame, preferably on multiple enemies. Then it focuses its claw attacks on a target that seems susceptible to fire damage, using feathers of flame again whenever the power recharges. When pressed by multiple foes, the phoera uses flyby attack to reposition itself.

ZOLTAN BOROS & GABOR SZIKSZAI

Phoelarch Lore

Arcana DC 16: Phoeras are birdlike creatures that fly through the skies of the Elemental Chaos. When angered, a phoera fights viciously.

Arcana or Nature DC 21: Each phoelarch shares a soul with a phoera. The two are inextricably linked, and the death of one summons the angry form of the other. As long as its other half survives, a slain phoelarch or phoera eventually returns to life. A phoera and phoelarch that share a soul can differ as much as any two creatures. Each half has only a vague sense of the other's personality and emotions.

Encounter Groups

Phoelarchs prefer to ally with free-spirited creatures. Their wanderlust leads them to travel to many distant lands; they can be found almost anywhere.

Level 12 Encounter (XP 3,700)
- ✦ 1 briar witch dryad (level 13 elite controller, MM 96)
- ✦ 1 phoelarch warrior (level 12 elite skirmisher)
- ✦ 4 snaketongue zealots (level 12 minion, MM 272)

REMORHAZ

Remorhazes use their intense internal heat to burrow through the ice and rock of their arctic homes, preying on any creatures they come across, even giants and dragons.

| Remorhaz | Level 21 Elite Brute |
|---|---|
| Huge elemental beast | XP 6,400 |
| Initiative +18 Senses Perception +15; low-light vision | |
| Blistering Heat (Fire) aura 2; each creature that starts its turn within the aura takes 10 fire damage. | |
| HP 480; Bloodied 240 | |
| AC 33; Fortitude 33, Reflex 34, Will 32 | |
| Saving Throws +2 | |
| Speed 6, burrow 4 (tunneling) | |
| Action Points 1 | |
| ⊕ Bite (standard; at-will) | |
| Reach 2; +24 vs. AC; 2d12 + 10 damage, and the target is grabbed. | |
| ⸸ Swallow (minor; at-will) ✦ Fire | |
| Reach 2; targets a creature grabbed by the remorhaz; +24 vs. Fortitude; the target is swallowed and is no longer grabbed. While swallowed, the target is restrained and takes 10 damage plus 10 fire damage at the start of the remorhaz's turn. The swallowed creature has line of sight and line of effect only to the remorhaz, and no creature has line of sight or line of effect to the target. The swallowed creature can make only melee or close attacks. If the swallowed creature deals 30 damage to the remorhaz with an attack, the remorhaz regurgitates the creature into an adjacent square, and the creature is no longer swallowed. When the remorhaz dies, the target is no longer swallowed and can escape as a move action, appearing in the remorhaz's former space. | |
| ⸸ Trample (standard; at-will) | |
| The remorhaz moves its speed and can enter enemies' spaces. The remorhaz makes an attack against each enemy whose space it enters: +22 vs. Reflex; 2d10 + 5 damage, and the target is knocked prone. | |
| ✧ Immolating Carapace (standard; recharge ⚅) ✦ Fire | |
| Close burst 1; +24 vs. Reflex; 3d10 + 5 fire damage, and the target takes ongoing 10 fire damage until it ends its turn in a space that is not adjacent to the remorhaz. | |
| Enraged Heat (immediate reaction, when a creature hits the remorhaz with a melee attack; usable only while bloodied; at-will) ✦ Fire | |

Remorhaz Tactics

A remorhaz burrows to reach an isolated enemy and grabs it with its bite attack, then attempts to swallow it whole.

Remorhaz Lore

Arcana DC 22: A remorhaz generates intense heat, especially when enraged. Remorhazes are infamous for swallowing their prey whole, though they dislike trying to digest meals that are also causing them damage.

Arcana DC 27: Remorhazes are wild creatures, but they are sometimes trained by frost giants for use as guardians.

Encounter Groups

Frost giants are among the few creatures that have been known to risk training remorhazes.

Level 18 Encounter (XP 11,200)
- ✦ 1 frost giant (level 17 brute)
- ✦ 1 remorhaz (level 21 elite brute)
- ✦ 1 rime hound (level 17 elite skirmisher)

RETRIEVER

Retrievers are arachnoid monstrosities created by the primordials to seek out their foes with unerring accuracy. As constructs, they are built to follow the directions of powerful creatures.

| Retriever | Level 27 Soldier |
|---|---|
| Huge elemental animate | XP 11,000 |
| Initiative +24 | Senses Perception +20; darkvision, truesight 10 |
| HP 248; Bloodied 124 | |
| AC 43; Fortitude 39, Reflex 40, Will 38 | |
| Immune charm, fear; Resist 5 to all damage | |
| Speed 8 | |
| ⨭ Claws (standard; at-will) | |
| Reach 3; +34 vs. AC; 2d8 + 8 damage. | |
| ⨭ Retrieve (standard; usable only while the retriever does not have a creature grabbed; at-will) | |
| Reach 3; +30 vs. Fortitude; 2d8 + 8 damage, and the target is grabbed. The retriever can move a creature it has grabbed without making a Strength attack. | |
| ⨳ Eye Rays (standard; one ray recharges each round—roll a d4 to determine which) ✦ Acid, Cold, Fire, Thunder | |
| The retriever fires all the rays as a single standard action, but each must target a different creature: ranged 10; +32 vs. Reflex.1—Acid Ray: 2d10 + 9 acid damage, and the target is blinded (save ends).2—Cold Ray: 2d10 + 9 cold damage, and the target is immobilized (save ends).3—Fire Ray: 2d10 + 9 fire damage, and ongoing 15 fire damage (save ends).4—Thunder Ray: 2d10 + 9 thunder damage, and the target is stunned (save ends). | |
| Self-Repair (standard; recharges when first bloodied) ✦ Healing | |
| The retriever regains 20 hit points and gains a +4 bonus to AC until the start of its next turn. | |
| Unerring Accuracy (standard; daily) ✦ Teleportation | |
| The retriever senses the general location of the target or nearest creature of the type it was commanded to locate. The retriever teleports to a space that is within 10 squares of the target. The target need not be on the same plane as the retriever when it uses this power. | |
| Alignment Unaligned | Languages – |
| Str 26 (+21) | Dex 29 (+22) | Wis 25 (+20) |
| Con 24 (+20) | Int 2 (+9) | Cha 10 (+13) |

Retriever Tactics

A retriever uses eye rays whenever possible. In any round when the retriever has access to at least two rays, it fires them, even if doing this provokes opportunity attacks. If it does not, it savages foes with its claws. When directed to find a target, a retriever concentrates its attacks on that creature until it can grab the target using retrieve.

Retriever Lore

Arcana DC 26: Retrievers are unrivaled assassins and kidnappers that have the ability to find a designated target even across interplanar distances. Their eye rays can easily destroy or neutralize targets.

Arcana DC 31: Retrievers have a single-minded intellect, and in the eons since the cosmic war they have continued tirelessly to pursue whatever tasks they were given before being separated from their primordial masters.

Demons have learned the secret of commanding retrievers, turning these constructs into another tool for their destructive impulses.

Encounter Groups

If they aren't acting alone on some ancient mission, retrievers are seen alongside demons that have taken control of them.

Level 26 Encounter (XP 43,100)
- ✦ 1 abyssal rotfiend (level 26 controller)
- ✦ 1 marilith (level 24 elite skirmisher, MM 57)
- ✦ 2 retrievers (level 27 soldier)

RUST MONSTER

Rust monsters roam caverns and dungeons seeking metals to devour, making them a nightmare for any civilized creature dwelling underground.

Rust Monster

A rust monster typically attacks the nearest large source of metal, so the most heavily armored enemy is often its target.

| Rust Monster | Level 6 Skirmisher |
|---|---|
| Medium natural beast | XP 250 |
| Initiative +10 | Senses Perception +5; low-light vision |
| HP 66; Bloodied 33 | |
| AC 20; Fortitude 16, Reflex 21, Will 17 | |
| Speed 8 | |
| ⊕ Bite (standard; at-will) | |
| +11 vs. AC; 1d10 + 5 damage, and if the target is wearing heavy armor, the armor is rusting until the end of the encounter. While the armor is rusting, the target takes a cumulative -1 penalty to AC, to a maximum penalty of -5. | |
| ⸸ Dissolve Metal (standard; encounter) ✦ Reliable | |
| Targets a creature wearing or wielding a rusting magic item of 10th level or lower or any non-magic rusting item; +9 vs. Reflex; the rusting item is destroyed. | |
| Rusting Defense (when the rust monster is hit by a weapon attack; at-will) | |
| The weapon used in the triggering attack is rusting until the end of the encounter. While the weapon is rusting, the target takes a cumulative -1 penalty to damage rolls on attacks that use the weapon, to a maximum penalty of -5. | |
| Residuum Recovery | |
| A rust monster consumes any item it destroys. The residuum from any magic items the monster has destroyed can be retrieved from its stomach. The residuum is worth the market value of the item (not one-fifth the value). | |
| Alignment Unaligned | Languages – |
| Str 8 (+2) | Dex 20 (+8) | Wis 15 (+5) |
| Con 10 (+3) | Int 2 (-1) | Cha 12 (+4) |

Rust Monster Tactics

A hunger for metal drives the rust monster, and it heads straight for the closest enemy wearing metal armor or brandishing a metal melee weapon. A rust monster isn't clever, and often provokes opportunity attacks as it turns to its next target. Usually, after a rust monster dissolves a suit of armor or a few weapons, it retreats, content with its belly full of rust.

Young Rust Monster Swarm

Young rust monster swarms swirl around many foes, seeking a taste of all the metals they can see.

| Young Rust Monster Swarm | Level 9 Soldier |
|---|---|
| Medium natural beast (swarm) | XP 400 |
| Initiative +12 | Senses Perception +5; low-light vision |
| Swarm Attack aura 1; each enemy that starts its turn within the aura takes 3 damage. If the enemy has a rusting item, that enemy is also slowed until the end of its turn. | |
| HP 92; Bloodied 46 | |
| AC 25; Fortitude 19, Reflex 24, Will 19 | |
| Resist half damage from melee and ranged attacks; Vulnerable 10 against close and area attacks | |
| Speed 6 | |
| ⊕ Swarm of Teeth (standard; at-will) | |
| +14 vs. Reflex; 2d8 + 1 damage, and if the target is wearing heavy armor, the armor is rusting until the end of the encounter. While the armor is rusting, the target takes a cumulative -1 penalty to AC, to maximum penalty of -5. | |
| Rusting Defense (when the rust monster swarm is hit by a weapon attack; at-will) | |
| The weapon used in the triggering attack is rusting until the end of the encounter. While the weapon is rusting, the target takes a cumulative -1 penalty to damage rolls on attacks that use the weapon, to a maximum penalty of -5. | |

Dweomer Eater

Some rust monsters develop a taste for magic and eat items infused with arcane energy in order to grow larger and stronger.

| Dweomer Eater | Level 11 Skirmisher |
|---|---|
| Large natural beast | XP 600 |
| Initiative +13 | Senses Perception +9; low-light vision |
| HP 110; Bloodied 55 | |
| AC 25; Fortitude 20, Reflex 25, Will 23 | |
| Speed 8 | |
| ⊕ Bite (standard; at-will) | |
| +16 vs. AC; 2d6 + 6 damage, and if the target is wearing magic armor, the armor is decaying until the end of the encounter. While the armor is decaying, the armor's enhancement bonus takes a cumulative -1 penalty, to the maximum of the armor's enhancement bonus. | |
| ⸸ Dissolve Item (standard; recharge ⚅) ✦ Reliable | |
| Targets a creature wearing or wielding a decaying magic item of 15th level or lower; +14 vs. Reflex; the decaying magic item is destroyed. | |
| Magic Consumption (when the dweomer eater is hit by an attack that uses a magic implement or weapon; at-will) | |
| The implement or weapon used in the triggering attack is decaying until the end of the encounter. While the implement or weapon is decaying, the target takes a cumulative -1 penalty to that implement's or weapon's enhancement bonus, to a maximum penalty equal to the item's enhancement bonus. | |
| Residuum Recovery | |
| A dweomer eater consumes any item it destroys. The residuum from any magic items the dweomer eater has destroyed can be retrieved from its stomach. The residuum is worth the market value of the item (not one-fifth the value). | |
| Alignment Unaligned | Languages – |
| Str 12 (+6) | Dex 23 (+11) | Wis 18 (+9) |
| Con 14 (+7) | Int 2 (+1) | Cha 13 (+6) |

Rust Monster Lore

Nature DC 14: Rust monsters devour metals to survive. Most spend their lives leaching minerals from stone, but purer manufactured metals draw them like blood draws sharks.

Since their food is scarce, rust monsters typically have only one or two young per brood. In places where food is plentiful, such as near a lode of metal ore, a pair of rust monsters can have dozens of offspring.

Nature DC 19: A rust monster that feeds on residuum retains it within its body. The residuum can be retrieved after its death. Those that have eaten a large amount of residuum, called dweomer eaters, eventually absorb it, growing in size and becoming hungry for more magic.

Encounter Groups

Rust monsters are creatures of opportunity, so their allies often avoid using metal tools or weapons. Lizardfolk sometimes use rust monsters to help even the odds against well-armed enemies.

Level 6 Encounter (XP 1,250)
- ✦ 2 blackscale bruiser lizardfolk (level 6 brute, MM 179)
- ✦ 1 greenscale marsh mystic lizardfolk (level 6 controller, MM 179)
- ✦ 2 rust monsters (level 6 skirmisher)

Level 8 Encounter (XP 1,750)
- ✦ 1 dweomer eater (level 11 skirmisher)
- ✦ 1 spriggan witherer (level 8 artillery)
- ✦ 2 young rust monster swarms (level 9 soldier)

A Guide to Using Rust Monsters

For a PC, the threat of losing gear can be greater than the threat of being reduced to 0 hp. Because of this fact, rust monsters can be more terrifying for players to face than a rampaging red dragon. A character who loses his or her armor becomes extremely vulnerable, and a character who has lost a magic weapon won't be as effective in later encounters. When a rust monster consumes a PC's weapon, it effectively gives that PC a significant penalty on attack and damage rolls until he or she can find a suitable replacement weapon. A PC who loses armor to a rust monster suffers an even more dramatic reduction in AC unless replacement armor can be found.

The possibility of recovering residuum from a rust monster or a dweomer eater alleviates this disadvantage to some degree, but the PCs will still need to find time to rest and use the Create Magic Item ritual, and they might even need to "head back to town" to find a way to replace the item. But you don't want an encounter with a rust monster to be one that forces the PCs to stop adventuring. When you include a rust monster in an encounter, think about ways to allow the PCs to carry on, with perhaps less optimal gear. For example, the PCs might have had a previous encounter that provided armor or weapons that they wouldn't normally use, or the PCs might be able to fashion clubs or other simple weapons out of nearby materials.

Eventually, though, the PCs should have an opportunity to regain their lost equipment by using the residuum found in the monster. Although a PC might lose an item, it is intended that the loss be only temporary, which is why the residuum recovered from a rust monster is equal to the full value of the destroyed item. How the PCs deal with the loss is what makes the rust monster fun. Be wary of PCs who try to abuse a rust monster's powers to their advantage by using rust monsters to consume items the PCs would otherwise sell for one-fifth value. In such cases, you should reduce the resulting residuum to one-fifth value, effectively making the rust monster a free Disenchant Magic Item ritual.

SHADAR-KAI

These shadowy humanoids pursue pleasure and pain, depravity and hedonistic excess—any rush of sensation to forestall the Shadowfell's gloom.

Shadar-Kai Lore

Arcana DC 18: Shadar-kai seek new experiences and a rush of sensation. Characters who risk bargaining with the shadar-kai should offer an intense or diverting experience as their part in the deal.

Arcana DC 23: Long ago, the shadar-kai bound themselves by oath and blood to the service of the Raven Queen. However, they found their extended lives threatened by the omnipresent malaise of the Shadowfell. Realizing that sensation, even pain, was the only way to forestall their home's soul-draining gloom, the shadar-kai became a race of extremes.

Shadar-Kai Blacksoul

A shadar-kai blacksoul kills from a distance, targeting foes with bolts of necrotic energy.

SHARK

To sahuagin and other undersea predators, the shark is a totemic inspiration, a creature of blood frenzy and relentless hunger. To creatures that live above the waves, the sight of a shark's fin cutting the surface heralds doom.

Fleshtearer Shark

The fleshtearer shark looks like a creature from another age. For thousands of years, these sharks have hunted in oceans and lakes. Mariners greatly fear the fleshtearer, for even the sturdy hulls of ships cannot always withstand the rending teeth of this voracious beast.

| Fleshtearer Shark | Level 10 Brute |

| +13 vs. AC; 2d8 + 7 damage. | |
| ⸸ Lockjaw Charge (standard; usable only while the fleshtearer shark is not grabbing a creature; at-will) | |
| The shark charges and makes the following attack in place of a melee basic attack: +14 vs. AC; 2d8 + 7 damage, and the target is grabbed. When the grab ends, the target takes ongoing 5 damage (save ends). | |
| ⸸ Shredding Teeth (standard; at-will) | |
| Targets a creature grabbed by the fleshtearer shark; no attack roll; 3d8 + 7 damage. | |
| Feeding Frenzy (when the fleshtearer shark starts its turn within 5 squares of a bloodied creature; at-will) | |
| The shark must make a bite attack against a creature adjacent to it. If the shark is grabbing a creature, the grab ends. | |
| Waterborne | |
| While in water, a fleshtearer shark gains a +2 bonus to damage rolls against any creature without a swim speed. | |

Fleshtearer Shark Tactics

Unless spurred into combat by its master or another beast, a fleshtearer shark lurks just outside its prey's sight. The fleshtearer shark charges into battle using lockjaw charge, and it continues using lockjaw charge to attempt to grab nearby foes even if doing that means provoking opportunity attacks when moving away from adjacent enemies. Even when facing formidable prey, a fleshtearer shark does not flee, fighting fiercely to the death.

Fleshtearer Shark Lore

Nature DC 10: Fleshtearer sharks are not confined to the open ocean. They also prowl rivers and underground lakes in their search for prey. A fleshtearer shark feeds constantly, making it a threat to any visitor to or inhabitant of the aquatic realm. Its teeth cause bleeding wounds.

Nature DC 16: Formidable aquatic creatures such as kuo-toas and sahuagin usually give the fleshtearer shark a wide berth, although some have managed to tame the beasts. They use the creatures as weapons on raids of large ships, ensuring that any sailors who fall overboard meet a quick end.

Nature DC 21: In the deepest watery caverns of the Underdark and in the farthest reaches of the oceans, fleshtearer sharks sometimes live for hundreds of years, growing to massive size. Vast swaths of water become uninhabitable because of the presence of such a beastly predator.

Encounter Groups

Sharks often ally with sahuagin, kuo-toas, and other underwater denizens.

Level 10 Encounter (XP 2,700)
- ✦ 2 fleshtearer sharks (level 10 brute)
- ✦ 1 sahuagin baron (level 10 elite brute, MM 224)
- ✦ 2 sahuagin priests (level 8 artillery, MM 224)

SKELETON

Skeletons rarely exist without purpose. Whether crafted through necromantic ritual or raised from a tomb, they relentlessly attack when compelled to kill.

Bonecrusher Skeleton

Swift bonecrusher skeletons leap into combat fearlessly and wield greatclubs with whiplike speed.

| Bonecrusher Skeleton | Level 7 Soldier |
|---|---|
| Large natural animate (undead), minotaur | XP 300 |

Skeletal Steed

A skeletal steed with a skeletal rider is the basic mounted unit of an undead army.

| Skeletal Steed | Level 3 Skirmisher |
|---|---|
| Large natural animate (mount, undead) | XP 150 |
| Initiative +6 | Senses Perception +2; darkvision |

| Immune disease, poison | |
| Speed 8 | |
| ⊕ Kick (standard; at-will) | |
| +8 vs. AC; 1d8 + 2 damage. | |
| ⊹ Mobile Melee Attack (standard; at-will) | |
| The skeletal steed moves its speed and makes a kick attack during the move. The steed does not provoke opportunity attacks while moving away from the target of this attack. | |
| ✧ Death Shriek (minor; recharge ⚄ ⚅) ✦ Fear | |
| Close burst 3; targets enemies; +6 vs. Will; the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls (save ends). | |
| Mount of the Dead (while mounted by a friendly rider of 3rd level or higher) ✦ Mount | |
| When the skeletal steed uses mobile melee attack, the rider makes a melee basic attack during the move as a free action. The rider can choose to forego its basic attack and the steed's attack to instead use one of the rider's melee attack powers during the move. | |

ADAM GILLESPIE

Skeleton Lore

Religion DC 12: Bonecrusher skeletons arise from the bones of ogres, minotaurs, oni, giants, and other large creatures.

Skeletal steeds rarely arise alone; they awaken from death with their riders or are created by rituals as mounts. Without need of rest or sustenance, these creatures provide tireless service to any warrior.

Encounter Groups

Skeletons do little of their own volition, so bonecrusher skeletons are often found as guards and skeletal steeds as mounts.

Level 5 Encounter (XP 1,025)
- ✦ 1 deathlock wight (level 4 controller, MM 262)
- ✦ 3 skeletal steeds (level 3 skirmisher)
- ✦ 2 wights (level 5 skirmisher, MM 262)

Level 6 Encounter (XP 1,450)
- ✦ 3 bonecrusher skeletons (level 7 soldier)
- ✦ 1 orc eye of Gruumsh (level 5 controller, MM 204)
- ✦ 1 zombie hulk (level 8 brute, MM 275)

SLAAD

Through a haze of madness, slaads see a world with too much order and too many constraints. Their disruptive attacks create disorder, but rarely on a large scale; their chaotic nature deters them from banding into effective armies.

Flux Slaad

Mutable flux slaads alter their defenses and vulnerabilities in response to enemy attacks.

Flux Slaad Tactics

A flux slaad goes into flux rage early in a fight, throwing itself into the midst of its enemies and trying to slash down as many as possible. It then uses claw slash and shifts using piercing reaction to move into flanking position or out of harm's way.

| Flux Slaad | Level 9 Skirmisher |
|---|---|
| Medium elemental humanoid | XP 400 |
| Initiative +8 | Senses Perception +10; low-light vision |
| HP 98; Bloodied 49 | |
| AC 23; Fortitude 23, Reflex 21, Will 21 | |
| Resist 5 variable (see also slaad vulnerability shift); Vulnerable 10 variable (see also slaad vulnerability shift) | |
| Speed 7, teleport 2 | |
| ⊕ Claw Slash (standard; at-will) | |
| +14 vs. AC; 2d8 + 3 damage. | |
| ↯ Flux Rage (standard; recharges when first bloodied) | |
| The flux slaad shifts 2 squares and makes one claw slash attack against each creature it moves adjacent to during the shift. | |
| Piercing Reaction (immediate reaction, when the flux slaad takes damage from an attack; at-will) | |
| The slaad shifts 1 square. | |
| Slaad Vulnerability Shift | |
| A flux slaad starts the encounter with vulnerable 10 to one of the following six damage types, randomly determined: 1—cold, 2—fire, 3—lightning, 4—necrotic, 5—psychic, or 6—thunder. It has resist 5 to the other five types. When the slaad takes damage of the type to which it's vulnerable, its vulnerability changes to one of the other five damage types, randomly determined, and it gains resistance to the type it was previously vulnerable to. | |
| Alignment Unaligned | Languages Common, Primordial |
| Str 16 (+7) | Dex 15 (+6) Wis 13 (+5) |
| Con 18 (+8) | Int 7 (+2) Cha 14 (+6) |

Flux Slaad Lore

Arcana DC 19: Flux slaads sometimes accidentally slip through weak points between the planes; this commonly occurs near gatherings of bullywugs. The flux slaads often end up ruling tribes of bullywugs, which revere them as demon lords.

Arcana DC 21: Flux slaads garner little respect from their more deadly kin. In addition to being smaller and weaker than most, they are incapable of spawning. Many flux salads thus lord over what creatures they may, often showing surprising restraint in their violent and unpredictable rages.

Slaad Spawn

Slaad spawn are not self-aware. They desire only to cause chaos and carnage, with no care for their own or their allies' safety.

Slaad Spawn Tactics

A slaad spawn prefers to use chaotic slam on the closest opponent, especially when the opponent is close to other enemies.

WAYNE ENGLAND (2)

| Slaad Spawn | Level 17 Minion Skirmisher |
|---|---|
| Small elemental humanoid | XP 400 |
| Initiative +17 | Senses Perception +10; low-light vision |

| ⸸ Chaotic Slam (standard; at-will) | |
| The slaad spawn jumps a distance up to its speed and then attacks an adjacent enemy: +22 vs AC; 12 damage and the target is knocked prone. Miss: The slaad spawn explodes and is reduced to 0 hit points. The spawn then makes the following close burst 1 attack: +20 vs Reflex; 9 damage. | |

| Str 17 (+11) | Dex 24 (+15) | Wis 14 (+10) |

Slaad Spawn Lore

Arcana DC 20: From the moment of its gory birth from a living host, a young slaad presents a threat to all around it. Dim-witted and voracious, the slaad spawn must eat swiftly and well, or the chaotic energies contained within its body become unstable and explode. Assuming it survives those first bloody moments of life, the young slaad grows swiftly and, after just a few days, begins to display the appearance and powers that will define it in adulthood.

Arcana DC 25: Not all slaads reproduce through the implantation of chaos phage. Some are themselves infected with an aberrant form of chaos phage. These slaads grow embryos within their own bodies. This painful experience causes blood- and pus-filled boils on a slaad's body. Only injury releases the young slaads. This damage, and the dangerous nature of the spawn, cause many slaad spawners to avoid unleashing the spawn from their flesh.

Encounter Groups

Slaads usually fight alongside other slaads, because their motives are inscrutable to most others.

Level 8 Encounter (XP 1,950)
- 1 death shard (level 8 artillery)
- 3 flux slaads (level 9 skirmisher)
- 2 slaad tadpoles (level 5 lurker, MM 237)

Level 17 Encounter (XP 8,400)
- 2 blue slaads (level 17 brute, MM 238)
- 1 green slaad (level 18 controller, MM 238)
- 8 slaad spawns (level 17 minion)

Slaad Spawner

Some slaads can reproduce through budding. A slaad spawner is covered in bulbous, quivering boils that rupture when the spawner is attacked, revealing small slaad spawns.

Slaad spawner is a template you can apply to any large slaad monster.

Prerequisite: Large slaad, level 15

| Slaad Spawner | Elite Controller |
|---|---|
| Humanoid | XP Elite |
| Saving Throws +2 | |
| Action Points 1 | |
| Hit Points None additional | | | Powers | |
| Spawn Slaad (immediate reaction, when the slaad spawner is hit by an attack; at-will) | |
| A slaad spawn appears in a space adjacent to the slaad spawner. It takes its turn in the initiative order after the slaad spawner. PCs do not earn experience points for killing slaad spawns created by this power. | |

SLAUGHTERSTONE CONSTRUCT

These deadly automatons were originally designed by dwarves for use as guardians of underground fortresses. The secret of their construction has since been stolen or duplicated by many others.

Slaughterstone Eviscerator

This great stone insectile construct is capable of tearing through hordes of enemies in very little time with its whirling serrated blades.

| Slaughterstone Eviscerator | Level 18 Brute |
|---|---|
| Large natural animate (construct) | XP 2,000 |
| Initiative +15 Senses Perception +9; darkvision | |
| Whirling Blades aura 2; each creature that starts its turn within the aura takes 10 damage. | |
| HP 212; Bloodied 106 | |
| AC 30; Fortitude 31, Reflex 30, Will 28 | |
| Immune disease, poison, sleep | |

| ✧ Whirling Bladestorm (standard; recharge ⁞⁞) | |
| Close burst 2; +21 vs. AC; 1d12 + 8 damage (crit 2d12 +20). | |
| Tunnel Fighting | |
| A slaughterstone eviscerator takes no penalty to attack rolls while squeezing and does not grant combat advantage while squeezing. | |
| Alignment Unaligned Languages – | |
| Str 25 (+16) Dex 22 (+15) Wis 10 (+9) | |
| Con 22 (+15) Int 1 (+4) Cha 3 (+5) | |

Slaughterstone Eviscerator Tactics

Though it is quite capable of fighting in confined spaces, the slaughterstone eviscerator is best employed when it is allowed to wade into a mass of opponents to use its whirling bladestorm attack against several opponents at once.

Slaughterstone Hammerer

Pounding stone hammers mount the sides of this great construct whose every step is like thunder. These automatons lay waste to all in their path with uncaring precision.

| Slaughterstone Hammerer | Level 25 Soldier |
|---|---|
| Large natural animate (construct) | XP 7,000 |
| Initiative +14 Senses Perception +12; darkvision | |
| Thunder Step aura 2; each creature that starts its turn within the aura is slowed until the start of its next turn. | |
| HP 233; Bloodied 116 | |
| AC 41; Fortitude 40, Reflex 35, Will 35 | |
| Immune disease, poison, sleep | |
| Speed 6 | |
| ⊕ Slam (standard; at-will) | |
| Reach 2; +32 vs. AC; 2d8 + 10 damage, and the target is knocked prone. | |
| ⸸ Hammerstrike (standard; at-will) | |
| Reach 2; +28 vs. Fortitude; 2d8 + 10 damage, and the target is dazed (save ends). | |
| Tunnel Fighting | |
| A slaughterstone hammerer takes no penalty to attack rolls while squeezing and does not grant combat advantage while squeezing. | |
| Alignment Unaligned Languages – | |
| Str 28 (+21) Dex 11 (+12) Wis 10 (+12) | |
| Con 25 (+19) Int 1 (+7) Cha 3 (+8) | |

Slaughterstone Hammerer Tactics

The slaughterstone hammerer strides forward, striking down all who oppose it. It uses hammerstrike against a particularly tough opponent that survives one or more slam attacks.

Slaughterstone Slicer

Crafting such powerful constructs required dwarves of epic skill. When such legendary masters could not be found, others mimicked their work with less reliable results. A slaughterstone slicer is similar to an eviscerator, but it lacks the eviscerator's supreme defenses and accuracy.

| Slaughterstone Slicer | Level 11 Elite Brute |
|---|---|
| Large natural animate (construct) | XP 1,200 |
| Initiative +11 Senses Perception +5; darkvision | |
| Whirling Blades aura 2; each creature that starts its turn within the aura takes 5 damage. | |
| HP 276; Bloodied 138 | |
| AC 23; Fortitude 24, Reflex 23, Will 19 | |

| Action Points 1 | |
| ⨁ Slicing Blade (standard; at-will) | |
| Reach 2; +14 vs. AC; 2d8 + 6 damage (crit 4d8 + 22). | |
| ✧ Whirling Bladestorm (standard; at-will) | |
| Close burst 2; +14 vs. AC; 2d8 + 6 damage (crit 4d8 + 22). | |
| ✧ Bloodied Bladestorm (free, when first bloodied; encounter) | |
| Whirling bladestorm recharges, and the slaughterstone slicer uses it. | |
| Critical Malfunction (when the slaughterstone slicer scores a critical hit or is subject to a critical hit) | |
| The slicer is dazed until the end of its next turn. | |
| Tunnel Fighting | |
| A slaughterstone slicer takes no penalty to attack rolls while squeezing and does not grant combat advantage while squeezing. | |
| Alignment Unaligned Languages – | |
| Str 22 (+11) Dex 18 (+9) Wis 10 (+5) | |
| Con 18 (+9) Int 1 (+0) Cha 3 (+1) | |

Slaughterstone Slicer Tactics

A slaughterstone slicer fights like an eviscerator, but its tendency to malfunction makes it a less reliable combatant. It stays close to several enemies at once to increase the damage from slicing blade and whirling bladestorm.

Slaughterstone Construct Lore

Arcana or Nature DC 25: The creation of a slaughterstone construct requires the secrets of legendary dwarven craft and a solid block of stone upon which heroes have shed blood.

Encounter Groups

Slaughterstone constructs can be found alongside the fighting forces of nearly every intelligent race that has the will to use such monstrosities in battle.

Level 11 Encounter (XP 3,400)
- 1 duergar blasphemer (level 14 controller)
- 2 duergar fleshtearers (level 11 lurker)
- 1 slaughterstone slicer (level 11 elite brute)

Level 18 Encounter (XP 10,400)
- 2 eldritch giants (level 18 skirmisher)
- 1 nothic mindblight (level 19 controller)
- 2 slaughterstone eviscerators (level 18 brute)

Level 25 Encounter (XP 39,150)
- 1 beholder eye of chaos (level 25 elite artillery)
- 1 oni thunderer (level 22 skirmisher)
- 3 slaughterstone hammerers (level 25 soldier)

SPHINX

Some say the gods created sphinxes to test the mettle of heroes or to protect sacred locations; others say they are primordials birthed in a time before gods.

Sphinx Mystery

These creatures amuse themselves by asking their prey for answers to riddles or for obscure bits of lore and interpretations of prophecy.

| Sphinx Mystery | Level 19 Brute |
|---|---|
| Large immortal magical beast | XP 2,400 |

| ⓘ Bite of Ages (standard; at-will) | |
| Reach 2; + 22 vs. AC; 1d10 + 5 damage, and the target is knocked prone and immobilized (save ends). | |
| ⓨ Riddle Me This (minor; at-will) ✦ Psychic | |
| Ranged 10; the sphinx mystery compels the target to contemplate a riddle. The target is dazed until the end of the encounter or until it answers the riddle. To determine the answer, a creature must spend a minor action and succeed at a DC 25 History check. A target that does not attempt to answer the riddle during its turn takes 2d8 psychic damage at the end of its turn. An ally can provide the answer and end the effect. If an ally ends the effect, the target takes 2d8 psychic damage. | |
| ⸸ Corrective Mauling (standard; recharges when an enemy fails the History check for riddle me this) | |
| Reach 2; +22 vs. AC; 4d10 + 10 damage, and the target is knocked prone. | |
| ⌖ Great Roar (standard; encounter) ✦ Thunder | |

Sphinx Mystery Tactics

The sphinx mystery prefers to toy with its victims by presenting riddles and enigmas before pouncing. It uses riddle me this repeatedly to get the question game going.

JIM NELSON

Sphinx Mystery Lore

Arcana DC 27: Sphinxes love toying with their prey. If the victim plays along with the riddles, a sphinx might continue to ask riddles rather than attack outright.

Encounter Groups

Sphinxes cooperate with other creatures that can tolerate the way they toy with their prey. Their need to pose riddles and questions often trumps tactical realities in combat, making them precarious allies.

Level 16 Encounter (XP 7,600)
- ✦ 2 nothic cacklers (level 15 artillery)
- ✦ 2 savage minotaurs (level 16 brute, MM 191)
- ✦ 1 sphinx mystery (level 19 brute)

SPIDER

Giant arachnids crawl everywhere in the world and in the planes beyond. Their webs can be found strung in dark forests, ancient ruins, damp caverns, abandoned buildings, or sewers—anywhere that prey can be caught and devoured.

Bristle Spider

This massive spider hunts within vast overgrown jungles, where the plant life is large enough to afford numerous places from which it can surprise the unwary. Bristle spiders have also been known to make lairs underground, where larger caverns and dungeon chambers offer places in which they can hide and stalk their prey.

Bristle Spider Tactics

A bristle spider uses bristle blast to disorient its enemies, then acidic poison spray to slow them. It uses its action point to make both attacks in the first round of combat. Then it closes in to bite dazed or blinded enemies.

Bristle Spider Lore

Nature DC 18: Ettercaps and drow prize these large arachnids as companions and guardians. Other races have been known to employ and train them as well.

Nature DC 23: Bristle spiders were long ago bred by the oni to serve as mounts and servants in the vast jungles of the world.

Reach 2; +20 vs. AC; 1d10 + 6 damage, and the target is slowed and takes ongoing 10 poison damage (save ends both).

Acidic Poison Spray (standard; at-will) ✦ Acid, Poison
Close blast 5; +18 vs. Reflex; 2d8 + 6 acid and poison damage, and the target is slowed and takes ongoing 10 acid and poison damage (save ends both).

Bristle Blast (minor; recharge ⚅ ⚄ ⚃)
Close blast 5; +18 vs. Fortitude; the target is blinded and dazed until the start of the bristle spider's next turn.

Web Walker
A bristle spider ignores the effects of spider webs and spider swarms.

Alignment Unaligned Languages –

Str 20 (+12) Dex 24 (+14) Wis 13 (+8)
Con 20 (+12) Int 3 (+3) Cha 6 (+5)

Encounter Groups

These crafty predators hunt alone and in pairs. They are attracted by battle, and ally with drow or driders to prey on their enemies.

Level 14 Encounter (XP 5,200)
- ✦ 1 bristle spider (level 15 elite lurker)
- ✦ 1 drow blademaster (level 13 elite skirmisher, MM 94)
- ✦ 1 drow priest (level 15 controller, MM 95)

Phase spider and bristle spider

STEVE ELLIS

Phase Spider

These cunning Feywild predators have been known to cross into the world in search of prey. Like their natural cousins, they can be found in nearly any environment.

| Phase Spider | Level 8 Skirmisher |
|---|---|
| Large fey beast (spider) | XP 350 |
| Initiative +11 | Senses Perception +7; tremorsense 10 |

| Speed 6, climb 6 (spider climb), teleport 6 | |
| ⊕ Bite (standard; at-will) ✦ Poison, Sleep | |
| +13 vs. AC; 1d8 + 5 damage, and the target is slowed (save ends). First Failed Saving Throw: The target is knocked unconscious instead of slowed (save ends). | |
| ⸸ Ethereal Bite (standard; recharge ⚄ ⁞⁞) ✦ Teleportation | |
| The phase spider teleports 10 squares and makes a bite attack. | |
| ⸸ Ethereal Repulsion (immediate interrupt, when an enemy moves adjacent to the phase spider; at-will) ✦ Teleportation | |
| Targets the triggering enemy; +11 vs. Will; the spider teleports the target 4 squares. | |
| Alignment Unaligned | Languages – |
| Skills Stealth +14 | |
| Str 17 (+7) | Dex 20 (+9) Wis 17 (+7) |
| Con 15 (+6) | Int 5 (+1) Cha 10 (+4) |

Phase Spider Tactics

A phase spider prefers to surprise its prey, using its ethereal bite attack to teleport in, bite an enemy, and then teleport out of harm's way. Possessing superior mobility through their natural ability to teleport, phase spiders rarely engage a single enemy for longer than a round or two before moving on to another opponent.

Phase spiders use hit-and-run tactics in order to wear down their prey.

Phase Spider Lore

Arcana DC 20: Though able to sustain themselves on the blood of any living creature, phase spiders prefer to dine on fey victims. They have been known to divert their attention away from easier prey in order to attack such creatures.

Arcana DC 25: Phase spiders are the result of ancient magical experimentation by the eladrin, done in an effort to create a creature that can be trained to infiltrate the dark halls of the drow.

Encounter Groups

Phase spiders hunt both alone and in packs. They have also been known to work alongside other powerful fey creatures, particularly eladrin.

Level 7 Encounter (XP 1,650)

- ✦ 2 eladrin fey knights (level 7 soldier, MM 102)
- ✦ 3 phase spiders (level 8 skirmisher)

Tomb Spider

These voracious killers are true creatures of the Shadowfell insofar as they create undead as a part of their life cycle. Tomb spiders constantly look for opportunities to cross over into the world, frequently making their lairs in graveyards or catacombs where they can find dead bodies in which to lay their eggs.

Tomb Spider Tactics

A tomb spider uses its webbed terrain attack to divide the field of battle. It uses web net to restrain as many opponents as possible, biting them as opportunity allows. If it becomes bloodied, the tomb spider uses its considerable jumping and climbing abilities to escape, allowing it to return later to renew the fight.

Tomb Spider Lore

Arcana DC 16: A tomb spider lays its eggs in a humanoid corpse, creating an animate mummy in which hundreds of tiny tomb spiders reside until the creature splits open. Tomb spiders are frequently employed by followers of Orcus, which delight in their natural ability to create undead as part of their reproductive cycle.

Tomb Spider Broodswarm Tactics

A tomb spider broodswarm attacks the nearest living creature unless commanded to do otherwise by its parent tomb spider. These masses of infant tomb spiders use shadow drift to move around living obstacles.

Encounter Groups

Tomb spiders usually establish lairs near crypts or catacombs where humanoid corpses can be found. They have been known to aid powerful undead creatures as well as followers of Orcus.

Level 11 Encounter (XP 3,300)

- ✦ 3 crimson acolytes (level 7 skirmisher, MM 210)
- ✦ 1 deathpriest of Orcus (level 9 controller, MM 210)

SPRIGGAN

Spriggans are gnomes altered by fomorian magic. These perverse fey now wander the rough country of the Feywild and the world, pillaging for food and riches and delighting in the slaying of foes.

Spriggan Giantsoul

Giantsouls build upon the evil they inherited from fomorian domination, gaining strength as well as the ability to stretch their arms to a giant's reach.

Spriggan Giantsoul Level 8 Brute
Small fey humanoid XP 350

Initiative +6 Senses Perception +7; low-light vision
HP 106; Bloodied 53
AC 20; Fortitude 21, Reflex 19, Will 20
Speed 6

⊕ Slam (standard; at-will)
+11 vs. AC; 2d6 + 5 damage, or 2d6 + 9 damage while the spriggan giantsoul is bloodied.

⸸ Giantsoul Slam (standard; recharge ⚅ ⚄ ⚃)
Reach 2; +13 vs. AC; 2d6 + 5 damage, and the target is knocked prone. While the spriggan giantsoul is bloodied, the damage increases to 2d6 + 9.

⸸ Surprise Slam (immediate interrupt, when an enemy within 2 squares of the spriggan giantsoul attacks an ally; encounter)
Giantsoul slam recharges, and the giantsoul uses it against the triggering enemy.

Redcap Zeal (when the spriggan giantsoul bloodies an enemy or reduces an enemy to 0 hit points or fewer; encounter)
The giantsoul gains 1d10 + 3 temporary hit points.

Alignment Evil Languages Elven
Skills Athletics +14, Intimidate +10, Stealth +12

Small fey humanoid XP 300

Initiative +9 Senses Perception +9; low-light vision
HP 79; Bloodied 39
AC 21 (23 against opportunity attacks); Fortitude 19, Reflex 20, Will 18
Speed 6

⊕ Sickle (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon
+12 vs. AC; 1d6 + 3 damage, and ongoing 5 damage (save ends).

⸸ Hamstring (standard; recharges when first bloodied) ✦ Weapon
+12 vs. AC; 1d6 + 3 damage, and the target is knocked prone, is slowed until the end of the spriggan powrie's next turn, and takes ongoing 5 damage (save ends).

⸸ Punt the Fallen (minor 1/round; at-will)
Targets a prone creature; +12 vs. Fortitude; 1d6 + 3 damage, and the spriggan powrie pushes the target 3 squares.

Blood Slide
A spriggan powrie does not provoke opportunity attacks for moving out of a space adjacent to a bloodied creature or a creature that is taking ongoing damage.

Combat Advantage
When a spriggan powrie hits a creature that is taking ongoing damage and is granting combat advantage to the powrie, the powrie's attack increases the ongoing damage by 5.

Redcap Zeal (when the spriggan powrie bloodies an enemy or reduces an enemy to 0 hit points or fewer; encounter)
The powrie gains 1d8 + 2 temporary hit points.

⊕ Short Sword (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon
+13 vs. AC; 1d6 + 3 damage, and ongoing 5 damage (save ends).

✧ Mark of Thorns (standard; encounter)
Close burst 5; targets one enemy; the target is affected by the mark of thorns until the end of the encounter. While affected by the mark of thorns, the target cannot make opportunity attacks against the spriggan thorn, and the target takes 4 damage at the end of any turn in which it did not attack the thorn. In addition, at the start of the target's turn, each of the target's allies adjacent to the target takes 4 damage.

Drowsing Puncture (minor; recharges when first bloodied)
If the spriggan thorn hits with its next short sword attack, the target of the attack is dazed until the end of the thorn's next turn and is knocked prone.

Redcap Zeal (when the spriggan thorn bloodies an enemy or reduces an enemy to 0 hit points or fewer; encounter)
The thorn gains 1d8 + 2 temporary hit points.

Spriggan Lore

Arcana DC 14: Spriggans, also known also as redcaps for their habit of dipping their hats and clothing in blood, prefer to live in dark burrows under rugged terrain. They supplement their stores by raiding and extorting tribute from weaker creatures.

Arcana DC 19: Gnomes were once fomorian slaves, and many fled to the world to elude their oppressors. Those that did not make their way to freedom were twisted into spriggans.

Encounter Groups

Spriggans ally with creatures willing to tolerate their bloody ways. They keep dangerous plants and animals near their homes to dissuade intruders. Fomorians and evil eladrin use spriggans as spies and scouts.

Level 9 Encounter (XP 2,150)
- ✦ 1 eladrin twilight incanter (level 8 controller, MM 102)

SPRITE SWARM

Sprites exist in great variety in the Feywild and are as common as birds. Most present no threat beyond twittering laughter in the shadows, but some gather in dangerous swarms.

Umbral Sprite Swarm

Dark fey with a taste for blood and a penchant for causing chaos, umbral sprites gather in the rare pockets of shadow within the Feywild and hunt any creatures that step into their domain.

Umbral Sprite Swarm Tactics

The umbral sprite swarm flies into the midst of its opponents and uses its darkwave attack. The swarm then flits about to make the most of its swarm of fangs and blades until its darkwave attack recharges.

Umbral Sprite Swarm Lore

Arcana DC 12: Although umbral sprite swarms come from the Feywild, those that make their way into the world frequently gather in areas where they might be able to cross over into the Shadowfell. Gnomes and spriggans have been known to employ umbral sprite swarms as a diversion while they pursue goals too subtle for the sprites to aid directly.

CHRIS SEAMAN

Encounter Groups

Sprite swarms often fight alongside other fey creatures. They are generally not found near large towns or cities, preferring more rural areas.

Level 5 Encounter (XP 1,050)

STAR SPAWN

Warlocks and sages know that when one looks up at the stars, some stars glare back with hunger. When a star hangs in the correct position in the sky and its light strikes the world at precisely the right angle, the star spawn walk the world. Star spawn are utterly malevolent beings.

Star Spawn Lore

Dungeoneering DC 20: The star spawn are creatures sent by the baleful stars of the night sky, accursed celestial objects that gaze upon the world with a mixture of hatred, anger, and hunger. The spawn are the avatars of these stars, sent to wreak havoc. Some stars have only one spawn, but others manifest a multitude of creatures. The spawn of a particular star appear only once a year at most, but sometimes a spawn becomes trapped in the world and continues its depredations until slain.

Dungeoneering DC 25: Sometimes cults form around a star spawn. Some star spawn simply devour their worshipers, but others tolerate their presence and use them as allies. Warlocks who have the star pact flock to star spawn. Whether they serve, study, or slay them depends on a particular warlock's goals and attitudes.

Dungeoneering DC 27: Star spawn are known to appear before great tribulations and at the convergence of unparalleled levels of power. During great wars, battles between divine beings, and the preparation of mighty rituals, the spawn appear across the land. The star called Allabar, a wandering object known as the Opener of the Way, courses across the sky, causing the spawn of any stars it nears to manifest upon the world. Some believe that Allabar is a trickster star that merely spreads havoc between the world and its kin. Others claim that Allabar itself is the greatest of the stars, a strange being from beyond the world, manipulating the other stars to its own end. What that end could be, and the role played by the star spawn, none as yet can guess. Before his disappearance, the warlock Thulzar claimed that he had successfully charted the incursions of all star spawn since the fall of Bael Turath. His research showed an emerging pattern, but he, his tower, and all his works simply vanished one starless night, leaving behind only a smooth, glass-coated crater.

Herald of Hadar

Hadar's dull red glow is barely visible in the night sky, as the star slowly burns down into a lifeless, dead cinder. According to the Revelations of Melech, Hadar was once the brightest star in the sky, but during the calamities that led to the fall of Bael Turath, it surged into a searing brand of light and then faded into a blood-red ember. Hadar now hangs on the edge of annihilation. A herald of Hadar is an avatar of Hadar's dying gasps, a fiendish monster that grows stronger in the presence of living creatures.

Herald of Hadar Lore

Dungeoneering DC 18: A herald of Hadar is spawned by its namesake, a dying ember of a star. The herald feasts on life energy, channeling it back to its creator in an effort to avert its demise.

Maw of Acamar

The star Acamar is a corpse star, a dead star of utter inky nothingness that devours other stars that draw too close. The maw of Acamar is that star's hunger made real, an avatar of devastation that eats everything in its path.

In battle, the maw of Acamar strides amid its foes, relying on the powerful magic that surges from its form to drag victims to their doom. Winds howl as Acamar draws the very air around the maw into itself. Creatures slain by the maw are ripped apart and dragged away to disappear into Acamar's endless darkness. The maws are deadlier still when encountered in numbers; they crowd around a foe and tear him in half as they pull him in several directions at once.

FRANZ VOHWINKEL

Maw of Acamar Lore

Dungeoneering DC 18: A maw of Acamar enters the world when the dark influence of the star Acamar is at its peak. The maw wanders the world, pulling living creatures into its destructive void to feed Acamar, a dead star wracked by endless hunger.

Scion of Gibbeth

Gibbeth is a cursed green star, said to have at its core an utterly unknowable being. Warlocks and other arcane users say that Gibbeth shall show its face only at the end of the world, when the very glare of its eyes and the monstrous aspect of its being pushes all of creation into inescapable madness. The scion of Gibbeth is a terrible shard of that green star, a herald of Gibbeth's curse and a forerunner of what might come.

When the scion appears, no two observers can agree on its actual appearance. Some see a green-skinned, horned giant, while others report a red, spiderlike creature with a child's face or a serpentine monstrosity with dozens of gibbering mouths along its body. Sages maintain that this outer appearance is merely an aspect projected by the shard that dwells within the scion. The mental strain of seeing even a shadow of Gibbeth's essence is such that mortal minds must conjure knowable, though strange, images to contain it. Anyone who sees the scion's true form is doomed to madness.

Scion of Gibbeth Lore

Dungeoneering DC 20: A scion of Gibbeth wanders the world seemingly at random. Prophets, the insane, and cultists are drawn to its presence. The scion typically lashes out at any living creature that draws near, but it tolerates these worshipers.

Dungeoneering DC 25: The scion of Gibbeth manifests in the world when Gibbeth is in conjunction with the star Allabar, a celestial object known as the Opener of the Way. Allabar wanders the sky in a pattern unlike that of any other star. It follows a seemingly random path, and when it draws near one of the baleful stars, that star's spawn appear in the world. The wandering star avoids only Acamar, because that object's hunger is so great that it would destroy even the star that would open its path to the world.

Encounter Groups

Their malevolence runs rampant, but star spawn are cunning and calculating enough to entertain alliances of convenience.

STEEL PREDATOR

Born of the machinations of Bane, steel predators are deadly planar creatures designed for war. Ranging through the Astral Sea and into the world, predators are relentless hunters, sometimes pursuing quarry for weeks and across planar boundaries. They delight in the consumption of the residuum in magic items, and so the more richly endowed the target, the farther they will pursue it.

Reach 2; +27 vs. AC; 4d6 + 4 damage, and the target is marked until the end of the steel predator's next turn.

Snap Jaw (standard; at-will)
The steel predator makes a bite attack. On a hit, the target is also knocked prone, and the predator makes another bite attack against a different target.

Vicious Pounce (standard; at-will)
The steel predator charges and makes the following attack in place of a bite attack: +25 vs. Fortitude; 2d12 + 5 damage, and the target is pushed 1 square and knocked prone. The predator moves into the space vacated by the target.

Resonating Roar (standard; recharge ⚄ ⚅ or when the steel predator takes thunder or lightning damage) ✦ Thunder
Close burst 3; +25 vs. Fortitude; 4d8 + 7 thunder damage, and the target is deafened and dazed (save ends both).

Shifting Steel (immediate reaction, when a creature adjacent to the steel predator shifts; at-will)
The predator shifts into the space vacated by the triggering creature.

Steel Predator Tactics

The steel predator stalks its prey patiently, entering combat only when it thinks it is assured of victory. It begins with a vicious pounce, then releases a resonating roar in the midst of its foes. While the steel predator waits for that power to recharge, it makes snap jaw attacks against the closest foes, using shifting steel to keep targets close.

Steel Predator Lore

Arcana or Religion DC 14: Created by Bane to track and slay the foes of the god of conquest, steel predators are relentless hunters that pursue their prey even across the planes. Thunder and lightning attacks made against a steel predator only increase the creature's power.

Arcana or Religion DC 22: Steel predators are agile, graceful beasts. These metallic felines are often led by teams of bladelings in Chernoggar, where they are most frequently found.

Arcana or Religion DC 27: Steel predators have a taste for magic items. Once they have slain a foe, they often consume the entire body, including both flesh and magical items.

Arcana or Religion DC 29: A steel predator's body contains residuum, which can be extracted upon its death. For this reason, many planar creatures hunt steel predators for profit and sport.

Encounter Groups

Steel predators can be found anywhere the servants of Bane do battle. They serve faithfully with other creatures working toward common goals, but can quickly turn on those that betray Bane's ideals.

Level 21 Encounter (XP 17,600)
- ✦ 2 steel predators (level 20 elite soldier)
- ✦ 2 marut castigators (level 21 skirmisher)

Tiger

Tigers are powerful and cunning predators. A tiger looks for distracted prey on the periphery of a battle.

| Tiger | Level 6 Skirmisher |
|---|---|
| Large natural beast | XP 250 |
| Initiative +9 | Senses Perception +10; low-light vision |
| HP 73; Bloodied 36 | |
| AC 20; Fortitude 19, Reflex 19, Will 17 | |
| Speed 8, climb 4 | |
| ⊕ Bite (standard; at-will) | |
| +11 vs. AC; 1d6 + 4 damage, and ongoing 5 damage (save ends). | |
| Feral Surge (minor; encounter) | |
| The tiger takes a move action. | |
| Blur of Fur | |
| A tiger that moves 2 squares or more gains a +4 bonus to AC against opportunity attacks until the start of its next turn. | |
| Charging Pounce | |
| When a tiger charges, its attack deals 1d8 extra damage, and the charge does not end its turn. | |
| Alignment Unaligned | Languages – |
| Skills Acrobatics +12, Stealth +12 | |
| Str 18 (+7) | Dex 19 (+7) | Wis 15 (+5) |
| Con 17 (+6) | Int 2 (-1) | Cha 11 (+3) |

Tiger Tactics

A tiger uses its ability to continue moving after a charging pounce to set up future charges, relying on feral surge to move toward more vulnerable targets.

Dire Tiger

A massive dire tiger is a serious menace even in wildernesses filled with more fantastic monsters.

| Dire Tiger | Level 8 Soldier |
|---|---|
| Large natural beast | XP 350 |
| Initiative +8 | Senses Perception +6; low-light vision |
| HP 89; Bloodied 44 | |
| AC 24; Fortitude 22, Reflex 19, Will 19 | |
| Speed 8, climb 4 | |
| ⊕ Bite (standard; at-will) | |
| +15 vs. AC; 2d6 + 5 damage. | |
| ⊹ Leaping Pounce (immediate reaction, when the tiger's quarry is within 5 squares of the dire tiger and shifts; at-will) | |
| The dire tiger shifts to the nearest space adjacent to its quarry and makes a bite attack against it. While shifting, the tiger can move through enemy-occupied spaces. | |
| Feral Surge (minor; encounter) | |
| The dire tiger takes a move action. | |
| Hunter's Instinct (minor 1/round; at-will) | |
| The nearest enemy is designated as the dire tiger's quarry until the end of the encounter or until the tiger designates another quarry. The tiger's attacks deal 1d6 extra damage against its quarry. | |
| Alignment Unaligned | Languages – |
| Skills Stealth +11 | |
| Str 20 (+9) | Dex 15 (+6) | Wis 15 (+6) |
| Con 17 (+7) | Int 2 (+0) | Cha 13 (+6) |

Dire Tiger Tactics

Nature DC 8: Tigers are quick and agile hunters that are often found in rugged natural environments. They are often trained as guards by ogres.

Nature DC 14: Dire tigers live in dense forests or jungles. They target lone, weaker foes. If under the watchful eye of a dire tiger, it is best to stand your ground—they are known to leap at slight movements.

Encounter Groups

Tigers hunt alone, but they can be found in mated pairs, siblings, or with young (a single cub or pair of cubs). Tigers join in on others' combats to make a quick meal of the weak and the weary.

Level 7 Encounter (XP 1500)
- 1 macetail behemoth (level 7 soldier, MM 31)
- 2 ogre savages (level 8 brute, MM 199)
- 2 tigers (level 6 skirmisher)

Level 9 Encounter (XP 2250)
- 3 dire tigers (level 8 soldier)
- 1 weretiger (level 11 elite skirmisher)

Troglodyte

Troglodytes are tribal creatures that dwell in the Underdark and raid communities at the edge of civilization. Highly territorial, troglodytes engage trespassers in combat without bothering to ask questions.

Troglodyte Thrasher

This primitive savage lives to bathe itself in the blood of its foes. It cleaves through enemies, completely unaware of its own mortality.

| Troglodyte Thrasher | Level 7 Brute |
|---|---|
| Medium natural humanoid (reptile) | XP 300 |
| Initiative +5 Senses Perception +6; darkvision | |
| Troglodyte Stench aura 1; each living enemy within the aura takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls. | |
| HP 100; Bloodied 50 | |
| AC 19; Fortitude 19, Reflex 15, Will 17 | |
| Speed 5 | |
| ⊕ Claw (standard; at-will) | |
| +10 vs. AC; 3d6 + 4 damage. | |
| ⸸ Tooth and Claw (standard; at-will) | |
| +10 vs. AC; 1d6 + 4 damage. If this attack bloodies the target, the troglodyte thrasher makes a claw attack against the target as a free action. Effect: Make one more attack against the same target or a different one. | |
| Alignment Chaotic evil Languages Draconic | |
| Str 18 (+7) Dex 15 (+5) Wis 16 (+6) | |

Troglodyte Thrasher Tactics

A troglodyte thrasher enjoys going after the biggest, toughest, or most physically dangerous-looking enemy. It tends to ignore ranged attackers, but attacks them if no other enemies remain. If a thrasher is hit by a melee attack, it usually focuses its attention on that attacker during its next turn.

Troglodyte Thrasher Lore

Dungeoneering or Nature DC 14: Although truly intelligent members of the troglodyte race do exist, the dimwitted hordes vastly outnumber them. Troglodyte thrashers posses only a beast's intellect. Other troglodytes keep thrashers in cages to prevent them from turning on each other or on their more intelligent cousins.

Troglodyte Deepscourge

Through the alien alchemy of their own bodies, troglodyte deepscourges learn to channel their awful stench into a multitude of different attacks against enemies.

| Troglodyte Deepscourge | Level 9 Artillery (Leader) |
|---|---|
| Medium natural humanoid (reptile) | XP 400 |
| Initiative +7 Senses Perception +4; darkvision | |
| Dizzying Stench aura 10; each troglodyte within the aura gains an increase of 1 to the size of its troglodyte stench aura. | |
| Troglodyte Stench aura 2; each living enemy within the aura takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls. | |
| HP 78; Bloodied 39 | |

Troglodyte Deepscourge Tactics

In combat, a deepscourge remains safely behind its brutish allies. If attacked, it uses blinding stench to incapacitate the enemy and cover its retreat. The deepscourge coordinates with its allies in combat, ordering other troglodytes into formations where their auras can have the most potency in conjunction with the deepscourge's debilitating ray and dizzying stench.

Troglodyte Deepscourge Lore

Dungeoneering or Nature DC 14: A troglodyte deepscourge often serves alongside a troglodyte curse chanter or in the curse chanter's stead as the leaders of a tribe. A deepscourge is a shaman for a troglodyte tribe. Troglodytes often rely on deepscourges for guidance in ritual as well as in combat.

Troglodyte Temple Champion

A savage society draws troglodytes to worship brutal gods. It should be no surprise that their dark religions produce vicious champions.

| Troglodyte Temple Champion | Level 9 Soldier |
|---|---|
| Medium natural humanoid (reptile) | XP 400 |
| Initiative +9 Senses Perception +6; darkvision | |
| Troglodyte Stench aura 1; each living enemy within the aura takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls. | |
| HP 101; Bloodied 50 | |
| AC 25; Fortitude 23, Reflex 21, Will 20 | |
| Speed 5 | |

| ⊛ Javelin (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon | |
| Ranged 10/20; +16 vs. AC; 1d6 + 6 damage. | |
| ⸸ Sweeping Trip (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon | |
| +14 vs. Reflex; 1d8 + 6 damage, and the target is knocked prone. | |
| ✧ Whirlwind Attack (standard; encounter) ✦ Weapon | |
| Close burst 1; +16 vs. AC; 1d10 + 7 damage. | |
| Alignment Chaotic evil Languages Draconic | |
| Skills Athletics +13, Endurance +14 | |
| Str 19 (+8) Dex 17 (+7) Wis 14 (+6) | |
| Con 21 (+9) Int 10 (+4) Cha 12 (+5) | |
| Equipment scale armor, flail, 2 javelins | |

Troglodyte Temple Champion Tactics

Troglodyte temple champions are not subtle; they charge into combat as soon as possible, flinging javelins when unable to attack in melee. Temple champions use their sweeping trip attacks to stop opponents from escaping.

Troglodyte Temple Champion Lore

Dungeoneering or Nature DC 14: Hidden away deep underground are foul troglodyte temples dedicated to demons such as Demogorgon and deities such as Torog. The strongest troglodytes from nearby tribes rise to become temple champions.

Temple champions fight to the death with fanatical devotion; anyone taken alive by a temple champion is quickly sacrificed in a nearby temple.

Dungeoneering or Nature DC 19: Due to the comprehension and patience required of a temple champion, the strongest warriors are often the smartest as well. If temple champions leave their temples' boundaries, they often do so at the behest of their leaders and as the head of a larger force of less intelligent troglodytes.

Encounter Groups

Troglodytes often use drakes and other reptilian monsters to guard their lairs.

Level 7 Encounter (XP 1,600)
- ✦ 2 horned drakes (level 5 skirmisher)
- ✦ 1 troglodyte impaler (level 7 artillery, MM 252)
- ✦ 3 troglodyte thrashers (level 7 brute)

Level 10 Encounter (XP 2,650)
- ✦ 1 troglodyte curse chanter (level 8 controller, MM 252)
- ✦ 2 troglodyte deepscourges (level 9 artillery)
- ✦ 3 scytheclaw drakes (level 10 skirmisher)

Level 11 Encounter (XP 3,100)
- ✦ 1 balhannoth (level 13 elite lurker, MM 24)
- ✦ 2 troglodyte temple champions (level 9 soldier)
- ✦ 4 troglodyte warriors (level 12 minion, MM 252)

Level 12 Encounter (XP 3,750)
- ✦ 1 troglodyte curse chanter (level 8 controller, MM 252)
- ✦ 2 troglodyte deepscourges (level 9 artillery)
- ✦ 4 troglodyte thrashers (level 7 brute)
- ✦ 8 troglodyte warriors (level 12 minion, MM 252)

Troll

These monstrous humanoids strike fear into their enemies with their strength and ravenous appetites.

Ice Troll

Ice trolls are skilled armorers and weaponsmiths that can be found in the frozen north, the Frostfell, and anywhere that supernatural cold persists.

| Ice Troll | Level 10 Soldier |
|---|---|
| Large natural humanoid | XP 500 |
| Initiative +9 Senses Perception +10 | |
| Emanating Cold aura 1; each enemy that starts its turn in the aura is slowed until the start of its next turn. | |
| HP 109; Bloodied 54; see also troll healing | |
| Regeneration 10 | |
| AC 26; Fortitude 23, Reflex 19, Will 17 | |
| Vulnerable acid or fire (if the ice troll takes acid or fire damage, its regeneration does not function until the end of its next turn) | |
| Speed 8 | |
| ⊕ Maul (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon | |
| Reach 2; +17 vs. AC; 2d6 + 6 damage. | |
| ↯ Frenzied Strike (free, when the ice troll's attack bloodies an enemy; at-will) | |
| The troll makes a maul attack. | |
| Troll Healing ✦ Healing | |
| If the ice troll is reduced to 0 hit points by an attack that does not deal acid or fire damage, it falls prone and remains at 0 hit points until the start of its next turn, when it regains 10 hit points. If an attack deals acid or fire damage to the ice troll while it is at 0 hit points, it is destroyed. | |
| Alignment Chaotic evil Languages Giant | |
| Skills Athletics +16, Endurance +15 | |
| Str 22 (+11) Dex 15 (+7) Wis 10 (+5) | |
| Con 21 (+10) Int 9 (+4) Cha 8 (+4) | |
| Equipment scale armor, maul | |

Ice Troll Tactics

An ice troll wades into combat and pounds its enemies with its powerful maul. It also knows full well the effect its aura has on creatures not accustomed to supernatural cold, and it positions itself to include as many of its foes as possible in the aura.

Ice Troll Lore

Nature DC 16: Ice trolls inhabit the Frostfell, but they occasionally make their way into less frigid regions. Ice trolls are more intelligent than most other trolls, and they have learned to craft weapons. They prefer to use such weapons in combat instead of their claws.

Bladerager Troll

A bladerager troll is the result of modification to a normal troll.

| Bladerager Troll | Level 12 Brute |
|---|---|
| Large natural humanoid | XP 700 |
| Initiative +10 Senses Perception +9 | |
| HP 151; Bloodied 75; see also death burst | |
| Regeneration 10 | |
| AC 24; Fortitude 26, Reflex 24, Will 23 | |
| Vulnerable acid or fire (if the bladerager troll takes acid or fire damage, its regeneration does not function until the end of its next turn) | |
| Speed 7 | |
| ⊕ Claw (standard; at-will) | |
| Reach 2; +15 vs. AC; 2d10 + 6 damage. | |
| ↯ Bladerager Rend (standard; recharge ⚄ ⚅) | |
| Reach 2; +15 vs. AC; 3d10 + 6 damage, and ongoing 5 damage (save ends). | |
| ✧ Death Burst (when the bladerager troll drops to 0 hit points) | |
| The troll explodes in a burst of shrapnel: close burst 2; +13 vs. Reflex; 2d6 + 5 damage. | |
| Alignment Chaotic evil Languages Giant | |
| Skills Athletics +17, Endurance +16 | |
| Str 23 (+12) Dex 18 (+10) Wis 16 (+9) | |
| Con 21 (+11) Int 3 (+2) Cha 10 (+6) | |

Bladerager Troll Tactics

A bladerager troll attacks the most physically menacing target, but quickly switches to the enemy that appears to be doing the most damage or hindering it the most. It doesn't employ concerted tactics beyond dealing as much damage to its enemies as possible.

Bladerager Troll Lore

Nature DC 16: Bladerager trolls are barely sentient berserker trolls. They run at their foes, ripping them limb from limb and devouring the pieces. Bladeragers are created in violent rituals that bind weapons and metal shards with troll flesh. In constant pain, bladeragers survive because of their regenerative capabilities, but death breaks the binding magic in an explosion of metal and blood.

Nature DC 21: Duergar, drow, and mind flayers commonly capture trolls and enslave them. On the surface of the world, bladerager trolls can be found in the employ of oni and minotaurs. Some minotaur cabalists know the secret to binding magic weapons and armor into trolls, giving the trolls the properties of the metal items that cut their bodies. Such items can often be retrieved after the bladeragers' destructive deaths.

Troll Vinespeaker

Troll vinespeakers fight by calling upon an ancient magic of wild lands.

| Troll Vinespeaker | Level 14 Controller |

| ⨁ Frenzied Strike (free, when the troll vinespeaker's attack bloodies an enemy; at-will) | |
| The vinespeaker makes a claw attack. | |
| ⤙ Ray of Thorns (standard; at-will) ✦ Implement | |
| Ranged 10; +18 vs. Reflex; 2d8 + 6 damage. | |
| ✧ Chant of Power (standard; encounter) ✦ Healing, Implement | |
| Close burst 5; targets allies; the target gains 10 temporary hit points and a +4 bonus to damage rolls while it has the temporary hit points. | |
| ✲ Thorny Burst (standard; at-will) ✦ Implement, Zone | |
| Area burst 1 within 10; +18 vs. Reflex; 1d10 + 6 damage, and the target is immobilized (save ends). The burst creates a zone of thorns and brambles that lasts until the end of the encounter. The zone is difficult terrain, and each creature that enters the zone or starts its turn there takes 1d8 damage. | |
| Troll Healing ✦ Healing | |
| If the troll vinespeaker is reduced to 0 hit points by an attack that does not deal acid or fire damage, it falls prone and remains at 0 hit points until the start of its next turn, when it regains 10 hit points. If an attack deals acid or fire damage to the vinespeaker while it is at 0 hit points, it is destroyed. | |
| Alignment Chaotic evil Languages Common, Giant | |
| Skills Athletics +16, Endurance +15 | |

| Con 22 (+13) Int 16 (+10) Cha 10 (+7) | |
| Equipment mantle of thorny vines, gnarled staff | |

Troll Vinespeaker Tactics

Troll vinespeakers use thorny burst as much as possible, switching to ray of thorns only when a thorny burst would inhibit the movement of allies on the battlefield. They remain out of melee and allow others to do the hand-to-hand fighting.

Troll Vinespeaker Lore

Nature DC 18: The intelligent troll vinespeakers act as shamans and leaders in troll communities. They can be found among only the largest troll packs and war bands. Draping themselves in mantles of thorny vines, vinespeakers use a nature magic that gives the vines violent life.

Encounter Groups

Trolls work well with other creatures as long as the trolls' appetites are kept in check. Most trolls lack intelligence and are easy to manipulate.

Level 10 Encounter (XP 2,800)
- ✦ 2 ice trolls (level 10 soldier)
- ✦ 1 manticore (level 10 elite skirmisher, MM 184)
- ✦ 2 worg (level 9 brute, MM 265)

Level 12 Encounter (XP 3,800)

VINE, PREDATORY

Ambulatory carnivorous vines threaten wilderness dwellers and travelers, and are often as dangerous as any predatory animal. These vines are sometimes cultivated by dryads and vine horrors for use as guardians.

Ambush Vine

Ambush vines have voracious appetites, and find flesh to be particularly delectable. They hunt both above and below the ground, and can even snake through the water to strike at swimming prey.

| Ambush Vine | Level 16 Elite Controller |
|---|---|
| Large fey beast (plant) | XP 1,400 |

| ⇙ Lashing Vines (standard; at-will) ✦ Healing | |
| Close burst 4; targets enemies; +20 vs. Reflex; 2d8 + 6 damage. If the target is immobilized, the attack deals 1d8 extra damage, and the ambush vine regains 5 hit points. | |
| Rapid Growth (when first bloodied; encounter) | |
| The ambush vine spawns two ambush vine shoots in spaces within 4 squares of the ambush vine. The shoots act on the vine's initiative count, immediately after the vine. | |
| Sprout Vine (minor; at-will) | |
| The ambush vine takes 10 damage and spawns an ambush vine shoot in a space within 4 squares of the vine. The shoot acts on the vine's initiative count, immediately after the vine. | |

Ambush Vine Shoot

Ambush vine shoots are the immature form of the vine, and can be spawned by a parent ambush vine during combat.

| Ambush Vine Shoot | Level 15 Minion Controller |
|---|---|
| Medium fey beast (plant) | XP 300 |

| Con 16 (+10) | Int 2 (+3) Cha 12 (+8) |

Ambush Vine Lore

Nature DC 20: Ambush vines infect vast wilderness areas in the Feywild. Although less common in the world, they often blight the deepest reaches of forests or swamps. They can swim through water, burrow through the earth, and climb through treetops to reach prey.

CHRISTOPHER BURDETT

Nature DC 25: An ambush vine has unusual cunning for a plant. It often hides beneath the ground or attempts to blend in with other plants.

Nature DC 27: Occasionally, a blight of ambush vines becomes so vast that it encroaches on civilization. Some scholars speculate that widespread occurrences of ambush vines in the former eladrin empire of Cendriane contributed to its downfall.

Bloodthorn Vine

Deadly bloodthorn vines creep through forests seeking the life fluids of other creatures to draw up through their hollow thorns.

Bloodthorn Vine Lore

Nature DC 10: A bloodthorn vine attacks by grabbing a foe and sucking its blood through a sharp, hollow thorn. When a bloodthorn vine feeds, its pale leaves turn the color of its victim's blood.

Greenvise Vine

The enormous greenvise vines slowly prowl forests, snaring any creature unwary enough to come close.

| Greenvise Vine | Level 7 Soldier |

Greenvise Vine Lore

Nature DC 14: Greenvise vines are slow, opportunistic eaters that feed on unwary animals, but they aren't averse to attacking larger prey.

Encounter Groups

Fey creatures sometimes cultivate predatory vines as guardians near their homes. Stirges have been known to lair near these plants, drawn by the prospect of finding easy prey among ensnared creatures.

Level 2 Encounter (XP 675)
- ✦ 3 bloodthorn vines (level 2 soldier)
- ✦ 3 stirges (level 1 lurker, MM 248)

Level 9 Encounter (XP 2,200)
- ✦ 2 greenvise vines (level 7 soldier)
- ✦ 1 spectral panther (level 9 lurker, MM 213)
- ✦ 3 quickling runners (level 9 skirmisher, MM 215)

Level 17 Encounter (XP 9,600)
- ✦ 1 ambush vine (level 16 elite controller)
- ✦ 1 lingerer fell incanter (level 18 elite artillery)
- ✦ 1 lingerer knight (level 16 elite soldier)

WARFORGED

Whether fresh from the creation forge or decades old, warforged can be much more than mere soldiers, but they are all creatures of war.

Warforged Resounder

The warforged resounder brings the force of thunder to the maelstrom of combat, blasting foes from afar.

| Warforged Resounder | Level 6 Artillery |
|---|---|
| Medium natural humanoid (living construct) | XP 250 |
| Initiative +3 Senses Perception +5 | |
| HP 57; Bloodied 28 | |
| AC 19; Fortitude 16, Reflex 18, Will 18 | |
| Saving Throws +2 against ongoing damage | |
| Speed 6 | |

| +10 vs. AC; 1d8 + 1 damage. | |
| Rumble Staff (standard; encounter) ✦ Force, Implement | |
| +11 vs. Fortitude; 2d6 + 4 force damage, and the target is pushed 1 square and knocked prone. | |
| Collision Bolt (standard; encounter) ✦ Force, Implement | |
| Ranged 10; +11 vs. Fortitude; 1d6 + 4 force damage, and the warforged resounder makes a secondary attack against one or two targets within 3 squares of the primary target. Secondary Attack: +11 vs. Fortitude; 1d6 + 4 force damage, and the resounder slides the target 3 squares toward the primary target. Effect: After all attacks are resolved, any target hit by an attack is knocked prone if it is adjacent to another target. | |
| Thunder Orb (standard; at-will) ✦ Implement, Thunder | |
| Ranged 10; +11 vs. Reflex; 2d8 + 4 thunder damage, and the warforger resounder pushes the target 2 squares. | |
| Resounding Sphere (standard; encounter) ✦ Implement, Thunder | |
| Area burst 3 within 10; +10 vs. Reflex; 2d8 + 4 thunder damage, and the target is knocked prone. Miss: Half damage. | |
| Warforged Resolve (minor; encounter) ✦ Healing | |
| The warforged resounder gains 6 temporary hit points and can make a saving throw against an ongoing damage effect. If it uses this power while bloodied, it also regains 6 hit points. | |
| Alignment Unaligned Languages Common | |
| Skills Arcana +12, Nature +10 | |

| Equipment robes, quarterstaff | |

Warforged Resounder Tactics

A warforged resounder prefers to open with resounding sphere against enemies not yet engaged in melee. It saves collision bolt for later use against enemies in close combat. The warforged resounder avoids melee with the help of rumble staff.

Warforged Resounder Lore

Arcana or Nature DC 12: Ringing with the power of its creation, a warforged resounder focuses the echoes of its forging into deadly attacks.

Warforged Savage

Warforged savages give themselves over to rage in battle, becoming vicious, crazed killers.

| Warforged Savage | Level 7 Brute |
|---|---|
| Medium natural humanoid (living construct) | XP 300 |
| Initiative +5 Senses Perception +4 | |
| HP 98; Bloodied 49 | |
| AC 20; Fortitude 21, Reflex 18, Will 19 | |
| Saving Throws +2 against ongoing damage | |
| Speed 6 | |
| Scimitar (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon | |
| +10 vs. AC; 1d8 + 6 damage (crit 1d8 + 14), and 4 damage to another enemy adjacent to the warforged savage. | |
| Wild Charge (standard; recharges after the warforged savage hits two or more targets with a savage sweep) ✦ Weapon | |
| The savage charges, gains a +3 bonus to AC during the charge, and makes the following attack in place of a melee basic attack: +11 vs. AC; 2d8 + 9 damage (crit 2d8 + 25). | |
| Savage Sweep (standard; recharge ⚄ ⚅) ✦ Weapon | |
| Close burst 1; +10 vs. AC; 1d8 + 6 damage (crit 1d8 + 14). Miss: 4 damage. | |
| Battlefield Tactics | |
| A warforged savage gains a +1 bonus to melee attack rolls while an ally is adjacent to the target. | |
| Savage Bloodlust | |
| Whenever a warforged savage hits with a melee attack, it gains 4 temporary hit points. | |
| Warforged Resolve (minor; encounter) ✦ Healing | |
| The warforged savage gains 6 temporary hit points and can make a saving throw against an ongoing damage effect. If it uses this power while bloodied, it also regains 6 hit points. | |
| Alignment Unaligned Languages Common | |
| Skills Endurance +12, Intimidate +11 | |
| Str 20 (+8) Dex 15 (+5) Wis 12 (+4) | |
| Con 18 (+7) Int 10 (+3) Cha 16 (+6) | |
| Equipment hide armor, scimitar | |

Warforged Savage Tactics

At its first chance, the warforged savage makes a wild charge. It might even do so if already engaged, in order to attack several enemies with savage sweep. The warforged savage thereafter makes use of savage sweep whenever the attack recharges, in order to change its tactical position or to deal as much damage as possible.

Warforged Savage Lore

Arcana or Nature DC 14: A warforged savage has far more emotion than most other warforged, but that emotion tends to be expressed as fury. Irritable and quick to draw blades, warforged savages make uncertain allies in peacetime and deadly foes during war.

+13 vs. AC; 1d10 + 4 damage plus 1d6 fire damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to AC until the end of the warforged anvilpriest's next turn.

⨺ Heat of Battle (standard; recharge ⚁ ⚄ ⚅) ✦ Fire, Weapon
+13 vs. AC; 1d10 + 4 damage plus 1d6 fire damage, and ongoing 5 fire damage until the target ends its turn in a space that isn't adjacent to the warforged anvilpriest.

✧ Mending Flash Fire (standard; encounter) ✦ Fire, Implement
Close burst 5; targets enemies; +11 vs. Reflex; 1d8 + 4 fire damage. Effect: The warforged anvilpriest and each ally within the burst gain 5 temporary hit points. Each warforged ally within the burst uses warforged resolve as an immediate reaction.

✧ Blunted Mind (standard; encounter) ✦ Illusion, Implement, Psychic
Area burst 3 within 10; targets enemies; +11 vs. Will; 2d6 + 4 psychic damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls and a -4 penalty to damage rolls (save ends both). Aftereffect: The target takes a -2 penalty to damage rolls (save ends).

Warforged Resolve (minor; encounter) ✦ Healing
The warforged anvilpriest gains 7 temporary hit points and can make a saving throw against an ongoing damage effect. If it uses this power while bloodied, it also regains 7 hit points.

Alignment Unaligned Languages Common

Warforged Anvilpriest Tactics

The warforged anvilpriest first targets enemies with blunted mind. It then wades in among its enemies to use its melee attacks, starting with heat of battle. The anvilpriest keeps an eye on its allies, using mending flash fire when one or more are bloodied.

Warforged Anvilpriest Lore

Arcana or Nature DC 14: Warforged anvilpriests use the still-hot flames of their creation, maintaining a link to that formative moment despite years of existence in the world. Although some are true clerics devoted to a deity, other anvilpriests care little for religion.

Arcana or Nature DC 19: Only a few anvilpriests fully live up to their name by venerating the creation forges. These strange and often crazed warforged present a threat to all who would keep them from the objects of their worship.

Warforged Titan

Massive warforged titans thunder over the battlefield, swinging arms that end in immense weapons.

| Warforged Titan | Level 19 Elite Soldier |
|---|---|
| Huge natural humanoid (living construct) | XP 4,800 |
| Initiative +15 Senses Perception +13 | |

| Speed 8 | |
| Action Points 1 | |
| ⊕ Axe (standard; at-will) | |
| Reach 3; +24 vs. AC; 2d10 + 9 damage, and 9 damage to one enemy adjacent to the target. Effect: The target is marked until the end of the warforged titan's next turn. | |
| ⸸ Hammer (minor 1/round; at-will) | |
| Reach 3; +24 vs. AC; 2d8 + 9 damage, the warforged titan slides the target 2 squares, and the target is knocked prone. Miss: 9 damage. | |
| Unstoppable Charger | |
| A warforged titan can take additional actions after it resolves its charge attack. | |
| Threatening Reach | |
| A warforged titan can make opportunity attacks against all enemies within its reach (3 squares). | |
| Warforged Resolve (minor; encounter) ✦ Healing | |
| The warforged titan gains 12 temporary hit points and can make a saving throw against an ongoing damage effect. If it uses this power while bloodied, it also regains 12 hit points. | |
| Alignment Unaligned Languages Common | |
| Str 28 (+18) Dex 18 (+13) Wis 18 (+13) | |
| Con 21 (+14) Int 5 (+6) Cha 8 (+8) | |

Warforged Titan Tactics

A warforged titan charges into melee without hesitation. When possible, it makes a hammer attack to slide one enemy adjacent to another. The warforged titan then charges (or otherwise attacks) the enemy with the lightest armor with an axe attack, cleaving into both enemies.

Warforged Titan Lore

Arcana or Nature DC 22: Among the first warforged created, warforged titans are barely sentient, with just enough intelligence to follow changing commands in the heat of battle.

Arcana or Nature DC 27: A warforged titan comprehends allegiance in simplistic terms. It often follows the commands of someone that has a symbol of the titan's creator, regardless of its creator's goals or how much time has passed since its creation.

Encounter Groups

Free warforged fight for a variety of causes—including their own.

Level 7 Encounter (XP 1,500)
- ✦ 1 warforged anvilpriest (level 8 controller)
- ✦ 1 warforged resounder (level 6 artillery)
- ✦ 3 warforged savages (level 7 brute)

Level 19 Encounter (XP 12,400)
- ✦ 1 cambion hellfire magus (level 18 artillery, MM 39)
- ✦ 1 steel predator (level 20 elite soldier)
- ✦ 1 warforged titan (level 19 elite soldier)

| Resist insubstantial | |
| Speed fly 6 (hover; altitude limit 2) | |
| ⊕ Glimmer Wisp (standard; at-will) ✦ Radiant | |
| Reach 2; +13 vs. Reflex; 2d6 + 6 radiant damage. | |
| ⸸ Spirit Drain (standard; usable only while illuminated; see fey light; encounter) ✦ Healing, Psychic | |
| Reach 3; targets a bloodied creature; +12 vs. Fortitude; 2d8 + 3 psychic damage, and the target is weakened (save ends). The will-o'-wisp regains 14 hit points. | |
| ⇢ Luring Glow (standard; usable only while illuminated; see fey light; at-will) | |
| Close burst 20; targets one creature that is not blinded; +13 vs. Will; the target is pulled 3 squares and dazed (save ends). | |
| Blink Out (immediate reaction, when the will-o'-wisp is missed by an attack; at-will) ✦ Teleportation | |
| The will-o'-wisp darkens and teleports 5 squares (see fey light). | |
| Fey Light (free 1/round; at-will) | |
| A will-o'-wisp illuminates or darkens its light. The will-o'-wisp's light is equivalent to that of a torch. The will-o'-wisp must be illuminated to attack. While darkened, the will-o'-wisp has concealment and can make a Stealth check to become hidden. | |
| Alignment Evil | Languages Elven |
| Skills Stealth +16 | |
| Str 4 (+2) | Dex 22 (+11) | Wis 12 (+6) |
| Con 13 (+6) | Int 8 (+4) | Cha 18 (+9) |

Will-o'-Wisp Tactics

A will-o'-wisp prefers distracted prey. It uses fey light when it wishes to be seen, or to draw prey in with luring glow. As soon as it is aware of bloodied prey, it closes to employ spirit drain. It douses its fey light and uses Stealth to move to the bloodied target and attack with combat advantage.

Will-o'-Wisp Lore

Arcana DC 16: Will-o'-wisps lurk in marshlands, where mists and swamp lights provide hiding places. They gather near natural dangers, such as quicksand or other monsters. Will-o'-wisps use their lights to draw unwary travelers into peril.

Arcana DC 21: A will-o'-wisp can speak in a ghostly voice. As it speaks, the creature brightens and dims. Its actual body is a tiny orb of diaphanous material.

WILL-O'-WISP

Encounter Groups

Fey creatures, undead, and predators of many kinds take advantage of will-o'-wisps as lures. Will-o'-wisps are attracted to the sounds of travel or battle.

Level 9 Encounter (XP 2,100)
- ✦ 2 spriggan powries (level 7 skirmisher)
- ✦ 2 spriggan thorns (level 6 soldier)
- ✦ 2 will-o'-wisps (level 10 lurker)

BEN WOOTTEN

Winter Wolf Snowfang Lore

Nature DC 20: Snowfangs are clever and malicious killers that often serve more powerful monsters as sentries. In winter wolf packs, snowfangs sometimes wait in ambush while their packmates drive prey toward them.

Rime Hound

Rime hounds are gifts of powerful primordials of cold to their worshipers.

Rime Hound Level 17 Elite Skirmisher
Huge elemental magical beast (earth, cold, mount) XP 3,200

Initiative +16 Senses Perception +12; low-light vision

Str 24 (+15) Dex 22 (+14) Wis 19 (+12)
Con 22 (+14) Int 10 (+8) Cha 10 (+8)

Rime Hound Lore

Arcana DC 25: Certain primordials of cold are said to create rime hounds out of the cold heart of elemental blizzards. These enormous hounds work with frost giants as mounts, or hunt alongside frost titans and similar icy beings.

Son of the Spirit Wolf

A son of the spirit wolf uses its icy breath to keep its victim's allies away while it concentrates on biting and rending the hapless target to death.

Son of the Spirit Wolf Level 26 Elite Skirmisher
Large elemental magical beast (cold) XP 18,000

Initiative +23 Senses Perception +20; low-light vision
Everfrost Coat (cold) aura 1; each enemy that enters the aura takes 10 cold damage. A creature that takes cold damage from everfrost coat cannot make opportunity attacks until the end of the son of the spirit wolf's next turn.
HP 486; Bloodied 243
AC 40; Fortitude 39, Reflex 37, Will 36
Resist 30 cold

Action Points 1

⊕ Bite (standard; at-will) ✦ Cold
Reach 2; +31 vs. AC; 2d10 + 9 damage plus 1d10 cold damage, and the target is grabbed.

↓ Terrible Rush (free; usable only after the son of the spirit wolf makes a charge attack; encounter) ✦ Cold
Close burst 2; +29 vs. Fortitude; 2d10 cold damage, and the target is knocked prone.

✧ Black Ice Breath (standard; recharges when first bloodied) ✦ Cold, Zone
Close blast 5; +29 vs. Fortitude; 4d10 + 9 cold damage. Miss: Half damage. Effect: The blast creates a zone of ice that lasts until the son of the spirit wolf drops to 0 hit points. The zone is difficult terrain.

Rending Jaws (minor; recharge ⚄ ⚅)
Reach 2; targets a creature grabbed by the son of the spirit wolf; +32 vs. AC; 3d10 + 9 damage, and ongoing 10 damage (save ends). The grab ends, and the son of the spirit wolf then pushes the target 5 squares and knocks it prone.

Drag Away (move; at-will)
The son of the spirit wolf shifts 1 square or moves its speed and pulls a creature it has grabbed into a space adjacent to it. This movement does not end the grab.

Alignment Evil Languages Common, Giant
Skills Intimidate +21
Str 30 (+23) Dex 26 (+21) Wis 25 (+20)
Con 27 (+21) Int 11 (+13) Cha 16 (+16)

Son of the Spirit Wolf Lore

Arcana DC 31: Sons of the spirit wolf are winter wolves descended from the primal spirit known as the great spirit wolf. Driven by insatiable hunger, they greedily devour any source of life they encounter. Only the most powerful of beings can hold sons of the spirit wolf in check.

Encounter Groups

Winter wolves mix well with humanoid denizens of colder climes, such as frost giants.

Level 14 Encounter (XP 5,000)
- ✦ 1 beholder eye of frost (level 14 elite artillery)
- ✦ 1 chillfire destroyer (level 14 brute)
- ✦ 2 winter wolves (level 14 skirmisher)

WITHERLING

Witherlings are undead creatures created by gnolls to serve as shock troops and raiders. Gnoll priests of Yeenoghu use a ritual to fuse the essence of a demon with the body of a foe slain in battle. The result is a shrunken, emaciated creature that has a ghoul's paralyzing touch and a demon's relentless frenzy.

Witherling

A witherling is the animated corpse of a small humanoid with the head of a hyena. It menaces its victims with claws made of sharpened gazelle horns, which are sticky with poison.

| Witherling | Level 4 Skirmisher |
|---|---|
| Small natural animate (undead) | XP 175 |

| +9 vs. AC; 1d6 + 2 damage, and the target is slowed (save ends). | |
| ⨁ Double Attack (standard; usable only while bloodied; at-will) | |
| The witherling makes two claw attacks. | |
| Combat Advantage | |
| A witherling deals 1d6 extra damage on attacks against any creature granting combat advantage to it. | |
| Blood Dance (move; usable only while bloodied; at-will) | |
| The witherling shifts 2 squares. | |
| Pack Attack | |
| A witherling's melee attacks deal 2 extra damage against any enemy that has two or more of the witherling's allies adjacent to it. | |
| Sudden Leap (move; at-will) | |
| The witherling jumps 4 squares. During the jump, it gains a +5 bonus to AC against opportunity attacks, and any enemy that misses the witherling with an opportunity attack grants combat advantage to it until the end of the witherling's turn. | |
| Alignment Evil | Languages Abyssal, Common |
| Str 11 (+2) | Dex 19 (+6) Wis 11 (+2) |

Witherling Tactics

As befits undead creatures infused with the spirits of demons, witherlings use simple mob tactics to overwhelm their enemies. Gnolls use them as a screening force, sending them ahead of a gnoll pack to harass and slow the enemy, allowing pursuing gnolls to overrun their prey. When a witherling closes with a foe, it uses sudden leap in an effort to gain combat advantage. It then attacks the first foe to grant combat advantage to it.

Witherling Death Shrieker

A death shrieker is a larger, more ferocious form of witherling. Its blood-curdling shriek drains the life from its enemies while granting strength and vitality to its undead companions.

| Witherling Death Shrieker | Level 5 Controller (Leader) |
|---|---|
| Medium natural animate (undead) | XP 200 |
| Initiative +5 | Senses Perception +4; low-light vision |

| AC 19; Fortitude 17, Reflex 17, Will 16 | |
| Speed 6 | |
| ⨁ Claws (standard; at-will) | |
| +10 vs. AC; 1d10 + 5 damage. | |
| ✧ Death Shriek (standard; recharge ⚄ ⚅) ✦ Healing | |
| Close blast 5; targets enemies; +9 vs. Fortitude; 2d6 + 4 damage, and any undead ally adjacent to the target regains 5 hit points. An undead ally can regain hit points only once per round in this way. | |
| ✧ Thunder Shriek (standard; at-will) ✦ Thunder | |
| Close blast 5; targets enemies; +9 vs. Fortitude; 1d6 + 4 thunder damage, and the witherling death shrieker pushes the target 2 squares. | |
| Pack Attack | |
| A witherling death shrieker's melee attacks deal 2 extra damage against any enemy that has two or more of the death shrieker's allies adjacent to it. | |

Witherling Death Shrieker Tactics

A death shrieker causes chaos and terror among its enemies with its devastating shrieks. Its death shriek allows it to hurt its enemies while helping its allies. It uses thunder shriek to create gaps in defensive lines for agile skirmishers to penetrate.

Witherling Horned Terror

A horned terror is an undead abomination created from the specially preserved corpse of a minotaur. Owing to Yeenoghu's long war against Baphomet, the gnolls have many opportunities to produce these horrors. Minotaurs loathe them, viewing these undead as a blasphemy against their kind.

| Witherling Horned Terror | Level 8 Brute |
|---|---|
| Large natural animate (undead) | XP 350 |
| Initiative +6 | Senses Perception +6; low-light vision |
| HP 107; Bloodied 53 | |
| AC 19; Fortitude 22, Reflex 18, Will 18 | |
| Speed 7 | |

Witherling Horned Terror Tactics

A horned terror is as direct and unsubtle a warrior as it was in life. It uses rampaging charge as often as it can, even provoking opportunity attacks in order to run down as many foes as possible.

Witherling Rabble

When gnolls or necromancers create witherlings, the process sometimes goes awry. The magic instead creates witherling rabble, inferior forms of the creatures.

| Witherling Rabble | Level 9 Minion Skirmisher |
|---|---|
| Small natural animate (undead) | XP 100 |
| Initiative +10 | Senses Perception +4; low-light vision |
| HP 1; a missed attack never damages a minion. | |
| AC 23; Fortitude 21, Reflex 22, Will 20 | |
| Speed 8, climb 6 | |
| ⨁ Claw (standard; at-will) | |
| +14 vs. AC; 9 damage. | |
| Combat Advantage | |
| A witherling rabble deals 2 extra damage on attacks against any creature granting combat advantage to it. | |
| Pack Attack | |
| A witherling rabble's melee attacks deal 2 extra damage against any enemy that has two or more of the rabble's allies adjacent to it. | |
| Sudden Leap (move; at-will) | |
| The witherling rabble jumps 4 squares. During the jump, it gains a +5 bonus to AC against opportunity attacks, and any enemy that misses the rabble with an opportunity attack grants combat advantage to it until the end of the rabble's turn. | |

| Str 11 (+4) | Dex 19 (+8) Wis 11 (+4) |
| Con 16 (+7) | Int 7 (+2) Cha 12 (+5) |

Witherling Lore

Religion DC 14: Yeenoghu recently imparted to the gnolls the knowledge of the blasphemous process used to create witherlings. A war between Yeenoghu and Orcus is brewing, and the witherlings are but one of several new weapons that the Prince of Gnolls has given to his children.

Encounter Groups

Witherlings were first made by gnolls, but the secret of their creation has spread to necromancers of other races.

Level 6 Encounter (XP 1,300)
- 2 deathpledged gnolls (level 5 brute)
- 1 gnoll huntmaster (level 5 artillery, MM 132)
- 4 witherlings (level 4 skirmisher)

Level 8 Encounter (XP 1,800)
- 2 cambion hellswords (level 8 brute, MM 39)
- 1 fang of Yeenoghu (level 7 skirmisher)
- 8 witherling rabble (level 9 minion skirmisher)

WOOD WOAD

Wood woads seek vengeance for each tree that falls to the axe. A creature that intrudes into a forest protected by wood woads is held responsible for the actions of all previous intruders.

| Wood Woad | | Level 8 Soldier |
|---|---|---|
| Medium fey humanoid (plant) | | XP 350 |
| Initiative +5 | Senses Perception +12 | |
| HP 92; Bloodied 46 | | |
| AC 23; Fortitude 21, Reflex 18, Will 21 | | |
| Speed 5 | | |
| ⊕ Club (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon | | |
| +16 vs. AC; 1d8 + 6 damage. | | |
| ⸸ Nature's Judgment (standard; recharge ⚅) ✦ Healing, Reliable, Weapon | | |
| +16 vs. AC; 2d8 + 6 damage, and the target is immobilized and takes ongoing 5 damage (save ends both). When the target takes the ongoing damage, the fey enemy or plant enemy nearest to the target regains an equal number of hit points. | | |
| ⊹ Nature's Mystery (minor; encounter) ✦ Charm | | |
| Close burst 2; targets one creature; no attack roll; the target takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls, all defenses, and saving throws (save ends). In addition, the target takes a –5 penalty to saving throws against this effect unless it succeeds on a DC 20 Nature check (a free action on the target's turn). | | |
| Alignment Unaligned | Languages Common, Elven | |
| Skills Intimidate +11 | | |
| Str 18 (+8) | Dex 9 (+3) | Wis 16 (+7) |
| Con 20 (+9) | Int 10 (+4) | Cha 10 (+4) |
| Equipment small wooden shield, club | | |

Wood Woad Tactics

A wood woad uses nature's judgment as soon as it can, preferring to target an enemy that relies on speed or mobility rather than an enemy that wishes to hold a position. It stays near allies in order to defend them.

Wood Woad Lore

Nature DC 14: Those who have extensive knowledge of nature, such as rangers, druids, and wardens, can usually overcome a wood woad's magic more easily than those who are not wise in the ways of the woods.

Nature DC 19: Wood woads and dryads share a common heritage. Dryads are sometimes at peace, comforted by the presence of their trees, but wood woads are constantly enraged by slain forests.

WAYNE ENGLAND

Encounter Groups

Wood woads gladly ally with other creatures that share their drive to protect the natural world. Centaurs and dryads fight alongside them. Clever fey creatures, particularly gnomes and eladrin, sometimes trick wood woads into allying with them by creating a link between the fey's goal and the wood woads' desires.

Level 8 encounter (XP 1,800)
- ✦ 2 dryads (level 9 skirmisher, MM 96)
- ✦ 1 vine horror spellfiend (level 7 artillery, MM 260)
- ✦ 2 wood woads (level 8 soldier)

Level 9 encounter (XP 2,150)
- ✦ 1 gnome entropist (level 8 artillery)
- ✦ 1 satyr piper (level 8 controller, MM 228)
- ✦ 1 shambling mound (level 9 brute, MM 232)
- ✦ 3 wood woads (level 8 soldier)

XORN

Bizarre scavengers originally from the Elemental Chaos, xorns now inhabit the world's deep subterranean tunnels and remote mountain caverns.

Xorn

Xorns move through solid rock like fish through water, seeking out rare metals and gems to devour.

| Xorn | Level 9 Skirmisher |
|---|---|
| Medium elemental magical beast (earth) | XP 400 |
| Initiative +8 | Senses Perception +7; all-around vision, darkvision |

| ⊕ Earthy Maw (standard; at-will) | |
| +14 vs. AC; 2d6 + 5 damage. | |
| Earth Glide | |
| A xorn can burrow through solid stone as if it were loose earth. | |
| Retreat (immediate reaction, when the xorn is missed by a melee attack; at-will) | |
| The xorn burrows its speed. | |
| Submerge (minor; at-will) | |
| The xorn sinks partially under the ground and gains a +2 bonus to AC until it moves. | |
| Alignment Unaligned | Languages Common, Primordial |

Diamondhide Xorn

In the deep recesses of the Elemental Chaos and in stony realms across the planes, diamondhide xorns glide through the earth in search of the rarest minerals. The armored skin of a diamondhide xorn glitters with the remnants of minerals it has ingested.

| Diamondhide Xorn | Level 16 Skirmisher |
|---|---|
| Large elemental magical beast (earth) | XP 1,400 |
| Initiative +13 | Senses Perception +12; all-around vision, darkvision |

Xorn Lore

Dungeoneering DC 23: Xorns are creatures from the Elemental Chaos that feed on metal and minerals. Their appetite for rare gemstones makes them open to bargaining. However, they have been known to engage in diplomacy while using the time to set up ambushes.

Encounter Groups

Xorns bargain their services across the planes in exchange for precious metals and gemstones. They can be found aiding the mining or smelting operations of duergar or fire giants, and sometimes allied with galeb duhrs or other creatures of elemental earth.

Level 10 Encounter (XP 2,400)

- 1 duergar fleshtearer (level 11 lurker)
- 4 duergar shock troopers (level 6 brute)
- 2 xorns (level 9 skirmisher)

GLOSSARY

This glossary defines game terms used in this book. The glossary supersedes previous sources and incorporates clarifications and new rules.

aberrant [origin]: Aberrant creatures are native to or shaped by the Far Realm.

acid [keyword]: A damage type.

aftereffect: An aftereffect automatically occurs after another effect ends. In a power description, an "Aftereffect" entry follows the effect it applies to.

A target is sometimes subject to an aftereffect after a save. If that save occurs when the target is rolling multiple saving throws, the aftereffect takes effect after the target has rolled all of them.

air [keyword]: An air creature is strongly connected to the element of air.

all-around vision: Enemies can't gain combat advantage by flanking a creature that has all-around vision.

altitude limit: If a creature has a specified altitude limit, the creature crashes at the end of its turn if it is flying higher than that limit. See also fly speed.

angel [keyword]: Angels are immortal creatures native to the Astral Sea. They don't need to breathe, eat, or sleep.

animate [type]: Animate creatures are given life through magic. They don't need to breathe, eat, or sleep.

aquatic [keyword]: Aquatic creatures can breathe underwater. In aquatic combat, an aquatic creature gains a +2 bonus to attack rolls against nonaquatic creatures. See also "Aquatic Combat," Dungeon Master's Guide, page 45.

aura: An aura is a continuous effect that emanates from a creature. The aura affects each square within line of effect and within a specified range of that creature's space. The aura does not affect that creature, unless otherwise noted, and is unaffected by terrain or environmental phenomena.

A creature can deactivate or reactivate its aura as a minor action. If the creature dies, the aura ends immediately.

If auras overlap and impose penalties to the same roll or game statistic, a creature affected by the overlapping auras is subject to the worst penalty; the penalties are not cumulative. Similarly, a creature in the overlapping area takes damage only from the aura that deals the most damage, regardless of damage type.

beast [type]: Beasts are either ordinary animals or creatures akin to them. They behave instinctively.

blind [keyword]: A blind creature relies on special senses, such as blindsight or tremorsense, to see within a specified range, beyond which the creature can't see. The creature is immune to gaze attacks and cannot be blinded.

blindsight: A creature that has blindsight can clearly see creatures or objects within a specified range and within line of effect, even if they are invisible or obscured. The creature otherwise relies on its normal vision.

burrow speed: A creature that has a burrow speed can move through loose earth at a specified speed, and the creature can move through solid stone at half that speed. The creature can't shift or charge while burrowing.

change shape: A creature that has the polymorph power change shape can assume the form of another creature. The power specifies the type and size of that form. The new form lasts until it is changed or until the creature dies.

The creature retains its statistics in its new form. Its clothing, armor, and other possessions do not change with the new form.

If the creature can use change shape to assume the form of an individual, the creature must have seen that individual. Other creatures can make an Insight check (opposed by the creature's Bluff check with a +20 bonus) to discern that the form is a disguise. See also polymorph.

charm [keyword]: A charm power controls or influences a subject's actions.

climb speed: A creature that has a climb speed moves on vertical surfaces at that speed without making Athletics checks to climb. While climbing, the creature ignores difficult terrain and doesn't grant combat advantage because of climbing.

clumsy: Some creatures are clumsy while using a specific movement mode (noted next to that mode in the creature's "Speed" entry), and others are clumsy while on the ground (noted next to the creature's speed). While a creature is clumsy, it takes a –4 penalty to attack rolls and all defenses.

cold [keyword]: A damage type. A creature that has this keyword is at least partially composed of ice.

conjuration [keyword]: A conjuration power creates a conjuration, which is an object or a creature of magical energy. A conjuration occupies no squares, is unaffected by the environment, does not need to be supported by a solid surface, cannot be attacked or physically affected, and ends immediately when its creator dies.

If a conjuration can be attacked or physically affected, it uses its creator's defenses. Unless an attack specifically targets conjurations, only the attack's damage (not including ongoing damage) affects the conjuration. If a conjuration can attack, its creator makes the attack, determining line of sight normally but determining line of effect from the conjuration.

If the power that creates a conjuration includes the ability to move it, the conjuration is considered a movable conjuration. A movable conjuration ends at the end of its creator's turn if the creator is not within range of at least 1 square it's in (using the power's range) or if the creator doesn't have line of effect to at least 1 square it's in. A conjuration can't be moved through a solid obstacle.

construct [keyword]: Constructs are not living creatures, so effects that specifically target living creatures do not work against them. They don't need to breathe, eat, or sleep.

darkvision: A creature that has darkvision can see in dim light and darkness without penalty.

demon [keyword]: Demons are chaotic evil elemental creatures native to the Abyss. They don't need to sleep.

devil [keyword]: Devils are evil immortal creatures native to the Nine Hells. They don't need to sleep.

disease [keyword]: Some powers expose a target to a disease. If a creature is exposed to a disease one or more times during an encounter, it makes one saving throw at the end of the encounter to determine if it contracts the disease. If the saving throw fails, the target is infected. See also "Disease," Dungeon Master's Guide, page 49.

dragon [keyword]: Dragons are reptilian creatures. Most of them have wings as well as a breath weapon.

earth [keyword]: An earth creature is strongly connected to the element of earth.

earth walk: A type of terrain walk. A creature that has earth walk ignores difficult terrain that is rubble, uneven stone, or an earthen construction.

elemental [origin]: Elemental creatures are native to the Elemental Chaos.

extra damage: Many powers and other effects grant the ability to deal extra damage. Extra damage is always in addition to other damage. This means an attack that deals no damage can't deal extra damage.

fear [keyword]: A fear power inspires fright.

fey [origin]: Fey creatures are native to the Feywild.

fire [keyword]: A damage type. A fire creature is strongly connected to the element of fire.

fly speed: A creature that has a fly speed can fly a number of squares up to that speed as a move action. To remain in the air, the creature must move at least 2 squares during its turn, or it crashes at the end of its turn. While flying, the creature can't shift or make opportunity attacks, and it crashes if it's knocked prone. See also "Flying," Dungeon Master's Guide, page 47.

force [keyword]: A damage type.

forest walk: A type of terrain walk. A creature that has forest walk ignores difficult terrain that is part of a tree, underbrush, or some other forest growth.

gaze [keyword]: A type of attack. Blind or blinded creatures are immune to gaze attacks, and a creature cannot make a gaze attack while blinded.

giant [keyword]: Giants are Large or larger humanoid creatures.

grabbed: Being grabbed means a creature is immobilized. Unless otherwise noted, a grab lasts until the end of the grabber's next turn, and the grabber can sustain the grab as a minor action and end it as a free action. Certain circumstances end a grab: if the grabber is affected by a condition that prevents it from taking opportunity actions, if either the grabber or the creature it's grabbing moves far enough away that the grabbed creature is no longer in the grabber's reach, or if the grabbed creature escapes. See also "Escape" and "Grab," Player's Handbook, pages 288 and 290.

half damage: When a power or another effect deals half damage, apply all modifiers to the damage, including resistances and vulnerabilities, and then divide the damage in half.

healing [keyword]: A healing power restores hit points.

hidden: When a creature is hidden from an enemy, the creature is silent and invisible to that enemy. A creature normally uses the Stealth skill to become hidden.

homunculus [keyword]: Homunculi are animate constructs tasked with guarding a creature, an area, or an object.

hover: If a creature can hover, it can remain in the air without moving during its turn. It can also shift and make opportunity attacks while flying. See also fly speed.

humanoid [type]: Humanoid creatures vary greatly in how much they resemble humans. Most are bipedal. They include humans as well as monstrous humanoids such as yuan-ti.

ice walk: A type of terrain walk. A creature that has ice walk ignores difficult terrain that is ice or snow.

illusion [keyword]: An illusion power deceives the mind or the senses.

immortal [origin]: Immortal creatures are native to the Astral Sea. Unless they are killed, they live forever.

immune: A creature that is immune to a damage type (such as cold or fire), a condition (such as dazed or petrified), or another specific effect (such as disease or forced movement) is not affected by it. A creature that is immune to charm, fear, illusion, poison, or sleep is not affected by the nondamaging effects of a power that has that keyword. A creature that is immune to gaze is not affected by powers that have that keyword.

implement: The implement keyword identifies a power that can be used through an implement. A monster's statistics block notes the implements it uses. See also "Adding Equipment," Dungeon Master's Guide, page 174.

insubstantial: When a creature is insubstantial, it takes half damage from any damage source, including ongoing damage. Some creatures are inherently insubstantial, which is noted in their "Resist" entries. See also half damage.

lightning [keyword]: A damage type.

living construct [keyword]: Unlike other constructs, living constructs are living creatures.

low-light vision: A creature that has low-light vision can see in dim light without penalty.

magical beast [type]: Magical beasts resemble beasts but often behave like people.

marked: When a creature marks a target, that target takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls for any attack that doesn't include the creature as a target. A creature can be subject to only one mark at a time, and a new mark supersedes an old one.

maximum altitude: See altitude limit.

minion: A minion is destroyed when it takes any damage. If a minion is missed by an attack that deals damage on a miss, the minion doesn't take that damage.

mount [keyword]: A creature that has the mount keyword has at least one mount power. A mount power is usable only when the creature's rider has the Mounted Combat feat. See also "Mounted Combat," Dungeon Master's Guide, page 46.

natural [origin]: Natural creatures are native to the natural world.

necrotic [keyword]: A damage type.

ooze [keyword]: Oozes are amorphous creatures. When an ooze squeezes, it can move at full speed (rather than half speed), it doesn't take the –5 penalty to attack rolls, and it doesn't grant combat advantage because of squeezing.

overland flight: Overland flight works like a fly speed with one exception: A creature can take a move action to use overland flight only if it has taken no actions that turn, except free actions or move actions using overland flight. The creature can then take only those actions until the start of its next turn. See also fly speed.

phasing: While phasing, a creature ignores difficult terrain and can move through obstacles and other creatures, but it must end its movement in an unoccupied space.

plant [keyword]: Plant creatures are composed of vegetable matter. They don't need to sleep.

poison [keyword]: A damage and effect type.

polymorph [keyword]: Polymorph powers change a target's physical form. If a target is affected by more than one polymorph power, only the most recent one has any effect. The other powers' effects remain on the target and their durations expire as normal, but those effects don't apply. However, when the most recent effect ends, the next most recent one that is still active applies to the target. If the target dies, polymorph effects end on it immediately.

If a polymorph effect reduces a target's space, the target doesn't provoke opportunity attacks for leaving squares as it shrinks. If a polymorph effect makes a target too large to fit in the available space, the effect fails against the target, but the target is stunned (save ends).

psychic [keyword]: A damage type.

radiant [keyword]: A damage type.

reliable [keyword]: If a creature misses every target when using a reliable power, the use of that power isn't expended.

reptile [keyword]: Reptiles are cold-blooded creatures that have scaly skin.

resist: A creature that has resistance takes less damage from a specific damage type. For example, a creature that has resist 10 fire takes 10 less damage whenever it takes fire damage.

Resistance doesn't reduce damage unless the target has resistance to each type of damage from the attack, and then only the weakest of the resistances applies. For example, a creature that has resist 10 lightning and resist 5 thunder that takes 15 lightning and thunder damage takes 10 damage because the resistance value to the combined damage types is limited by the lesser of the two resistances.

shadow [origin]: Shadow creatures are native to the Shadowfell.

shapechanger [keyword]: Shapechangers, such as doppelgangers, have the ability to alter their form, whether freely or into specific forms.

sleep [keyword]: Sleep powers knock creatures unconscious.

spider [keyword]: Spider creatures include spiders as well as creatures that have spiderlike features: eight legs, web spinning, and the like.

spider climb: A creature that can spider climb can use its climb speed to move across overhanging horizontal surfaces (such as ceilings) without making Athletics checks. See also climb speed.

swamp walk: A type of terrain walk. A creature that has swamp walk ignores difficult terrain that is mud or shallow water.

swarm [keyword]: A swarm is composed of multiple creatures but functions as a single creature. A swarm can occupy the same space as another creature, and an enemy can enter a swarm's space, which is difficult terrain. A swarm cannot be pulled, pushed, or slid by melee or ranged attacks.

A swarm can squeeze through any opening large enough for even one of its constituent creatures. For example, a swarm of bats can squeeze through any opening large enough for one of the bats to squeeze through.

swim speed: A creature that has a swim speed moves through water at that speed without making Athletics checks to swim.

telepathy: A creature that has telepathy can communicate telepathically with any other creature that has a language. The other creature must be within line of effect and within a specified range. Telepathy allows for two-way communication.

teleportation [keyword]: A teleportation power transports creatures or objects instantaneously from one location to another. A creature that uses a teleportation power must have line of sight to the destination space, but neither that creature nor the target being teleported needs line of effect to that space. The destination must be a space that the target can occupy without squeezing.

The target being teleported disappears and instantaneously appears in the destination space. The movement doesn't provoke opportunity attacks and is unhindered by intervening creatures, objects, or terrain.

Being immobilized or restrained doesn't prevent a creature from teleporting. If a creature teleports away from a physical restraint, a monster's grasp, or some other immobilizing effect that is located in a specific space, the creature is no longer immobilized or restrained. Otherwise, the creature teleports but is still immobilized or restrained when it reaches the destination space.

threatening reach: A creature that has threatening reach can make an opportunity attack against any enemy within its reach that provokes an opportunity attack.

thunder [keyword]: A damage type.

tremorsense: A creature that has tremorsense can clearly see creatures or objects within a specified range, even if they are invisible, obscured, or outside line of effect, but they and the creature must be in contact with the ground or the same substance, such as water or a web. The creature otherwise relies on its normal vision.

truesight: A creature that has truesight can see invisible creatures and objects within a specified range as long as they are also within line of sight.

tunneling: A creature that has tunneling leaves tunnels behind it as it burrows. The creature, as well as smaller creatures, can move through these tunnels without any reduction in speed. Creatures of the same size as the tunneling creature must squeeze through these tunnels, and larger creatures cannot move through them at all. See also burrow speed.

undead [keyword]: Undead are not living creatures, so effects that specifically target living creatures do not work against them. They don't need to breathe or sleep.

variable resistance: A creature that has variable resistance can activate it a specified number of times per encounter as a free action. When the creature activates variable resistance, it chooses a damage type: acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder. (The creature can't choose a damage type to which it is vulnerable.) Until the end of the encounter, the creature gains a specified amount of resistance to that damage type. This resistance replaces any resistance the creature already had against that damage type. If a creature can activate variable resistance more than once per encounter, the creature can resist only one damage type at a time using variable resistance. See also resist.

vulnerable: A creature that is vulnerable to a specified damage type usually takes a specific amount of extra damage when it takes damage of that type, or it suffers a specific effect. For example, a creature that has vulnerable 10 radiant takes 10 extra radiant damage when an attack deals radiant damage to it or when it takes ongoing radiant damage.

water [keyword]: A water creature is strongly connected to the element of water.

weapon [keyword]: The weapon keyword identifies a power that is used with a weapon, which can be an unarmed strike. A monster's statistics block notes the weapons it uses. Monster attacks don't use proficiency bonuses. See also "Adding Equipment," Dungeon Master's Guide, page 174.

zone [keyword]: A zone power creates a zone, a magical area that lasts for a round or more. A zone is formed by an area of effect and fills each square in the area that is within line of effect of the origin square. A zone is unaffected by the environment, cannot be attacked or physically affected, and ends immediately when its creator dies.

If the power that creates a zone includes the ability to move it, the zone is considered a movable zone. A movable zone ends at the end of its creator's turn if the creator is not within range of at least 1 square of it (using the power's range) or if the creator doesn't have line of effect to at least 1 square of it. A zone can't be moved through a solid obstacle.

If zones overlap and impose penalties to the same roll or game statistic, a creature affected by the overlapping zones is subject to the worst penalty; the penalties are not cumulative. Similarly, a creature in the overlapping area takes damage only from the zone that deals the most damage, regardless of damage type.

Racial Traits

As in the Monster Manual, a few of the monsters in Monster Manual 2 have racial traits and powers similar to those of the races presented in the Player's Handbook and Player's Handbook 2.

These traits and powers are most useful to Dungeon Masters interested in creating detailed non-player characters (NPCs). The information can also be used as guidelines for creating player character (PC) versions of these creatures. Be aware that the traits and powers that follow are more in line with monster powers than with player character powers—actual PC versions of any of the races published later would likely be slightly different.

As a DM, you should carefully consider which, if any, of the monster races you wish to include as PC options in your campaign.

Bullywug

Average Height: 5′ 4″ - 6′ 0″
Average Weight: 150-240 lb.

Ability Scores: +2 Constitution, +2 Dexterity
Size: Medium
Speed: 6 squares (swamp walk)
Vision: Normal

Languages: Common, Primordial
Skill Bonuses: +2 Athletics
Rancid Air (Poison) aura 2: Any enemy that spends a healing surge within the aura is weakened until the end of its next turn.

Duergar

Average Height: 4′ 2″ - 4′ 8″
Average Weight: 160-220 lb.

Ability Scores: +2 Constitution, +2 Wisdom
Size: Medium
Speed: 6 squares
Vision: Darkvision

Languages: Common, Deep Speech, Dwarven
Skill Bonuses: +2 Dungeoneering
Infernal Quills: You can use infernal quills as an encounter power.

Infernal Quills — Duergar Racial Power

You tense and send the quills projecting from your body into the gaps in your foe's armor.

Encounter ✦ Poison
Minor Action Ranged 3
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution + 2 vs. AC
Level 11: Constitution + 4 vs. AC
Level 21: Constitution + 6 vs. AC
Hit: 1d8 + Constitution modifier damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls and ongoing 2 poison damage (save ends both).
Level 11: 2d8 + Constitution modifier damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls and ongoing 5 poison damage (save ends both).
Level 21: 3d8 + Constitution modifier damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls and ongoing 8 poison damage (save ends both).

Kenku

Average Height: 5′ 0″ - 5′ 6″
Average Weight: 110-150 lb.

Ability Scores: +2 Dexterity, +2 Charisma
Size: Medium
Speed: 6 squares
Vision: Low-light

Languages: Common
Skill Bonuses: +2 Bluff, +2 Stealth
Flock Effect: You gain a +3 bonus to attack rolls against a creature you are flanking instead of the normal +2 bonus, and you grant a +3 bonus to attack rolls or skill checks when aiding another instead of the normal +2 bonus.
Mimicry: You can mimic sounds and voices. A successful Insight check opposed by your Bluff check allows a listener to determine that the effect is faked.

MONSTERS BY LEVEL

Introduction

Equipment and magic items are essential to the survival of any D&D® character. Treasure is vital to any adventure. As a player outfitting a character or a DM filling hoards with shiny baubles, the more options you have the better.

That's where Adventurer's Vault comes in. It expands on the rules for using equipment found in the Player's Handbook®. These pages are full of options for the PC with gold or residuum burning a hole in his pouch, and the DM looking for that enticing reward. Adventurer's Vault also expands the D&D® game with new tricks for normal tasks.

Open Adventurer's Vault and find out . . .

What's Inside

This book has two chapters—Equipment and Magic Items—followed by appendices designed to aid in using the rest of the contents. Use it to equip your PC or your NPCs, or to stock your adventures with interesting stuff.

✦ Chapter 1: Equipment: This chapter focuses on nonmagical items—masterwork armor, new weapons, alchemical substances, mounts, and vehicles—and presents rules for using them in your game. Vehicles can add action to encounters and overland travel. An alchemy system allows you to add some bang to your game without having to rely on the wizard or magic items.

✦ Chapter 2: Magic Items: Vastly expanding on the items found in the Player's Handbook, this chapter is divided by item slot. You'll find a vast array of new items for every slot, as well as the expanded ranks of wondrous items and consumables. Even companion beasts and mounts have their own items now, allowing you to make more of your pets.

✦ Appendix 1: This section gives you, the DM or player, ideas and tools for making magic items seem unique in your campaign and world. Give your items a story. Learn how to give items levels as treasure or to move magic from one item to another.

✦ Appendix 2: To help parcel treasure, all the magic items in this book are listed alphabetically by level.

CHAPTER 1

Equipment

Being prepared means having what you need in any situation. The adventurer's life is nothing if not unpredictable, so the savvy explorer takes unusual paths even when it comes to finding or making equipment. While wandering the markets in unusual locales, you can find all sorts of exotic and useful gear. The right training can grant you access to such equipment, giving you an edge that just might save your life.

In this chapter, you'll find:

- Masterwork Armor: Techniques and magic from across the cosmos allow master craftsfolk to make strange and amazing armor. Choosing the right kind of armor is a matter of need and taste. Shore up your soft spots with the items in this section.
- Weapons: Weapons are as varied as the reasons to do battle in the darkening world. Nonhuman cultures have also produced a few variations on typical weapon forms. Herein you'll find several new simple, military, and superior weapons comparable to yet different from those presented in the Player's Handbook®.
- Mounts: The right mount can get you where you want to go faster, and many able creatures can be trained to serve in this capacity. In this section, you'll find mounts that expand on those presented in the Monster Manual®. You'll also find gear to make your mount a better ally.
- Vehicles: Some tasks and terrain demand more than a mount. When that's true, then it's time to learn to drive. This section provides sample vehicles and the rules required to use them.
- Alchemy: With a little special training, you can combine arcane reagents according to mystic formulas to produce fell poisons, bizarre powders, and wondrous concoctions. For those unskilled in the alchemical arts, such items can also be procured from the right merchant with a little coin.

WILLIAM O' CONNOR

MASTERWORK ARMOR

This section describes several new kinds of masterwork armor. These special suits of masterwork armor are sometimes used in the creation of magic armor. Just as adventurers are likely to be dealing in different currencies as they attain higher levels, so too are they likely to be acquiring new kinds of armor materials.

Masterwork armor always has an enhancement bonus, and the price of the masterwork armor material is incorporated into the overall cost of the magic armor. For example, +4 crysteel mail armor costs 45,000 gp—the same as nonmasterwork +4 chain armor. Thus, an adventurer of higher level is generally better off shopping for masterwork armors than the armors he or she used at lower levels.

A magic armor's enhancement bonus is still added to the armor bonus to determine a character's overall armor bonus. For example, +4 stormscale armor provides a +13 bonus to the wearer's AC, +9 for the armor bonus and +4 for the enhancement bonus.

An armor entry on the Masterwork Armor table contains the following information.

Armor Bonus: Armor provides this bonus to AC.

Minimum Enhancement Bonus: Masterwork armor requires a minimum enhancement bonus, as shown in this entry.

Check: You take this penalty to all Strength-, Dexterity-, and Constitution-based skill checks when you wear the armor. You don't take the penalty to ability checks (such as a Strength check to break down a door or a Dexterity check to determine initiative in combat).

Speed: You take this penalty to your speed (in squares) when wearing the armor.

Price: The item's price in gold pieces (gp). The cost of masterwork armor is included in the cost of magic armor.

Weight: The armor's weight in pounds.

Special: Some masterwork armors have additional properties, such as a defense boost or additional resistance. A bonus received from the special property of a masterwork armor is an armor bonus.

Armor Types

Cloth: Githzerai weavers first taught other peoples the methods of making githweave. It's clear that the githzerai took these techniques from their erstwhile masters, the mind flayers. Patterns taken from captured mind flayer garments led to mindweave and mindpatterned armor. All these armors infuse some form of crystal into textiles, channeling mind energy to fortify the body. Efreetweave seems to be similar, but uses rare reagents and metallic threads from the Elemental Chaos.

Leather: Drowmesh uses strands of leather woven together in a fine lattice for maximum flexibility. Yuan-ti overlap fine "scales" of leather to produce the incredibly supple snakeskin armor, and they weave stands of this with shadow magic to produce anathema armor. Swordwing leather mimics the way swordwings make their paper spires, creating a light, flexible, and hard leather.

Hide: Dwarves use earth energy to fortify earthhide, mimicking the strange living-earth skin of creatures such as the galeb duhr and the earth titan. Feyhide armor is treated with an elven process that gives resilience akin to the hide of tough fey beasts. Astral stalker preservation techniques yield stalkerhide. Voidhide armor comes from similar methods used by the sorrowsworn to preserve their grisly trophies.

Chain: Weavemail is an exquisite armor made according to an advanced technique perfected in the eladrin courts of the Feywild, consisting of closely linked chains that provide few openings for enemy attacks. Finemail is a more common eladrin derivative of this method, while braidmail is a similar armor made according to elven tradition. Genasi mix steel with magic volcanic glass to create resilient crysteel armor. Pitmail is derived from an infernal technique used to armor great commanders in the days of the tiefling empire of Bael Turath.

Scale: Drakescale armor mimics the small, close scales of rage drakes to stave off attacks, while wyvernscale uses larger scales in a similar pattern. Stormscale armor resembles the storm gorgon's hardened plating and incorporates elemental magic. Ancient yuan-ti crafting techniques infuse metal plates with elemental power to produce nagascale armor. Dwarves took the primordial methods of producing titanscale armor from the titans and giants.

Plate: Rimefire plate is bathed in elemental frost and fire to infuse it with hardness. Humans developed the process of layering steel several dozen times to create layered plate. Gith plate is hardened with psionic techniques originating with either the mind flayers or the first generation of escaped githyanki slaves. Specter plate is infused with energy from the Shadowfell. Legion plate mimics the forging techniques used in the Nine Hells to armor legion devils. Tarrasque plate, designed to emulate the tarrasque's impenetrable hide, has hundreds of nodules packed between very thin metal layers, each treated with a different process.

WEAPONS

The Player's Handbook covers a broad range of commonly used weapons. This section describes a range of more unusual weapons, which provide a host of new combinations and benefits.

A weapon entry on the Melee Weapons table or Ranged Weapons table contains the following information.

Weapon: The weapon's name.

Prof.: Proficiency with a weapon gives you a proficiency bonus to attack rolls, which appears in this column if applicable. If you're not proficient with the weapon, you don't gain this bonus.

Damage: The weapon's damage die or dice.

Range: Weapons that can be thrown or have ammunition that can be shot have a range. The number before the slash indicates the normal range distance (in squares) for an attack. The number after the slash indicates the long-range distance for an attack. An entry of "—" indicates that the weapon can't be used at range.

Price: The weapon's cost in gold pieces.

Weight: The weapon's weight in pounds.

Category, Group, and Properties: Weapon categories, groups, and properties are explained in Chapter 7 of the Player's Handbook. In addition, two new weapon properties are described below.

Brutal: A brutal weapon's minimum damage is higher than that of a normal weapon. When rolling the weapon's damage, reroll any die that displays a value equal to or lower than the brutal value given for the weapon. Reroll the die until the value shown exceeds the weapon's brutal value, and then use the new value.

For example, the execution axe has a property of brutal 2. If a fighter wielding this weapon hits with steel serpent strike (a 2[W] power), the player rolls 2d12 for the weapon damage, rerolling a die result of 1 or 2 until the die shows 3 or higher.

Defensive: A defensive weapon grants you a +1 bonus to AC while you wield the defensive weapon in one hand and wield another melee weapon in your other hand. Wielding more than one defensive weapon does not increase this bonus. To gain this benefit, you need not attack with the defensive weapon, but you must be proficient with it.

Weapon Types

Broadsword: This stout, wide-bladed weapon lacks the accuracy of a longsword, but what it lacks in accuracy, it redeems with deadliness.

Craghammer: This dwarven hammer has a heavily weighted head, making it resemble a one-handed maul backed by a deadly spike.

Double Axe: Fitted with an axe head at each end, a double axe offers increased offensive and defensive capabilities.

1. Greatbow; 2. Broadsword; 3. Khopesh; 4. Fullblade; 5. Double axe; 6. Repeating crossbow; 7. Spiked shield; 8. Trident; 9. Spiked guantlet; 10. Triple-headed flail; 11. Parrying dagger; 12. Double sword; 13. Double flail.

[1] This weapon also occupies the magic item hands slot. See description.

[2] A rogue proficient with this weapon can treat it as a dagger for the purpose of the Rogue Weapon Talent class feature.

[3] This weapon is combined with a light shield. See description.

[4] Double weapon (see page 10).

Double Flail: This weapon has a spiked flail head at either end to maximize attack and damage.

Double Sword: This well-balanced weapon combines the deadliness of two longswords with increased defensive capability.

Execution Axe: This broad-bladed axe is heavily weighted for greater hewing power.

Fullblade: This enormous, two-handed sword is favored by fighters and paladins.

Ranged Weapons (illustrated on pages 8 and 63)

SIMPLE RANGED WEAPONS

SUPERIOR RANGED WEAPONS

Two-Handed

| Weapon | Prof. | Damage | Range | Price | Weight | Group | Properties |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Greatbow | +2 | d12 | 25/50 | 30 gp | 5 lb. | Bow | Load free |
| Superior crossbow | +3 | d10 | 20/40 | 30 gp | 6 lb. | Crossbow | Load minor |

*See weapon description.

Greatbow: This massive, recurved bow stands as tall as a human when strung, and it fires arrows with greater power than a traditional longbow.

Greatspear: This reach weapon resembles a long-spear, but its broad head and strong haft allow it to strike with increased force.

Heavy War Pick: This larger version of the light war pick delivers devastating strikes.

Khopesh: This sturdy weapon is identified by the crescent-shaped curve at the end of its blade.

Kukri: The blade of this heavy knife curves forward for greater potency. A rogue proficient with the kukri can treat it as a dagger for the purpose of the Rogue Weapon Talent class feature.

Light War Pick: This smaller version of the war pick is suitable as an off-hand weapon.

Mordenkrad: First used by dwarf shock troops in battle against giants, this oversized two-handed hammer has a massive head studded with spikes.

Parrying Dagger: This narrow dagger features a specially designed guard that can deflect attacks. A rogue proficient with the parrying dagger can treat it as a dagger for the purpose of the Rogue Weapon Talent class feature.

Repeating Crossbow: A rectangular magazine attaches to the top of this crossbow. A double-action lever drops a bolt into place as a free action, then fires it as a standard action. A repeating crossbow does not need to be reloaded as long as it has ammunition in its magazine. A magazine costs 1 gp and holds 10 bolts. It takes a standard action to remove an empty magazine and load a new one.

Spiked Gauntlet: These gauntlets are specially fitted with metal spikes. Unlike other weapons, the spiked gauntlet occupies your magic item hands slot while enchanted.

Scourge: This lightweight flail has leather thongs inlaid with sharpened bits of metal or bone.

Spiked Shield: This light shield is constructed with a sharpened spike at its center. A spiked shield can be enchanted as a magic shield or a magic weapon, but not both. A spiked shield enchanted as a magic weapon does not occupy a character's magic item arms slot. Although a character cannot use two shields at the same time, a character wielding a spiked shield enchanted as a weapon can employ arms slot items such as bracers.

Superior Crossbow: This crossbow appears similar to a traditional crossbow, but it has knobs and dials that allow the weapon to be fine-tuned for greater accuracy.

Tratnyr: Also known as the wingspear, this weapon was first crafted by the dragonborn for maximum efficiency in melee and ranged combat.

Trident: This three-tined spear is weighted for throwing over short distances.

Triple-headed Flail: This oversized flail has three heads for more potent attacks.

Urgrosh: Originally of dwarven make, this weapon has a heavy axe head at one end (dealing d12 damage) and a sharp spear point at the base of the haft (dealing d8 damage).

Waraxe: This weapon's superior balance allows it to be wielded in one hand.

DOUBLE WEAPONS

Wielding a double weapon is like wielding a weapon in each hand. The first die given in the damage column of the table for a double weapon is for the primary (or main) end of the weapon; the second damage die is for the secondary (or off-hand) end. You can use either end of a double weapon to deliver an attack unless a power specifies a main or off-hand weapon attack.

An enchanted double weapon receives an enhancement bonus on both ends, but weapon properties or powers conferred by the enchantment affect only the primary end of the weapon.

Like two-handed weapons, double weapons cannot normally be wielded by Small creatures unless the weapon has the small property.

MOUNTS

At some point in their careers, adventurers may trade their walking sticks for mounts. Mounts allow characters to move quickly from one location to another, crossing untamed frontiers to reach the next dungeon or some distant city.

A city or town usually has one or more kinds of creatures that can be purchased as mounts. Unusual settings require special mounts. PCs might be setting out across a desert, in which case a camel or riding lizard might be appropriate. Conversely, characters might be exploring the undersea depths of a fallen empire, allowing them to use sharks or sea horses as mounts. Regardless of where the PCs are, most mounts have a speed that exceeds that of a PC, allowing for faster passage between places.

Many mounts are also useful in combat. Pages 46–47 of the Dungeon Master's Guide describe how to use a mount in combat and how a mount can take advantage of any natural attacks it might have.

The table below lists mounts from Adventurer's Vault and from the Monster Manual (MM).

Price: The cost of the mount in gold pieces.

Speed: The creature's best speed in squares.

Per Hour/Per Day: How far, in miles, the creature can travel in an hour and in a 10-hour day of travel.

Normal/Heavy/Push/Drag: The normal load, heavy load, and push/drag load for the creature (in pounds). Like characters, mounts exceeding their normal load take a reduction in speed.

Mount Equipment

Mounts acquired by the PCs are assumed to have basic gear, such as a saddle, a saddle blanket, a bridle, and reins. Although mounts are mainly used as basic transportation, others (especially warhorses and other combat-trained mounts) might take advantage of specialized gear such as barding (described below) and mount magic items (described in Chapter 2). These items enhance a mount's abilities in combat, generally by augmenting its speed, increasing its defenses, or allowing the mount to bypass certain terrain features.

Barding

Barding is armor for your mount. It adds to a mount's Armor Class just as armor does to a character's. Barding also has similar check penalties and speed penalties. The barding's armor bonus is added to a creature's existing AC. Unlike heavy armor, heavy barding does not negate a mount's Dexterity or Intelligence bonus to AC. Creatures that fill the soldier role already have additional armor (natural or otherwise) factored into their AC. As such, barding is less effective for them (as shown in the accompanying table).

Magic barding can be crafted with its own unique properties. However, magic barding cannot be enchanted with an enhancement bonus like normal armor. Most creatures already benefit from natural defenses that exceed those of a typical PC.

VEHICLES

A wizard stands on the deck of a storm-tossed ship, his spells blasting the raiding party of sahuagin climbing over the rails. A rogue clambers up a tree to leap upon the goblin king's chariot as it thunders beneath her. A warlock sets an airship on a collision course toward the lich's castle, abandoning the massive craft as it crashes into the topmost tower.

The Dungeons & Dragons® game is built around fast-moving, dynamic combat, but adding vehicles into the mix can take a combat encounter to a new level. Whether the PCs battle from the backs of chariots, fight off goblin wolf riders while racing a supply wagon through a treacherous mountain pass, or leap aboard a longship to seize it from gnoll pirates, vehicles can serve as the centerpiece for any number of memorable confrontations.

This section provides the rules for managing vehicles in your game. Vehicles function much like mounts, in that a character takes control of a vehicle, uses it to move, and can take advantage of its special features. Most vehicles carry more passengers and cargo than a mount, but their lack of maneuverability creates unique challenges on the battlefield.

The Basics

Vehicles have statistics, some of which are similar to a creature's and others of which are not. Vehicles are considered objects, so the rules in Chapter 4 of the Dungeon Master's Guide apply to them unless otherwise noted.

Size: Vehicles have a size just like creatures.

Hit Points: A vehicle's hit points indicate the amount of punishment it can take. A vehicle reduced to 0 hit points or fewer is destroyed, and creatures on board the destroyed vehicle are knocked prone in their current squares. The vehicle's wreckage occupies its space, making it difficult terrain.

Space: Unlike creatures, which can move around within a space and squeeze into smaller spaces, vehicles occupy all the space within its dimensions. As a result, vehicles cannot squeeze. For example, a wagon takes up a full 2 squares by 3 squares, meaning it can't fit through a narrow chasm that is only 1 square wide.

Vehicles pulled by creatures indicate only the vehicle's space. The creatures pulling it occupy their normal space on the battle grid.

Defenses: Like all objects, vehicles have an Armor Class, a Fortitude defense, and a Reflex defense. They do not have a Will defense.

Speed: A vehicle's speed (given in squares) determines how far it travels when a driver or pilot uses a move action. A driver or pilot who uses two move actions can move a vehicle twice its speed.

The speed of a creature-drawn vehicle is determined by the speed of the creature(s) moving it.

For long-distance movement, most creature-drawn vehicles can travel no more than 10 hours in a day. However, sailing ships and magically propelled crafts are not limited in this way and can travel all day and night if properly crewed.

Load: A vehicle's load is expressed as the number of Medium creatures (both crew and passengers) that can ride within it, plus the amount of cargo it carries (in pounds or tons). In general, one Large creature is equivalent to four Medium creatures, a Huge creature equals nine Medium creatures, and a Gargantuan creature equals sixteen Medium creatures. These comparisons assume that the vehicle has basically one horizontal surface upon which these creatures can stand. For covered vehicles or vehicles with multiple decks or levels, the number and size of creatures that can fit inside may vary. Regardless, a creature's size cannot exceed the available space in the vehicle.

Driver or Pilot: This entry describes the position a vehicle's driver or pilot occupies and any requirements of the vehicle's driver or pilot. Vehicles larger than Medium size usually require a driver or pilot to direct the vehicle from the front or rear. Thus, when placing a vehicle on the battle grid, you should decide which side is the front and which side is the rear.

Crew: This entry describes any crew needed to control a vehicle, and describes the effect on a vehicle's movement if the crew members are not present.

Out of Control: If a driver or pilot loses control of a vehicle, this entry describes what happens.

Special Features: If a vehicle has any attacks or special features, they are noted at the bottom of its statistics block.

Initiative: Vehicles never roll for initiative. A vehicle acts on the initiative of the creature controlling it.

If you need to know when an out-of-control vehicle acts (for example, to determine when a driverless wagon moves across the battle grid), the vehicle has an initiative check result of 1 lower than the last creature in the initiative order. If the encounter involves multiple out-of-control vehicles, the vehicles act in order of which has been out of control longest, with the most recently out-of-control vehicle acting last.

VEHICLE AND MOUNT SPEEDS

| Speed | Per Hour | Per 10-hour Day | Per 24-hour Day |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2 squares | 1 mile | 10 miles | 24 miles |
| 3 squares | 1-1/2 miles | 15 miles | 36 miles |
| 4 squares | 2 miles | 20 miles | 48 miles |
| 5 squares | 2-1/2 miles | 25 miles | 60 miles |
| 6 squares | 3 miles | 30 miles | 72 miles |
| 7 squares | 3-1/2 miles | 35 miles | 84 miles |
| 8 squares | 4 miles | 40 miles | 96 miles |
| 9 squares | 4-1/2 miles | 45 miles | 108 miles |
| 10 squares | 5 miles | 50 miles | 120 miles |
| 20 squares | 10 miles | 100 miles | 240 miles |

Vehicles in Combat

Most of the time, you use a vehicle's per-day and per-hour speed. If the PCs travel from one city to another by wagon, the wagon's speed determines the length of their journey. However, if kobold bandits ambush the wagon en route, it becomes important to keep track of how the wagon moves during the fight and what the NPCs or PCs can do to control it.

A vehicle needs a driver or a pilot—a character or creature that spends actions to control the vehicle. This character must meet the conditions described under the vehicle's driver or pilot entry. A vehicle with no controller goes out of control, typically continuing on its course and crashing into the first obstacle it encounters or else grinding to a halt.

Only one character can control a vehicle during a round, though any number of characters can attempt to take control until one is successful. A character can yield control of a vehicle to another character as a free action, but the character assuming control of the vehicle (a free action) can take no other action with the vehicle during that turn. If a character does not move into the driver or pilot position and assume control when control is yielded to him or her, then the vehicle might go out of control. If no character has taken control of the vehicle by the end of the yielder's next turn, then the vehicle acts at the end of the initiative order according to its out-of-control rules.

A vehicle's movement does not provoke opportunity attacks against the vehicle or the creatures occupying it. Creatures moving within a vehicle still provoke opportunity attacks from other creatures in the same vehicle, as normal.

Conditions

Vehicles can be attacked just like other objects. Some conditions (such as being knocked prone) have special rules when applied to a vehicle. Any conditions from the Player's Handbook excluded from this section have no effect on vehicles. If an effect allows a saving throw to end a condition, a vehicle makes one at the end of its controller's turn (or at the end of the vehicle's turn if it is out of control.) A driver or pilot can use a move action to allow a vehicle to make an additional saving throw during his or her turn.

Immobilized: An immobilized vehicle cannot move except by a pull, a push, or a slide effect.

Prone: A vehicle subject to an effect that would knock it prone instead takes 1d10 damage and is slowed (see below) until the end of the next round.

Restrained: A vehicle that is restrained is immobilized and cannot be forced to move by a pull, a push, or a slide effect. If the restrained condition is ended by the escape action, the vehicle uses the driver's or pilot's relevant skill modifier.

Slowed: A slowed vehicle uses the standard rules for this condition (PH 277).

Out of Control

Creatures can move, change direction, and come to a stop whenever they choose. Vehicles don't have that luxury. When a vehicle starts moving, it requires effort to keep it moving and on course. Otherwise, it goes out of control.

A driver or pilot must use specific actions to steer, move, or stop a vehicle if he or she doesn't want the vehicle to go out of control. In any round in which no character uses actions to control it, a vehicle acts according to the "Out of Control" section of its statistics block. Some out-of-control vehicles—most commonly those pulled by creatures—come to a stop automatically. Some vehicles, such as ships, continue to move ahead until they collide with something. Other vehicles—especially flying crafts—can crash quickly.

Crashing and Ramming

Though most vehicles are meant for long-distance transportation, some are designed for combat. If a vehicle tries to move into a space occupied by an object, a creature, or another vehicle, it crashes. The vehicle, any creatures pulling it, and whatever it hits take 1d10 damage per square the vehicle moved in its previous turn. Creatures on board the vehicle (and those on the vehicle or object it hits) take half damage.

If the target of the crash is more than one size category smaller than the out-of-control vehicle, the vehicle continues to move regardless of how much damage it dealt during the crash. The space that the target occupies is treated as difficult terrain for the vehicle's movement.

Against targets of equal or greater size, the vehicle continues to move only if the target is destroyed. If the target is not destroyed, the vehicle's move ends immediately.

Turning and Heading

Creatures on a battle grid can change direction at any point during movement. The rules do not make a distinction between a creature's front, back, and sides because it is assumed that a creature can turn around in its space. However, you cannot simply turn a speeding vehicle in the opposite direction, and thus vehicle combat is more complicated.

Every vehicle has a heading—the direction in which it currently moves. To track a vehicle's heading, place a coin or similar marker along the front edge of the vehicle's space on the battle grid. When a vehicle moves, use the small marker to count off squares in the direction the vehicle is moving. Then move the larger vehicle counter or miniature to catch up.

Drive

Vehicles are designed to move in one direction only. You direct a vehicle forward, pushing it ahead. However, vehicles typically lack the maneuverability of a walking creature, and turning them can be slow and difficult.

DRIVE

- Action: Move.
- Movement: Move the vehicle a distance up to its speed.
- Direction: When you move the vehicle, it must move in the direction of its heading marker. The vehicle can move directly forward or it can move along either forward diagonal adjacent to its heading marker (a 45-degree adjustment). It cannot move in other directions without making a turn.
- Opportunity Attacks: A vehicle's movement does not provoke opportunity attacks against the vehicle or the creatures on it.
- Terrain: Terrain affects a vehicle in the way it affects creatures. If a terrain feature requires a skill or ability check, the driver or pilot must make that check for any vehicle that is not drawn by creatures. In the case of a creature-drawn vehicle, the creature pulling or pushing the vehicle makes the appropriate check(s). For vehicles pulled by multiple creatures, choose one creature to make the check and have the other creatures use the aid another action. If a vehicle does not have the appropriate mode of movement to traverse a terrain, then it cannot move on that terrain.

Turn

You turn a vehicle to speed around corners, avoid obstacles, or make a sudden change in its current heading.

TURN

- Action: Move
- Movement: Move the vehicle a distance equal to half its speed.
- Direction: When you move the vehicle, it must move in the direction of its heading marker. The vehicle can move directly forward or it can move along either forward diagonal adjacent to its heading marker (a 45-degree adjustment).
- Heading Marker: At any point during the vehicle's movement, move its heading marker from its current position to either side of the vehicle (a 90-degree turn). Reorient the vehicle's counter or miniature accordingly at the end of the move.

- Opportunity Attacks: A vehicle's movement does not provoke opportunity attacks against the vehicle or the creatures on it.
- Terrain: Terrain affects a vehicle in the way it affects creatures. If a terrain feature requires a skill or ability check, the driver or pilot must make that check for any vehicle that is not drawn by creatures. In the case of a creature-drawn vehicle, the creature pulling or pushing the vehicle makes the appropriate check(s). In the case of vehicles pulled by multiple creatures, choose one creature to make the check and have the other creatures use the aid another action. If a vehicle does not have the appropriate mode of movement to traverse a terrain, then it cannot move on that terrain.

Stop

When a vehicle is moving, it takes effort to stop it.

STOP

- Action: Move
- Movement: Move the vehicle forward a number of squares equal to the distance it moved in the previous round. At the end of the move, the vehicle is motionless. A vehicle begins moving again when its driver or pilot uses the drive action. A stopped vehicle does not go out of control while motionless unless otherwise noted in its description.
- Direction: The vehicle's heading marker remains in place. If and when the vehicle moves again, it must initially move in this direction.

Sample Vehicles

Apparatus of Kwalish
Large vehicle

HP 200 Space 2 squares by 2 squares Cost 5,000 gp
AC 22; Fortitude 20, Reflex 4
Speed 6, swim 6

Pilot
The pilot must occupy the front seat in the apparatus and have both hands free to manipulate its ten control levers.

Load
Two Medium creatures; 200 pounds of gear.

Out of Control
An out-of-control apparatus of Kwalish comes to a stop at the beginning of its turn. At the DM's discretion, it might move in the direction of a strong current at half speed.

Rending Claws (standard; at-will)
The pilot can use the apparatus's claws to attack a single creature: Reach 2; +5 vs. AC; 2d6 + 5 damage. The pilot adds half his or her level as a bonus to the claw's attack rolls.

Sealed
Creatures inside the apparatus of Kwalish cannot gain line of effect to those outside (and vice versa), though they have line of sight to each other through portholes.

Submersible
An apparatus of Kwalish can travel underwater. It holds enough air to support two creatures for five hours or one creature for ten hours.

VEHICLE MOVEMENT

Airship
Gargantuan vehicle

HP 400 Space 4 squares by 8 squares Cost 85,000 gp
AC 4; Fortitude 20, Reflex 2
Speed 0, fly 12 (hover), overland flight 15

Pilot
The pilot must stand at a control wheel, typically at the front of the topmost deck of the airship cabin.

Crew
In addition to the pilot, an airship requires a crew of five, all of whom use a standard action each round to help control the vessel. Reduce the ship's speed by 4 for each missing crew member. At fly speed 0, the ship is unable to travel and flies out of control.

Load
Thirty Medium creatures; twenty tons of cargo.

Out of Control
An out-of-control airship moves forward at half speed. Each round, it has a 50% chance of descending. It descends 5 squares for the first 10 rounds it is out of control. After 10 rounds, it descends 10 squares per round. An out-of-control airship that hits the ground after descending more than 20 squares is destroyed.

Decks
The airship's cabin has four decks: an exterior observation platform, the topmost crew deck, a middle deck for passengers, and a lower cargo hold.

Fragile Propulsion
For every 50 damage the airship takes, its speed is reduced by 2 squares. At fly speed 0, the ship is unable to travel and floats out of control.

Chariot, Heavy
Large vehicle

HP 60 Space 2 squares by 2 squares Cost 840 gp
AC 4; Fortitude 12, Reflex 4
Speed creature's speed - 2

Creature-Drawn
A heavy chariot is pulled by two Large creatures or one Huge creature. A heavy chariot takes a -2 penalty to its speed if only one Large creature pulls it.

Driver
A heavy chariot's driver stands at the front of the chariot. He or she must hold the reins in at least one hand or else the chariot goes out of control.

Load
Four Medium creatures; 400 pounds of gear.

Out of Control
An out-of-control chariot comes to a stop at the beginning of its turn. At the DM's discretion, the chariot might move in a random direction if the creatures that pull it are panicked or attacked.

Cover
A heavy chariot provides cover to its driver and passengers.

Chariot, Light
Medium vehicle

HP 30 Space 1 square Cost 520 gp
AC 5; Fortitude 10, Reflex 5
Speed Creature's speed - 2

Creature-Drawn
A light chariot is pulled by one Large creature.

Driver
A light chariot's driver must hold the reins in at least one hand or else the chariot goes out of control.

Load
One Medium creature; 100 pounds of gear.

Out of Control
An out-of-control chariot comes to a stop at the beginning of its turn. At the DM's discretion, the chariot might move in a random direction if the creatures that pull it are panicked or attacked.

Cover
A heavy chariot provides cover to its driver and passengers.

Greatship
Gargantuan vehicle

HP 400 Space 8 squares by 20 squares Cost 13,000 gp
AC 4; Fortitude 20, Reflex 2
Speed swim 6

Pilot
The pilot must stand at the ship's wheel, typically at the rear of the topmost deck.

Crew
In addition to the pilot, a greatship requires a crew of twenty, all of whom use a standard action each round to help control the ship. Reduce the ship's speed by 2 for every 5 missing crew members. At swim speed 0, the ship sails out of control.

Load
Two hundred Medium creatures; five hundred tons of cargo.

Out of Control
An out-of-control greatship moves forward at half speed. At the DM's discretion, it can move in the same direction as a strong wind at up to full speed.

Decks
The greatship has four decks: the topmost open deck (which incudes the upper deck and quarter deck), two middle decks for crew and passengers, and a cargo hold.

Sails
At the DM's discretion, a greatship can take a penalty or bonus to its speed of -4 to +4 depending on the strength and direction of the wind.

Longship
Gargantuan vehicle

HP 300 Space 4 squares by 14 squares Cost 5,000 gp
AC 3; Fortitude 20, Reflex 2
Speed swim 5

Pilot
The pilot must stand at the stern of the longship and operate the rudder.

Crew
In addition to the pilot, a longship requires a crew of three, all of whom use a standard action each round to control the ship. Reduce the ship's speed by 2 squares for each missing crew member. At swim speed 0, the ship sails out of control.

Load
Fifty Medium creatures; three tons of cargo.

Out of Control
An out-of-control longship moves forward at half speed. At the DM's discretion, it can move in the same direction as a strong wind at up to full speed.

Sails
At the DM's discretion, a longship can take a penalty or bonus to its speed of -4 to +4, depending on the strength and direction of the wind.

Ornithopter
Large vehicle

HP 40 Space 2 squares by 2 squares Cost 3,400 gp
AC 4; Fortitude 12, Reflex 4
Speed fly 5

Pilot
The pilot must work the ornithopter's control stick with both hands.

Load
One Medium creature; 100 pounds of cargo.

Out of Control
An out-of-control ornithopter comes to a stop at the beginning of its turn. This ends its horizontal movement, but its wings initially prevent it from falling until the end of its next turn. Its pilot can attempt a DC 20 Strength check as a move action to regain control. If the pilot fails, the ornithopter falls to the ground.
An ornithopter falling from a height of more than 100 squares does not impact the ground until the end of its second turn, granting the pilot a second turn to attempt to regain control.

Pinnace
Gargantuan vehicle

HP 250 Space 2 squares by 6 squares Cost 1,800 gp
AC 2; Fortitude 20, Reflex 2
Speed swim 8

Pilot
The pilot must stand at the ship's wheel, typically at the rear of the topmost deck.

Crew
In addition to the pilot, a pinnace requires a crew of four, all of whom use a standard action each round to help control the ship. Reduce the ship's speed by 2 squares for each missing crew member. At swim speed 0, the ship sails out of control.

Load
Twenty Medium creatures; thirty tons of cargo.

Out of Control
An out-of-control pinnace moves forward at half speed. At the DM's discretion, it can move in the same direction as a strong wind at up to full speed.

Decks
The pinnace has three decks: the topmost open deck, a middle deck for crew and passengers, and a cargo hold.

Sails
At the DM's discretion, a pinnace can take a penalty or bonus to its speed of -4 to +4, depending on the strength and direction of the wind.

Wagon
Large vehicle

HP 100 Space 2 squares by 2 squares Cost 20 gp
AC 3; Fortitude 10, Reflex 3
Speed creature's speed - 4

Creature-Drawn
A wagon is typically pulled by two Large creatures or one Huge creature. The wagon takes an additional -2 penalty to its speed if only one Large creature pulls it. A wagon built to accommodate a team of four Large creatures gains an additional 2 squares of movement when drawn by all four creatures.

Driver
A wagon's driver sits at the front of the wagon. The rider must hold the reins in at least one hand or else the wagon goes out of control.

Load
Four Medium creatures; four tons of cargo.

Out of Control
An out-of-control wagon comes to a stop at the beginning of its turn. At the DM's discretion, the wagon might continue in a random direction if the creatures that pull it are panicked or attacked.

Cover
An uncovered wagon provides cover to its passengers and driver. A covered wagon or carriage provides superior cover to passengers inside it.

Vehicle Descriptions

Game statistics for these vehicles are presented above.

Apparatus of Kwalish: This vehicle resembles a huge metal lobster. Kwalish, a wizard skilled in architecture and arcane engineering, built the original apparatus to explore the ocean depths and establish ties with sentient aquatic races.

A hatch situated beneath the apparatus's tail opens into its hollow central torso. This space holds two chairs for a driver and a passenger. The apparatus is propelled magically through water of any depth or current. It can traverse the swiftest rivers and descend to the depths of the ocean floor.

Airship: This vessel floats above the ground, held aloft by a balloon filled with magic gas. The balloon sits within a wooden or metal frame, beneath which is a boat-shaped cabin that holds the crew, the passengers, and the cargo.

Although most airships are powered a magic propeller, some resemble sailing ships and are driven by magically created winds. An airship requires a crew of five (in addition to the pilot) to fly effectively. Including the gas balloon, this vessel is 8 squares long, 4 squares wide, and 6 squares tall.

Chariot: This two-wheeled conveyance is designed for combat and typically drawn by horses. A light chariot carries a single driver and is pulled by one creature. A heavy chariot can carry up to three passengers plus a driver, and it is pulled by two creatures.

Greatship: This enormous ship has four masts and can carry up to two hundred Medium creatures. Greatships are often used in war to carry soldiers. In addition to the pilot, it requires a crew of twenty to sail effectively. The vessel is 20 squares long and 8 squares wide, and it has a deck that rises 4 squares above the waterline.

Longship: This single-mast ship has a shallow draft, allowing it to travel up rivers or onto beaches. In addition to the pilot, it needs a crew of three to sail effectively. The vessel is 14 squares long and 4 squares wide, and it has a deck that rises 1 square above the waterline.

Ornithopter: This magical flying craft was designed by dwarves and is used for reconnaissance and solo travel. Its flapping wings provide both lift and steering.

Pinnace: This two-mast ship functions equally well close to shore and on the high seas. In addition to the pilot, it requires a crew of four to sail effectively. The vessel is 6 squares long and 2 squares wide, and it has a deck that rises 2 squares above the waterline.

Wagon: The most common vehicle used for transporting goods overland, a wagon is typically pulled by two horses. They can have open or closed tops. A carriage is a wagon with a self-contained passenger cabin.

Getting There Is Half the Fun

The primary purpose of most vehicles and mounts is to allow a party to move from place to place. However, the PCs' travel plans can also provide a way to bring the game setting to life. Characters on their way to an ancient mountain keep might seek to borrow or buy horses from a nearby clan of elves. Instead, the elves might offer them use of several ornithopters to help the characters ascend the steep slopes. If the PCs need to reach an underwater ruin, having to procure riding sharks or an apparatus of Kwalish makes for a colorful mini-quest and offers the promise of dynamic, underwater battles.

Larger vehicles can serve as a base of operations, or they can be used as adventure locations. A sailing ship or an airship under attack makes for an exciting encounter. The PCs might have to repel invaders even as others work to keep the vessel from careening out of control. A fight on board a greatship might span several decks and half a dozen different encounters.

Alchemy

The crafting of magic items is an expensive endeavor. For those unwilling or unable to devote the resources to crafting magic items, alchemy provides a powerful alternative. A ranger might use alchemy to craft a poultice that aids an ally's healing. A rogue can create an alchemical chalk to destroy a lock beyond the limits of his Thievery skill. A cleric can use alchemy to make his or her weapons more potent against insubstantial creatures.

Magic is unnecessary to create alchemical items, but arcane ingredients are required. These items are rare and expensive, so alchemists commonly have adventuring backgrounds.

Applying an alchemical substance or administering an alchemical item is a standard action. Imbibing an alchemical substance or drawing an alchemical item out of your pack is a minor action.

Using Alchemy

The process of creating alchemical items is similar to the process of casting rituals (see Chapter 10 of the Player's Handbook). As with casting rituals, a character using alchemy must first take a special feat that allows them to understand and use alchemical formulas.

Alchemist

Heroic Tier

Benefit: You can make alchemical items of your level or lower. You must have the correct formula and an appropriate skill.

Special: If you receive the Ritual Caster feat as a class feature, you can take the Alchemist feat instead.

Gaining and Using Alchemical Formulas

Alchemical formulas are like rituals; they are usually written down in a book or on a scroll. Unlike rituals, though, formulas are nonmagical and recorded with normal materials. As a result, alchemical formulas are generally less expensive than rituals. They also cannot be performed from a scroll like rituals. A character wishing to use a formula must buy the formula and learn it or else pay someone to teach it to him or her (the same market price).

Alchemical formulas have a cost and creation time that the character creating an alchemical item must spend. The components used in alchemical formulas are the same as those used for rituals (PH 300).

Category

Each alchemical formula has a category that defines the type of item it creates.

Oil: Oils are applied to items (typically weapons), granting them temporary properties or powers.

Volatile: An item of this type explodes or expands when shattered or broken, often dealing damage by the creation of a specific type of energy, such as acid, cold, fire, or lightning.

Curative: These items aid in healing or in overcoming adverse and debilitating effects.

Poison: A poison is a toxin that hampers or harms a creature.

Other: Some items create miscellaneous effects that don't fall into the other alchemical categories.

Modifications

Some alchemical items can be modified to change some aspect of the item's function, such as turning an item that is normally thrown into ammunition. Changing an item's function typically increases the item's level and cost.

Consumable

Like potions and elixirs, alchemical items are consumable items. They contain one-time powers that are expended when you use them, rendering the items inert or destroying them.

Alchemical Items

The items presented below represent but a sampling of the kinds of things alchemists can craft when they put their minds to it.

Alchemical Silver

Level: 5
Category: Oil
Time: 15 minutes
Component Cost: See below
Market Price: 200 gp
Key Skill: Nature, Religion, or Thievery (no check)

You can apply this silver liquid to a weapon to give it the silvered property, allowing the wielder to take advantage of certain creatures' weaknesses.

Alchemical Silver Level 5+

This shimmering liquid clings to a weapon, giving it the appearance of brightly polished silver.

Lvl 5 50 gp
Lvl 15 1,000 gp
Lvl 25 25,000 gp

Alchemical Item

Power (Consumable): Standard Action. Your weapon or one group of ammunition (30 arrows, 10 crossbow bolts, 20 sling bullets, or 5 shuriken) attacks as a silvered weapon until the end of the encounter or for the next 5 minutes. Alchemical silver can be applied to nonmagical weapons and to magic weapons of 14th level or lower.
Level 15: The weapon deals an extra 1d6 damage against creatures that are vulnerable to silvered weapons or to creatures that suffer other detrimental effects from silvered weapons, such as a werewolf's inability to regenerate. Alchemical silver can be applied to nonmagical weapons and to magic weapons of 24th level or lower.
Level 25: The weapon deals an extra 2d6 damage against creatures that are vulnerable to silvered weapons or to creatures that suffer other detrimental effects from silvered weapons, such as a werewolf's inability to regenerate. Alchemical silver can be applied to nonmagical weapons and to magic weapons of 34th level or lower.

1. Alchemist's acid; 2. Alchemist's frost; 3. Alchemist's fire

Alchemist's Acid

Level: 1
Category: Volatile
Time: 30 minutes
Component Cost: See below
Market Price: 70 gp
Key Skill: Arcana or Thievery (no check)

The glass vial containing alchemist's acid can withstand the corrosive liquid but easily shatters upon impact. The volatile acid explodes when the flask is broken, corroding anything in its way.

DAVID GRIFFITH, FRANZ VOHWINKEL

Alchemist's Acid — Level 1+

When shattered, this glass vial releases a spray of acid.

Alchemical Item

Power (Consumable ✦ Thunder): Standard Action. Make an attack: Area burst 1 within 10; +8 vs. Fortitude; on a hit, the target takes 1d4 thunder damage, is pushed 1 square from the center of the burst, and deafened (save ends).
Level 10: +13 vs. Fortitude.
Level 15: +18 vs. Fortitude; 2d4 thunder damage.
Level 20: +23 vs. Fortitude; 2d4 thunder damage.
Level 25: +28 vs. Fortitude; 3d4 thunder damage.
Level 30: +33 vs. Fortitude; 3d4 thunder damage.

Tracking Dust

Level: 4
Category: Other
Time: 1 hour
Component Cost: See below
Market Price: 160 gp
Key Skill: Nature or Thievery (no check)

This fine dust is typically applied in areas where you are searching for existing tracks or where you want to detect a creature passing through at a later time.

Tracking Dust — Level 4+

The fine grains of this silvery powder can reveal the subtlest tracks.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 4 | 40 gp | Lvl 19 | 4,200 gp |
| Lvl 9 | 160 gp | Lvl 24 | 21,000 gp |
| Lvl 14 | 800 gp | Lvl 29 | 105,000 gp |

Alchemical Item

Power (Consumable ✦ Zone): Standard Action. The tracking dust creates a zone of 5 contiguous squares. In areas where the dust is spread, Perception checks to track can be made with a total +7 bonus; use this modifier instead of your normal check modifiers. Tracking dust can be detected with a DC 20 Perception check, and its effects lasts for 1 hour.
Level 9: +9 bonus.
Level 14: +12 bonus.
Level 19: +14 bonus.
Level 24: +17 bonus.
Level 29: +19 bonus.

Universal Solvent

Level: 10
Category: Other
Time: 30 minutes
Component Cost: See below
Market Price: 600 gp
Key Skill: Arcana or Thievery (no check)

This transparent liquid has an odor similar to that of butterscotch. It is often stored near vials of sovereign glue (see above).

Universal Solvent — Level 10

This clear solution can dissolve almost any adhesive.

Alchemical Item 200 gp

Power (Consumable): Standard Action. Apply this substance to a creature or object. Destroy any type of mundane bonding agent (including sovereign glue) affecting you, an object in your possession, or in a square adjacent to you.
Universal solvent allows a creature immobilized by mundane agents such as a kobold slinger's gluepot or an aboleth slime mage's slime burst power to immediately save against the effect. It does not affect the aftereffects of those substances (such as slime burst's slow effect), nor does it have any affect on creatures immobilized by other effects (for example, a ghoul's claw attack).

CHAPTER 2

Magic Items

RANDY GALLEGOS

From the time of the clash between the gods and the primordials, magic has been funneled into items. This practice started as a way to store magical effects for later use in battle. That practice has continued through the modern age, producing objects of mundane pleasure and fantastic prowess.

This chapter is a catalog of treasures, for purchase or reward. In it, you'll find:

✦ Armor: Magic, materials, and armorcraft combine to bring you more choices for saving your skin.

✦ Weapons: Expand your armory with a host of new simple, military, and superior weapons.

✦ Implements: Holy symbols, orbs, rods, staffs, and wands—each with its own twist.

✦ Arm Slot Items: Bracers and shields to bolster your defenses. Some give you new attack options, too.

✦ Companion Items: Your companion can wear a magic item to enhance its abilities and strengthen its bond with you.

✦ Feet Slot Items: When moving, or not, is key, a solution might be as easy as changing your shoes.

✦ Hand Slot Items: It's your hands you depend on combat. Help them help you.

✦ Head Slot Items: A host of new headgear to boost your skills, perception, and reactions.

✦ Neck Slot Items: Merely shoring up your defenses isn't enough. Flashier magic goes on your neck.

✦ Rings: Who knows what a magic ring might do? The most unpredictable magic lives in magic rings.

✦ Wondrous Items: Magic tools and bizarre objects reward ingenious use and prepare you for anything.

✦ Consumables: Sometimes a single use is all you need. Elixirs, reagents, and more are catalogued here.

ARMOR

Weapons will not cut me, spells will not sear me. Behind this coat of steel, I am invincible.

Each piece of armor, from the heaviest plate armor to the thinnest of robes, has a level and a corresponding enhancement bonus. The enhancement bonus represents the magical defenses of the armor. It could be an invisible field that deflects attacks, or an enchantment that fortifies the armor's material.

An armor's enhancement bonus scales with level, enabling adventurers to face deadlier threats as they advance. At the highest levels, this bonus represents the thin line between being mauled by a red dragon and slipping safely out of its grasp.

Addergrease Armor — Level 3+

The worn leather of this armor gleams with toxic grease.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 3 | +1 | 680 gp | Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp |
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Armor: Leather, Hide

Enhancement: AC

Power (Daily ✦ Poison): Immediate Reaction. Use this power when an enemy misses you with a melee attack. The attacker takes ongoing 5 poison damage (save ends), and you shift a number of squares equal to this item's enhancement bonus.

Level 13 or 18: Ongoing 10 poison.

Level 23 or 29: Ongoing 15 poison.

Agile Armor — Level 5+

This armor's flexibility allows its wearer much greater freedom of movement.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 5 | +1 | 1,000 gp | Lvl 20 | +4 | 125,000 gp |
| Lvl 10 | +2 | 5,000 gp | Lvl 25 | +5 | 625,000 gp |
| Lvl 15 | +3 | 25,000 gp | Lvl 30 | +6 | 3,125,000 gp |

Armor: Chain, Scale, Plate

Enhancement: AC

Property: While you are not bloodied, you gain an item bonus to AC equal to your Dexterity modifier up to a maximum of +1.

Level 15 or 20: Maximum of +2.

Level 25 or 30: Maximum of +3.

Aqueous Armor — Level 14+

Cold to the touch, this armor always appears damp. A person wearing the armor can transform into water, but at a cost.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 14 | +3 | 21,000 gp | Lvl 24 | +5 | 525,000 gp |
| Lvl 19 | +4 | 105,000 gp | Lvl 29 | +6 | 2,625,000 gp |

Armor: Cloth, Leather, Hide

Enhancement: AC

Power (Daily ✦ Polymorph): Move Action. You transform into a flood of rushing water and move up to your speed. You can move through small cracks and tight spaces with no difficulty. You automatically escape a grab or free yourself from bonds or shackles. You can only take move actions until you return to your natural form, which you can do as a free action. While in watery form, you take 5 damage at the start of each of your turns until you return to your natural form.

Armor of Attraction — Level 14+

This stout armor can attract projectiles, allowing you to better protect your allies.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 14 | +3 | 21,000 gp | Lvl 24 | +5 | 525,000 gp |
| Lvl 19 | +4 | 105,000 gp | Lvl 29 | +6 | 2,625,000 gp |

Armor: Scale, Plate

Enhancement: AC

Power (Encounter): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when an attack against AC or Reflex targets an adjacent ally, or when a ranged attack against an ally within 5 squares of you targets AC or Reflex. You become the target of the attack.

Armor of Cleansing — Level 3+

The exterior of this armor is covered with symbols of healing, while the interior has many silken bands that cradle you comfortably and move to ease your suffering.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 3 | +1 | 680 gp | Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp |
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Armor: Any

Enhancement: AC

Property: Add a +2 item bonus to your saving throws against ongoing damage.

Armor of Durability — Level 4+

When your allies rely on you to keep fighting, this armor helps keep you in the fray.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 4 | +1 | 840 gp | Lvl 19 | +4 | 105,000 gp |
| Lvl 9 | +2 | 4,200 gp | Lvl 24 | +5 | 525,000 gp |
| Lvl 14 | +3 | 21,000 gp | Lvl 29 | +6 | 2,625,000 gp |

Armor: Hide, Chain, Scale, Plate

Enhancement: AC

Property: When you spend a healing surge to regain hit points, you regain additional hit points equal to the armor's enhancement bonus.

THOMAS DENMARK, RANDY GALLEGOS

Armor of Exploits — Level 3+

The arcane symbols etched into this armor's surface glow brightly as the item unleashes a previously stored power.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 3 | +1 | 680 gp | Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp |
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Armor: Any

Enhancement: AC

Property: During a short rest or an extended rest, you can store one at-will or encounter martial power in your armor that you or an ally has. You can have only one power stored in the armor at a time.

Armor of exploits cannot store a power of higher level than the armor. You cannot use a power stored in the armor if the power's level is higher than yours.

Once the power is used, another power must be stored in the armor before it can be used again. If a new power is stored before the old one is used, the old exploit is lost.

Power (Daily): Standard Action. Use the power stored in your armor. If it is an encounter power, you must spend 1 action point to use it.

Armor of Negation — Level 15+

A wearer of this armor need not fear suffering the adverse effects of an enemy's missed attack.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 15 | +3 | 25,000 gp | Lvl 25 | +5 | 625,000 gp |
| Lvl 20 | +4 | 125,000 gp | Lvl 30 | +6 | 3,125,000 gp |

Armor: Any

Enhancement: AC

Power (Daily): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when an attack misses you and deals half damage. You take no damage.

Armor of Night — Level 14+

In this armor, you can drown the light and conceal yourself in roiling clouds of shadow.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 14 | +3 | 21,000 gp | Lvl 24 | +5 | 525,000 gp |
| Lvl 19 | +4 | 105,000 gp | Lvl 29 | +6 | 2,625,000 gp |

Armor: Cloth, Leather

Enhancement: AC

Property: Resist 10 radiant.

Level 24 or 29: Resist 15 radiant.

Power (Encounter): Minor Action. Until the end of your next turn, you gain concealment and no creatures can make opportunity attacks against you.

Armor of Resistance — Level 2+

Special wards in this armor provide extra resistance.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 2 | +1 | 520 gp | Lvl 17 | +4 | 65,000 gp |
| Lvl 7 | +2 | 2,600 gp | Lvl 22 | +5 | 325,000 gp |
| Lvl 12 | +3 | 13,000 gp | Lvl 27 | +6 | 1,625,000 gp |

Armor: Any

Enhancement: AC

Property: Resist 5 to a damage type chosen from the following list at the time the armor is created: acid, cold, fire, force, lightning, necrotic, poison, psychic, thunder.

Level 12 or 17: Resist 10.

Level 22 or 27: Resist 15.

Armor of Sacrifice — Level 5+

These plain robes offer no apparent defensive value, yet they aid your allies when they suffer.

| Lvl 12 | +3 | 13,000 gp | Lvl 27 | +6 | 1,625,000 gp |

Armor: Any

Enhancement: AC

Property: When you spend an action point, you gain a +1 item bonus to all attack rolls and defenses until the end of your next turn.

Power (Daily): Free Action. Spend an action point. You do not gain the normal extra action. Instead, you regain the use of one expended daily power.

Voidcrystal Armor — Level 14+

Black as a starless night, this armor destabilizes weapons it deflects.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 14 | +3 | 21,000 gp | Lvl 24 | +5 | 525,000 gp |
| Lvl 19 | +4 | 105,000 gp | Lvl 29 | +6 | 2,625,000 gp |

Armor: Any

Enhancement: AC

Power (Daily): Immediate Reaction. Use this power when a melee attack misses your AC. The weapon used to attack you deals only half damage (save ends). If the attacker was unarmed (using a fist or claws, for example), the attacker instead takes ongoing 10 damage (save ends).
Level 24 or 29: Ongoing 15 damage.

Warsheath Armor — Level 10+

This armor ensures that its wearer is surrounded not just by protective layers, but also by eager foes

Armor: Cloth

Enhancement: AC

Property: Whenever an undead creature hits you with a melee attack, it takes radiant damage equal to the enhancement bonus of this armor.

WEAPONS

The line that separates a novice from a skilled weapon master is defined by a simple realization—that the weapon and body are one. Treat your weapon as an extension of your body, and nothing can stop you.

Weapons are perhaps the most utilitarian piece of gear that an adventurer carries. A dwarf paladin might use his +3 righteous warhammer to unleash holy retribution upon a lich, or a tiefling rogue might sneak up behind a pair of marut guards and quietly dispatch them with her +6 assassin's short sword. Each weapon represents a different tool in an adventurer's hand—and a very potent tool once magic is added.

Like enchanted armors, a magic weapon has an enhancement bonus that corresponds to the item's level. Some magic weapons are available at the lowest levels, with improved versions of the weapon available every five levels up until the highest levels. Other weapons are of such power that they are not even available until a PC has achieved epic greatness.

Weapon Properties

Many weapons have properties that provide a constant benefit. To gain the benefit of a weapon's property, you must be wielding the weapon. Unless specified otherwise, a property affects only the weapon to which it's attached. For example, a +2 cunning dagger, which bestows a –2 penalty to an enemy's saving throws against your weapon powers, affects only powers that are delivered using that weapon. You couldn't hold the weapon in your off-hand and gain the benefit of the property on powers delivered using a main weapon.

Weapon: Any melee
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus
Power (At-Will): Free Action. Use this power before making a melee attack on your turn. You take damage up to a maximum of the weapon's enhancement bonus (a +3 weapon deals up to 3 damage to its wielder). This damage cannot be reduced or prevented in any way. If you hit, increase the damage your target takes by double the amount of damage you took, triple if you are wielding the weapon in two hands.

Bloodiron Weapon — Level 13+

Forged from iron tainted with the ichor of devils, this weapon is cruel.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Weapon: Any
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d10 damage per plus
Property: When you deal extra critical hit damage with this weapon, deal the extra critical hit damage to the target again at the start of your next turn.

Bloodthirsty Weapon — Level 13+

This weapon drinks the blood of its victims.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Weapon: Any melee
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d10 damage per plus
Property: Gain a +1 item bonus to attack rolls against bloodied targets, and add an item bonus equal to the enhancement bonus of this weapon to damage rolls against bloodied targets.

Brilliant Energy Weapon — Level 25+

Infused with light, this weapon passes through armor and into flesh.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 25 | +5 | 625,000 gp | Lvl 30 | +6 | 3,125,000 gp |

Weapon: Any
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d10 radiant damage per plus
Property: This weapon gives off bright light in a 5-square radius unless covered and sheathed.
Power (At-Will ✦ Radiant): Free Action. All damage dealt by this weapon is radiant damage. Another free action returns the damage to normal.
Power (Encounter ✦ Radiant): Free Action. Use this power when making an attack that targets AC. The attack targets Reflex defense instead. All damage from the attack is radiant damage.

Bronzewood Weapon — Level 8+

Creatures of the Shadowfell react poorly to this hard, red-brown wood.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |
| Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp | | | |

Weapon: Any melee
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus, or +1d10 damage per plus against shadow creatures.
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you hit with the weapon. The target is outlined by a golden nimbus and does not gain the benefit of concealment or cover (save ends). The target benefits from total concealment or superior cover as normal. If the target is a creature that has the shadow origin, then it also takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls (ends on same save as above).

Chaos Weave Weapon — Level 13+

Forged from the quintessence of the Elemental Chaos, this weapon pierces demons' defenses.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Weapon: Any
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus, or +1d12 damage per plus against a creature that has variable resistance.
Property: Attacks with this weapon ignore an amount of variable resistance equal to twice the weapon's enhancement bonus.

Cloaked Weapon — Level 8+

This naturally invisible weapon becomes visible when it hits.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |
| Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp | | | |

Weapon: Any

Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls

Critical: +1d6 damage per plus

Property: This weapon is invisible to everyone but the creature possessing it. As the wielder of the weapon, you gain combat advantage with melee attacks made using the weapon until you successfully hit, at which point the weapon becomes visible to everyone.

A cloaked weapon turns invisible again after being sheathed for a short rest (5 minutes).

Cold Iron Weapon — Level 8+

Denizens of the Feywild loathe this weapon forged from the coldest, darkest iron.

| | | | | | |

Moradin's Weapon Level 19+

This hammer carries the weight of the earth and gives a follower of Moradin the concussive power to knock down his or her enemies.

Lvl 19 +4 105,000 gp Lvl 29 +6 2,625,000 gp
Lvl 24 +5 525,000 gp

Weapon: Hammer
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d12 damage per plus
Property: If you worship Moradin, you can use this weapon as a holy symbol. It adds its enhancement bonus (but not its proficiency bonus) to attack rolls and damage rolls when used in this manner. If you do not worship Moradin, you do not benefit from this weapon's property and cannot activate this weapon's power.

Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you hit with the weapon. Make a secondary attack: Area burst 2 centered on the creature you hit; targets enemies only; Strength or Constitution vs. Fortitude (apply a bonus to the attack roll equal to the weapon's enhancement bonus); on a hit, the target takes 2d6 + Constitution modifier damage and is knocked prone. This secondary attack does not provoke opportunity attacks.
Level 29: 3d6 + Constitution modifier damage.

Necrotic Weapon Level 13+

The wounds inflicted by this weapon also drain an enemy's vitality.

Lvl 13 +3 17,000 gp Lvl 23 +5 425,000 gp
Lvl 18 +4 85,000 gp Lvl 28 +6 2,125,000 gp

Weapon: Hammer

Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls

Critical: +1d6 damage per plus

Property: If you are a dwarf, this hammer functions as a warlock implement for you (but do not apply the weapon's proficiency bonus to attack rolls for warlock powers).

Property: When you hit a target affected by your Warlock's Curse with this weapon, you deal your extra curse damage against that target.

Pact Sword — Level 2+

Eladrin warlocks favor these sinister longswords for their ability to combine weapon and magic and for the power to control an enemy's position.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 2 | +1 | 520 gp | Lvl 17 | +4 | 65,000 gp |
| Lvl 7 | +2 | 2,600 gp | Lvl 22 | +5 | 325,000 gp |
| Lvl 12 | +3 | 13,000 gp | Lvl 27 | +6 | 1,625,000 gp |

Weapon: Longsword

Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls

Critical: +1d6 damage per plus

Property: If you are an eladrin, this longsword functions as a warlock implement for you (but do not apply the weapon's proficiency bonus to attack rolls for warlock powers).

Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): Free Action. Use this power when you hit a target affected by your Warlock's Curse with this weapon. Teleport the target a number of squares equal to 1 + this weapon's enhancement bonus.

Paired Weapon — Level 3+

One weapon suddenly becomes two with startling speed.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 3 | +1 | 680 gp | Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp |
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |

HOLY SYMBOLS

Channeled through this holy symbol, my faith is a weapon to fear.

Holy symbols come in a variety of shapes and designs, and champions of the gods use them as implements in battle. In the hand of clerics and paladins, they are as much weapons as swords are to fighters.

Sometimes a holy symbol is keyed to a specific deity and can be used only by worshipers of that deity. If the gods in your game world are different from the ones featured in the Player's Handbook, feel free to tweak the names and prerequisites of these holy symbols to serve the needs of your home campaign.

ORBS

The orb held many secrets and great power, yet in those unfathomable depths, one could find madness.

These arcane implements come in a variety of materials and shades, yet all share one defining feature—their spherical shape. Their powers, however, are diverse. An orb might strike terror into the target, or it might overcome the target with a fit of insanity. On the other hand, an orb might enhance the effectiveness of a wielder's psychic powers or allow him or her to see a place that is otherwise beyond sight.

Orb of Arcane Generosity — Level 24+

Not all wizards are selfish, power hungry curmudgeons. This orb best serves those gifted with a more generous spirit.

Lvl 24 +5 525,000 gp  Lvl 29 +6 2,625,000 gp
Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d8 damage per plus

Power (Daily ✦ Healing): Free Action. Use this power when you use an arcane utility power. All allies within 5 squares of you can spend a healing surge and regain an additional 3d6 hit points.

Orb of Augmented Stasis — Level 12+

When you use this orb to hold a foe in place, that foe also suffers a mental block that limits his actions.

Lvl 12 +3 13,000 gp  Lvl 22 +5 325,000 gp
Lvl 17 +4 65,000 gp  Lvl 27 +6 1,625,000 gp
Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus

Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when your attack with this implement immobilizes a target. As long as it is immobilized, the target is also dazed.

Orb of Coercive Dementia — Level 19+

With the use of this orb, a spellcaster sends his enemy spiraling into confusion, depriving the creature of its most powerful attack.

Lvl 19 +4 105,000 gp  Lvl 29 +6 2,625,000 gp
Lvl 24 +5 525,000 gp
Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d8 damage per plus

Power (Daily): Standard Action. Make an attack: Ranged 5; Intelligence vs. Will (add the orb's enhancement bonus to the attack roll); on a hit, the target loses one of its unexpended powers for the rest of the encounter. The lost power is the one with the slowest recharge (daily is slower than encounter, encounter is slower than recharge 6, and so on). If multiple powers qualify as having the slowest recharge, randomly determine which one is lost. If the target has no unexpended powers that are not at-will, you regain the use of this power.

Orb of Crimson Commitment — Level 14+

This orb glows a bright red when in use, bestowing power and luck to your attack.

Lvl 14 +3 21,000 gp  Lvl 24 +5 525,000 gp
Lvl 19 +4 105,000 gp  Lvl 29 +6 2,625,000 gp
Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus, or +1d12 damage per plus while you are bloodied.

Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when an attack with this orb misses. Spend a healing surge to reroll the attack, adding a +5 power bonus to the attack roll. You do not regain hit points by spending the healing surge.

Orb of Crystalline Terror — Level 8+

The screaming faces of past victims roil within this dread orb, striking fear into your enemy's heart.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |

| Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp | | | |

Implement (Orb)

Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls

Critical: +1d6 damage per plus, or +1d8 damage per plus if the attack has the fear keyword.

Power (Daily ✦ Fear): Free Action. Use this power when an attack with this orb hits the target's Will defense. The target takes a -2 penalty to all defenses (save ends).

Orb of Debilitating Languor — Level 2+

This shadowy orb leaves your enemy enfeebled.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 2 | +1 | 520 gp | Lvl 17 | +4 | 65,000 gp |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when a creature makes a save against one of your powers. It rerolls its saving throw and must take the new result.

Orb of Indefatigable Concentration — Level 13+

The wielder of this crystalline orb can temporarily transfers a fraction of his consciousness into it, allowing him to focus his attention elsewhere.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus
Power (Daily): Free Action. When you use an arcane power that can be sustained by minor actions, you can sustain the power without spending minor actions to do so for a number of turns equal to the orb's enhancement bonus. You can continue to sustain the power normally after the orb stops.

Orb of Inescapable Consequences — Level 8+

With this orb in hand, your powers can have their intended effects even if your accuracy is lacking.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |
| Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp | | | |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when an attack with this orb misses its target. The target is affected by any conditions or effects of the attack as if the attack had hit.

THOMAS DENMARK

Orb of Insurmountable Force — Level 3+

The repulsive force emanating from this orb makes it hard to grasp.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 3 | +1 | 680 gp | Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp |
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 force damage per plus
Power (Encounter): Free Action. Use this power when you use an arcane attack power with this orb. If the attack is successful, you can push the target a number of squares equal to the enhancement bonus of the orb.

Orb of Judicious Conjuration — Level 3+

This orb ensures the longevity of your conjuration spells and also allows you to sustain effects more easily.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 3 | +1 | 680 gp | Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp |
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus
Property: Add the enhancement bonus of this implement to your Will defense when dispel magic is used against one of your conjuration powers.
Power (Encounter): Free Action. Use this power on your turn to sustain a power that would otherwise require a minor action to do so.

Orb of Karmic Resonance — Level 13+

With this orb, you steal good luck from enemies and send them ill fortune.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when an enemy succeeds on a saving throw. Choose one of the following effects:
✦ End an effect or condition currently affecting you or one ally within 5 squares of you.
✦ The enemy's saving throw fails instead of succeeding.
Regardless of your choice, your next saving throw made in this encounter also fails.

Orb of Mental Dominion — Level 6+

A spellcaster channeling his mind through this orb gains mental prowess over foes, forcing them to relive the effects of a spell.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 6 | +2 | 1,800 gp | Lvl 21 | +5 | 225,000 gp |
| Lvl 11 | +3 | 9,000 gp | Lvl 26 | +6 | 1,125,000 gp |
| Lvl 16 | +4 | 45,000 gp | | | |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 psychic damage per plus
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when an attack with this orb succeeds against the target's Will defense. When the target makes a saving throw against an effect from that attack, the target must roll twice and take the lower result.

Orb of Mighty Retort — Level 15+

Your enemies suffer dire consequences for daring to attack you while you wield this orb.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 15 | +3 | 25,000 gp | Lvl 25 | +5 | 625,000 gp |
| Lvl 20 | +4 | 125,000 gp | Lvl 30 | +6 | 3,125,000 gp |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus
Power (Daily): Immediate Reaction. Use this power when you take damage from an attack. You can use an at-will or encounter attack power, as long as the attack includes your attacker as a target. If you use an encounter power, you're dazed until the end of your next turn.

Orb of Revenant Magic — Level 17+

To the wielder of this orb, failure is not a concern.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 17 | +4 | 65,000 gp | Lvl 27 | +6 | 1,625,000 gp |
| Lvl 22 | +5 | 325,000 gp | | | |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d8 damage per plus
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you hit no targets with a power that has an effect on a miss. That effect does not take place. Instead, you regain use of the power that missed.

Orb of Spatial Contortion — Level 7+

The crystal shell of this orb refracts your spell energy, scattering it in different directions.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 7 | +2 | 2,600 gp | Lvl 22 | +5 | 325,000 gp |
| Lvl 12 | +3 | 13,000 gp | Lvl 27 | +6 | 1,625,000 gp |
| Lvl 17 | +4 | 65,000 gp | | | |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you use a close blast power. It becomes a close burst of a size 2 smaller than the blast (for example, a close blast 5 becomes a close burst 3).

Orb of Sudden Insanity — Level 12+

This orb holds a grip on your enemy's sanity, forcing him to act in uncharacteristic ways.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 12 | +3 | 13,000 gp | Lvl 22 | +5 | 325,000 gp |
| Lvl 17 | +4 | 65,000 gp | Lvl 27 | +6 | 1,625,000 gp |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 psychic damage per plus
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you deal psychic damage with this orb. The target makes a melee basic attack against an adjacent creature of your choice as a free action.

Orb of Sweet Sanctuary — Level 3+

The silvery sheen of this orb grows to surround you at your will, warding off danger.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 3 | +1 | 680 gp | Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp |
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus
Power (Daily): Standard Action. Add 5 + the enhancement bonus of the orb to your defenses until the end of your next turn.

Orb of the Usurper — Level 23+

Thanks to this orb, what at first was an attack on a foe's mind becomes a crushing grip upon the foe's freedom of will.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d10 psychic damage per plus
Power (Daily ✦ Charm): Free Action. Use this power when you score a critical hit with an attack with this implement that targets Will defense. You do not deal extra damage for the critical hit; instead, you dominate the target until the end of your next turn.

Orb of Ultimate Imposition — Level 3+

The will of this orb's wielder imposes great force on an enemy, crippling his power.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 3 | +1 | 680 gp | Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp |
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you use your orb of imposition class feature. Increase the penalty bestowed on your target by an amount equal to the enhancement bonus of this orb.

Orb of Unintended Solitude — Level 18+

Gazing into this dark sphere hints at the nature of the mysterious location into which its victims are cast.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |
| Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp | | | |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d8 damage per plus
Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): Free Action. Use this power when you affect a target with a pull, push, slide, or teleport effect. Instead of being pulled, pushed, slid, or teleported, it is cast into an empty realm of nothingness. At the end of the target's next turn, it reappears in the space it left or, if that space is not vacant, in the nearest unoccupied space.

Orb of Unlucky Exchanges — Level 3+

This orb offers relief to an ally and unleashes terrible retribution upon an enemy.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 3 | +1 | 680 gp | Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp |
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you hit a target with an attack with this implement. One effect affecting you or an ally within 5 squares of you ends. The target gains that effect with the same duration.

CHRIS SEAMAN

Orb of Weakness Intensified — Level 15+

Swirling with purple energy, this orb laces a spell with a crippling effect that debilitates your foe.

Lvl 15 +3 25,000 gp | Lvl 25 +5 625,000 gp
Lvl 20 +4 125,000 gp | Lvl 30 +6 3,125,000 gp
Implement (Orb)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d8 damage per plus
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you hit a target with this orb. The target is weakened (save ends).

RODS

Forged of strange eldritch energies, rods deliver unto their enemies curses that bite into the soul.

Rods are commonly associated with warlocks, and several of the rods described herein are especially potent in the hands of a warlock.

Some rods vary in powers according to the warlock pact with which they're associated. Although a warlock need not choose a rod that aligns with his or her pact, the power such a rod bestows can be of great benefit and ongoing advantage to the wielder.

Implement (Staff)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus
Property: When you use the mage hand power, you can conjure a number of hands equal to your Wisdom modifier (minimum 1, maximum of 1 + the staff's enhancement bonus). You can sustain all of the hands each round with a single minor action.

Staff of Transposition — Level 14+

A wizard armed with this staff needn't fear catching his allies within range of his most destructive spells.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 14 | +3 | 21,000 gp | Lvl 24 | +5 | 525,000 gp |
| Lvl 19 | +4 | 105,000 gp | Lvl 29 | +6 | 2,625,000 gp |

Implement (Staff)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus
Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): Free Action. Use this power when you use a close or area power. Any allies in the area of effect, rather than being affected by the power, are teleported to the nearest unaffected square of your choice.

Staff of Ultimate Defense — Level 3+

This sturdy wooden staff may not be the favored implement of war wizards, yet many find the safety it offers desirable.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 3 | +1 | 680 gp | Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp |
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Implement (Staff)
Enhancement: Attack rolls and damage rolls
Critical: +1d6 damage per plus
Property: When you use the staff of defense form of the Arcane Implement Mastery class feature, increase the bonus to defense by an amount equal to the enhancement bonus of this staff.

Staff of Unparalleled Vision — Level 4+

ARMS SLOT ITEMS

From the shield, you gain strength. From the bracers, you gain deadliness.

A variety of items might find their way onto an adventurer's arms, but primary among these are shields and bracers.

A set of qualities that pertains to a magic shield can usually be applied to either a light shield or a heavy shield; exceptions are noted. A shield's magical properties are usually defensive; however, some shields allow their wearers to unleash vicious attacks or to gain unusual magical powers.

Bracers, in contrast, provide offensive powers and benefits. A set of bracers on the arms of a ranger or rogue might allow that character to unleash a barrage of attacks or deliver a particularly deadly strike. If a spellcaster can't use a shield, bracers provide an excellent alternative.

Level 18: Use this power when a critical hit would be scored against you or an adjacent ally.

COMPANION SLOT ITEMS

The beastmaster ranger build in the Martial Power supplement has a beast companion, and future classes and builds will also feature such companions.

Although the items in this section are tied to beast companions, all can be repurposed for other kinds of companions using the Transfer Enchantment ritual (see Appendix 1).

COMPANION AND MOUNT SLOT ITEMS

Characters sometimes have trained beasts that fight alongside them, serving either as companions, mounts, or both. As your character advances in level and acquires treasure, you may want to give some thought to equipping your companion or mount with some magic gear of its own.

A creature serving as your companion or mount has a single magic item slot that you can activate using your own actions (and not the creature's). A companion that doubles as a mount can use a mount item in place of a companion item, or vice versa.

COMPANION SLOT ITEMS

Level 22: You and your companion swap places if you are within 20 squares of each other.

MOUNT SLOT ITEMS

Some mount slot items affect both mount and rider. For mounts that can carry more than one creature, the rider is the character in control of the mount.

The magic items described in this section are designed for horses, but they can be modified to suit almost any kind of mount. A PC who replaces a mount might also take advantage of the Transfer Enchantment ritual (see Appendix 1) to repurpose an item. Magic items for mounts do not have escalating enhancement bonuses like magic items for characters do.

MOUNT SLOT ITEMS

| Lvl | Name | Price (gp) |
|---|---|---|
| 1 | Impenetrable barding | 360 |
| 2 | Mirrored comparison | 520 |
| 3 | Horseshoes of speed | 680 |
| 3 | Saddle of strength | 680 |
| 4 | Ghost bridle | 840 |
| 5 | Bridle of rapid action | 1,000 |
| 6 | Martyr's saddle | 1,800 |
| 8 | Steadfast saddle | 3,400 |
| 9 | Zephyr horseshoes | 4,200 |
| 11 | Impenetrable barding | 9,000 |

| 15 | Saddle of the nightmare | 25,000 |
| 15 | Saddle of the shark | 25,000 |
| 21 | Impenetrable barding | 225,000 |

Bridle of Rapid Action — Level 5

This fine leather bridle lets you and your mount react more quickly to danger.

Item Slot: Mount 1,000 gp

Power (Encounter): No Action. Use this power at the beginning of an encounter before you roll initiative. The mount you are riding rolls an initiative check using your initiative modifier. If its check is higher than your check, you can use the mount's result in place of your own.

Ghost Bridle — Level 4

This bridle gives a mount a phantasmal appearance and the ability to slip through solid objects.

Item Slot: Mount 840 gp

Property: The mount gains resist 10 necrotic.

Power (Daily): Minor Action. You and your mount gain phasing until the end of your next turn.

Horseshoes of Speed — Level 3

These thin steel horseshoes grant a mount increased speed.

Item Slot: Mount 680 gp

Property: The mount's speed increases by 1 square for all movement modes.

Impenetrable Barding — Level 1+

Through this barding, your heroism imparts a protective aura upon your mount that protects it.

Lvl 1 360 gp Lvl 21 225,000 gp
Lvl 11 9,000 gp

Item Slot: Mount (apply to barding)

Property: While it is ridden, the mount gains resistance to all damage equal to its rider's level, maximum 10.

Level 11: Maximum 20.

Level 21: Maximum 30.

Martyr's Saddle — Level 6

Those who seek to protect their mounts at any cost favor this saddle.

Item Slot: Mount  1,800 gp
Property: The mount gains a +1 item bonus to all defenses.
Power (At-Will): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when an attack would damage the mount you are riding. The mount takes half damage from the attack and you take the remainder. Nothing can reduce or prevent the damage that a rider takes in this way.

Mirrored Caparison — Level 2

This coat contains rows of faceted crystals that protect against wide-ranging attacks.

Item Slot: Mount  520 gp
Property: The mount gains a +1 item bonus to Fortitude, Reflex, and Will defenses.

Saddle of Strength — Level 3

This dyed leather saddle is inset with brass and allows a mount to carry the heaviest loads.

Item Slot: Mount  680 gp
Property: The mount's carrying capacity increases by 50 percent in all categories. For example, a riding horse wearing this saddle would have a new normal load of 356 pounds, a new heavy load of 712 pounds, and a new maximum drag load of 1,781 pounds.

Saddle of the Nightmare — Level 15

This black, twisted leather bridle lets you take advantage of your mount's ability to teleport.

Item Slot: Mount  25,000 gp
Property: When a mount teleports, the rider on the mount can remain mounted and teleport along with the mount even if the mount's movement doesn't normally allow it.

Saddle of the Shark — Level 15

This saddle allows you and your mount to swim and breathe underwater.

Item Slot: Mount  25,000 gp
Property: Your mount gains the ability to breathe water as easily as it breathes air and gains a swim speed equal to its land speed. While mounted, you have the ability to breathe water as you would air, and you speak normally while underwater.

Skystrider Horseshoes — Level 18

A mount wearing these horseshoes can take to the air.

Item Slot: Mount  85,000 gp
Property: The mount gains a fly speed equal to its land speed.

DAVID GRIFFITH

Steadfast Saddle — Level 8

This saddle keeps you mounted when faced with effects that might normally knock you off your mount.

Item Slot: Mount  3,400 gp
Power (Encounter): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when the mount you are riding would be pulled, pushed, or slid. The mount is not pulled, pushed, or slid.

Zephyr Horseshoes — Level 9

These black iron horseshoes allow a mount to race across all kinds of terrain.

Item Slot: Mount  4,200 gp
Property: The mount ignores the effect of difficult terrain and can cross liquid surfaces as if they were solid ground. Any adverse effect of that terrain, such as the damage from acid or magma, still affects the mount normally.

FEET SLOT ITEMS

With the right footwear, no cliff cannot be climbed and no river cannot be crossed. The sky really is the limit.

Magical footwear provides utility benefits related to movement, whether providing a new form of movement, an improvement to speed, or the power to skillfully evade an enemy's threatened area. Footwear is most frequently helpful in combat, but it might also offer a benefit outside of combat as well, allowing a character to easily scale a wall, pass through a guarded area unseen, or teleport across an entire continent.

Boots of Swimming — Level 13

A fin runs down the back of these fishscale boots.

Item Slot: Feet 17,000 gp
Property: Gain a swim speed equal to your speed. You take no penalties to attack rolls while swimming or underwater.
Power (Daily): Minor Action. Breathe normally underwater until the end of the encounter.

Boots of Teleportation — Level 28

Wearing these elegant boots, you never need to raise your feet to move.

Item Slot: Feet 2,125,000 gp
Power (At-Will ✦ Teleportation): Move Action. Teleport a number of squares equal to your speed.

Boots of the Fencing Master — Level 7

Your swift step befuddles your foes.

Item Slot: Feet 2,600 gp
Property: When you shift, gain a +1 item bonus to AC and Reflex defense until the end of your next turn.
Power (Encounter): Minor Action. Shift 2 squares.

Boots of Withdrawal — Level 16

This footwear allows you to live to fight another day.

Item Slot: Feet 45,000 gp
Property: If you are bloodied and make no attacks on your turn, gain a +4 item bonus to speed, AC, and Reflex defense until the end of your next turn.

Branchrunners — Level 10

You move unhindered through the undergrowth in these supple foot wraps of treated oak leaves.

Item Slot: Feet 5,000 gp
Property: Ignore difficult terrain in forests and jungles. Also, gain a +4 item bonus to Acrobatics checks to balance or reduce damage from a fall, and to Athletics checks to climb and jump while in trees.
Power (Encounter): Move Action. Balance and climb at your speed until the end of your turn. You don't grant combat advantage while doing so.

Butterfly Sandals — Level 12

These comfortable leather sandals make you more adept while airborne.

Item Slot: Feet 13,000 gp
Property: Increase the flight speed of your flight powers and racial traits by 2.

Cat Tabi — Level 8+

This silky black footgear gives you catlike reflexes when jumping or falling.

Lvl 8 3,400 gp Lvl 28 2,125,000 gp
Lvl 18 85,000 gp
Item Slot: Feet
Property: Gain a +3 item bonus to Athletics checks to jump. You take half damage from a fall and always land on your feet.
Level 18: +5 item bonus.
Level 28: +7 item bonus.
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you fall 10 feet or more. You take no damage from the fall and are not knocked prone.

Defiant Boots — Level 18

These sturdy iron boots grip the ground when you are moved against your will.

Item Slot: Feet 85,000 gp
Property: When you are pulled, pushed, or slid, reduce the distance you are moved by 2.
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you are subject to a pull, push, or slide effect. Instead, shift a number of squares equal to the number of squares you would have been pulled, pushed, or slid.

Dimensional Stride Boots — Level 18

You step through a thin rift in space and reappear instantly in another location nearby.

Item Slot: Feet 85,000 gp
Property: Gain a +1 bonus to Reflex defense.
Power (Encounter ✦ Teleportation): Move Action. Teleport 2 squares. If you are at maximum hit points, you instead teleport a number of squares equal to your speed.

Dragonborn Greaves — Level 12

Made of thick hide covered in scales, these ornate boots tap into your pain and rage.

Item Slot: Feet 13,000 gp
Property: While you are bloodied, gain a +2 item bonus to speed and a +1 item bonus to AC and Reflex defense.

Dwarfstride Boots — Level 18

In these boots, nothing gets in your way.

Item Slot: Feet 85,000 gp
Property: Gain a +4 item bonus to all skill checks required by special terrain (normally Athletics or Acrobatics).
Property: When an effect forces you to move—through a pull, a push, or a slide—you can move 1 square less than the effect specifies. This property stacks with the Stand Your Ground dwarf racial trait.

Dwarven Boots — Level 12

These iron boots keep you steady in the face of forceful assaults.

Item Slot: Feet 13,000 gp
Power (Daily): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when an attack would knock you prone or pull, push, slide, or immobilize you. The attacker rerolls the attack, using the second result even if it's lower.

Earthreaver Stompers — Level 17+

These heavy, steel-soled boots allow you to sense vibrations as well as give you a powerful stomp.

Lvl 17 65,000 gp Lvl 27 1,625,000 gp
Item Slot: Feet
Property: You gain tremorsense 1 square.
Level 27: Tremorsense 3 squares.
Power (Daily): Standard Action. You stomp your foot and make an attack: Close burst 2; Strength + 4 vs. Reflex; on a hit, the target is knocked prone.
Level 27: Strength + 6 vs. Reflex.

Earthstriders — Level 14

You instantly move through the earth using these blunt-toed shoes.

Item Slot: Feet 21,000 gp
Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): Move Action. Teleport 5 squares as long as a path along the ground exists to your destination. This power does not allow you to cross open air (including pits or chasms).

ED COX, CHRIS SEAMAN

Feyleaf Sandals Level 2

This delicate footgear incorporates Feywild leaves into its design.

Item Slot: Feet 520 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): When you fall, instead teleport safely to the nearest horizontal surface within 5 squares that can support your weight, take no falling damage, and land on your feet.

Feystep Lacings Level 12

Cords spun from enchanted fey wool teleport you out of—or into—harm's way.

Item Slot: Feet 13,000 gp

Property: Gain a +1 bonus to Reflex defense.

Power (At-Will, 5 Charges/Day ✦ Teleportation): Move Action. Spend a number of charges to teleport that number of squares.

Fireburst Boots Level 14

Fire fuels these scorched iron boots.

Item Slot: Feet 21,000 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Teleportation): Move Action. Teleport 6 squares. All creatures within 1 square of you before you teleport take 2d8 fire damage.

Flanker's Boots Level 15

With a mere thought, you use these rabbitskin boots to move into an advantageous position.

Item Slot: Feet 25,000 gp

Property: Gain +2 item bonus to Athletics checks.

Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): Move Action. Teleport to any square adjacent to an adjacent creature.

Floorfighter Straps Level 15

Scuffed and worn, these rawhide bands keep you dangerous even when on the ground.

Item Slot: Feet 25,000 gp

Property: While you are prone, you do not grant combat advantage and you can shift. When you stand up, you can shift 1 square as part of the same action.

Goblin Stompers Level 6

These cured hide boots shift you safely away from an inaccurate attacker.

Item Slot: Feet 1,800 gp

Power (Encounter): Immediate Reaction. Use this power when a melee attack misses you. Shift 1 square.

Jester Shoes Level 2

These colorful, pointed shoes help you stand out—but not stand up—in a crowd.

Item Slot: Feet 520 gp

Power (Encounter): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when you are pushed, pulled, or slid. Reduce the distance you are pulled, pushed, or slided by 1 square and fall prone.

Lightstep Slippers Level 21

These doeskin coverings cushion your step.

Item Slot: Feet 225,000 gp

Property: Gain a +5 item bonus to Stealth checks. Also, you do not activate traps or hazards triggered by stepping into a particular square, nor can you be detected by tremorsense.

Oceanstrider Boots Level 14

Water is no obstacle for you in these thigh-high oilskin boots.

Item Slot: Feet 21,000 gp

Property: Gain a +1 item bonus to speed. You can move across and stand on horizontal liquid surfaces as though they were solid ground. You still take damage from hazardous liquid surfaces upon which you stand (such as acid and magma).

Phantom Chaussures Level 18

With your lower legs bound in gossamer silk, you become ephemeral, and sometimes invisible.

Item Slot: Feet 85,000 gp

Property: if you move at least 3 squares on your turn, gain concealment until the end of your next turn.

Power (Daily ✦ Illusion): Free Action. Use this power when you have moved at least 6 squares on your turn. You become invisible until the end of your next turn.

Quickling Boots Level 8

Your feet step more lively in this silver-stitched footgear.

Item Slot: Feet 3,400 gp

Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to Acrobatics and Athletics checks.

Power (Encounter): Move Action. Move up to your speed + 1. Gain a +2 item bonus to AC against opportunity attacks during this movement.

Skygliders

Rushing Cleats Level 7

These rawhide boot straps are fitted with spikes.

Item Slot: Feet 2,600 gp

Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to bull rush attacks, and increase the push or slide effect of any close or melee attack you perform by 1 square.

Sandals of Arcane Transposition Level 18

Using an arcane power can teleport you in these rune-etched, open-toed shoes.

Item Slot: Feet 85,000 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): Free Action. Use this power after you make an arcane area or close attack. Teleport to any unoccupied square within the area of effect.

Sandals of Avandra Level 25

These airy, corded foot coverings allow you to move past even the largest and most dangerous enemies.

Item Slot: Feet 625,000 gp

Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to speed.

Power (At-Will): Move Action. Shift a number of squares equal to half your speed.

Power (Encounter): Minor Action. Until the end of your next turn, your movement does not provoke opportunity attacks.

Sandals of Precise Stepping Level 6+

Your steps become softer and more precise in this soft leather and cloth mesh footgear.

Lvl 6 1,800 gp Lvl 26 1,125,000 gp
Lvl 16 45,000 gp

Item Slot: Feet

Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to Acrobatics, Athletics, and Stealth checks.

Level 16: +3 item bonus.

Level 26: +4 item bonus.

Shadowsteppers Level 18

You disappear into the shadows in these matte black fur slippers.

Item Slot: Feet 85,000 gp

Power (Daily): Move Action. Teleport 5 squares and gain insubstantial until the end of your next turn. If you use this power in an area of bright light, you take 5 damage (which ignores insubstantial).

Skygliders Level 21

This footwear allows you to walk across chasms, climb to ledges, and descend from precipices.

Item Slot: Feet 225,000 gp

Property: If you begin your turn standing on a horizontal surface, you can move through the air as if it were normal terrain. Moving upward requires 2 squares of movement for each square traveled; moving downward costs 1 square of movement for every 2 squares traveled. If you are not on a horizontal surface sufficient to bear your weight at the end of your turn, you fall to the nearest such surface, taking damage accordingly.

Power (Daily): Minor Action. Move through the air as if it were normal terrain until the end of the encounter. Glide down safely to the nearest horizontal surface that can bear your weight at that time.

Steadfast Boots Level 8

Rough iron studs nailed to these boots buttress your defenses.

Item Slot: Feet 3,400 gp

Power (Encounter): Minor Action. As long as you stay in the same space that you began the current turn, gain a +2 power bonus to AC and all defenses until the beginning of your next turn. If you move or are moved from your starting square at any time through any means, you lose these bonuses.

Surefoot Boots Level 5

Attached snugly by rows of shiny buckles, these boots help keep your footing.

Item Slot: Feet 1,000 gp

Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to Acrobatics checks.

Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you are knocked prone. You stand up.

Thornwalker Slippers Level 12

These padded foot coverings allow you to pass cleanly through cluttered or grasping terrain.

Item Slot: Feet 13,000 gp

Power (Encounter): Until the end of your next turn, you can move through difficult terrain. You also move normally and safely through natural environmental hazards that affect movement, such as quicksand, dense foliage, or deep snow.

ED COX

Tumbler's Shoes Level 11

Though worn, these well-built shoes allow you to move with a cat's grace through even precarious terrain.

Item Slot: Feet 9,000 gp
Property: You can take 10 on Acrobatics and Athletics checks, even if threats or distractions would normally prevent you from doing so.

Wallwalkers Level 10

These supple spidersilk boots give you the mobility of an arachnid, if only for a brief time.

Item Slot: Feet 5,000 gp
Property: If you begin your turn standing on a horizontal surface, you can walk on walls as if they were horizontal surfaces. If you are not on a horizontal surface sufficient to bear your weight at the end of your move, you fall to the ground, taking damage accordingly.
Power (Daily): Minor Action. Walk on walls as if they were horizontal surfaces until the end of the encounter.

Wildrunners Level 4

Crafted from the skins of wild plains animals, these boots lend you extraordinary speed.

Item Slot: Feet 840 gp
Property: When you run, move your speed + 4 instead of speed + 2.
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you run. Enemies do not gain combat advantage against you.

Zephyr Boots Level 24

You catch the wind and fly like bird with these light boots.

Item Slot: Feet 525,000 gp
Property: Gain a fly speed equal to your speed while wearing light armor or no armor.

HANDS SLOT ITEMS

Hands are our most capable tools. Without them, we are no better than the beasts.

Wielders of weapons and spells alike find use for gloves and gauntlets. Handwear provides powerful attack and damage bonuses, and many items also augment Strength- and Dexterity-based skills. A few hand items also augment the range of attacks, adding to the distance a wearer can fire his or her attack, or improving accuracy.

Antipathy Gloves — Level 10

Use these gloves to keep your enemies at bay.

Item Slot: Hands 5,000 gp

Property: An enemy must spend 1 extra square of movement to enter a square adjacent to you. An enemy that is pulled, pushed, or slid moves through those squares as normal.

Power (Daily): Standard Action. Make an attack: Ranged 10; +13 vs. Reflex; on a hit, the target is restrained (save ends).

Breaching Gauntlets — Level 6+

These thick leather gauntlets allow your attacks to bypass even the best resistances.

Lvl 6 1,800 gp Lvl 26 1,125,000 gp
Lvl 16 45,000 gp

Item Slot: Hands

Property: Reduce the value of any resistance an enemy has against your attacks by 1.
Level 16: Reduce resistance by 2.
Level 26: Reduce resistance by 5.

Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you hit with a weapon attack, but before you deal damage. Reduce the value of any resistance the target has against your attack by 5 (save ends).
Level 16: Reduce resistance by 10.
Level 26: Reduce resistance by 15.

Burning Gauntlets — Level 6+

Made of iron and constantly trailing wisps of smoke, these plated gloves incite your inner pyromaniac.

Lvl 6 1,800 gp Lvl 26 1,125,000 gp
Lvl 16 45,000 gp

Item Slot: Hands

Power (Daily ✦ Fire): Free Action. Use this power when you make an attack with the fire keyword. The first target hit by that attack, if any, also takes ongoing 5 fire damage (save ends). Also, you deal an extra 1 fire damage on successful attacks with the fire keyword until the end of the encounter.
If you've reached at least one milestone today before using this power, instead deal an extra 2 fire damage on successful attacks with the fire keyword until the end of the encounter.
Level 16: Ongoing 10 fire damage, extra 3 fire damage (4 after milestone).
Level 26: Ongoing 15 fire damage, extra 5 fire damage (6 after milestone).

Cat Paws — Level 5+

Furry on the outside, silky on the inside, these gloves sprout claws that make climbing easier.

Lvl 5 1,000 gp Lvl 25 625,000 gp
Lvl 15 25,000 gp

Item Slot: Hands

Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to Athletics checks to climb.
Level 15: +4 item bonus.
Level 25: +6 item bonus.

Power (Daily): Free Action. Climb at normal speed and double any climbing movement granted to you by powers until the end of the encounter.

ED COX

Caustic Gauntlets Level 6+

These rough leather coverings drip with acid as you attack.

Lvl 6 1,800 gp Lvl 26 1,125,000 gp
Lvl 16 45,000 gp
Item Slot: Hands

Power (Daily ✦ Acid): Free Action. Use this power when you make a ranged attack. Change the damage type dealt by that attack to acid. Hit or miss, creatures adjacent to the target of the attack take 1d6 acid damage. Also, you deal an extra 1 acid damage on successful ranged attacks until the end of the encounter.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, instead deal an extra 2 acid damage on successful ranged attacks with the acid keyword until the end of the encounter.
Level 16: 2d6 acid damage, extra 3 acid damage (4 after milestone).
Level 26: 3d6 acid damage, extra 5 acid damage (6 after milestone).

Climbing Claws Level 4

Sharp claws magically unfold from the palms of these padded leather gloves.

Item Slot: Hands 840 gp
Property: Gain a +1 item bonus to Athletics checks to climb.
Each of these gloves can also be used as a one-handed, off-hand, simple, light blade that applies a +2 proficiency bonus to attack rolls and deals 1d4 damage. The wearer gains proficiency with this weapon.

Dwarven Throwers Level 10

These stout iron gauntlets turn any weapon into a ranged weapon.

Item Slot: Hands 5,000 gp
Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to thrown weapon damage rolls.
Power (Encounter): Standard Action. Make a ranged basic attack with your melee weapon, using your Strength modifier on the attack roll and damage roll, as if the weapon had the heavy thrown weapon property. Your weapon automatically returns to your grip after the ranged attack.

Flaying Gloves Level 4+

These tight-fitting gloves allow you to deal bleeding wounds with a light blade.

Lvl 4 840 gp Lvl 24 525,000 gp
Lvl 14 21,000 gp
Item Slot: Hands

Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you hit with a light blade melee attack and have combat advantage against the target. That attack deals an extra ongoing 5 damage (save ends). If the attack already deals ongoing damage of any type, this item's power has no effect.
Level 14: Ongoing 10 damage (save ends).
Level 24: Ongoing 15 damage (save ends).

Frost Gauntlets Level 7+

When you pick up your weapon, the ice crystal patterns etched into these gauntlets flare, coating the weapon in a thin sheet of frost.

Lvl 7 2,600 gp Lvl 27 1,625,000 gp
Lvl 17 65,000 gp
Item Slot: Hands

Power (Daily ✦ Cold): Free Action. Use this power when you make a melee attack. Change the damage type dealt by that attack to cold. On a hit, the target is also slowed until the end of your next turn. Also, you deal an extra 1 cold damage on successful melee attacks until the end of the encounter.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, instead gain an extra 2 cold damage on successful melee attacks until the end of the encounter.
Level 17: Target is slowed (save ends), extra 3 cold damage (4 after milestone).
Level 27: Target is immobilized (save ends), extra 5 cold damage (6 after milestone).

Gauntlets of Blinding Strikes Level 11

These sleek gauntlets speed your strikes for a limited time.

Item Slot: Hands 9,000 gp
Power (Daily): Standard Action. Make two melee basic attacks, each with a -2 penalty to the attack roll.

Gauntlets of Brilliance Level 10

With a thought, you cause these gold-burnished gauntlets to illuminate.

Item Slot: Hands 5,000 gp
Power (At-Will): Minor Action. As the wizard's light power (PH 158), but cast on the gauntlets.
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power after you hit with a weapon attack. The attack deals an extra 10 radiant damage.

Giant Gloves Level 13

Though they make your hands appear larger, these thick leather wraps fit comfortably and give you an impressive grip.

Item Slot: Hands 17,000 gp
Property: Gain a +3 item bonus to grab attack rolls.
Power (Encounter): Standard Action. While you have a creature of your size category or smaller grabbed, you can end the grab by throwing the creature, causing it to slide 6 squares. You can throw the creature at a target provided the thrown creature ends its forced movement in a space adjacent to the target. In this case, make an attack against the target: Dexterity + 4 vs. Reflex; on a hit, the thrown creature and the target each take 2d8 + Strength modifier damage and are knocked prone.

Gloves of Accuracy Level 16

Item Slot: Hands 45,000 gp

Power (At-Will): Minor Action. Your ranged attacks ignore concealment and cover (but not total concealment or superior cover) until the end of your turn.

Gloves of Agility Level 5

As you strap on these tight-fitting, fingerless gloves, your digits tingle with magic.

Item Slot: Hands 1,000 gp

Property: Gain a +1 item bonus to Acrobatics, Stealth, and Dexterity checks (but not Dexterity attacks).

Gloves of Camaraderie Level 21

These cashmere gloves draw an ailing ally's condition onto you.

Item Slot: Hands 225,000 gp

Power (Encounter): Immediate Reaction. Use this power when an ally within 10 squares of you gains a condition or harmful effect. You gain that condition or effect, and the ally loses it. The condition or effect lasts for the duration specified in the description of the power that caused it.

Gloves of Dimensional Repulsion Level 14

Strange, eldritch glyphs swirl on these fine brocade coverings.

Item Slot: Hands 21,000 gp

Property: When you use a teleport power on a target other than yourself, you can increase the distance the target is teleported by 2 squares.

Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): Standard Action. Make an attack against an adjacent target: Charisma + 4 vs. Fortitude; on a hit, the target is teleported 10 squares to an unoccupied space of your choosing.

Gloves of Eldritch Admixture Level 8+

You funnel the energy granted by your pact through these gloves, amplifying your power.

Lvl 8 3,400 gp Lvl 28 2,125,000 gp
Lvl 18 85,000 gp

Item Slot: Hands

Prerequisite: Warlock

Property: When you deal extra damage as a result of your Warlock's Curse, you can choose that damage to be acid, cold, or fire (or leave it untyped).

Power (At-Will, 5 Charges/Day ✦ Acid, Cold, or Fire): Free Action. The next attack you make this turn deals extra damage depending on how many charges you spend: 1 charge, 1d6 damage; 2 charges, 2d6 damage; 5 charges, 3d6 damage. This extra damage can be acid, cold, or fire damage.

Level 18: 1 charge, 1d8 damage; 2 charges, 2d8 damage; 3 charges, 3d8 damage.

Level 28: 1 charge, 1d10 damage; 2 charges, 2d10 damage; 5 charges, 3d10 damage.

Gloves of Missile Deflection Level 13

Made of muslin covered with small shield-shaped buttons, these gloves help turn away projectiles.

Item Slot: Hands 17,000 gp

Property: Gain a +1 item bonus to AC against ranged weapon attacks.

Power (Daily): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when you are hit by a ranged weapon attack. Gain resist 15 against that attack

Gloves of Storing Level 9

Though these ornate chamois gloves fit snuggly, your fingertips always seem just short of touching something within them.

Item Slot: Hands 4,200 gp

Property: As a minor action, you can store one unattended item in one of the gloves. Each glove can hold one item, and each item must weigh no more than 10 pounds. As a minor action, you can cause an item stored within one glove to materialize in your hand. Weapons so produced are ready to wield, but items that require an additional action to equip (such as shields) must still be readied. Items have no weight while within the gloves.

Gloves of the Bounty Hunter Level 8

These hide garments are weighted along the knuckles.

Item Slot: Hands 3,400 gp

Property: When your attack causes a target to be reduced to 0 hit points or below, and you choose to knock out rather than kill it, the target is restored to 1 hit point after an extended rest (normally this occurs after a short rest).

Gloves of storing

Gloves of the Healer — Level 12+

Your healing is enhanced by this elegant handwear.

Lvl 12 13,000 gp Lvl 22 325,000 gp

Item Slot: Hands

Property: When you use a power that has the healing keyword, one target regains an extra 1d6 hit points.
Level 22: 2d6 hit points.

Power (Daily ✦ Healing): Standard Action. Spend a healing surge. An adjacent ally regains hit points equal to the value of the healing surge you lost.

Gloves of Transference — Level 14

You can bestow powers upon others with these gossamer gloves.

Item Slot: Hands 21,000 gp

Property: The ranges of your ranged utility powers are increased by 2.

Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power on your turn when you use a power that has a personal range. The power affects an ally adjacent to you instead of you, as if that ally had used the power. This power does not function on powers that have the stance keyword, and if the power can be sustained, the ally must spend the action to sustain it.

Greatreach Gauntlets — Level 18

These gauntlets are fitted with extendable steel rods that are braced to your forearms.

Item Slot: Hands 85,000 gp

Power (At-Will): Minor Action. Until the end of your next turn, increase the reach of your melee attacks by 1 square but take a -2 penalty to attack rolls.

Green Thumbs — Level 9

These bright green, wooden thimbles fit snugly over naked skin or mundane hand coverings.

Item Slot: Hands 4,200 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Conjuration): Standard Action. You create a wall 8 within 10 squares filled with thorny vines. It can be up to 4 squares high. A creature that attempts to move through the wall must succeed on a DC 20 Strength check or become restrained within the wall (escape DC 20 ends). The wall lasts until the end of your next turn. Sustain minor.

Hedge Wizard's Gloves — Level 4

With a wave of these patched gloves, you can perform magic tricks.

Item Slot: Hands 840 gp

Power (At-Will ✦ Arcane, Conjuration): Standard Action. As the wizard's mage hand power (PH 158).

Power (At-Will ✦ Arcane): Standard Action. As the wizard's prestidigitation power (PH 159).

Holy Gauntlets — Level 8+

Highly polished and marked with holy sigils, these gauntlets help to bring cleansing light to the darkness.

Lvl 8 3,400 gp Lvl 28 2,125,000 gp
Lvl 18 85,000 gp

Item Slot: Hands

Power (Daily ✦ Radiant): Free Action. Use this power to change the damage type dealt by your next divine power to radiant. On a hit, deal an extra 1d6 radiant damage. If the power doesn't normally deal damage, no extra damage is dealt. Also, you deal an extra 1 radiant damage on successful attacks with the radiant keyword until the end of the encounter.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, instead deal an extra 2 radiant damage on successful attacks with the radiant keyword until the end of the encounter.
Level 18: 2d6 radiant damage, extra 3 radiant damage (4 after milestone).
Level 28: 3d6 radiant damage, extra 5 radiant damage (6 after milestone).

NECK SLOT ITEMS

Amulets and brooches, cloaks and capes—the prepared adventurer who appreciates fashion and values her life never leaves home without them.

After armor and weapons, neck items are perhaps the most important item for an adventurer to acquire. Every neck item provides an enhancement bonus to Fortitude, Reflex, and Will defenses. In addition, neck items offer powerful measures to protect a character from enfeebling conditions, elemental energies, and even death.

Although most neck items are protective in nature, a few do boast offensive enchantments. Some items also enhance skill checks, particularly those that are Charisma-based.

Lvl 18 +4 85,000 gp
Lvl 23 +5 425,000 gp
Lvl 28 +6 2,125,000 gp

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you take damage from an enemy or trap. You disappear from the world, stepping through your cloak into a secure place on another plane. At the start of your next turn, you reappear within 5 squares of your original location.

Choker of Eloquence — Level 8+

This damask neck wrap quickens the tongue and finds favor with diplomats and aristocrats.

Lvl 8 +1 3,400 gp
Lvl 13 +2 17,000 gp
Lvl 18 +3 85,000 gp
Lvl 23 +4 425,000 gp
Lvl 28 +5 2,125,000 gp

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Property: Gain an item bonus to Bluff and Diplomacy checks equal to the item's enhancement bonus.

Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power after you roll a Bluff or Diplomacy check. Reroll that check, using the second result even if it's lower.

Clasp of Noble Sacrifice — Level 12+

This gold cloak buckle protects your friends with your life force.

Lvl 12 +3 13,000 gp
Lvl 17 +4 65,000 gp
Lvl 22 +5 325,000 gp
Lvl 27 +6 1,625,000 gp

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Power (Daily): Minor Action. Until the end of the encounter, any time an ally within 5 squares of you spends a healing surge, it is deducted from your total instead of the ally's. Each time an ally spends one of your healing surges in this way, gain temporary hit points equal to the clasp's enhancement bonus.

Cloak of Arachnida — Level 13+

This soft cloak is traced in spiderweb patterns.

Lvl 13 +3 17,000 gp
Lvl 18 +4 85,000 gp
Lvl 23 +5 425,000 gp
Lvl 28 +6 2,125,000 gp

Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to saving throws against effects that immobilize or restrain you.
Level 23 or 28: Also gain resist 15 poison.

Power (Daily): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when an adjacent enemy attacks you or moves away from you. Make an attack: Melee 1; Intelligence, Wisdom, or Charisma vs. Reflex; on a hit, the target is immobilized (save ends).

Cloak of Autumn's Child — Level 19+

Woven from exotic Feywild leaves, this cloak whisks you to a soothing pocket of peace where afflictions are less severe.

Lvl 19 +4 105,000 gp
Lvl 24 +5 525,000 gp
Lvl 29 +6 2,625,000 gp

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): Move Action. You disappear from the world into a safe pocket of the Feywild. While you are gone, all effects on you are suppressed (you don't take ongoing damage, for example). You roll saving throws at the end of each turn as normal, except you gain a +2 power bonus. Also, while gone, you remain as aware of your surroundings as if you were standing in your last position. At the start of each turn thereafter, you can choose to return to any space within 5 squares of your last position. Line of sight between the two positions must exist (you can't reappear on the other side of a wall, for example).

Cloak of Displacement — Level 15+

This shimmering cloak conceals your precise location.

Lvl 15 +3 25,000 gp
Lvl 20 +4 125,000 gp
Lvl 25 +5 625,000 gp
Lvl 30 +6 3,125,000 gp

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Property: Each encounter, you gain a +2 item bonus to AC and Reflex defenses until an attack hits you.

Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when you would be hit with a melee or ranged attack. The attacker must reroll the attack, using the second result even if it's lower. If the attacker misses you, you can teleport 1 square.

Cloak of the phoenix

CHRIS SEAMAN

Cloak of Distortion — Level 4+

This cloak roils about you like the rippling air of a scorching desert.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 4 | +1 | 840 gp | Lvl 19 | +4 | 105,000 gp |
| Lvl 9 | +2 | 4,200 gp | Lvl 24 | +5 | 525,000 gp |
| Lvl 14 | +3 | 21,000 gp | Lvl 29 | +6 | 2,625,000 gp |

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Property: A ranged attack against you from more than 5 squares away takes a -5 penalty to the attack roll.

Cloak of Elemental Evolution — Level 25+

Stitched with the material forms of the elements, this cloak adopts the form of the element it is set to resist.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 25 | +4 | 625,000 gp | Lvl 30 | +5 | 3,125,000 gp |

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Power (Daily): Minor Action. Choose a damage type from the following list: acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder. Gain resist 10 against that damage type until the end of the encounter.

Power (At-Will): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when you would take damage from an attack while you are under the effect of this item's daily power. Change the resistance provided by this cloak to any other damage type listed above. This lasts until the start of your next turn, at which point the damage type reverts to the type chosen when the item's daily power was activated.

Cloak of the Cautious — Level 9+

Dragonborn refer to this slick garment as the "cloak of the craven" because it facilitates hasty retreats.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 9 | +2 | 4,200 gp | Lvl 24 | +5 | 525,000 gp |
| Lvl 14 | +3 | 21,000 gp | Lvl 29 | +6 | 2,625,000 gp |
| Lvl 19 | +4 | 105,000 gp | | | |

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Power (Daily): Minor Action. Gain a +5 power bonus to speed until the end of your next turn. If you attack any target while this power is active, this effect ends and you are stunned until the end of your next turn.

Cloak of the Chirurgeon — Level 3+

This garment gives you the confidence and knowledge to assuage an ally's pain.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 3 | +1 | 680 gp | Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp |
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Property: Gain an item bonus to Heal checks equal to the enhancement bonus of this cloak.

Power (Daily): Minor Action. An adjacent ally regains 1 healing surge already spent today.

Cloak of the Phoenix — Level 30

This elegant mantle is woven with elemental fire.

Lvl 30 +6 3,125,000 gp

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Power (Daily ✦ Fire, Healing): No Action. Use this power when you are reduced to 0 or fewer hit points. Deal 3d10 fire damage to all enemies within 3 squares of you, then disappear from the world in a plume of smoke. At the start of your next turn, you reappear in the same space, or the nearest unoccupied space if that space is taken. You are restored to full hit points, and all effects previously on you are eliminated. You lose all remaining healing surges (if any).

Cloak of the Walking Wounded — Level 4+

Thin red veins form across the fabric of this handsome cloak when its healing properties are evoked.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 4 | +1 | 840 gp | Lvl 19 | +4 | 105,000 gp |
| Lvl 9 | +2 | 4,200 gp | Lvl 24 | +5 | 525,000 gp |
| Lvl 14 | +3 | 21,000 gp | Lvl 29 | +6 | 2,625,000 gp |

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Property: If you use your second wind while bloodied, you can expend two healing surges instead of one (gaining hit points from both).

Collar of Recovery — Level 4+

Inset with a bloodstone, this neckpiece aids healing.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 4 | +1 | 840 gp | Lvl 19 | +4 | 105,000 gp |
| Lvl 9 | +2 | 4,200 gp | Lvl 24 | +5 | 525,000 gp |
| Lvl 14 | +3 | 21,000 gp | Lvl 29 | +6 | 2,625,000 gp |

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Property: Gain extra hit points equal to this item's enhancement bonus when you spend a healing surge to regain hit points.

Death-Defying Cloak — Level 24+

This voluminous mantle lets you cheat death.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 24 | +5 | 525,000 gp | Lvl 29 | +6 | 2,625,000 gp |

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Power (Daily ✦ Illusion): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when you would be reduced to 0 or fewer hit points. Instead, you are reduced to 1 hit point. You also become invisible until the end of your next turn or until you attack (whichever comes first). Until you become visible, an illusion of your deceased body appears on the ground where you would have fallen. Anyone who touches or otherwise manipulates the body sees through the illusion automatically. Otherwise a Perception check (DC 20 + the cloak's level) is required to discern the illusion.

Evil Eye Fetish — Level 8+

The vile bloodshot eye attached to this rawhide collar punishes those who seek to take advantage of you.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |
| Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp | | | |

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Property: An enemy with combat advantage against you that hits you takes necrotic damage equal to this item's enhancement bonus.

Fireflower Pendant — Level 7+

Formed from a string of fire opals, this ornament unleashes fiery retribution.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 7 | +2 | 2,600 gp | Lvl 22 | +5 | 325,000 gp |
| Lvl 12 | +3 | 13,000 gp | Lvl 27 | +6 | 1,625,000 gp |
| Lvl 17 | +4 | 65,000 gp | | | |

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Property: If you take fire damage from an enemy attack, the first attack you make before the end of your next turn deals extra fire damage equal to the pendant's enhancement bonus.

Flamewrath Cape — Level 14+

Intermittent wisps of smoke rise from this garment, which can burst into flame upon your command.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 14 | +3 | 21,000 gp | Lvl 24 | +5 | 525,000 gp |
| Lvl 19 | +4 | 105,000 gp | Lvl 29 | +6 | 2,625,000 gp |

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Property: Gain an item bonus to Intimidate checks equal to the cloak's enhancement bonus.

Power (Daily ✦ Fire): Minor Action. Until the end of your next turn, your melee attacks deal extra fire damage equal to the cloak's enhancement bonus. Also, until the end of your next turn, an enemy that hits you with a melee attack takes 3d6 fire damage.

Level 19: 4d6 fire damage.

Level 24: 5d6 fire damage.

Level 29: 6d6 fire damage.

Gloaming Shroud — Level 3+

This billowing cloak drinks in the light around it.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 3 | +1 | 680 gp | Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp |
| Lvl 8 | +2 | 3,400 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Property: Gain an item bonus to Stealth checks in dim light or darkness equal to the shroud's enhancement bonus.

Power (Daily ✦ Zone): Minor Action. Create a zone of dim light (close burst 10) that lasts until the end of the encounter. Bright light created or brought into the zone is reduced to dim light while within the zone.

Gorget of Reciprocity — Level 30

Runic symbols meaning "an eye for an eye" adorn this decorative platinum neck armor.

Item Slot: Neck 3,125,000 gp

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Power (Daily): Immediate Reaction. Use this power when you are hit by an attack. The attacker is also hit by the attack (no attack roll required); the damage roll and effects are identical to the attack against you.

Healer's Brooch — Level 4+

This innocuous adornment boosts your healing powers.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 4 | +1 | 840 gp | Lvl 19 | +4 | 105,000 gp |
| Lvl 9 | +2 | 4,200 gp | Lvl 24 | +5 | 525,000 gp |
| Lvl 14 | +3 | 21,000 gp | Lvl 29 | +6 | 2,625,000 gp |

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Property: When you use a power that enables you or an ally to regain hit points, add the brooch's enhancement bonus to the hit points gained.

JASON A. ENGLE

Liar's Trinket — Level 13+

No two of these adornments look alike, but all appear to be mundane necklaces of little value.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 13 | +3 | 17,000 gp | Lvl 23 | +5 | 425,000 gp |
| Lvl 18 | +4 | 85,000 gp | Lvl 28 | +6 | 2,125,000 gp |

Item Slot: Neck

Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will

Property: Gain an item bonus to Bluff checks equal to the trinket's enhancement bonus. While you wear the trinket, it appears nonmagical unless an observer succeeds on an Arcana check (DC 20 + the trinket's level).

Property: Whenever you are subject to a divination or scrying ritual, such as Discern Lies or Observe Creature, the ritualist must succeed on an Arcana check opposed by your Bluff check. If the ritualist's check fails, the ritual doesn't work on you, the ritualist cannot discern the source of the failure, and resources are expended as normal to perform the ritual.

Life Charm — Level 25+

This small, heart-shaped pendant beats softly after you fall in battle, drawing your fleeting spirit back from death's door.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 25 | +5 | 625,000 gp | Lvl 30 | +6 | 3,125,000 gp |

Amethyst Band of Invisible Eyes — Level 19

This band of pristine amethyst is favored by spellcasters seeking indirect targeting capability.

Item Slot: Ring 105,000 gp

Property: Determine line of sight from the square you occupy or any square adjacent to you. Determine cover from the square you occupy as normal.

Power (Daily): Minor Action. Choose a square within 10 squares of you. Determine line of sight from this square until the end of your next turn.

If you've reached at least one milestone today, you also gain darkvision until the end of your next turn.

Banquet Ring — Level 17

Monarchs, and those who fear what might be in their food, treasure these gaudy, gem-encrusted baubles.

Item Slot: Ring 65,000 gp

Property: You gain a +5 item bonus to Fortitude defense against attacks with the poison keyword.

Power (Daily): Minor Action. You are immune to ingested poisons until the end of the encounter.

If you've reached at least one milestone today, you can extend this protection to a number of people within your line of sight equal to your level.

Blink Ring — Level 22

This adamantine ring moves from finger to finger, much in the same way that you can move from place to place while wearing it.

Item Slot: Ring 325,000 gp
Property: You gain a +3 item bonus to Thievery checks.
Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): Minor Action. Teleport 1d4 squares.
Sustain Minor: Teleport 1d4 squares at the start of your turn.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, you do not need to use a minor action to sustain the item's effect.

Bone Ring of Better Fortune — Level 18

Formed from coated bones cleverly entwined, this tiny circlet fortifies your life force.

Item Slot: Ring 85,000 gp
Property: Reduce by half the necrotic damage you take.
Power (Daily): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when you are hit by an attack with the necrotic keyword. After applying any resistance, choose either to take no damage or to ignore an effect imposed by that attack, but not both.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, you take no damage and ignore any effects imposed by that attack.

Bone Ring of Preservation — Level 19

This plain, bone ring protects its wearer from life-draining effects.

Item Slot: Ring 105,000 gp
Property: You gain resist 15 necrotic.
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when an effect would make you lose a healing surge. You do not lose the healing surge.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, the source of the effect takes 3d10 damage.

Chameleon Ring — Level 16

This lizard skin band is barely visible against your skin and makes you equally hard to discern.

Item Slot: Ring 45,000 gp
Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to Stealth checks. Gain a +4 item bonus instead if you have not moved since the start of your last turn.
Power (Daily): Minor Action. You do not require cover or concealment to make Stealth checks until the end of your next turn.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, this power lasts until the end of the encounter.

Cherished Ring — Level 14

You and your words are more alluring when you wear this simple loop of burnished gold.

Item Slot: Ring 21,000 gp
Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to Diplomacy checks.
Power (Daily ✦ Charm): Standard Action. Make an attack: Ranged 10; Charisma vs. Will; on a hit, the target moves its speed toward you.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, the target must spend one move action on each of its turns to move closer to you (save ends).

Cognizance Ring — Level 16

Inlaid with tourmaline gems, this electrum trinket strengthens your mind and spirit.

Item Slot: Ring 45,000 gp
Property: Gain a +1 item bonus to saving throws against conditions with the charm, fear, illusion, or psychic keyword.
Power (Daily): Minor Action. Gain a +5 power bonus to saving throws against conditions with the charm, fear, illusion, or psychic keyword until the end of the encounter.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, you also gain a +2 power bonus to Will defense against powers with those keywords.

Face-Stealing Ring — Level 18

This wearer of this ivory ring sees the faces of others as potential disguises.

Item Slot: Ring 85,000 gp
Property: You gain a +2 item bonus to Insight checks.
Power (Daily ✦ Illusion): Standard Action. You assume the exact appearance of an adjacent humanoid creature. You also gain the creature's mannerisms, voice, and speech patterns. This effect lasts for 1 hour or until you dismiss it (a free action). You gain a +5 power bonus to Bluff checks to pass yourself off as the creature you're imitating.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, the effect lasts for one day and you can use a standard action to recall the effect after dismissing it.

Gargoyle Ring — Level 25

Wearing this ring of rough stone allows you to adopt a rocky form.

Item Slot: Ring 625,000 gp
Property: While you are petrified, you can make a saving throw at the end of your turn to remove the effect.
Power (Daily): Standard Action. You become a stone statue, gaining resist 25 to all damage and tremorsense 10. You lose all other senses and can take no actions in this form other than a minor action to resume your normal form.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, you can spend a healing surge to regain hit points equal to your surge value at the same time you turn into a statue or resume your normal form.

Luminary Ring — Level 22

You are more able to aid your allies with this gold ring, which bears a faintly glowing sigil signifying your ideals.

Item Slot: Ring 325,000 gp
Property: Increase the range of powers that restore hit points or provide a bonus to your allies by a number of squares equal to your Charisma modifier.
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you grant one or more allies a power bonus. Increase that bonus by 1 for all targets for the duration of that power.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, increase the affected bonus by 2.

Magician's Ring — Level 14

Tricksters and hedge wizards everywhere love this cheap-looking gold ring.

Item Slot: Ring 21,000 gp
Property: Double the ranges of your ghost sound and prestidigitation powers.
Power (At-Will): Standard Action. Use ghost sound as the wizard's power (PH 158).
Power (At-Will): Standard Action. Use prestidigitation as the wizard's power (PH 159).
If you've reached at least one milestone today, double the duration of effects created using this ring.

Nullifying Ring — Level 30

Formed from a metal as black as a starless night, this band counters attacks made against you.

Item Slot: Ring 3,125,000 gp
Property: Gain a +3 item bonus to saving throws.
Power (Daily): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when you would be hit by an attack. Gain a +6 power bonus to all defenses against that attack. A critical hit scored against you with that attack is instead considered a normal hit.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, the attack automatically misses and you take no damage from it.

Opal Ring of Remembrance — Level 29

The large fire opal set into this bauble flares brightly when it bestows mental clarity.

Item Slot: Ring 2,625,000 gp
Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to Intelligence attacks, and a +4 item bonus to Intelligence checks and Intelligence-based skill checks.
Power (Daily): Minor Action. Regain the use of an arcane encounter utility power that you have already used (as if you hadn't used it this encounter).
If you've reached at least one milestone today, you can instead regain the use of an arcane daily utility power (as if you hadn't used it today).

Premonition Ring — Level 15

With this dark obsidian ring on your finger, you act quickly when faced with danger.

Item Slot: Ring 25,000 gp
Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to initiative and passive Perception checks.
Power (Daily): No Action. Use this power when you are surprised. You are not surprised.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, you also move 3 squares and take a minor action.

Ring of Adaptation — Level 23

This silvery metal loop is engraved with Primordial runes, protecting you from elemental effects.

Item Slot: Ring 425,000 gp
Property: Gain a +5 item bonus to Endurance checks to endure extreme weather.
Power (Daily): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when you would take acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder damage. Take half damage from that damage type until the end of your next turn.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, this power lasts until the end of the encounter.

Ring of Aquatic Ability — Level 15

While you wear this aquamarine jeweled band, breathing and moving underwater comes as naturally to you as breathing air and walking on land.

Item Slot: Ring 25,000 gp
Property: Gain a swim speed equal to your speed. You can breathe underwater.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, gain a swim speed equal to twice your speed.

Ring of Arcane Information — Level 17

This ring helps you discern the nature of arcane phenomena.

Item Slot: Ring 65,000 gp
Property: You gain a +5 item bonus to Arcana checks made to detect magic.
Power (Daily): Minor Action. You detect magic within 20 squares of you in every direction, and you can ignore any sources of magical energy you're already aware of. Ignore all barriers; you can detect magic through walls, doors, and such.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, you also learn the name, power source, and keywords of any magical effects in the area.

Ring of Brotherhood — Level 14

These platinum rings come in pairs and are shared only by the closest companions.

Item Slot: Ring 21,000 gp

Property: Each of these rings is part of a set of two. As a minor action, a ring wearer can ascertain the following information:

✦ The current hit points and general status (alive, dying, or dead) of the other ring wearer

✦ The number of healing surges the other ring wearer has remaining

✦ Any effects currently affecting the other ring wearer

✦ The current emotional state of the other ring wearer

✦ The straight-line distance to the other ring wearer. If the other ring wearer is on a different plane, neither the distance nor the specific plane can be ascertained.

Special: These rings come in pairs. If one ring is disenchanted, the other loses all its magic. The cost covers a set of rings.

Power (Daily): Free Action. Transfer a single healing surge to the wearer of the other ring. This cannot bring the recipient above his or her total healing surges.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, transfer two healing surges.

Ring of Calling — Level 14

This mithral ring brings you and your allies closer together in times of need.

Item Slot: Ring 21,000 gp

Property: When an ally adjacent to you uses a teleport power, he or she can increase the distance teleported by 4 squares.

Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): Minor Action. Choose one ally within 20 squares of you and within line of sight. That ally is teleported to any unoccupied square adjacent to you.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, you can instead teleport to a square adjacent to an ally within 20 squares of you.

Ring of calling

ANNE STOKES

Ring of Dread — Level 18

This rough iron ring heightens your enemies' fears and weakens their defenses.

Item Slot: Ring 85,000 gp

Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to Intimidate checks.

Power (Daily ✦ Fear): Standard Action. Make an Intimidate check against an enemy within 5 squares of you, and compare the result to each of the target's defenses (AC, Fortitude, Reflex, and Will). The target takes a -2 penalty to any defense your check equals or exceeds (save ends all).
If you've reached at least one milestone today, the target must make a separate saving throw for each defense penalized.

Ring of Feather Fall — Level 14

With this airy mithral filigree band, you and sometimes your allies need not fear a fall even from the highest cliff.

Item Slot: Ring 21,000 gp

Property: You take no damage from a fall and always land on your feet.

Power (Daily): Minor Action. Allies within 5 squares of you also benefit from this ring's property until the end of the encounter.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, allies within 10 squares of you also benefit.

Ring of Fey Travel — Level 22

Wearing this shimmering feywood ring, you move with otherworldly speed, seemingly out of phase at times.

Item Slot: Ring 325,000 gp

Property: Gain a +1 item bonus to speed while wearing light armor or no armor.

Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): Minor Action. Teleport your speed.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, this power lasts until the end of your next turn.

Ring of Fireblazing — Level 14

Fire springs from the hand that bears this red steel ring.

Item Slot: Ring 21,000 gp

Property: As a standard action, ignite any unattended combustible object (such as cloth, oil, paper, tinder, or a torch) that you touch.

Power (Daily ✦ Fire): Standard Action. Make an attack: Close blast 3; Constitution + 4 or Charisma + 4 vs. Reflex; on a hit, the target takes 1d10 + Constitution modifier or Charisma modifier fire damage and ongoing 5 fire damage (save ends); on a miss, the target takes half damage and no ongoing damage.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, a hit deals 1d10 + Constitution modifier or Charisma modifier fire damage and ongoing 10 fire damage (save ends). On a miss, deal half damage and ongoing 5 fire damage (save ends).

Ring of Forgetful Touch Level 16

This unassuming copper band makes your words more convincing, and even temporarily erases the memory of an unwitting target.

Item Slot: Ring 45,000 gp
Property: Gain a +1 item bonus to Bluff checks.
Power (Daily ✦ Charm): Standard Action. Make an attack: Melee 1; Dexterity + 4 vs. Will; on a hit, the target forgets everything that took place in the last minute and is surprised until the end of your next turn.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, the subject does not notice the memory loss and does not regain the memory until 1 minute has passed.

Ring of Heroic Insight Level 21

While wearing this scored adamantine trinket, you more easily notice weaknesses—mental, physical, or social.

Item Slot: Ring 225,000 gp
Property: Gain a +3 item bonus to Insight checks.
Power (Daily): Minor Action. Choose a target. Gain a +2 power bonus to attack rolls and a +6 power bonus to damage rolls against that target until the end of your next turn. If the target is an object, instead apply a +6 power bonus to Strength checks to break it.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, instead gain a +3 power bonus to attack rolls, and a +8 bonus to damage rolls, or to Strength checks to break.

Ring of Perfect Grip Level 14

This rough alloy band gives you a grip of steel when you are about to fall.

Item Slot: Ring 21,000 gp
Property: Gain a +5 item bonus to saving throws to catch yourself from falling.
Power (Daily): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when you would be forced over a precipice or into a pit. You automatically succeed on the saving throw to catch yourself from falling.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, you do not fall prone when you catch yourself from falling.

Ring of Personal Gravity Level 16

This gray metal band keeps your enemies within reach.

Item Slot: Ring 45,000 gp
Property: When an effect forces you to move—through a pull, a push, or a slide—you can move 1 square less than the effect specifies.
Power (Daily): Minor Action. You and enemies adjacent to you or marked by you are either slowed or immobilized (your choice). For marked enemies, save ends. For adjacent enemies, no saving throw is allowed. As a free action, you can end the effect of this power on you and all affected creatures.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, while you are under the effect of this power's condition, any newly marked enemies or enemies that move adjacent to you are also affected by the chosen condition.

Ring of Ramming Level 18

This iron ring is inlaid with the image of a ram's head.

Item Slot: Ring 85,000 gp
Property: When you push a target, you can increase the distance pushed by 1 square.
Power (Daily ✦ Force): Standard Action. Make an attack: Ranged 10; +21 vs. Fortitude; on a hit, the target takes 3d10 force damage and is pushed 1 square (this distance can be increased by the ring's property). You can instead use this power to make a Strength attack to break down a door or other object using the same attack bonus.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, a hit deals 5d10 force damage and pushes the target 3 squares (which can be increased by the ring's property).

Ring of Retreat Level 17

This silver ring allows you to teleport farther. It can also transport you and your allies to a distant redoubt.

Item Slot: Ring 65,000 gp
Property: When you use a teleport power, you can increase the distance teleported by 1 square.
Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): Standard Action. You teleport to a predetermined location, set into the ring at its creation. This location cannot be determined through examination of the ring. For up to ten hours after, you can spend another standard action to teleport back to your original location. You can reset a ring's target location with the Enchant Magic Item ritual. The component cost to perform the ritual for this purpose is 32,500 gp.
If you've reached at least two milestones today, teleport yourself and up to 7 allies.

Ring of Shadow Guard Level 18

While wearing this dark iron ring, your shadow is infused with black tendrils from the Shadowfell.

Item Slot: Ring 85,000 gp
Property: Gain resist 10 cold and resist 10 necrotic.
Power (Daily ✦ Cold, Necrotic): Standard Action. You infuse your shadow with the essence of the Shadowfell. Until the end of your next turn, any enemy that starts its turn or moves adjacent to you takes 2d10 cold and necrotic damage.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, you also gain 15 temporary hit points. This benefit lasts until none of these temporary hit points remain or until you take an extended rest.

Ring of Shadow Travel Level 15

This dark iron ring lets you disappear into the shadows.

Item Slot: Ring 25,000 gp
Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to Stealth checks.
Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): Move Action. Teleport 4 squares. If the space you teleport from is not brightly lit, you can teleport 8 squares. You cannot teleport to a brightly lit space. If you've reached at least one milestone today, double all teleport distances of this power.

Ring of ramming

Ring of Spell Storing — Level 20

This intricate wooden ring stores a measure of arcane power that can be unlocked in a time of need.

Item Slot: Ring 125,000 gp

Property: During an extended rest, you can store one at-will or encounter arcane power in this ring for future use. You can place a power that you know into the ring as long as the power's level is no higher than the ring's level. The name of the power currently contained in the ring appears in etched Elven script on the inside of the band.

Power (Daily ✦ Arcane): Standard Action. Use the arcane power stored in the ring as long as the stored power's level is no higher than your level. If the stored arcane power is an encounter power, you must expend an action point to unlock it. Use the stored arcane power as normal, but replace any required implement and its enhancement bonus with this ring and a +4 enhancement bonus.

Once the stored arcane power is used, another arcane power must be stored in the ring before it can be used again. If a new arcane power is stored before a previously stored one is used, the previously stored power is lost.

If you've reached at least one milestone today, gain a +1 bonus to the attack roll of the stored power.

Ring of Spell Storing, Greater — Level 30

This handsome gold ring contains a measure of arcane power that can be unlocked in a time of need.

Item Slot: Ring 3,125,000 gp

Property: During an extended rest, you can store one at-will or encounter arcane power that you know in this ring for future use. The name of the power currently contained in the ring appears in luminous Elven script on the inside of the band.

Power (Daily ✦ Arcane): Standard Action. Use the arcane power stored in the ring as long as the stored power's level is no higher than your level. If the stored arcane power is an encounter power, you must expend an action point to unlock it. Use the stored arcane power as normal, but replace any required implement and its enhancement bonus with this ring and a +6 enhancement bonus.

Once the stored arcane power is used, another arcane power must be stored in the ring before it can be used again. If a new arcane power is stored before a previously stored one is used, the previously stored power is lost.

If you've reached at least one milestone today, gain a +1 bonus to the attack roll of the stored power.

Ring of Tenacious Will — Level 21

Striped with platinum and amber, this band allows you to survive on force of personality rather than toughness of body.

Item Slot: Ring  225,000 gp
Property: Use Charisma instead of Constitution to determine the number of healing surges you possess.
Power (Daily ✦ Healing): No Action. Use this power when you would be reduced to 0 hit points or fewer. You are reduced to 1 hit point instead.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, you also regain a number of hit points equal to your level.

Ring of the Dragonborn Emperor — Level 15

Modelled after the signet rings worn by the dragonborn emperors of Arkhosia, this item enhances your attacks, particularly if you are a dragonborn.

Item Slot: Ring  25,000 gp
Property: Gain a +3 item bonus to damage rolls with close attacks. If you are dragonborn, gain a +5 item bonus to damage rolls with your dragon breath.
Power (Daily): Immediate Reaction. Use this power when you become bloodied. Use one of your encounter powers. If you've reached at least one milestone today, you can use an encounter power that you have already expended. If you use a power that has not already been expended, you don't expend the use of that power.

Ring of the Phoenix — Level 27

This red and gold ring is etched with the symbol of a fiery bird.

Item Slot: Ring  1,625,000 gp
Property: You gain resist 15 fire.
Power (Daily ✦ Fire): No Action. Use this power when you die or when you are dying. Your body burns away to ash. On the start of your next turn, you appear in a burst of flame within 5 squares of your last location with a number of hit points equal to your healing surge value.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, the burst of flame surrounding your return is treated as an attack: Close burst 2; Constitution + 6 or Charisma + 6 vs. Reflex; the target takes 4d10 + Constitution modifier or Charisma modifier fire damage on a hit, or half damage on a miss.

Ring of the Protector — Level 18

Creations of the eladrin, these paired mithral and jade rings bond you to another.

Item Slot: Ring 85,000 gp

Property: Each of these rings is part of a set of two. As a minor action, a ring wearer can ascertain the following information:

✦ The current hit points and general status (alive, dying, or dead) of the other ring wearer

✦ The number of healing surges the other ring wearer has remaining

✦ Any effects currently affecting the other ring wearer

✦ The current emotional state of the other ring wearer

✦ The straight-line distance to the other ring wearer. If the other ring wearer is on a different plane, neither the distance nor the specific plane can be ascertained.

Special: These rings come in pairs. If one ring is disenchanted, the other loses all its magic. The cost covers a set of rings.

Power (Daily ✦ Teleportation): Standard Action. Teleport to a square adjacent to the wearer of the other ring, regardless of distance.

If you've reached at least one milestone today, this power uses a minor action.

Ring of the Spectral Hand — Level 19

With a silent command, this onyx band conjures a translucent hand, and sometimes a spectral eye as well.

Item Slot: Ring 105,000 gp

Property: Gain resist 10 radiant.

Power (Daily ✦ Conjuration): Free Action. A spectral hand appears in any square you can see within 6 squares of you and casts a power with the implement keyword that you know. Use the square occupied by the spectral hand to determine line of effect and cover for your attack. You expend the power as normal.

If you've reached at least one milestone today, a spectral eye also appears in the same square. Use that square to determine line of sight and concealment for your attack.

Ring of Vigilant Defense — Level 17

This large ring is composed of overlapping miniature iron, steel, mithral, and adamantine shields.

Item Slot: Ring 65,000 gp

Property: Gain a +4 item bonus to all defenses when using total defense.

Power (Daily): Minor Action. Gain a +2 bonus to all defenses until the start of your next turn.

If you've reached at least one milestone today, gain a +3 power bonus to all defenses until the end of your next turn.

Ritualist's Ring — Level 24

This engraved mahogany ring allows you to cast rituals more quickly and easily.

Item Slot: Ring 525,000 gp

Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to checks to perform rituals.

Power (Daily): Free Action. Reduce by half the time necessary to perform a ritual.

If you've reached at least one milestone today, also reduce the component cost by half.

Shadow Band — Level 27

This smoky obsidian ring envelops you in shadows, making you difficult to discern.

Item Slot: Ring 1,625,000 gp

Property: Gain concealment.

Power (Daily): Minor Action. Gain total concealment until the end of your next turn.

If you've reached at least one milestone today, this benefit lasts until the end of the encounter.

Sorrowsworn Ring — Level 25

You can siphon life force from those you kill using this loop of black feathers bearing two gleaming jet gems.

Item Slot: Ring 625,000 gp

Property: Gain darkvision and a +4 item bonus to Intimidate checks.

Power (Daily): Immediate Reaction. Use this power when you reduce a creature to 0 or fewer hit points. That creature dies and you gain a number of temporary hit points equal to your healing surge value.

If you've reached at least one milestone today, this power can be used as an immediate interrupt when you would be reduced to 0 or fewer hit points. Gain a number of temporary hit points equal to your healing surge value.

Star Ruby Ring — Level 19

This handsome ruby ring is favored by courtiers who rise and fall by the favor they earn with their honeyed words.

Item Slot: Ring 105,000 gp

Property: Gain a +2 item bonus to Diplomacy checks.

Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when making a Charisma-based skill check during a skill challenge. You can roll twice and take the better result.

If you've reached at least one milestone today, a successful roll on the skill challenge counts for two victories.

ANNE STOKES

War Ring Level 16

This steel band, emblazoned with a stylized sword, makes your attacks even more lethal.

Item Slot: Ring 45,000 gp

Property: When you score a critical hit, deal 1 extra die of critical hit damage, based on the weapon or implement you wield. If your weapon or implement deals no extra damage when you score a critical hit, deal an extra 1d6 damage when you score a critical hit.

Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you score a critical hit with a weapon or implement. Add 2 extra dice of critical hit damage based on the weapon or implement. If your weapon or implement deals no extra damage when you score a critical hit, deal an extra 2d6 damage when you score a critical hit.
If you've reached at least one milestone today, instead of rolling the extra dice of critical hit damage, deal extra damage equal to the maximum value of those dice.

WAIST SLOT ITEMS

Magic belts are great utility items. Wear one, and you'll never get caught with your pants down.

Waist slot items augment healing, defenses, and one's ability to face physical challenges, such as escaping a grab, carrying a heavy load, or resisting a bull rush. Although waist items might seem to be oriented toward defenders and characters who use martial powers, many spellcasters learn to appreciate the healing or resistance afforded by a magic belt, girdle, or baldric.

Property: Gain a +1 bonus to Fortitude defense.
Level 18: +2 bonus to Fortitude defense.
Level 28: +3 bonus to Fortitude defense.

Belt of Vitality — Level 23

This belt helps you keep death at bay.

Item Slot: Waist 425,000 gp

Property: Gain a +2 bonus to Fortitude defense.

Power (Daily ✦ Healing): No Action. Use this power when you make a death saving throw. Spend a healing surge.

ED COX

Centering Cincture Level 8

With this simple sash, you fend off attacks against your body.

Item Slot: Waist 3,400 gp

Power (Daily): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when you are hit by an attack. Gain a +4 power bonus to your Fortitude defense until the end of your next turn.

Cincture of the Dragon Spirit Level 6

This scaly belt infuses you with the ferocity of a dragon.

Item Slot: Waist 1,800 gp

Property: You can use your Strength modifier instead of your Charisma modifier when making Intimidate checks.

Cincture of Vivacity Level 14

Wearing this heavy damask wrap, you can exceed your body's normal recuperative ability.

Item Slot: Waist 21,000 gp

Property: When you spend a healing surge and regain hit points above your maximum hit points, you can keep the extra hit points as temporary hit points until the end of the encounter.

Cingulum of Combat Rushing Level 12

This heavily decorated belt pushes you straight through your foes.

Item Slot: Waist 13,000 gp

Power (Daily): Minor Action. You can move into squares occupied by enemies until the end of your next turn. Your movement provokes opportunity attacks as normal, and you cannot end your move in an occupied space.

Contortionist's Cord Level 7

This extremely flexible snakeskin binding allows you to quickly squeeze through even the tightest spots.

Item Slot: Waist 2,600 gp

Property: While squeezing, you move at full speed and do not take penalties to attack rolls, but you still grant combat advantage.

Cord of Divine Favor Level 13

A healer's garment, this cinch lets you tend to yourself as you aid others.

Item Slot: Waist 17,000 gp

Power (Encounter ✦ Healing): Free Action. Use this power when you use healing word on an ally or use another power that grants an ally the use of a healing surge. You can spend a healing surge as well and regain hit points equal to your healing surge value.

Cord of Foresight Level 18

With the insight provided by this woven silk belt, you brace your body for physical danger.

Item Slot: Waist 85,000 gp

Property: After each extended rest, deduct 1 healing surge and gain temporary hit points equal to your healing surge value. These temporary hit points remain until lost, or until you take an extended rest.

Girdle of the Dragon Level 16+

The translucent visage of a young dragon surrounds your body as you unleash the draconic spirit embodied in this magic item.

Lvl 16 45,000 gp Lvl 26 1,125,000 gp

Item Slot: Waist

Property: Gain a +2 bonus to Fortitude defense.

Power (Daily): Standard Action. Make two attack rolls: Melee 1; Strength + 3 vs. AC; on a hit, the target takes 3d6 + Strength modifier damage. If both attacks hit the same target, the target is grabbed (until escape).
Level 26: Strength + 6 vs. AC, 3d10 + Strength modifier damage.

Girdle of the Oxen Level 5

With this belt, you can bull rush enemies farther than normal.

Item Slot: Waist 1,000 gp

Property: When you bull rush a target, you push it 1 additional square.

Girdle of the Umber Hulk Level 15+

This belt, cut from the carapace of an umber hulk, grants you the power to tunnel through the ground.

Lvl 15 25,000 gp Lvl 25 625,000 gp

Item Slot: Waist

Property: Gain a +2 bonus to Fortitude defense.

Power (Daily): Minor Action. Gain a burrow speed equal to half your speed. You cannot dig through solid rock or shift while burrowing. Sustain minor.
Level 25: Gain a burrow speed equal to your speed. You can dig through solid rock at half your burrow speed.

Goliath's Belt Level 9

This hide belt makes it easier for you to push people around.

Item Slot: Waist 4,200 gp

Property: You gain a +2 item bonus on Strength attacks to bull rush or grab a target. In addition, you can attempt to bull rush or grab a target up to two sizes larger than you.

Healer's Sash — Level 11+

With this white homespun wrap, you can keep your allies going long after they have exhausted their healing resources.

Lvl 11 9,000 gp Lvl 21 225,000 gp
Item Slot: Waist
Property: This sash can have no more than 5 charges at one time and resets to 1 charge after an extended rest.
Power (At-Will): Standard Action. You or an adjacent ally expends a healing surge but does not regain hit points as normal. Instead, add 1 charge to this sash.
Power (Encounter ✦ Healing): Immediate Reaction. Use this power when an ally within 5 squares of you takes damage. Expend 1 charge from the belt. The ally regains hit points as though he or she had spent a healing surge, and regains an extra 1d6 hit points.
Level 21: +2d6 hit points.

Muleback Harness — Level 2+

This unadorned leather harness allows you to carry and drag heavier loads.

Lvl 2 520 gp Lvl 22 325,000 gp
Lvl 12 13,000 gp
Item Slot: Waist
Property: When determining your normal load, heavy load, or maximum drag load (PH 222), treat your Strength score as 5 points higher.
Level 12: 10 points higher.
Level 22: 15 points higher.

Reality Cord — Level 15

First crafted by the gith races, this waistband roots you in a reality that doesn't recognize the place of aberrant creatures.

Item Slot: Waist 25,000 gp
Property: Gain a +1 item bonus to damage rolls, Fortitude defense, and Will defense against aberrant creatures.
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you fail a saving throw against an effect placed on you by an aberrant creature. Reroll the saving throw with a +5 power bonus, using the second result even if it's lower.

Reinforcing belt

ED COX

Reinforcing Belt — Level 9

This sturdy belt offers magical protection when you need it most.

Item Slot: Waist 4,200 gp
Property: Only the wearer of this belt can remove it. If the wearer is dead, anyone else can remove the belt as a standard action.
Property: Enemies cannot perform a coup de grace against you while you are helpless.

Rogue's Belt — Level 11

No one can hold you, no chains can restrain you, and no bars can contain you while you wear this slick belt.

Item Slot: Waist 9,000 gp
Property: You can attempt to escape a grab or restraints as a minor action.

Rope of Slave Fighting — Level 7+

You fight as well on your back as on your feet while wearing this frayed rope belt.

Lvl 7 2,600 gp Lvl 17 65,000 gp
Item Slot: Waist
Property: You do not take the -2 penalty to attack rolls while prone.
Level 17: You also do not grant combat advantage while prone.

Sash of Ensnarement — Level 8

While wearing this long braided wrap, your reach rarely exceeds your grasp.

Item Slot: Waist 3,400 gp
Property: Gain reach 2 for purposes of grab attacks. Also, you do not need a free hand to make a grab attack.
Power (Daily): Free Action. Use this power when you would spend a minor action to sustain a grab. The sash detaches from you and sustains the grab for you. You no longer need to sustain the grab or remain adjacent to the creature. During this time, you do not benefit from the sash's property. The sash uses your Fortitude and Reflex defenses for resisting the creature's escape. It holds the creature in place until you command it to cease or the creature escapes, at which time the sash returns to you.

Shielding girdle

Shielding Girdle Level 10

This item helps you turn away physical attacks.

Item Slot: Waist 5,000 gp

Power (Daily): Immediate Interrupt. Use this power when you would be hit by an attack. Gain a +4 power bonus to AC until the end of your next turn.

Bottled Smoke Level 17

This brass bottle is hot to the touch, spewing forth a cloud of ash and smoke when opened.

Wondrous Item 65,000 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Fire, Zone): Standard Action. When you uncork the bottle, hot smoke fills a close burst 3 until the end of your next turn. This zone of smoke provides concealment to all creatures within it. Any creature other than you that starts its turn within the smoke takes 2d6 fire damage.

Sustain Minor: You must be within 10 squares of the zone to sustain it.

Bowl of Purity Level 10

This plain earthenware bowl can purify food and drink.

Wondrous Item 5,000 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. When you place food or drink within the bowl of purity, it is cleansed of poison and diseases of 10th level or lower.

Bridle of Conjuration Level 4

This simple leather bridle conjures a magical mount for your use.

Wondrous Item 840 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Conjuration): As a standard action, you conjure a riding horse (MM 159) in a space adjacent to you. The bridle transforms into the mount's tack and saddle. The horse serves you, obeying your spoken commands to the best of its ability, though it does not attack even in defense. The horse disappears after 12 hours or if reduced to 0 hit or fewer points.

Charm of Abundant Action Level 28

This plain metal charm allows you to outrun or outfight your foes.

Wondrous Item 2,125,000 gp

Power (Encounter): Free Action. Use this power on your turn to spend an action point (assuming you have one available). You can spend the action point even if you spent an action point earlier in the encounter. You must be holding the charm when you spend the second action point.

Chime of Awakening Level 4

This silver chime sounds an alarm in the minds of you and your resting allies.

Wondrous Item 840 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. You set the chime of awakening to ring when a specific trigger occurs within 10 squares of it. Example triggers include the presence of anyone other than you and your allies, the light of the sun touching the area, or the appearance of a specific character or type of creature. The chime rings in the minds of you and all allies within 10 squares of it. You and affected allies are instantly awoken (if asleep) and alert.

The chime of awakening can be fooled by creatures in disguise. It makes active Perception checks with a +10 modifier.

Chime of Opening Level 25

The subtle tone of this fluted mithral chime can overcome traps, wards, and the toughest locks.

Wondrous Item 625,000 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. When you strike the chime, you direct it to open a single locked or trapped door, chest, gate, or other object within 5 squares of you. Make a single Thievery check with a +30 modifier against the DCs required to open the object and disable any traps on it. Depending on the DCs, it is possible for the chime to unlock an object but not disable the traps on it (or vice versa), or to disable some traps but leave others intact.

Chime of Warding Level 10

The air around you shimmers with protective force when you strike this golden chime.

Wondrous Item 5,000 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Zone): As a standard action, strike this chime to create a close burst 2 that lasts until the end of your next turn. Any enemy that enters the zone is attacked: +15 vs. Fortitude. A hit pushes the target 1 square away from the center of the burst and immobilizes it until the start of its next turn. If you or any ally makes an attack while in the zone, the effect ends. Sustain standard.

Crystal Ball of Spying Level 10+

This clear crystal orb flickers with the hazy images of distant people and places.

Lvl 10 5,000 gp Lvl 20 125,000 gp

Wondrous Item

Property: When you use this crystal ball as a focus for a scrying ritual, gain a +2 item bonus to Arcana checks made during that ritual. The value of this crystal ball must meet the focus cost requirement for the ritual, as normal.

Level 20: +4 item bonus.

Darkskull Level 9

Darkness swells around this menacing onyx skull.

Wondrous Item 4,200 gp

Power (Encounter ✦ Illusion): As a minor action, you cause all active light sources within 10 squares of you to be suppressed until the end of the encounter. Light sources activated after you use this power function normally.

Deadblast Bone Level 19

This rune-scarred bone has the power to temporarily stun undead.

Wondrous Item 105,000 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. Make an attack: Close burst 5; targets undead creatures; +22 vs. Will; on a hit, the target is stunned until the end of your next turn or until it is attacked, whichever comes first.

Death Rattle Level 8

Bone shards clatter within this black-beaded rattle, making your necrotic attacks more potent.

Wondrous Item 3,400 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Necrotic): Minor Action. You and all allies within 10 squares of you gain a +1 power bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls with powers that have the necrotic keyword. This effect lasts until the end of your next turn. Sustain minor.

Diamond Scabbard — Level 25

A blade drawn from this diamond-studded scabbard is granted an incomparable magical edge.

Wondrous Item 625,000 gp

Property: This scabbard resizes to fit any light blade or heavy blade. You can draw a weapon from this scabbard as part of the same action used to make an attack with that weapon.

Power (Encounter): Free Action. Use this power when you attack with the weapon most recently sheathed in the scabbard. Gain a +5 power bonus to the next damage roll you make with that weapon before the end of your next turn.

The weapon must have been sheathed in the scabbard within the past 24 hours to gain this power.

Drum of Panic — Level 13

Covered with the hide of a cacklefiend hyena, this drum strikes fear into the hearts of your enemies.

Wondrous Item 17,000 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Fear): Minor Action. When you strike the drum, you and each ally within 10 squares of you gain a +2 power bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls with powers that have the fear keyword. This effect lasts until the end of your next turn. Sustain minor.

Dust of Arcane Insight — Level 8

This foil pouch periodically renews a supply of metallic dust that attunes you to arcane effects.

Wondrous Item 3,400 gp

Power (3/Day): Standard Action. Pull out and toss a pinch of dust into the air above you. You gain the ability to detect magic for 5 minutes even if you are not trained in the Arcana skill. You also gain a +2 power bonus to Arcana checks made to identify a conjuration or zone, identify a magical effect, or sense the presence of magic (see the Arcana skill entry, PH 181).

A pouch of dust of arcane insight can be used three times per day.

Dust of Banishment — Level 25

The crimson powder periodically renewed by this red leather pouch can banish a creature to a fiery prison.

Wondrous Item 625,000 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. You sprinkle a handful of this dust on an adjacent creature. Make an attack: Melee 1; +28 vs. Will; on a hit, the target is banished to a fiery corner of the Elemental Chaos, where it is stunned and takes ongoing 10 fire damage. A save ends both effects and returns the target to its original location or the closest unoccupied space.

Dust of Creation — Level 18

This clear bottle periodically renews a supply of golden sand that can transform into any object.

Wondrous Item 85,000 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Conjuration): Standard Action. When you toss a handful of this dust into the air, it settles in the form of any mundane nonmagical object with a weight of up to 25 pounds. The fully functional object glows faintly and radiates magic that can be detected with a DC 24 Arcana check. The object lasts for 24 hours or until you will it back to dust (a minor action).

Dust of Disenchantment — Level 10

The sparkling silver dust periodically renewed within this leather pouch can suppress the effects of magic.

Wondrous Item 5,000 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. Sprinkle a pinch of this dust on an adjacent object or magical effect. Make an attack: Dexterity vs. Reflex. If you are targeting a held item, make the attack against the creature holding it. If you are targeting an unattended magic item or magical effect, use a Reflex defense of 10 + the level of the object or effect. A hit renders that object or effect inert (save ends). An inert magic item loses any properties and enhancement bonus, and its powers cannot be activated. An inert magical effect is suppressed.

Special: You can use a dose of dust of disenchantment in place of the required component cost for a Disenchant Magic Item ritual.

Earthbind Lodestone — Level 18

When thrown to the ground, this smooth metallic stone hits with such force that it knocks airborne creatures from the sky.

Wondrous Item 85,000 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. Throw this stone to the ground in your square and make an attack: Close burst 5; affects creatures with a fly speed; +23 vs. Fortitude; on a hit, the target loses the ability to fly or hover until the start of its next turn. If a target is airborne when it is hit, it falls.

Enchanted Reins — Level 5

Made of woven silver and black leather, these reins can help tame even the most savage beast.

Wondrous Item 1,000 gp

Property: These reins resize to fit any Small, Medium, or Large natural beast. All Nature checks made to handle a natural beast fitted with the enchanted reins gain a +2 item bonus.

Endless Canteen Level 9

This mundane-looking canteen pours forth water in a seemingly limitless stream.

Wondrous Item 4,200 gp

Power (At-Will): Standard Action. When you open its stopper, the endless canteen pours out up to 1 pint of cool, clean water. Any water that has not been consumed within 1 hour of its creation disappears.

Endless Quiver Level 9

This elven-styled quiver can create an endless supply of normal arrows or bolts.

Wondrous Item 4,200 gp

Power (At-Will ✦ Conjuration): Free Action. Use this power as part of your action when you attack with a bow or crossbow. When you reach into the endless quiver, it automatically produces a single arrow or bolt, as appropriate. Ammunition created by the quiver that is not used within 1 round of its creation disappears.

Enshrouding Candle Level 7

This everburning candle creates a dim corona of light that helps conceal you from foes.

Wondrous Item 2,600 gp

Property: This candle sheds dim light in a 2-square radius, but it never burns down. Bright light within the candle's radius is reduced to dim light.

Power (Daily ✦ Illusion): Standard Action. When the enshrouding candle is lit, it generates an illusion within the area of its illumination. Creatures within the area are invisible to those outside the area, though other features within the area appear as normal. Sound (including speech) within the area is likewise inaudible to those outside. Creatures within the area are unaffected by the illusion and can perceive each other normally.

Other senses are unaffected by the enshrouding candle. For example, a creature with tremorsense could locate characters in the area normally. Likewise, if characters within the area move objects around them, those moving objects can be seen.

The candle burns for 8 hours or until it is moved or extinguished (a minor action). If any character within the area of the illusion attacks, the candle is automatically extinguished.

Eternal Chalk Level 1

Vandals, scholars, and explorers alike appreciate the magical longevity of this short stick of chalk.

Wondrous Item 360 gp

Property: A stick of eternal chalk never breaks or wears down with normal use. Any writing or drawing made with this chalk cannot be erased for one week by anyone except the original artist or author.

A stick of eternal chalk can be created in any color.

Exodus Knife Level 12

This insubstantial silver blade appears to cut through solid walls.

Wondrous Item 13,000 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. When you use the exodus knife to trace a doorway onto a solid object, it opens a portal into an empty extradimensional space 4 squares wide, 4 squares high, and 4 squares long.

While the door is open, anyone can enter, see into, or affect the extradimensional space. Only creatures inside the space can open or close the door (a minor action). Once closed, the door becomes invisible to anyone outside the extradimensional space. Creatures on the inside of the closed door can see out, but those outside can't see in. Creatures on one side of the closed door cannot affect creatures on the other side.

The extradimensional space lasts for 8 hours. Any creatures still in the space when the effect ends reappear in the closest unoccupied squares outside the door.

Fan of the Four Winds Level 8

A wave of this fan sends a blast of air against a foe.

Wondrous Item 3,400 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. Sweep this fan through the air and make an attack against a Large or smaller creature: Ranged 5; +13 vs. Fortitude; on a hit, you push the target 2 squares. Until the start of your next turn, each time the target moves a square closer to you, it must pay 1 extra square of movement. Sustain standard. If you end your turn more than 5 squares from the target, the effect ends.

Floating Lantern Level 3

This silver lantern floats in midair under your control.

Wondrous Item 680 gp

Property: This lantern never needs lighting or refilling. When you let go of the lantern, it continues to hang in the air where you leave it. If weight in excess of 1 pound is applied to the lantern, it falls to the ground.

Power (At-Will): Minor Action. While you hold the floating lantern or are adjacent to it, you can set its light to be bright (10-square radius), dim (5-square radius), or off.

Power (At-Will): Move Action. The last creature to hold the lantern can mentally command it to move up to 10 squares in any direction, but not more than 10 squares from it.

Flying Hook Level 15

This grappling hook flies through the air and can latch onto almost anything.

Wondrous Item 25,000 gp

Power (At-Will): Minor Action. You command the flying hook to fly 10 squares (up to a maximum distance of 20 squares from you) and magically latch onto the surface of any unattended object in your line of sight. Once secured, the flying hook extends a thin rope back to your hands. The rope can be climbed with an Athletics check, or it can be used to pull the object toward you with a Strength check. The hook and rope can support up to 3,000 pounds before the hook detaches from the surface. The rope cannot be tied or knotted in any way, nor can it be used to attack or affect a creature.

Power (At-Will): Minor Action. On your command, the hook detaches from a surface and returns to your hand. This causes the rope to retract.

Foe Stone Level 12

This lodestone is set into a chain, and when aimed toward an enemy, it grants you understanding of your foes' weaknesses.

Wondrous Item 13,000 gp

Power (At-Will): Minor Action. Choose one creature you can see. You learn all the target's vulnerabilities, as well as which of its defenses is lowest.

Fragrance of Authority Level 12

This opaque alabaster bottle periodically renews a subtle perfume that can influence the reactions of others.

Wondrous Item 13,000 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. Apply the perfume to yourself or an adjacent ally. The target gains a +2 power bonus to Bluff, Diplomacy, or Intimidate checks (the target's choice) for 1 hour.

Gem of Auditory Recollection Level 16

This rough-cut quartz gemstone echoes with faint voices when held to the ear.

Wondrous Item 45,000 gp

Power (At-Will): Standard Action. Use this power to record all words spoken by one creature within 20 squares of you. You can end the transcription as a free action. The gem can record 12 hours of speech before becoming full.

Power (At-Will): Standard Action. Use this power to make the gem repeat a section of recorded text aloud in the exact voice and language of the original speaker. The gem continues its recitation until the section is finished or until you use a free action to stop it.

Power (At-Will): Standard Action. Erase all speech recorded by the gem.

Golden Spade Level 14

This magic shovel instantly clears away a section of earth, ice, or sand to create a deep trench.

Wondrous Item 21,000 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. Plunge the golden spade into the ground to create a pit that fills squares in a close burst 2, 3, or 4 (your choice). The pit is 2 squares deep. The pit can only form in an area of earth, ice, or sand. Any creature on the ground whose space is entirely within the bounds of the pit falls into the pit unless it makes a saving throw to catch itself (see Falling, PH 284).

Harmonious Harp Level 9

The melodious tones of this harp fortify your senses and your mind.

Wondrous Item 4,200 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. When you strum this harp, you and every ally within 10 squares of you can make a saving throw against an effect with the charm or fear keyword that a save can end. You and affected allies also gain resist 10 psychic until the end of your next turn.

DREW BAKER

Foe stone

Horn of Blasting Level 17

This adamantine-trimmed hunting horn unleashes a powerful blast of thunder when blown.

Wondrous Item 65,000 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Thunder): Standard Action. When you sound the horn, make an attack: Close blast 5; +19 vs. Fortitude; on a hit, the target takes 2d10 thunder damage and is dazed and deafened until the end of your next turn; on a miss, the target takes half damage and is deafened until the end of your next turn. On a critical hit, the target is also pushed 1 square and knocked prone.

Horn of Summons Level 7

This steel battle horn alerts even those allies you cannot see.

Wondrous Item 2,600 gp

Power (Encounter): Standard Action. When you sound the horn, all creatures within 1 mile hear its call. Allies within that range are awakened if they are sleeping, and instantly know your current location, hit point total, and any effects currently affecting you.

Horn of Undead Enmity Level 17

The haunting sound of this bone horn forces undead to turn against their own allies.

Wondrous Item 65,000 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Charm): Standard Action. When you sound the horn, make an attack: Close blast 5; targets undead only; +20 vs. Will. On a hit, the target makes its next attack against one of its adjacent allies. If it has no adjacent allies, it charges its nearest ally. If the target can't attack or charge, it moves its speed away from you.

Hunter's Flint Level 2

This chunk of flint strikes sparks that can ignite a magical blaze.

Wondrous Item 520 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Illusion): Standard Action. Use this flint to light a campfire. The fire burns without smoke or sound. The light of this magic campfire is invisible from outside its 10-square radius, though creatures and objects within that radius can be seen normally with darkvision or if existing light allows. The campfire is a normal fire in all other respects. The fire lasts for 12 hours (requiring no additional fuel) or until extinguished normally.
The flint can be used to light lanterns and other fires as normal, but such fires gain no magical effect.

Immovable Shaft Level 12

This 1-foot-long black metal rod can defy gravity, supporting weight and resisting manipulation.

Wondrous Item 13,000 gp

Power (At-Will): Minor Action. Place the immovable shaft into position. It remains in that spot even if such placement defies gravity. You can reposition the immovable shaft using another minor action, but any other creature seeking to move it must succeed on a DC 25 Strength check and spend a standard action to move it 1 square.

Instant Campsite Level 5

This tightly packed satchel expands into a complete campsite that can automatically pack up again.

Wondrous Item 1,000 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. You open the satchel and it magically expands into a complete campsite, including a campfire and four two-person tents with bedrolls. The campfire lasts for up to 12 hours (requiring no fuel) or until you spend another standard action to pack the campsite back into the satchel once more.

Invulnerable Case Level 15

This smooth metal case protects its contents from all but the most devastating damage.

Wondrous Item 25,000 gp

Property: The invulnerable case can hold one item the size of a large book. It opens easily to the touch of one wanting to access its contents, but otherwise stays closed despite any external forces acting on it. The case has resist 30 to all damage and 100 hit points, and it regenerates 10 hit points per hour. As long as the case has at least 1 hit point, any item held within it is immune to damage.

THOMAS DENMARK

Jar of Steam — Level 7

This clay jar is warm to the touch. When opened, it creates a cloud of steam that fills the area around it.

Wondrous Item 2,600 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Zone): Standard Action. When you pull the lid off the jar, hot steam fills a close burst 1 until the end of your next turn. This zone of steam provides concealment to all creatures within it. Any creature other than you that starts its turn within the zone takes 1d6 fire damage. Sustain minor; you must be within 10 squares of the zone.

Lamp of Discerning — Level 5

This plain-looking lantern grants those in its light the ability to see through deception.

Wondrous Item 1,000 gp

Property: This lantern sheds light in a 10-square radius as normal, but it never needs lighting or refilling. You and all allies within the area of illumination gain a +1 power bonus to Insight and Perception checks.

Lantern of Revelation — Level 16

Light from this lantern reveals even the most well-hidden foes.

Wondrous Item 45,000 gp

Property: This lantern sheds light in a 10-square radius as normal, but it never needs lighting or refilling.

Power (Daily): Minor Action. This power creates a close burst 10 that coats all creatures in the area with glowing motes of light (save ends). Affected creatures gain no benefit from concealment or invisibility.

Lens of Discernment — Level 10

This lens reveals useful information regarding a creature you observe.

Wondrous Item 5,000 gp

Power (Encounter): Minor Action. Hold the lens up to a creature that you can see. You gain a +10 power bonus to monster knowledge checks made to identify the creature until the start of your next turn.

RYAN BARGER

Lens of Reading Level 7

Holding this lens to your eye allows you to read even the most complex scripts and obscure languages.

Wondrous Item 2,600 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. Use this power while perusing text written in a language you do not know. For 1 hour, you can read that language as long as you hold the lens of reading.

Special: You can activate the lens of reading in place of the required component cost for a Comprehend Languages ritual.

Map of Orienteering Level 9

As you unfold this sheet of parchment, sepia ink spreads across its surface to depict your immediate surroundings.

Wondrous Item 4,200 gp

Property: As long as it is opened, this map automatically and continuously reproduces the area within 100 feet in all directions. It can reproduce only what you have seen personally, so invisible objects, undiscovered traps or secret doors, and unknown areas around the next corner do not appear on the map. Illusions are faithfully reproduced unless you have previously recognized them as false. Creatures are not shown on the map unless they take the form of objects (for example, a gargoyle in stone form or an earthwind ravager disguised as a pile of rocks) and have not been recognized for what they are.

The map shows the area within 100 feet by default, but you can mentally command it to zoom in or out to display any areas explored within the last 24 hours (a minor action).

The map of orienteering automatically erases and begins redrawing after you take an extended rest, unless you command it to do otherwise.

Mirror of Opposition Level 20

This small, ornately framed mirror briefly reverses your opponent's loyalties.

Wondrous Item 125,000 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Charm): Standard Action. Hold this mirror up to an enemy within 5 squares of you and make an attack against that enemy: Ranged 5; +23 vs. Will; on a hit, the target treats its allies as enemies and its enemies as allies until the end of your next turn. It takes opportunity attacks against its former allies but not against you and your allies. As a free action on the target's turn, you can command the target to make a basic attack (using its standard action for its turn) against any other target or targets of your choice. However, you cannot command the target to use any of its other powers.

Mummified Hand Level 27

This gnarled hand allows you to gain the benefit of a third ring.

Wondrous Item 1,625,000 gp

Property: The mummified hand has one ring item slot that you can use in addition to your own ring item slots. As long as you hold the mummified hand, you gain the benefit and can use the powers of any ring placed on one of its fingers. If two or more rings are placed on the mummified hand, none of the rings function. You cannot benefit from more than one mummified hand.

Phantom Soldier Level 7

This tiny figurine is carved in the shape of a warrior and can be used summon a life-sized illusion of the depicted warrior to distract your enemies in battle.

Wondrous Item 2,600 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Illusion): Minor Action. You must have the figurine in your hand to use this power. An illusory soldier appears in an unoccupied square adjacent to you or an enemy within 5 squares of you. The soldier is treated as one of your allies and can be used to flank enemies, but it does not make attacks.

The illusory soldier has the same defenses as you and 1 hit point. It never takes damage on a miss. Once per round, you can use a minor action to move the soldier up to your speed. The illusory soldier remains until the end of the encounter or for 5 minutes.

Polyglot Gem Level 6

This intricately carved gemstone holds the secrets of language within its many facets.

Wondrous Item 1,800 gp

Property: Each polyglot gem contains the knowledge of one language, chosen when the item is created. As long as you carry the gem on your person, you are able to speak, read, and write that language fluently.

If you carry more than one polyglot gem on your person, none of them function.

Special: If you create a polyglot gem, you can imbue it only with a language you know.

Pouch of Frozen Passage Level 9

This pouch periodically renews a flurry of ice crystals that can freeze any liquid surface.

Wondrous Item 4,200 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. You fling ice crystals from the pouch onto an area of open liquid, freezing up to 20 contiguous squares of the liquid's surface. The frozen surface is normal terrain and can support the weight of up to twenty Medium creatures, five Large creatures, or one Huge creature.

The pouch of frozen passage can solidify any sort of liquid, from water to lava. The frozen surface has the following statistics: AC 3, Fortitude 15, Reflex 3, hp 20 per square. It lasts for 4 hours or until destroyed.

Pouch of Platinum — Level 5

This platinum-embossed leather pouch can convert gems and coins into platinum pieces.

Wondrous Item 1,000 gp

Property: Normal gemstones and coins of any denomination placed into the pouch are converted to an equal value of platinum pieces. Coins or gems that cannot be evenly converted to platinum pieces are unaffected.

Pouches of Shared Acquisition — Level 15

These simple leather pouches share a bond of powerful magic.

Wondrous Item 25,000 gp

Property: These two matched leather pouches magically share the same interior space. Whatever is placed in one pouch (to a maximum weight of 3 pounds) can be accessed from the other pouch regardless of the distance between them, as long as both pouches are on the same plane. If the pouches are on different planes, neither pouch can access the interior space. Only one pouch can be accessed at a time.

Power Jewel — Level 5

Magical energy pulses within this stunning red jewel, allowing you to use a power you have already expended.

Wondrous Item 1,000 gp

Power (Daily): Minor Action. This power allows you to regain the use of an encounter power of 1st or 3rd level.

Special: You must have reached at least one milestone today to activate this item.

Restful Bedroll — Level 1

An extended rest in this magic bedroll grants you extra vitality.

Wondrous Item 360 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. Use this power when you complete an extended rest in the restful bedroll. Gain 1d8 temporary hit points that last until you take another rest (short or extended).

Ruby Scabbard — Level 5

Blood-red rubies adorn this scabbard, their magic granting your blade an extra edge.

Wondrous Item 1,000 gp

Property: This scabbard resizes to fit any light blade or heavy blade. You can draw a weapon from this scabbard as part of the same action used to make an attack with that weapon.

Power (Encounter): Free Action. Use this power when you attack with the weapon most recently sheathed in the scabbard. Gain a +1 power bonus to the next damage roll you make with that weapon before the end of your next turn.

The weapon must have been sheathed in the scabbard within the past 24 hours to gain this power.

Sail of Winds — Level 14

Elemental runes run the length of this fine sail of blue cloth, which fills with its own wind as it is raised.

Wondrous Item 21,000 gp

Property: This sail grants a +2 item bonus to the miles-per-hour speed of any sailing ship it is installed on.

Salve of Power — Level 10

This stoneware jar periodically renews a potent unguent that can restore a character's power.

Wondrous Item 5,000 gp

Power (Daily): Minor Action. When salve of power is applied to a creature, the target can expend one healing surge to regain the use of one daily power of 5th level or lower (instead of regaining hit points). If the target has no healing surges remaining, it cannot benefit from the salve.

Sapphire Scabbard — Level 15

This scabbard bears a matched pair of azure sapphires whose magic imbues your blade with deadly sharpness.

Wondrous Item 25,000 gp

Property: This scabbard resizes to fit any light blade or heavy blade. You can draw a weapon from this scabbard as part of the same action used to make an attack with that weapon.

Power (Encounter): Free Action. Use this power when you attack with the weapon most recently sheathed in the scabbard. Gain a +3 power bonus to the next damage roll you make with that weapon before the end of your next turn.

The weapon must have been sheathed in the scabbard within the past 24 hours to gain this power.

DAVID GRIFFITH

Scabbard of Sacred Might — Level 10

The blade drawn from this simple leather scabbard glows with a sacred radiance.

Wondrous Item 5,000 gp

Property: This scabbard resizes to fit any light blade or heavy blade. You can draw a weapon from this scabbard as part of the same action used to make an attack with that weapon.

Power (Encounter ✦ Radiant): Free Action. Use this power when you attack with the weapon most recently sheathed in the scabbard. The next attack you make with that weapon before the end of your next turn deals radiant damage instead of its normal damage.
The weapon must have been sheathed in the scabbard within the past 24 hours to gain this power.

Shroud of Protection — Level 2

This diaphanous shroud appears insubstantial. Yet when laid over a dying ally, it provides a defense stronger than steel.

Wondrous Item 520 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. When you place the shroud of protection over an adjacent dying creature, that creature gains resist 20 to all damage. This effect lasts until the creature regains consciousness or dies, or until the shroud is removed (a standard action), whichever comes first.

Shroud of Revival — Level 7

This white gossamer shroud grants protection and bodily strength to a dying ally.

Wondrous Item 2,600 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. When you place the shroud of revival over an adjacent dying creature, that creature gains resist 20 to all damage and a +2 power bonus to death saving throws. This effect lasts until the creature regains consciousness or dies, or until the shroud is removed (a standard action), whichever comes first.

Silent Tool — Level 2

This mundane-looking tool muffles the noise you make while you work.

Wondrous Item 520 gp

Property: When used to do the work it was designed for, a silent tool grants the user a +5 power bonus to Stealth checks made while using the tool. Any individual mundane tool—a woodcutter's axe, a crowbar, a grappling hook, a hammer, a shovel, and so on—can be made silent. For example, a silent crowbar could aid attempts to open a locked door without alerting the sleeping monster on the other side, while a silent grappling hook has less chance of being heard by nearby guards.
This property can be applied only to mundane tools. It cannot be placed on weapons, clothing, jewelry, or other mundane objects.

Skeleton Key — Level 10

This ornate ivory key opens locks with ease.

Wondrous Item 5,000 gp

Power (Daily): Standard Action. When you touch the key to a locked door, chest, gate, or other object, make a Thievery check with a +20 bonus against the DC required to open the lock.

Solitaire (Aquamarine) — Level 16

This jagged blue-green crystal lets you intensify your attacks against your foes.

Wondrous Item 45,000 gp

Power (Encounter): Free Action. Use this power when you score a critical hit on your turn. Make a basic attack against the same target struck by your critical hit.

Special: You cannot use more than one solitaire in an encounter.

Solitaire (Cerulean) — Level 21

This rough blue crystal grants you the ability to shake off lingering effects in the thick of combat.

Wondrous Item 225,000 gp

Power (Encounter): Free Action. Use this power when you score a critical hit on your turn. Roll a saving throw against each effect on you that a save can end.

Special: You cannot use more than one solitaire in an encounter.

Solitaire (Cinnabar) — Level 6

This jagged red crystal boosts your resilience when you hit your foes hard.

Wondrous Item 1,800 gp

Power (Encounter): Free Action. Use this power when you score a critical hit on your turn. Roll a saving throw against an effect that a save can end.

Special: You cannot use more than one solitaire in an encounter.

Solitaire (Citrine) — Level 11

This irregular yellow crystal channels healing power to you in battle.

Wondrous Item 9,000 gp

Power (Encounter ✦ Healing): Free Action. Use this power when you score a critical hit on your turn. You spend a healing surge.

Special: You cannot use more than one solitaire in an encounter.

Solitaire (Violet) Level 26

This jagged purple crystal lets you follow up on a successful attack.

Wondrous Item 1,125,000 gp

Power (Encounter): Free Action. Use this power when you score a critical hit on your turn. Gain 1 action point, which you must spend before the end of your turn. This does not count against the normal limit of spending an action point no more than once per encounter.

Special: You cannot use more than one solitaire in an encounter.

Spymaster's Quill Level 10

This ornate quill pen can magically record and reproduce any text or illustration.

Wondrous Item 5,000 gp

Power (At-Will): Standard Action. Pass the spymaster's quill over an amount of text or an illustration equivalent to a single parchment page. The image or text is magically recorded for later reproduction. Recording another page with the quill erases the page already recorded.

Power (At-Will): Standard Action. You point the spymaster's quill at a sheet of parchment or paper and mentally command it to reproduce the illustration or text recorded within it. No matter what the medium of the original (charcoal on paper, runes scribed in stone, and so on), the reproduction is rendered in normal ink.

Special: The reproduction created by the quill is of perfect quality, but the quill cannot record magical properties. For example, you cannot perform a ritual from a ritual scroll recorded and copied by the spymaster's quill, nor can the quill copy powers or rituals from a wizard's spellbook.

Stylus of the Translator Level 7

This writing implement allows you to scribe in translation.

Wondrous Item 2,600 gp

Power (At-Will): Free Action. Whenever you write with the stylus, your writing is automatically translated into another language. Each stylus can translate into only one language, chosen when the item is created.

Special: You must be fluent in the language that you are writing for the stylus to function. For example, you could not copy text in an unknown language and have the stylus translate it into a known language.

Talisman of Fortune Level 15

This small gold talisman renews a magic item or strengthens your health, attacks, and defenses in turn.

Wondrous Item 25,000 gp

Power (Daily): Minor Action. You must spend an action point to use this power. When you do, roll 1d20 and add +1 to the result for each milestone you've reached today. The total result determines the power's effect(s):

1-9: Lose 1 healing surge, or take damage equal to one-quarter of your maximum hit point total if you have no healing surges remaining. Gain one extra daily use of a magic item in your possession (your choice, not including the talisman of fortune) until the end of the encounter. You also renew the power of the talisman.

10-19: Recover one expended healing surge and gain a +1 power bonus to attack rolls and all defenses until the end of your next turn.

20 or higher: As 10-19, and you renew the power of the talisman.

Unfettered Thieves' Tools Level 11

The picks, keys, tweezers, and tongs that comprise this set of thieves' tools move through the air and operate under your mental command.

Wondrous Item 9,000 gp

Property: Like a normal set of thieves' tools, unfettered thieves' tools grant a +2 bonus to Thievery checks made to open locks or disable traps.

Power (Daily): As part of the action required to make a Thievery check, you can make the check on an object up to 5 squares away. You must have line of sight to the object.

Watchful Ruby Eye Level 6

This crimson gem set in gold and silver enhances your warding rituals.

Wondrous Item 1,800 gp

Property: While grasping this gem, any skill check you make as part of a warding ritual gains a +2 power bonus.

Special: The watchful ruby eye can be used as a focus in warding rituals that allow a focus (such as eye of alarm). The value of a watchful ruby eye must meet the focus cost requirement for the ritual, as normal.

Battle Standards

A battle standard is a magic flag flown during combat. The zone of mystical energy created by a battle standard grants a benefit to allies or hinders your foes. A battle standard's magic allows it to be set into any solid surface that is not difficult terrain, even rocky ground or a stone floor. You and your allies can deploy any number of battle standards at one time, and any number of battle standards can be placed in a square, though the standards do not occupy a square.

While deployed, a battle standard has resist 50 to all damage.

BATTLE STANDARDS

| Lvl | Name | Price (gp) |
|---|---|---|
| 2 | Battle standard of honor | 520 |
| 3 | Battle standard of healing | 680 |
| 4 | Battle standard of might | 840 |
| 16 | Battle standard of the fiery legion | 45,000 |
| 17 | Battle standard of shadow | 65,000 |
| 18 | Battle standard of tactics | 85,000 |
| 19 | Battle standard of the stalwart | 105,000 |
| 20 | Battle standard of the vanguard | 125,000 |

Battle Standard of Honor — Level 2

This blood-red banner weakens the resolve of those who fight against you.

Wondrous Item 520 gp

Power (Encounter ✦ Zone): Standard Action. When you plant the battle standard in your space or an adjacent square, it creates a zone of protective energy in a close burst 5. Enemies within the zone that are marked take a -1 penalty to damage rolls against any creature other than the one that marked them.
This effect lasts until the end of the encounter or until the battle standard is removed from the ground. Any character in or adjacent to a battle standard's square can remove it from the ground as a standard action.

Battle Standard of Might — Level 4

This flag is marked with martial runes that inspire strength in you and your allies.

Wondrous Item 840 gp

Power (Encounter ✦ Zone): Standard Action. When you plant the battle standard in your space or an adjacent square, it creates a zone in a close burst 5. While within the zone, you and your allies gain a +1 power bonus on damage rolls.
This effect lasts until the end of the encounter or until the battle standard is removed from the ground. Any character in or adjacent to a battle standard's square can remove it from the ground as a standard action.

Battle Standard of Shadow — Level 17

This silky black flag becomes insubstantial as you raise it, a field of shadow spreading out from it to cover the battlefield.

Wondrous Item 65,000 gp

Power (Encounter ✦ Illusion, Zone): Standard Action. When you plant the battle standard in your space or an adjacent square, it creates a zone of shadow in a close burst 10. Within the zone, all bright light is reduced to dim light, and you and your allies gain low-light vision and a +2 power bonus to Stealth checks.
This effect lasts until the end of the encounter or until the battle standard is removed from the ground. Any character in or adjacent to a battle standard's square can remove it from the ground as a standard action.

Battle Standard of Tactics — Level 18

This long pennant swirls even in still air as it carries your thoughts to your allies.

Wondrous Item 85,000 gp

Power (Encounter ✦ Zone): Standard Action. When you plant the battle standard in your space or an adjacent square, it creates a zone in a close burst 10. You and each ally in the zone gain the ability to communicate telepathically, with no chance of foes hearing your thoughts. You and your allies automatically know each other's positions even if you cannot see one another, and can target one another with powers even without line of sight.
This effect lasts until the end of the encounter or until the battle standard is removed from the ground. Any character in or adjacent to a battle standard's square can remove it from the ground as a standard action.

Battle Standard of the Fiery Legion — Level 16

Swirling with animated flames, this flag lets you and your allies draw on the power of fire.

Wondrous Item 45,000 gp

Power (Encounter ✦ Fire, Zone): Standard Action. When you plant the battle standard in your space or an adjacent square, it creates a zone in a close burst 10. You and each ally in the zone gain resist 10 fire and can choose to have any attack you make deal fire damage instead of its normal damage type.
This effect lasts until the end of the encounter or until the battle standard is removed from the ground. Any character in or adjacent to a battle standard's square can remove it from the ground as a standard action.

Battle Standard of Healing — Level 3

This white flag is emblazoned with sigils of healing that restore the vitality of you and your allies.

Wondrous Item 680 gp

Power (Encounter ✦ Healing, Zone): Standard Action. When you plant the battle standard in your space or an adjacent square, it creates a zone of healing energy in a close burst 5. Whenever you or an ally spends a healing surge while in the zone, you and all allies in the zone regain 1 hit point.

This effect lasts until the end of the encounter or until the battle standard is removed from the ground. Any character in or adjacent to a battle standard's square can remove it from the ground as a standard action.

Battle Standard of the Stalwart — Level 19

This silver and blue banner heightens both courage and resilience.

Wondrous Item 105,000 gp

Power (Encounter ✦ Zone): Standard Action. When you plant the battle standard in your space or an adjacent square, it creates a zone in a close burst 10. While within the zone, you and your allies gain a +1 power bonus to all defenses.

This effect lasts until the end of the encounter or until the battle standard is removed from the ground. Any character in or adjacent to a battle standard's square can remove it from the ground as a standard action.

Battle Standard of the Vanguard — Level 20

The martial runes emblazoned on this bold banner grant combat prowess to those who rally beneath it.

Wondrous Item 125,000 gp

Power (Encounter ✦ Zone): Standard Action. When you plant the battle standard in your space or an adjacent square, it creates a zone in a close burst 10. While within the zone, you and your allies gain a +1 power bonus on attack rolls.

This effect lasts until the end of the encounter or until the battle standard is removed from the ground. Any character in or adjacent to a battle standard's square can remove it from the ground as a standard action.

Figurine of Wondrous Power

These tiny animal statuettes are fashioned from a variety of materials and can be used to conjure the creatures they depict.

When you activate a figurine, the conjured creature appears in a space adjacent to you, provided the space is large enough to contain the creature without squeezing. The creature obeys only you, responding to commands spoken in any language. The creature remains for up to 8 hours or until you use a minor action to dismiss it. The conjured creature acts on the same initiative count as you. Every action it takes costs you a minor action (which you use to issue commands), and a conjured creature cannot exceed its normal allotment of actions (a standard, a move, and a minor action) during its turn. If you spend no minor actions on your turn to command the creature, it remains where it is without taking any actions on its turn.

A conjured creature has hit points, defenses, and attacks as indicated in its statistics block. It has no healing surges and cannot be healed, though it can still benefit from temporary hit points. When reduced to 0 hit points or fewer, the conjured creature disappears and cannot be conjured again until after you've taken an extended rest.

Conjured creatures lack basic attacks and therefore cannot make opportunity attacks.

Mount: If the conjured creature has the mount keyword, you can ride the creature and are considered to have the Mounted Combat feat while mounted on it. While mounted, you can command the creature using free actions, though the mount is still limited to its normal allotment of actions. You can choose to be mounted on the creature when it appears.

Bag of Tricks

These small leather bags come in a variety of colors, gray being the most common. You can use a bag of tricks to conjure an obedient beast. You must spend a healing surge to activate the bag's power, and you gain no other benefit for spending the healing surge.

When you use a bag of tricks to conjure a creature, it appears in an unoccupied space within 5 squares of you; the space must be large enough to contain the creature without squeezing. The creature obeys only you, responding to commands spoken in any language. The creature remains until the end of the encounter or for 5 minutes. The conjured creature acts on the same initiative count as you. Every action it takes costs you a minor action (which you use to issue commands), and a conjured creature cannot exceed its normal allotment of actions (a standard, a move, and a minor action) during its turn. If you spend no minor actions on your turn to command the creature, it remains where it is without taking any actions on its turn.

A conjured creature is a minion (MM 282). It has no healing surges and cannot be healed, and it cannot gain temporary hit points. When reduced to 0 hit points or fewer, the conjured creature disappears.

If an object is placed in the bag of tricks, the bag ceases to function until the object is removed. A bag of tricks used for simple storage holds up to 3 pounds.

BAGS OF TRICKS

| Lvl | Name | Price (gp) |

| 28 | Bag of tricks, vermilion | 2,125,000 |

Bag of Tricks, Gray Level 8

This simple, leather bag produces feral critters that you can send against your enemies.

Wondrous Item 3,400 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Conjuration): Standard Action. Use this bag to conjure a Tiny minion (see below for statistics). Roll a d8 to determine which beast is produced and modify its statistics accordingly:

1: Bat; this creature also has a fly speed of 6.
2: Rat; this creature also has darkvision.
3: Cat; this creature also knocks the target prone on a hit.
4: Weasel; this creature does not provoke opportunity attacks for moving.
5: Snake; this creature also deals 2 poison damage on a hit.
6: Badger; this creature gains a +1 bonus to attack rolls.
7: Spider; this creature also has a climb speed of 6.
8: Scorpion; this creature deals ongoing 1 poison damage (save ends) on a hit.

This beautiful leather bag is inlaid with the images of beasts–not unlike the ones that it can summon to fight by your side.

Wondrous Item 2,125,000 gp

Power (Daily ✦ Conjuration): Standard Action. Use this bag to conjure a Large or Huge minion (see below for statistics). Roll a d8 to determine which beast is produced and modify its statistics accordingly:
1: Large Bloodspike Behemoth; when this creature hits with its melee basic attack (tail), the target also takes ongoing 5 damage (save ends) and is knocked prone.
2: Large Crushgrip Constrictor; when this creature hits with its melee basic attack (bite), the target is also grabbed (until escape).
3: Large Blade Spider; this creature's melee basic attack (claw) does not have reach but instead affects all enemies in a close burst 1.
4: Large Stone-Eye Basilisk; when this creature hits with its melee basic attack (bite), the target is also immobilized (save ends).
5: Large Wyvern; this creature has a fly speed of 8, and when the creature hits with its melee basic attack (tail), the target also takes ongoing 10 poison damage (save ends).
6: Huge Guulvorg; when this creature hits with a melee basic attack (bite), the target takes 15 damage instead of 10 damage and is knocked prone.
7: Large Iron Gorgon; when this creature hits with its melee basic attack (horns), the target is pushed 1 square. On a successful charge, it deals 20 damage instead of 10 damage, and the target is pushed 2 squares.
8: Huge Carrion Crawler; this creature's melee basic attack (bite) has reach 3, and on a hit, the target is also pulled 2 squares and slowed (save ends).

CONSUMABLES

A proper adventurer has four slots on his or her belt: one for a potion, one for a potion, one for a potion, and one for a potion.

Although they lack the longevity of other magic items, consumables are essential to the survival of any adventuring party. Whether a party maintains an equal distribution of healing potions or keeps a supply of attack-enhancing elixirs or carries a stash of deadly reagents, all are excellent countermeasures to the inherent perils of dungeon exploration.

This section is divided into four subsections. First we have potions and elixirs, each with the power to augment a single character for a short period of time. Then come the whetstones, which provide bonuses to weapon-based attacks. The third batch includes a miscellany of items not easily categorized. Last are the reagents, which do for nonweapon attacks what whetstones do for weapon-based powers.

Potions and Elixirs

Potions and elixirs are magical liquids contained in small vials or flasks.

A potion or elixir must be imbibed for its power to work. Drinking a potion or elixir is usually a minor action. Administering a potion or elixir to an unconscious creature is usually a standard action.

The difference between a potion and an elixir is that a potion usually requires the imbiber to expend a healing surge to use its power, whereas drinking an elixir does not. However, consuming an elixir usually counts as a use of a magic item daily power (PH 226); the same cannot be said for most potions.

Whetstones

You can use a magic whetstone on any melee or ranged weapon you hold. Doing so is a minor action and destroys the whetstone.

Using a magic whetstone counts as a use of a daily magic item power. Using a second whetstone on the same weapon removes any previous whetstone effect on that weapon.

WHETSTONES

Other Consumables

If an item is exhausted after one use, but it's not a potion, an elixir, a reagent, or a whetstone, you'll find it here. This section includes an assortment of one-use items that any adventurer would be prudent to carry.

OTHER CONSUMABLES

| Lvl | Name | Price (gp) |
|---|---|---|
| 3 | Stonemeal biscuit | 30 |
| 4 | Life shroud | 40 |
| 4 | Nail of sealing | 40 |
| 6 | Vision sand | 75 |
| 10 | Glowstone | 200 |
| 10 | Oil of flesh returned | 200 |
| 11 | Unguent of darkvision | 350 |
| 13 | Feybread biscuit | 650 |
| 20 | Gem of valor | 5,000 |
| 21 | Unguent of blindsight | 9,000 |
| 23 | Astral mead | 17,000 |

Astral Mead Level 23

This sweet sparkling beverage infuses and restores your body.

Other Consumable 17,000 gp

Property: A single flask of astral mead weighs half of a pound and has the nutritional value of a full day's worth of food and water.

Power (Consumable ✦ Healing): Standard Action. You drink the flask of astral mead. For the next 12 hours, you gain a +2 power bonus on Endurance checks and regain an extra 2 hit points whenever you spend a healing surge.

Feybread Biscuit Level 13

This hard but tasty biscuit enhances your recuperative powers for the rest of the day.

Other Consumable 650 gp

Property: A single feybread biscuit weighs one-tenth of a pound and has the nutritional value of a full day's worth of food.

Power (Consumable ✦ Healing): Standard Action. You eat a feybread biscuit. For the next 12 hours, you gain a +1 power bonus on Endurance checks and regain an extra 1 hit point whenever you spend a healing surge.

Gem of Valor Level 20

This brilliant sapphire promises great rewards to the bold.

Other Consumable 5,000 gp

Power (Consumable): Free Action. Use this power when you spend an action point. Roll 1d20 to determine the result, adding 1 to the result for each milestone you've reached today. Regardless of the result, using the gem consumes it and turns it to dust.

1-9: Gain a +1 power bonus to all defenses until the end of your next turn.

10-19: Gain a +1 power bonus to all attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

20: Gain 1 action point. You must spend this action point before the end of this turn, or it is lost. You can spend it even if you've already spent an action point during this encounter.

Special: Using this item counts as a use of a magic item daily power.

Glowstone Level 10

This fist-sized stone glows faintly and can be used to create a bright burst of radiant light that harms undead creatures.

Other Consumable 200 gp

Property: A glowstone radiates dim light in a 2-square radius.

Power (Consumable ✦ Radiant, Zone): Standard Action. Use the glowstone to creates a zone of bright illumination in an area burst 2 within 5 squares of you. Any undead creature that is vulnerable to radiant damage that enters or starts its turn within the zone is affected as if it had taken radiant damage. For example, a skeleton that has vulnerable 5 radiant takes 5 radiant damage if it enters or starts its turn in the zone. The zone remains until the end of the encounter or for 5 minutes, whichever comes first. Using this power turns the glowstone to dust.

Life Shroud Level 4

This clean linen wrap protects a corpse from the ravages of time and the blasphemies of necromancers.

Other Consumable 40 gp

Property: A corpse wrapped in this shroud does not decay, can't be touched by an undead creature, and can't become undead. Once wrapped about a body, a shroud turns to dust after 1 week.

Nail of Sealing Level 4

This thick iron nail is adorned with warding symbols and can hold shut any portal or container.

Other Consumable 40 gp

Power (Consumable): Standard Action. When you push this nail into a door, chest, or other closeable object, it magically sinks into the material of that object and seals it shut. Treat this as if you had used an Arcane Lock ritual with an Arcana check result of 25.

Special: You can use this item in place of the required component cost for an Arcane Lock ritual. In that case, use your own Arcana check instead of that of the nail.

Oil of Flesh Returned — Level 10+

This milky-white oil returns petrified creatures to flesh.

Lvl 10 200 gp
Other Consumable

Power (Consumable): Minor Action. An adjacent target who is petrified can spend a healing surge to remove the petrified condition. If the target has no healing surges remaining, he or she can instead take damage equal to his or her healing surge value to remove the condition. The resistance granted by the petrified condition does not reduce this damage.

Stonemeal Biscuit — Level 3

This coarse dwarven fare tastes foul but keeps you going throughout the day.

Other Consumable 30 gp

Property: A single stonemeal biscuit weighs one-tenth of a pound and has the nutritional value of a full day's worth of food.

Power (Consumable ✦ Healing): Standard Action. You eat the stonemeal biscuit. You gain a +1 power bonus on Endurance checks for 12 hours. In addition, you regain an extra 1 hit point the next time you spend a healing surge this day.

Nail of sealing

Unguent of Blindsight — Level 21

You can perceive visible and invisible dangers alike with this white cream.

Other Consumable 9,000 gp

Power (Consumable): Standard Action. Rub this unguent on your closed eyelids. You gain blindsight 10 until the end of the encounter.

Unguent of Darkvision — Level 11

Darkness is less impenetrable with this black ointment.

Other Consumable 350 gp

Power (Consumable): Standard Action. Rub this unguent on your closed eyelids. You gain darkvision for 1 hour.

Vision Sand — Level 6

Blessed by Ioun's clergy, this sparkling crystalline sand enhances divinations.

Other Consumable 75 gp

Property: When added to the normal components for casting a divination ritual, vision sand grants a +2 power bonus to any one skill check required by the ritual.

Reagents

Reagents enhance the use of a power of a specified type and level. When used in conjunction with an attack power, a reagent's effect typically applies only to one target hit by the power. Only one reagent can be used to enhance any given power. You must be holding a reagent to use it (which might require a minor action to retrieve the item). A reagent is consumed during the power's action.

Each reagent affects powers up to a specified maximum level. In some cases, more refined or concentrated versions of a reagent can be used, with an increased maximum level for the power it can affect. These versions are listed as having higher levels.

Appendix 1

Magic items are the most tangible signs of a character's adventuring success. The PCs' enchanted weapons, armor, and implements tell the tale of how far they've come, the challenges they've faced, and, most importantly, that they've survived those challenges and lived to brag about them.

However, as characters advance in level, they can accumulate a surplus of magic items that become increasingly less relevant, less useful, and less distinctive. Surplus items can be sold or disenchanted easily enough, but a player might want an item his character earns at 1st level to stay with him throughout his career. Another might want to alter or increase an existing item's power rather than claiming a brand-new item and abandoning the old. Yet another character might desire an item with a special history, or one that provides a built-in roleplaying hook.

The rules in this chapter allow DMs and players to place and use magic items with greater ease—not just employing them as treasure and tools, but as memorable elements of the game world.

Unique Items

One of the most time-honored ways of customizing a magic item in a D&D game is to give it a unique history. By working together, players and DMs can create magic items specifically suited for the campaign, giving them an inimitable quality that no standard rulebook can match. The deeds of the PCs then become part of the ongoing history of these items—possibly even the most important chapter in their storied existence.

Such an approach to shared storytelling works best with care and moderation, however. Giving a notable backstory or a complicated array of unfolding powers to a select few of the items the PCs acquire can increase the fun. On the other hand, making every item a relic with a detailed history and a host of secrets behind it serves only to make none of those items particularly special. Make customization choices count by letting a small number of unique items add to the PCs' reputation, rather than filling a campaign with items that compete with the PCs for importance.

History

As with a character, an item's past can help create a strong sense of its place in the world. Every campaign is unique, and magic items tied to people, places, and myths within the game world can't help but be distinctive. When the item's history becomes relevant to the campaign narrative, it adds depth to the game.

The history of an item claimed at the climax of one adventure can provide the impetus for further adventures. An item that is out of place in its current setting or in the hands of its former owner can also serve as a campaign hook. PCs that recover a magic shield of Pelor from an orc king are likely to wonder how it got there—and might have a mystery on their hands that could take the campaign in new directions.

Characters can uncover fragments of the history and legends surrounding a unique magic item with skill checks (most commonly Arcana or History knowledge checks) or even a skill challenge. Alternatively, an NPC might recognize the item and relate its history to a new owner. An account of the item might be found in lore uncovered during, after, or even before the adventure in which the item appears. Sometimes an item's history is recorded on the item, and powerful relics and artifacts can convey their own sagas.

The more common and low-level an item is, the less likely it is to have an exceptional history. Unless magic items are rare in your world, it's fine for a +1 dagger to be just that most of the time.

WILLIAM O'CONNOR

Personality and Character

Even the most common magic items can have personality. Magic is a strange and wondrous force, and the arcane energy at loose in the world can change the people and objects it touches. As such, magic items—especially those created in ancient times or found in magic-rich environments—can develop quirks.

For instance, the surface of a magic shield might darken as if bruised or glow an angry red when it is struck in battle. A weapon might shout out curses against its wielder's enemies in the first round of combat. Gloves made for a healer might become noticeably warm whenever the wearer enters combat.

Such quirks serve the same function as the quirks and mannerisms given to NPCs by the DM. They add minor narrative color to an item and to the campaign as a whole. Be careful how you apply and use them, however. A quirk can involve a minor negative drawback, but it should never hinder or affect an item's usefulness, especially in combat.

PC Influence

The PCs are the game's focus. Any magic items they carry—whatever their history and character—should reflect this fact. The actions of a PC can have an impact on the items he or she carries, causing those items to take on specific characteristics as a result of being wielded by a character of power and destiny.

Giving out item levels as treasure (discussed later in this chapter) is one way to give the PCs a degree of influence over the magic they carry. Another way is to create quirks not as a reflection of an item's history but as an example of a PC's influence. This is particularly appropriate when a player chooses to use an item as a roleplaying hook, rewarding player and character alike for interacting with the game world in a meaningful way. For example, a fighter's prized axe might start to echo its wielder's battle cry whenever it scores a critical hit. A paladin's shield might glow brightly as a symbol of her virtue when she fights sworn enemies.

Such character-inspired items can even be reused in a new campaign after epic characters pass into myth and immortality. When new PCs discover these legendary relics, the players whose characters were the item's original owners can have the satisfaction of seeing their roleplaying efforts live on.

Alignment

Magic items can be strongly attuned to good or evil. An item with an alignment might impose a minor penalty or drawback on a wielder of different alignment. A magic weapon or implement might withhold some of its full enhancement bonus, or a magic item's powers could fail at a critical moment. (In the most extreme cases, an item simply might not function in the hands of a differently aligned character. However, such limitations are typically useful only as plot hooks.)

Alignment incompatibilities should never be allowed to become a permanent hindrance to a character's ability to use a magic item. (See Level Scaling, below, for suggestions on withholding a magic item's powers in a more balanced way.) Characters should always be given the chance to earn an item's full power. For example, a PC might be able to redeem a partially functioning evil item by using it for good. Such an undertaking makes an excellent minor quest, or it could become a hook for an entire campaign.

ITEM LEVEL

The default assumption in the Player's Handbook is that each magic item has a level that equates to both its cost and its suitability as part of a PC's equipment. However, an item's level doesn't restrict its use by the PCs. A 1st-level fighter can freely use a +6 vorpal greatsword if he can somehow manage to acquire one.

Alternatively, relative level can play a stronger part in how magic items function in your campaign. Although level doesn't have a narrative equivalent in the game world, it does suggest a certain degree of inherent power within characters and their magic items alike. As such, any imbalance between the level of a character and the magic he or she wields can have repercussions in the game.

Level-Based Penalties

DMs should feel free to place restrictions on the way magic items function, according to their level. The standard treasure rules (which assume that PCs can find an item up to four levels higher than their own level) are a good place to start.

It's entirely reasonable to say that items five or more levels higher than a character simply don't function in that character's hands. Alternatively, limitations or penalties for powerful items used by lower-level characters can be assigned on an ad-hoc basis. For example, a powerful magic weapon might function at its normal level but impose a penalty to the wielder's defenses. Likewise, a defensive item might penalize attack rolls, damage rolls, or both. An item that grants a bonus on a certain skill check might penalize other skill checks as its power overwhelms its user.

More extreme penalties might function in the same manner as the behavior of artifacts (see Chapter 9 of the Dungeon Master's Guide). A character wielding high-level magic might be inspired (or even forced) to take up an item's goals or purpose in the short term. For example, a 2nd-level character might feel the urge to give her excess wealth to charity under the influence of a +3 symbol of hope, while a 10th-level paladin might be driven to seek revenge on the elder red dragon that killed the former owner of his +5 greatsword.

DMs should use this technique sparingly, however, and only in the interest of advancing the campaign. It can be fun for a character to try to deal with the unexpected side effects of magic beyond his or her ability to effectively use. It's typically less fun for the PCs' magic items to limit their ability to choose their own path.

Level Scaling

In the interest of entertaining game play, sometimes a DM will want to place a magic item as treasure that is too high for the party's current level. Other times, bravery and fortune sees the PCs defeat a foe and gain access to magic that the DM never intended them to have. In either case, an advanced magic item can have its power scaled back to a level usable by the PCs, with its additional power revealed over time. This technique works particularly well for items that have lower-level versions, but single-level items can be reworked to lower levels as well.

For example, your world's histories might speak of the legendary Travic's Blade—a 25th-level holy avenger. If the DM decides to introduce the sword into the campaign when the PCs are lower level, he or she can do so by introducing a story hook that speaks of the blade's powers being suppressed until certain conditions are met.

If first found when the PCs are 12th level, the sword could function as a basic +3 sword—perhaps one that deals radiant damage on critical hits as a hint of its latent power. When its wielder is 15th level or so, the sword can increase its enhancement bonus to +4 and add a +2 item bonus to damage rolls done with radiant powers through the weapon.

When the PCs ascend to a level suitable for the appearance of a holy avenger (21st level or higher), the blade finally attains the full power wielded by mighty Travic in the annals of history. It might even scale up again to become a 30th-level holy avenger when its wielder reaches 26th or 27th level, allowing its wielder to transcend the sword's mythic past.

Item Levels as Treasure

Sometimes a magic item enters the campaign at the correct level, but a player wants her character to hold onto that item at higher levels rather than replacing it with a newer, higher-level item. The DM can allow the PC to invest monetary treasure in Enchant Magic Item rituals to increase the item's power (see Enchanting Items, below). Alternatively, item level increases can be given out as treasure.

Item levels granted as treasure follow the same guidelines as normal magic item placement. An increase in an item's enhancement bonus should be given out only when the PCs have attained an appropriate level to earn magic items with the improved bonus.

MAGIC ITEM SCALING

| Item Level | Enhancement Bonus |
|---|---|
| 1-5 | +1 |
| 6-10 | +2 |
| 11-15 | +3 |
| 16-20 | +4 |
| 21-25 | +5 |
| 26-30 | +6 |

The value of an item's enhancement bonus increase equals the difference in cost between the item's lower-level form and its higher-level form. This value should be primarily subtracted from the magic items given out in an adventure, with only a small portion coming from gold or other monetary treasure.

For example, a PC with +1 delver's armor wants to increase the effectiveness of that armor rather than seek another set of more powerful armor. According to the table, that PC should be of a level suitable for using 6th-level items before such an increase can occur. The difference in cost between +1 delver's armor and +2 delver's armor in the Player's Handbook is 2,720 gp—roughly the cost of a 7th-level magic item (2,600 gp). The item level can thus replace a 7th-level item normally placed as treasure (see Treasure Parcels in Chapter 7 of the Dungeon Master's Guide), with the additional 120 gp taken out of monetary treasure. Likewise, the increase in the armor's enhancement bonus could partially take the place of an 8th-level treasure (worth 3,400 gp), with the difference (680 gp) made up by a 3rd-level magic item of use to the party.

This system can even be used to turn mundane items into magic items. A PC's nonmagical heirloom longsword might be empowered by exposure to magic or a heroic deed to become a signature magic weapon.

Empowering Events

Whether a magic item increases its power through level scaling or the granting of item levels as treasure, the nature of that increase should be tied to an empowering event. The transition points where new item powers are revealed should be triumphant moments for the wielder and the party as a whole—the defeat of a significant foe, the completion of a major quest, and so on.

Such events should let the players and the characters know that something about the affected item has changed. A being from another plane might show up to reward the PCs for service, imbuing the item in question with newfound power. Perhaps the death of a mighty enemy suffuses the party with supernatural energy that coalesces in the weapon that slew the foe. An eldritch font uncovered at the climax of an adventure could instill a single item with greater potency. Whatever the case, the effect of increasing a magic item's level should be both impressive and apparent.

Enchanting Items

The use of the Enchant Magic Item ritual is straightforward enough, allowing characters to make magic items of their level or lower. However, the ritual can also be used to place a property in a magic item that has no property, or to upgrade a magic item to a more powerful version 5 levels higher. This use of the ritual follows the same rules for enchanting a magic item from a mundane item but reduces the cost. The ritual caster must still be high enough level to create the final item, but the caster pays only the difference in cost between the final version and the item in its current form.

For example, a 5th-level ritual caster wishing to imbue a +1 longsword (1st level, 360 gp) with the properties of a +1 flaming longsword (5th level, 1,000 gp) needs to pay a component cost of only 640 gp. Likewise, a 6th-level ritual caster could spend 1,440 gp to make a +1 wand (360 gp) into a +2 wand (1,800 gp), while a 10th-level ritual caster could spend 4,640 gp to make a suit of +1 chainmail (360 gp) into +2 exalted chainmail (5,000 gp), a huge leap in the armor's potency.

The Enchant Magic Item ritual cannot convert one item property into another. For example, a character could not use the ritual to turn a +1 flaming longsword into a +2 lifedrinker longsword. However, at the DM's option, a character can upgrade a magic item to another item with similar properties. For example, a thundering bow might be upgraded to a thunderburst bow in this way.

As normal, this use of the Enchant Magic Item ritual does not allow a character to ignore restrictions on the creation of magic items. A ranged weapon cannot be given a property restricted to melee weapons, nor can the ritual imbue a pair of boots with an enchantment normally given to a hands slot item. Likewise, magic item properties and powers cannot be stacked, so that a character cannot imbue a suit of sylvan armor with the property and power of sunleaf armor as well.

Moving Magic

A rogue might find potent hide armor in an ogre's horde, but she wears leather. The holy symbol taken from a fallen foe has formidable power, but the party's cleric of Pelor doesn't feel like clutching a symbol of Vecna as he prays. The Transfer Enchantment ritual helps you to customize magic items by moving enchantments from one magic item to another.

Transfer Enchantment

With great care and concentration, you carefully strip magical power from one object to imbue it in another.

Level: 4
Category: Creation
Time: 1 hour
Duration: Permanent
Component Cost: 25 gp
Market Price: 175 gp
Key Skill: Arcana (no check)

You transfer the magical qualities (properties, powers, and enhancement bonus) of an enchanted item into another object. You must maintain physical contact with both items for the duration of the ritual. The receiving item must occupy the same magic item slot (head, waist, armor, and so on) and be the same type (wand, rod, weapon, and so on) as the original item. The enchantment to be moved must be valid for the receiving item, so that you cannot transfer ranged weapon properties to melee weapons, cloth-only armor properties to chainmail, and so on.

You can transfer an enchantment to an item that already contains a lower-level enchantment, but the receiving item's previous magic is lost. For example, the enhancement bonus and power of a suit of +1 barkskin hide (5th level) could be placed into a suit of +1 curseforged scale (3rd level), but the scale armor's existing power is lost in doing so. You cannot transfer an enchantment to an item that already has a higher-level enchantment.

NEW MONSTERS ..... 159

CHAPTER 1

Demon Lore

Demons are the manifestation of malign chaos—the embodiment of vile perversion and elemental ruin. Even the weakest of these creatures are hideous to behold, their features the stuff of nightmares. The most powerful fiends are anathema to mortal sensibilities, their mere presence enough to drive other creatures to madness. As living engines of annihilation, demons have an innate desire to consume and destroy while causing as much pain as possible. Fear and mercy are unknown to their kind.

Peel away the veneer of virtue, civility, and charity, and each mortal race reveals a writhing core of corruption and rage. It is said that the progenitors of demonkind were not unlike the mortal races once, but their darkness grow within them until it warped them in body and soul. Now, a demon's every thought is tainted by hatred and malice.

This chapter provides new insights into the history, life, and horror of these iconic monsters, bringing to life the information presented in one of the game's most legendary works—the Demonomicon of Iggwilv. Be warned, however—the lore contained in these pages is perilous indeed.

This chapter covers the following topics.

- History of the Abyss: The creation and dark past of the realm of demons.
- Demonic Physiology: A study of demonic form and function.
- Demonic Ascension: The driving force behind every demon's thirst for power and destruction.
- Society: Demon lords, demonic cults, and the mysterious obyriths.
- Summoning Demons: Mortals who seek abyssal power can bind demons to their service, but at great risk.
- Demonic Monster Themes: New powers for customizing demons and their masters in your campaign.
- Mechanics and Options: A demon-themed campaign arc, a skill challenge for disrupting a powerful cult ritual, and demonic traps and hazards useful for running demon-themed adventures.

The Demonomicon of Iggwilv

FROM THE DEMONOMICON OF IGGWILV

Many are they who would gladly have prostrated themselves before me, promising their fortunes, their families, their very souls to possess the tome you now hold in your hands. No matter how powerful you believe yourself to be, no matter how great your claim to knowledge—on matters of demon lore, you are a rank novice in my sight.

Demons are not a class of creature easily codified, and no amount of vellum and ink can possibly hope to catalog their innumerable attributes and permutations. The research collected in this Demonomicon is accurate and impeccable, I assure you. But entering into battle against a demon requires more than mere knowledge. For demons are creatures of chaos—mutable and forever adapting to their environment. A tactic employed successfully against an abyssal horde one time might result in your utter destruction the next.

Although you might have gained temporary possession of my precious tome, you still stand to gain only an inkling of the innermost workings of demonkind—a subject I have lived and breathed over uncounted centuries of life. Was it unwise to set hard-won knowledge to parchment so sneak thieves such as yourself could steal away with it? Perhaps. But unless you are a special kind of fool, you know that I am already hunting you. So find what wisdom you can in these pages, for the time in which it might serve you is short. . . .

Six volumes of the legendary Demonomicon of Iggwilv are known to exist, all of which have changed hands many times over the centuries. This vile codex held the dark secrets of Iggwilv's dominance over more than a dozen abyssal lords; numerous wizards and sages have sought to equal that power by gaining access to all six tomes. As yet, none has succeeded.

The Demonomicon is said to be based on a prior work titled the Tome of Zyx, written by the legendary archmage and former mentor of Iggwilv, Zagig Yragerne. The Demonomicon represents the Witch Queen's primary repository of demonic knowledge, drawn from a multitude of years spent plumbing the hidden depths of the Abyss and from her personal interactions with the demon lords themselves.

Each volume is a heavy, brassbound tome of parchment pages set with clawed clasps. Dark covers crafted from demon leather and sinew bind and protect the profane lore within. Beyond its invaluable information regarding the Abyss and its inhabitants, the Demonomicon contains secret lore for summoning and binding demon lords, unique rituals for crafting permanent demongates, and spells and prayers of the utmost evil.

Iggwilv

Infamous demonologist and author of the seminal work that bears her name, the Witch Queen Iggwilv remains an enduring and powerful force in the world and in the planes beyond. Her goal is nothing less than domination of the entire Abyss, and she knows more of that plane's secrets than any other being, living or otherwise.

The adopted daughter of the witch Baba Yaga, Iggwilv was apprenticed to the eccentric archmage Zagig Yragerne, who made his fortune as a member of the legendary adventuring group the Company of Seven. After absconding with her mentor's greatest secrets, Iggwilv used that knowledge to imprison the Dark Prince Graz'zt. With Graz'zt as her consort, Iggwilv came to rule as the Witch Queen of the distant nation of Perrenland. It was there that she penned the first entries of the infamous Demonomicon.

When Graz'zt escaped her, Iggwilv was eventually imprisoned in his abyssal palace in Zelatar. Upon escaping, the fallen Witch Queen attempted to lead an army of fiends into the world but was again defeated. Iggwilv then retreated for a time into a hidden lair in the Abyss, where her aid was instrumental in the overthrow of the demon lord Demogorgon. Though the Prince of Demons has since returned to power, Iggwilv still possesses a shard of his demonic essence.

Iggwilv is said to have two forms—one, an old crone; the other, a beautiful human female with flowing back hair and alabaster skin.

Iggwilv was named in Dragon #359 as one of the greatest villains in Dungeons & Dragons history.

History of the Abyss

FROM THE DEMONOMICON OF IGGWILV

The Abyss is impossibly ancient by mortal reckoning, born in an Age before Ages when the aftershocks of creation still thrummed throughout the cosmos. Powerful primordials of manifest entropy ruled this epoch, forming whole worlds from raw elemental matter and then destroying them. Another race of beings dwelled in the remoter reaches of the cosmos—immortal deities born of faith and ideas rather than elements and matter. The primordials and the gods had not yet made contact in this long-ago era before the Dawn War. The birth of the Abyss changed this, as it changed so many things. . . .

The Obyriths

The oldest myths and legends tell of a race of vile entities that once presided over the remains of a dying universe. These beings of evil incarnate were known as the obyriths, and they had ruled since time immemorial. As their hunger drained their realm of all life and power, they knew that their days were numbered. So it was that in the last age of their race, the obyriths breached the barrier between their realm and another, pushing a shard of uttermost evil through the fissure between realities. With the power of the shard, they hoped to corrupt the most powerful beings of this new realm. After bending and eventually enslaving these creatures to their will, the obyriths would exert their control over a new realm, reshaping it in their own vile image.

Eons passed as the obyriths slowly died. When only a handful of their kind remained, the plan they had enacted so long ago finally came to fruition. A deity hungry for power found and seized the shard of evil. This god, Tharizdun, found his mind and spirit opened to the obyriths trapped in their dying darkness. The link to those foul beings corrupted him in an instant, driving the deity to madness. But the obyriths' plan to seize the celestial realms controlled by Tharizdun and his kind was met with resistance and a twist they had not anticipated.

The obyriths demanded that the deity plant the seed of evil within the Astral Sea, promising him total dominion of that realm in exchange for his fealty. Even within his madness, however, Tharizdun recognized that his fellow gods would turn on him before he could fully seize the power the obyriths promised. Instead, the mad god traveled to the farthest reaches of the cosmos, planting the seed of evil in a primordial expanse of the churning Elemental Chaos—the realm of the fallen primordials, which he hoped to seize as his own.

Birth of the Abyss

The planting of the seed of evil in the Elemental Chaos unleashed power like that realm had never seen before. The nascent evil of the obyriths' realm flared one last time as black flame, exploding through a yawning vortex that formed where the seed was cast down. Forced to act even though their plans had gone astray, the obyriths allowed themselves to be drawn through the vortex as their own realm was consumed and finally destroyed.

The obyriths had seemingly won their prize—a realm in which their evil could be spawned anew. But as the tear in the fabric of reality closed, Tharizdun faced off against his would-be masters. Beholding the obyriths in their horrific grandeur, the god was shielded from their wrath by the link they had forged with him. At the same time, the evil and madness of the shard blessed Tharizdun with great power of his own. The vortex that formed around the shard of evil was the Abyss, growing within the Elemental Chaos even as Tharizdun and the obyriths fought to control it. In a battle that raged for eons, Tharizdun tore through the stuff of the nascent Abyss, following the shard of evil and calling forth minions from its burgeoning substance. The first demons howled in fury at their creator's command, throwing themselves at the obyriths in wave after suicidal wave.

The shard of evil had granted the mad god far more power than the obyriths could ever have predicted. Instead of a puppet, they faced a being of unmatched strength and absolute evil. Only by working together did the last twelve obyriths stave off destruction and, over the course of endless battles, force Tharizdun into a stalemate. As both sides withdrew to plot the other's destruction, the growth of the Abyss settled and slowed. Beings outside the newly created realm took notice of it for the first time.

The Prince of Demons

Drawn by whispers promising power and dominion over the unfolding realms of creation, the first primordials entered the Abyss. The shattered realm they observed within the vortex was thoroughly corrupted, but these creatures were unconcerned with morality as they pressed on, beckoned by the whispering of the Abyss's evil heart. As they explored farther into the desolation, they came upon a great, blood-red ocean, and they knew they had reached that heart at last. Floating there in the shallows of the nascent Blood Sea, the shard of evil called out for one strong enough to step forward and claim it.

The first to set forth was a petulant primordial of unbridled fury named Demogorgon. As Demogorgon waded into the turbulent surf, however, another being rose up from the darkened depths beneath the sea. The interloper Dagon challenged Demogorgon for the right to claim the shard, the mighty primordials clashing in a battle that turned the sea to a bloody storm. But as they fought, a third being crawled up from a hitherto unseen pit to claim the shard as his own. Obox-ob, a loathsome obyrith of putrescence and filth, had become the first Prince of Demons.

Final Formation

Despite the unparalleled power he gained as Prince of Demons, Obox-ob was not the full master of that power. As it had with Tharizdun, the shard compelled its wielder to plant it in the Astral Sea. Obox-ob, suffering under the shard's powerful weight, struggled to carry it forth from the Abyss and complete the purpose for which his kind had created it.

However, not all demons wanted to see the shard lay waste to the astral realms. The primordials Demogorgon, Orcus, and Baphomet, already in the throes of demonic transformation, feared rightly that Obox-ob's actions would grant him control over all the cosmos. They attacked the Prince of Demons before he could reach the Astral Sea, flinging Obox-ob and the shard down again into the vortex beneath which the Abyss had formed. Where Obox-ob struck, the Abyss was sundered, forming a deep fissure into which the sea drained away in a boiling storm.

As they followed the newly created Blood Rift into the lightless depths, Demogorgon, Orcus, and Baphomet were finally transformed into demon lords. Yet as they did so, they felt their power begin to wane, the whispers of the Abyss suddenly silenced the deeper they went in pursuit of the shard. Alarmed, the three quickly retreated even as the powerful primordial Garash slipped past them hoping to claim their prize. He was never seen again, and since that dark day, the demon lords have feared to seek the shard of evil within the Blood Rift's endless depths.

In time, more pits began to appear across the arid surface of the Abyss. Exploration of these chasms whisked creatures through extradimensional conduits to uncharted reaches of that realm. The malevolent maelstrom that had formed the Abyss was growing as the seed of evil burrowed deeper and deeper into the primal foundations of the Elemental Chaos. Within these new layers, the demon lords established their mighty demesnes, bending the very fabric of the Abyss to their indomitable will.

The Cult of Elemental Evil and the Dawn War

The intrusion of primordials into the Abyss pushed Tharizdun to act. He attempted to force Demogorgon, Orcus, and their ilk into slavery, but their combined power proved too great for him. Rather than risk defeat in single combat, Tharizdun strove to marshal the power of the Elemental Chaos and its denizens in his bid for universal domination. The primordials, already angered with the gods' meddling in the affairs of the world, were easily swayed by Tharizdun's call to arms. They believed that if the mad god could reclaim the shard of evil now buried in the heart of the Abyss, it would ensure their triumph over the gods of the Astral Sea. Calling himself the Elder Elemental Eye, Tharizdun attracted powerful followers, only a few of which knew him as the god he was. The deceit he fomented rallied other elemental creatures to his banner, and the Cult of Elemental Evil grew.

Chief among Tharizdun's lieutenants was a powerful primordial named Miska the Wolf-Spider. It was Miska who was charged with assaulting the Abyss to find the shard of evil. But the attention of the gods had been drawn to the Abyss and the primordials that entered it. When Tharizdun's plans were discovered, his immortal kin attacked. Though a powerful foe, Tharizdun was overcome by the combined might of the gods. Locking him away in a remote abyssal layer, they called him the Chained God and struck his name from history. Tharizdun's armies were scattered, but they were not yet defeated. Marshaled by Miska and the Princes of Elemental Evil, the host fought on.

Queen of Chaos

Above the cosmic maelstrom of the Abyss hangs a cruel, stationary sun. Once every millennium, an immense orbiting mote of elemental earth eclipses this star, blanketing the Plain of a Thousand Portals in total darkness. It was during the first of these rare periods of occulted twilight that the most powerful obyrith—called the Queen of Chaos by others of her kind—saw a chance to seize the power over which the demon lords and Tharizdun's followers fought.

As the eclipse commenced, a mass battle was raging on the plain beneath it. The armies of Obox-ob were defending the layer's portals against Miska the Wolf-Spider and his forces. Miska and his armies cornered the weakened Prince of Demons in the end, and were about to gain access to a portal that Miska believed would lead them to the shard of evil. At that point, the Queen of Chaos struck.

On the bleak plain, the powerful obyrith slew Obox-ob, dethroning the Prince of Demons even as she offered his reign to the Wolf-Spider. Having long feared that Tharizdun might never be freed, Miska was already succumbing to the call of the Abyss even before the obyrith's offer. He thus gave his allegiance to the Queen of Chaos in exchange for her aid in destroying the gods of the Astral Sea. With the might of the Abyss and the armies of the Elemental Chaos marshaled behind her, the Queen of Chaos was suddenly vaulted into a position of near-absolute power, looking past the Abyss with the dream of controlling all creation.

Chaos United

The alliance between the Queen of Chaos and Miska the Wolf-Spider began a climactic epoch of the Dawn War. With the combined forces of chaos battering its deities, the Astral Sea seemed lost. However, as the gods' bastions fell, an exarch of Moradin and seven angels of Bahamut known as the Wind Dukes of Aaqa worked in secret with Torzak-Belgirn, the Soulforge of Moradin, to craft the Rod of Law. With this powerful weapon, the gods hoped to defeat the hosts of chaos once and for all.

The Rod of Law turned the tide of war in the Astral Sea. In the end, it broke the will of the invaders when it was used to strike down Miska the Wolf-Spider, then banish the Prince of Demons to an unknown plane. The shattered Rod of Law became the artifact known as the Rod of Seven Parts as Miska's armies retreated to the Elemental Chaos. Her power diminished and her will broken, the Queen of Chaos dissipated back into the Abyss. Though her true fate remains unknown, it is said that she will not return until the Plain of a Thousand Portals is blighted by eclipse once more.

The Age of Blood

With the forces of the Queen of Chaos in retreat and the demons that served her scattered or dying, Demogorgon chose to act. Though content to stand behind their queen while she held power, the obyriths retreated into hiding when she fell. Having had the foresight to keep their true identities and nature a secret, the obyriths could not be targeted by the demon lords who saw their power as a threat, but they were forced to watch in rage as Demogorgon asserted his claim as Prince of Demons. After crushing his rivals and gathering their followers into a devastating force, Demogorgon repelled the forces of the Astral Sea from their assault on the Abyss.

Chained God and Fallen Angel

Even as the Queen of Chaos attempted overt conquest, others among the obyriths pursued more subtle plots. In the aftermath of Miska's failure and the obyrith queen's fall, Pazuzu slipped out of the Abyss in secret to stake his own claim to power. Making his way by secret portals to Tharizdun's prison, the obyrith presented himself to one of the deific guards there—an angelic paragon of chastity and virtue called Asmodeus. The angel listened as Pazuzu plied him with flattery and lamented that the gods had chosen to repay Asmodeus's loyalty with an eternity of service at a thankless task.

A seed of vanity and false pride began to grow within Asmodeus, fanned to a spark of arrogance by Pazuzu's words. Soon believing that he was more righteous than the deity to whom he had sworn allegiance, Asmodeus began to hear the whispers of the shard of evil at the Abyss's heart. Abandoning his duty to guard the Chained God, he sought out and found the shard in the Abyss's incalculable depths. Asmodeus stole away a sliver of the shard, forging it into a ruby-tipped rod of incredible power.

Armed with his scepter of absolute evil, Asmodeus led an invasion of the Astral Sea in which his divine master was slain. The victory was short-lived, however, and Asmodeus and his infernal army were imprisoned in the dominion of his former master. But the fallen angel's hunger for power was all-consuming. Millennia later, Asmodeus had become a deity in his own right, but still he hungered to return to the heart of the Abyss and steal an even more powerful fragment of the shard.

The Blood War

Over the next age, demons and devils destroyed each other on an uncounted number of battlefields. Even as Asmodeus sought the power of the shard of evil, the demon lords sought to return his stolen fragment to its rightful resting place.

Devils were soon pouring into the Abyss at an alarming rate, constructing iron fortresses and holding large stretches of the strategically significant Plain of a Thousand Portals. The forces of the demon lords drove the devils back, waging battle on the hellish plains of Avernus.

For untold millennia, the Blood War raged with no end in sight. Then unexpectedly, recent centuries have seen the endless battle devolve to a state of sullen truce. On the heels of civil war in the Nine Hells and constant struggles for power among the demon lords, the losses of the Blood War became too high a toll.

Demonic Physiology

FROM THE DEMONOMICON OF IGGWILV

Demon physiology is fascinating beyond measure. I know of no other type of creature in the cosmos that so rapidly and thoroughly adapts to its environment. Take a fiery immolith and drop it in the frigid expanses of the Iron Wastes. Come back in a few months, and you will discover the immolith's shroud of flame replaced by an aura of bitter frost. Return a few years hence and you'll likely find a demon closer in appearance and power to a jarrlak than the creature of fire you left behind. Many, many times I have repeated this experience, each in a different abyssal layer and all with similar results. If I locked him away for a span of years in the Forest of Living Tongues, I wonder what form my beloved Graz'zt would eventually take?

No one knows exactly how or why the first demons took form. Some sages believe that the fusion of the shard of evil and the physical instability inherent in the Elemental Chaos was the catalyst that spawned demonkind. Others believe that the shard of absolute evil was, in fact, the aggregate of the wasted souls of much of the obyrith race. When that evil fused with the Elemental Chaos, a new kind of creature was spawned. Whatever the case, the physiology of the demon is dramatically different from that of any other creature.

Body, Soul, and Animus

Demons are creatures of rage and raw physicality. Created by the Abyss to act as soulless agents of blind destruction, they are creatures of ever-evolving form, vicious animus, and unquestioning evil. Obyriths and transformed primordials are among the few types of demons possessing souls, as are other creatures that metamorphose into demons through force of will or through exposure to the Abyss. The former archdevil Graz'zt (see Manual of the Planes™, page 130) might be the best known of such transformed creatures. Lesser demons form souls through experience, through servitude to demons with souls, or through consumption of soul larvae (page 14). Demons with souls can typically reason, connive, and plan more subtly than soulless demons.

Demonic souls do not belong to the cycle connecting the Astral Sea, the Shadowfell, and the afterlife of mortal creatures. Demonic souls feed only on destruction and death. Some sages and demonologists (including Iggwilv) refer to demonic soullike energy as an animus extending from the shard of evil at the heart of the Abyss.

Anatomy and Habits

The anatomy of demons mocks that of other forms of life, and demons possess shapes as diverse as anything in the Far Realm. The ranks of the known demons represent specific forms that have stabilized in significant numbers. Demons of a single named type can have radically different powers, however, and the greater mass of demons possess few common traits beyond their origin.

Demons rarely sleep unless compelled to do so by magic, poison, or other external influences. Demons breathe, eat, and engage in what can loosely be called social activities. The methods and superficial reasons for these functions vary as widely as demonic forms. Most demons eat flesh—favoring their meals still living. Some consume plant life (often quickly, in great quantities, and more destructively than swarms of locusts), minerals, or metals. Some consume elemental energy or magic to survive.

Even before sustenance or survival, a demon's highest imperative is to destroy. All other activities must serve the ultimate goal of sowing chaos and bloodshed. The seemingly endless ways of attaining that goal grant demons their equally endless differences in physiology.

Cacodemons and Possession

When a particularly powerful demon perishes, its soul might persist for a time as a cacodemon. Like souls that walk the Shadowfell waiting for their final fate, a cacodemon exists for a length of time proportional to the demon's power in life. Unlike a Shadowfell soul, a cacodemon can end its wandering by possessing a body or an object.

Possessing Soulless Bodies

A cacodemon's easiest prospects for possession are soulless bodies, plentiful in the Abyss. Soulless demons are the most common type of demon, and powerful examples of such creatures become fodder for greater fiends.

The risk involved in possessing a soulless body—particularly a nondemon body—is that while the cacodemon animus retains its personality and experiences, it is only as physically powerful as the body it possesses. Unlike possessing an object (see below), once a cacodemon possesses a soulless body, it is bound within it until that body is destroyed. Moreover, if a demon possessing a body is slain, it has no guarantee that its animus will become a cacodemon again.

An Incorporeal Threat

Cacodemons are not insubstantial as defined in the Monster Manual. Rather, they are incorporeal. Unlike insubstantial beings such as wraiths and ghosts, cacodemons do not physically manifest. They can act only in possession of a body, an object, or a construct. Without a possessed physical presence, a cacodemon cannot interact with or suffer harm from any object or creature.

Objects and Constructs

Cacodemons can also possess magic objects or constructs, though they typically need to be coerced into possessing the latter. As with standard possession, the demon can see and hear through the object. However, without some mechanical form of locomotion, the demonic object cannot move without a considerable expenditure of will. A cacodemon might possess a magic object in hopes of later possessing the object's carrier or guardian. In this way, the cacodemon gains mobility while waiting for a more suitable host.

Possessing a construct comes with the same perils as possessing a soulless body. As a result, few cacodemons willingly possess a construct. Powerful demons and demonologists sometimes create demon-possessed constructs by tricking or compelling cacodemons into construct bodies. The demon lord Haagenti is a notorious purveyor of demonic constructs, including clockwork horrors (page 109).

Hosts with Souls

More often than not, the intended victim of cacodemon possession senses the intrusion and fights to stave off the attack. As a result, a cacodemon chooses a victim weaker than itself whenever possible. If a cacodemon attempts such a possession and fails, it risks redirection into a magic object, entrapment in a magic circle, or depletion to the point that it can no longer possess a vessel and fades to nothingness. As with possession of a soulless body, the cacodemon also might not manifest again as a cacodemon if its host dies.

This type of possession offers the opportunity to gain power quickly. Motivated mortals can achieve nearly godlike power in decades or years, whereas passing through even the lowest ranks of standard demonic ascension can take centuries. Moreover, as the cacodemon cultivates and slowly devours the soul of its host, it gains as much power in the process as it would gain by consuming impossibly vast quantities of soul larvae.

When no vestige remains of a possessed body's original soul, the Abyss sometimes transforms animus and body into a true demon. Sages and demonologists believe that the frost giant Kostchtchie (page 122) became a demon lord through cacodemon possession.

Cacodemon Encounters

Although a cacodemon is a demon's life force, it behaves as a hazard or a trap rather than as a monster. The cacodemon presented here follows the hazard format. The cacodemon's previous form (chosen by the DM) determines the hazard's level, initiative, attack roll, and XP. An elite or a solo demon converted to a cacodemon grants only normal XP for a creature of its level.

| Cacodemon Possession | Lurker |
|---|---|
| Hazard | XP by previous form |

A cacodemon can attempt to possess any creature within the area it haunts.

Hazard: A cacodemon haunts an area proportional to the tier of its previous demonic form: 4 squares per side for heroic tier, 6 squares per side for paragon tier, or 8 squares per side for epic tier.

Perception

✦ A cacodemon cannot be perceived until it attacks or takes on its mist form (see "Miss" below), at which point no Perception check is necessary to notice it.

Additional Skill: Arcana (trained only)

✦ Hard DC by level: The character can sense the cacodemon's presence.

Additional Skills: Arcana, Religion

✦ Moderate DC by level, after the cacodemon attacks or takes on its mist form: The character identifies the cacodemon.

Initiative equal to that of the cacodemon's previous form

Trigger

The cacodemon rolls initiative and attacks when any creature enters its haunted area.

Attack

Standard Action Melee

Target: One creature in haunted area

Attack: Level of cacodemon's previous form + 3 vs. Will

Hit: The target is dominated (save ends). First Failed Saving Throw: The target is still dominated, but it is no longer dazed as part of that condition. The cacodemon chooses all the dominated target's actions. Second Failed Saving Throw: The cacodemon possesses the target (see "Demon-Possessed," below). The possession ends when the target dies or the cacodemon is exorcised (see "Countermeasures" below).

Miss: The cacodemon manifests as a misty essence in a square adjacent to the target. While in this form, the cacodemon can attack only creatures adjacent to it or in its square. Any creature can move through the cacodemon's square freely. The cacodemon cannot move or be attacked or damaged. The hazard makes a saving throw at the end of each of its turns. On a save, this effect ends.

Countermeasures

✦ If a cacodemon's square comes within the protected area of a Forbiddance ritual (see Player's Handbook, page 305), the cacodemon becomes inert until the end of the ritual. If the level of the cacodemon's previous form is higher than the ritual caster's level, Forbiddance has no effect on the cacodemon.

✦ A character can exorcise a cacodemon possessing a creature by performing the Remove Affliction ritual (see Player's Handbook, page 311). The cacodemon cannot attack the formerly possessed creature again for a year and a day. The affliction's level is the level of the cacodemon's previous form.

✦ While the cacodemon is in its mist form, any creature adjacent to it that is trained in Arcana or Religion can make a check with one of those skills (hard DC by level). A successful check forces the cacodemon into a construct, a Magic Circle (see Player's Handbook, page 309), or a magic item within 5 squares of the cacodemon. See "Cacodemons and Possession," above.

Demon-Possessed

When a cacodemon possesses a host, the host is demon-possessed. Apply the "Demon-Possessed" template to any creature.

| Demon-Possessed | Elite |
|---|---|
| (demon) | XP Elite |

Defenses +4 Will

Resist 10 variable (1/encounter) at level 1, 15 variable (2/encounter) at level 11, 20 variable (3/encounter) at level 21

Saving Throws +2

Action Points 1

Hit Points +8 per level + Constitution score

Demonic Graft

Apply a theme attack and a utility power to the demon-possessed creature. See "Demonic Monster Themes," page 20.

Demonic Death Throes

Trigger: The demon-possessed creature drops to 0 hit points when not in the Abyss.

Effect: The demon-possessed creature uses one of the powers described in "Death and Death Throes" below. The possessing entity is destroyed.

Death and Death Throes

Demons that have souls do what they can to avoid death, knowing that their plots and personal power will dissipate with their own destruction. Even the dimmest demons, though, realize that the Abyss's goal of ultimate destruction includes them.

Demons often die in startling ways. From the lowly dretch to the powerful balor, the intrinsic chaos of the demonic form lends itself to dangerous death throe attacks. A demon that does not have an existing power triggered by dropping to 0 hit points can take one of the following powers. Alternatively, a demon with an existing death throe power can take one of these new powers instead. This can create an additional challenge for characters who are familiar with a specific demon's powers.

Death Rattle

The demon's death cry can overwhelm creatures close by.

Triggered Actions

Death Rattle (thunder)

Trigger: The demon drops to 0 hit points.

Attack (No Action): Close burst 3 (creatures in burst); level + 2 vs. Will

Hit: 5 thunder damage per tier, and the target is dazed until the end of its next turn.

Death Vortex

The demon's body twists and tears into a vicious whirlwind.

Triggered Actions

Death Vortex (necrotic, zone)

Trigger: The demon drops to 0 hit points.

Attack (No Action): Close burst 3 (creatures in burst); level + 3 vs. Fortitude

Hit: The demon pulls the target 2 squares.

Effect: The burst become a zone until the end of the demon's next turn. Any creature that starts its turn within the zone is pulled 2 squares toward the demon's former space and is slowed until the end of its next turn. Any creature that starts or ends its turn within the zone takes 5 necrotic damage per tier.

Demon Inside

A demon's animus manifests a lesser version of itself that leaps out from its own remains.

Triggered Actions

Demon Inside

Trigger: The demon drops to 0 hit points.

Effect (No Action): A lesser demon erupts from the corpse of the fallen demon at the start of the fallen demon's next turn. The lesser demon has the fallen demon's speed, defenses, basic attacks, and ability scores, but it is otherwise treated as a minion.

Dissolving Vapors

The demon dissolves into a cloud of noxious vapor.

Triggered Actions

Dissolving Vapors (acid)

Trigger: The demon drops to 0 hit points.

Attack (No Action): Close burst 2 (creatures in burst); level + 2 vs. Fortitude

Hit: Ongoing 5 acid damage per tier (save ends).

Final Spew

The demon's organs liquefy into a blast of toxin.

Triggered Actions

Final Spew (poison)

Trigger: The demon drops to 0 hit points.

Attack (No Action): Close blast 3 (creatures in blast); level + 2 vs. Fortitude

Hit: The target is blinded until the end of its next turn and takes ongoing 5 poison damage per tier (save ends).

Unstable Ice

The demon freezes solid within a pillar of ice that can explode into deadly shards.

Triggered Actions

Unstable Ice (cold)

Trigger: The demon drops to 0 hit points.

Effect (No Action): The demon turns into a pillar of ice that occupies the demon's space and is blocking terrain. If a living creature ends its turn adjacent to the pillar, the pillar makes the following attack.

Attack (No Action): Close burst 1 (creatures in burst); level + 5 vs. AC

Hit: 1d6 damage per tier and 5 cold damage per tier, and the pillar pushes the target 3 squares. The pillar and the demon are destroyed, and the area of the burst becomes difficult terrain until the end of the encounter.

Demonic Ascension

FROM THE DEMONOMICON OF IGGWILV

To understand a demon is to know what drives it. All demons crave carnage and absolute ruin, but to what end? Unlike devils, demons do not commit acts of violence from a philosophical desire to foment evil for its own sake. The desires of a demon are less existential. More instinctual. Their primal urges toward slaughter and destruction are further inflamed by the whispers of the Abyss—potent mutterings in the tongue of chaos itself. I, too, have heard these murmurs in the darkness, and know well the seductive power of their insight and the destiny they promise.

In the unsympathetic environs of the Abyss, demons must either adapt or die. New demons are uniformly weak and simple. Although a demon can live indefinitely as a minor soulless host, it hungers for power and greatness. To gain power and a higher station in the chaotic hierarchy of the Abyss, a demon must bind and control other demons to its service. Such rituals of binding require that a demon consume souls.

Many demons choose to purchase souls from the dark creatures that sell them, including night hags (see Monster Manual®, page 151), death giants (see Monster Manual, page 120), and oni spiritmasters (Open Grave: Secrets of the Undead™, page 172). Soul energy can also be obtained by slaying creatures with souls, consuming soul larvae, acquiring demonic parasites or mortal thralls, and possessing a mortal creature and using it to seek and gain power.

When it has accumulated enough soul energy, a demon can adopt a new form and more powerful abilities. The more souls a demon consumes, the more attuned it becomes to the Abyssand the more control it has over the other denizens. A demon that consumes significant numbers of souls can also eventually manifest an animus of its own (see "Body, Soul, and Animus," page 10).

Eventually, soul energy grants a demon enough power to control its own abyssal realm. This full ascension can take anywhere from centuries to uncounted eons, depending on the drive and the methods of the demon in question. When this process is complete, a demon can take on a truename (page 16) and become a demon lord.

Feast of Souls

Sages and demonologists believe that when a demon slays a living creature, the violence and fury of that act unleashes a residual store of soul energy. It is this energy that a demon absorbs, even as the victim's soul passes to its next stage of existence intact. Unlike demons, immortals also possess souls. The souls of the immortals of the Astral Sea are the most prized by demons. The souls of the devils of the Nine Hells were those most commonly consumed by demons, during the struggles of the Blood War.

Soul Larvae

After their mortal bodies die, most souls move through the Raven Queen's abode, then pass beyond the known cosmos. Deities call a favored few souls to service in the afterlife. Others—the damned—must suffer punishment after death because of curses, atrocities they committed while alive, or because they sold their souls in pacts with devils and other foul creatures.

The unclaimed damned—those not bound by pact to a particular master—face a bleak existence. They manifest in the Shadowfell as yellow, grublike monstrosities, their slime trails marking their fruitless search for escape from that plane. Predators such as night hags and other soul peddlers follow the slime trails to round up soul larvae in large numbers. They then exchange the larvae in the markets of the Nine Hells, the Abyss, and other dark realms. Orcus and other demon lords raid soul larvae fields, but most demons find market negotiations less dangerous and more lucrative than expeditions to the Shadowfell.

Devils in the Nine Hells buy soul larvae in the soul markets of Dis. Such larvae typically become bound to those devils, which transform them into the walking damned of that domain. The walking damned appear as they did in life, though gaunt and frail. They spend eternity in torment.

Demons consume soul larvae, destroying the souls that are trapped within them. One soul larva is worth the equivalent of 1,000 gp in goods and services, and soul larvae are the basic currency of the Abyss. Demons might sometimes buy or sell soul larvae for equivalent coin, but few demons have reason to use worldly currency.

Some demons consume soul larvae at once. Other demons hoard larvae, waiting to gorge themselves and thus to gain tremendous boosts of power at strategic times. A lesser demon might resist the temptation to consume a soul larva and then use the larva to gain favor from a more powerful demon. Overlords might demand regular soul larvae tribute from servants in exchange for allowing the servants to live.

Parasites and Thralls

Demons are notoriously oppressive to their inferiors, and regularly devour unwanted servants in a frenzy of bloodlust. Demons that seek ascension to more powerful forms can have their desire to destroy tempered by lesser creatures willing to aid that ascension.

A lesser demon that has neither the ambition nor drive to follow the path of ascension can subordinate itself to a more powerful demon that does. The lesser demon wins a certain amount of security from the wrath of its master, in exchange for granting that master a portion of its depraved essence. These sycophantic demons are known as parasites.

The amount of their own essence that parasites give up to their masters means that they have little hope of further ascension themselves. But the link between parasite and master is not irrevocable, and a master can break the connection out of spite or for its own advantage. A parasite severed from its master takes penalties of the DM's choice and rarely survives for long.

CONSUMING SOUL LARVAE

When a demon consumes a soul larva and destroys the soul within, the demon gains a surge of power as the larva shrivels and collapses to dust. Consuming a soul larva is a minor action. In addition to its overall effect on the demon's ascension (as determined by the DM), consuming a soul larva allows a demon to make a saving throw or an extra power recharge roll.

An elite or a solo demon can consume three soul larvae on its turn to regain 1 action point instead of receiving the normal benefit of a soul larva three times.

Creatures other than demons can consume a soul larva as a minor action. Because the act destroys a soul (albeit a damned one), most good and many unaligned creatures find the idea repugnant. If a nondemon consumes a soul larva, use the following table to determine the result.

| ROLL | EFFECT |
|---|---|
| 1 | The creature loses a healing surge. |
| 2 | The creature is dazed (save ends). |
| 3 | The creature is slowed and weakened (save ends both). |
| 4 | The creature emits a foul odor. The creature and any nondemon adjacent to it take a –2 penalty to attack rolls, ability checks, and skill checks (save ends). |
| 5 | The creature's skin turns scaly, rough, or a different color until the end of the encounter. |
| 6 | The creature grows horns, a tail, or some other useless demonic appendage. The appendage falls off when the encounter ends. |
| 7 | The creature grows wings and gains fly 4 (clumsy) until the end of the encounter. |
| 8 | The creature gains temporary hit points equal to its level. |
| 9 | The creature gains a +2 bonus to saving throws until the end of the encounter. |
| 10 | The creature regains an encounter power of its choice that it has already used. |

A similar pact can be entered into between a greater demon and a mortal worshiper, known as a thrall. A thrall is typically a high-ranking demon cultist or another creature already in service to the Abyss. It must choose freely to offer its body, mind, and soul to a demonic master.

Progression by Mortal Host

Myths of demonic possession exist in a wide variety of mortal cultures, but most demons have no ability to routinely inhabit the bodies of other creatures for extended periods of time. Under certain circumstances, however, a mortal host can provide a significant shortcut for demonic ascension.

The soul of a powerful demon slain in battle can persist at the site of its destruction as a cacodemon (page 11). The disembodied spirit of a cacodemon has no consciousness, but it possesses a singular need to possess a living creature or an object. Although mortal creatures are typically weak and fragile compared to the creatures of the Abyss, heroic mortals have an uncanny aptitude for achieving greatness over a short period of time. When a cacodemon possesses a mortal hero, the demon-possessed creature is overcome by the single-minded lust for power of its demonic possessor.

Demonologists cite the sudden appearance and more sudden rise to power of the demon lord Kostchtchie (page 122) as an example of progression by mortal host. The Witch Queen Iggwilv is said to have convinced the dull-witted frost giant to accept possession by a cacodemon under her control. Iggwilv now guides the demon-possessed giant along a path of destruction and bloodshed by which he means to rule the Abyss.

Spontaneous Ascension

With chaos, everything is possible, including spontaneous demonic ascension. In times when the Abyss needs a new demon lord, it simply creates one, instantly advancing a lesser demon to that highest status. Even lowly heroic tier demons can ascend in this fashion, causing no end of consternation among the existing demon lords. When a demon suddenly rises to the peak of power, only the speaking of a truename (page 16) is necessary to complete the demon's transformation into a demon lord. The demon lord Turaglas, known as the Ebon Maw, ascended in this way (see Dragon® #376, page 11).

FROM THE DEMONOMICON OF IGGWILV

As creatures of chaos incarnate, demons have no unified culture. The only modicum of order that exists for a demon is the one imposed upon it by a more powerful demon—and the moment that a demon rises high enough to assert its authority on others is the very moment that rivals begin to subvert that authority. The title of Prince of Demons has been worn by numerous demon lords over the years, but none of the demon princes have managed to forge more than a temporary and self-serving order among their so-called subjects. Despite having had the opportunity to claim the crown myself, I live by the examples of others. Why take the path of failure in an attempt to govern that which cannot be governed, when manipulating events from the shadows offers far more power in the end?

Demon Lords

It is only by the whims of the demon lords that the Abyss is even partly tamed. By their will and their savagery, Demogorgon, Orcus, and the multitude of other lords impose a subtle form of order on an otherwise chaotic maelstrom of destruction and hate. If the demon lords were ever to join forces, the deities and other immortals of the Astral Sea might not stand against the onslaught. Such an alliance is all but unthinkable, and the lords of the Abyss spend as much time fighting each other as they do countering outside threats.

According to legend, when the number of demon lords reaches a specific and as-yet-unknown number, their wars against each other will intensify to the point at which only one will survive. That master demon lord will then become one with the Abyss, the will and power of that entire realm manifested within a single entity. How powerful that entity might become remains a matter of dark speculation.

For a demon to become a demon lord, it must accomplish four tasks.

- Complete the process of ascension (see "Demonic Ascension," page 14). Although every demon's path of ascension is different, this typically involves a rise in level and power equivalent to or greater than that of a balor.
- Discover its truename.
- Take command of an abyssal layer.
- Create an aspect.

Truenames

Within every being rings a sound that embodies its desires, aversions, destiny, and innermost essence. That sound, distilled into a single word or phrase spoken in the original language of the universe, becomes a truename that grants the individual access to primal magic of incalculable power.

Truenames do not reveal themselves readily, and most creatures never learn their truenames. A demon must discover its truename and perform a unique and secret ritual of naming as part of the process of becoming a demon lord. If a demon is fortunate, the underlying sentience of the Abyss whispers its truename to it. Usually, however, an aspiring demon lord must learn its truename through arduous study or dangerous adventures.

A demon's truename ritual exacts a further price, since a demon lord becomes vulnerable to any creature that knows or learns its truename. A demon's truename allows it to be enslaved by another demon lord, or at the very least prevents its effectively seizing that lord's own power. A creature that speaks a demon's truename as part of the Summon Demon ritual (page 18) can summon the demon from across the planes against its will. A truename can then be used to bind a demon or to inflict unspeakable suffering upon it.

Command of Abyssal Layers

The true distinction between a demon lord and the most powerful pretenders to that rank is control of an abyssal layer. To control a layer, a demon must bend the nature of the layer to its will, similar to the way in which a deity affects an astral domain. A demon lord changes the landscape of its layer, causes palaces to rise or crumble, and mutates the layer's denizens. Demon lords cannot shape reality to the extent that deities can. Multiple demon lords can occupy a single abyssal layer, each shaping a local area of the layer as they fight for overall control.

A prospective lord that attempts to command a layer and fails is typically destroyed in the process. For its failure, it is absorbed into the layer, becoming part of the power that will someday resist attempts at control by other would-be lords. For this reason, a vast number of abyssal layers remain unclaimed, their resistance to control so great that even the most powerful demon lords fear to linger there.

Aspects

A demon lord that wants to interact with creatures outside the Abyss most often sends an aspect to carry out its missions and enforce its will. An aspect is a physical embodiment of a portion of the demon lord's life force, created to serve as a proxy on another plane. An aspect usually manifests in a demonic temple where the demon lord is worshiped. Although an aspect possesses significantly less power than its progenitor, the use of aspects allows a demon lord to conduct business in multiple places simultaneously without leaving its home layer undefended.

Whispers from the Abyss

The terrible acts of violence and depravity that epitomize demonkind are inspired in part by a strange, semisentient quality that permeates the Abyss. This sentience whispers in the dreams and visions of every demon, calling it to dominate that dark realm layer by layer, and promising ultimate power to the one demon that can conquer the Abyss in its entirety. All demons respond to the Abyss's calling, slaughtering and deposing one another in endless violence.

The Obyriths

Beyond our own cosmos lingers the dark remains of a realm destroyed by an unimaginable evil. This nameless place was once home to beings whose forms were so horrific that our reality cannot describe them. Known as the obyriths, these vile entities were responsible for Tharizdun's madness, the corruption of the first demon lords, and the birth of the Abyss (see "History of the Abyss," page 7).

The obyriths were once legion, but only twelve of these powerful creatures survived the destruction of their cosmos and the terrible wars that followed the creation of the Abyss. Each obyrith is now a demon lord. Although the obyriths cannot be easily distinguished from among the hundreds of quarreling demon lords, their goals are vastly different. The obyrith Obox-ob was the first Prince of Demons, although his power was only fleeting before he was slain by one of his own (see "The Queen of Chaos," page 8). Since that time, the obyriths have determined that if any one of them conquers the Abyss, all obyriths will become equally powerful—perhaps even regaining the power they lost in battling Tharizdun. A secret alliance between these creatures exists to further the goal of the obyriths' dominion over the Abyss.

Even in the Abyss, the existence of the obyriths is considered a myth by all but the other demon lords. Legends name them the Quorum of the Twelve or the Queen's Conclave, but most demons know those names only as an alliance of demon lords that fell long ago. It is said that the obyrith lords fight among themselves as much as any other demon lords, to keep their allegiance to each other hidden.

Today, only the obyriths themselves know which demon lords make up the quorum's full membership. Dagon is the only demon lord openly acknowledged as an obyrith, but only the most knowledgeable demon lords know what that title truly means. The Queen of Chaos led the group in ancient times, but she has not been seen since her fall. The Great Ziggurat of Oth-Magurloth (page 47) on the Plain of a Thousand Portals is said to be the site where the obyriths meet each millennium, and Pazuzu's control of that plane leads some to speculate that he is also one of the twelve.

Cults

Although their followers are relatively few in number, the demon lords are worshiped in many areas of the mortal world as something akin to gods. Some mortals might turn to worship of the demon lords out of vengeance, sadism, or an affinity for dark magic. Others are attracted to demon cults through deception then find themselves unable to leave. Cultists also recruit by kidnapping—taking victims far from their families and indoctrinating them into the ways of darkness.

Demon cults are often decentralized. Whether operating in rural communities or in the underbellies of large cities, small cells of demon cultists maintain little or no contact with others of their faith. As a result, the rituals and observances of cults dedicated to the same demon lord can vary widely from sect to sect. Ritual sacrifice of sentient creatures is a common theme among all cults.

Many demon cultists mask their worship of their dark lords as fealty to another deity. Some might even operate small shrines and offer healing services to their communities. Such cults feign the appearance of goodwill for as long as it takes to convince their neighbors of their benign intent. Then, slowly, high-ranking and powerful civilians are brought into the cult's upper echelons and corrupted.

Joining a demon cult typically binds a creature to the cult for life. Cults have little sympathy for doubters and heretics, and the cults root them out and slaughter them as fast as they can be discovered.

Summoning Demons

FROM THE DEMONOMICON OF IGGWILV

My adopted mother and mentor Baba Yaga taught me the first incantations of demon summoning when I was but a girl of ten winters. Though my first summoning yielded only a mere quasit, today I possess the truenames of a dozen or more demon lords and can easily bend them to my will. Despite my many centuries of life, I still recall the trepidation—the near terro,r if I speak honestly—of my early summonings. Those few souls that have beheld my true form have been witness to the scars that serve as enduring reminders of rituals gone horribly wrong.

Those characters capable of performing the Summon Demon ritual divulge its details to others only with great caution. Some keep the ritual to themselves, to guard access to their demon masters. Others control its spread to prevent it falling into the hands of evil creatures—or creatures more evil than themselves.

The power of the ritual lies not only in its intent but in its ease. Beyond the crafting of its focus, the ritual requires little more than the desire to tap into the power of the Abyss. However, ritual casters who do not fully understand that power are destroyed by it more often than not.

A demon might react to a summons in any number of ways. Some demons take pleasure in being summoned, treating it as an opportunity to gain access to the world and perhaps poison a few mortal minds. A demon can also learn information from the bargain the summoner strikes with it, hoping that such information might prove useful to its own abyssal masters. A demon weaker than the summoner might exhibit an eagerness to please. A more powerful demon might resent even a small fragment of its awareness being called away by another's power, treating the summoner as an enemy from the outset.

Demon lords are rarely summoned, out of fear of enraging them. But even the most powerful demon lord might temper its anger with curiosity as it faces the mortal with hubris enough to bargain with it. Such behavior is short-lived, however, and demon lords have been known to spend any number of mortal lifetimes tracking down and destroying creatures that dare to use the Summon Demon ritual against them.

Summon Demon

You call a demon's awareness across planar boundaries to your location.

Level: 16
Category: Binding
Time: 1 hour
Duration: Special
Component Cost: 3,600 gp, plus a focus worth 5,000 gp
Market Price: 9,000 gp
Key Skill: Arcana or Religion

You call on a specific demon, pulling its awareness across planar boundaries to where you wait. You must name a specific demon when you perform this ritual, then make an Arcana or Religion check with a -10 penalty. The check result is the maximum level of the demon whose attention you can attract. If the demon you named in performing the ritual is at this level or lower, a fragment of its will manifests before you. If the demon you named is higher than the maximum level you can summon, it is aware of your summons but can choose to send an underling to answer the call instead.

Once a demon has manifested, you can interact with it verbally or by telepathy as if it were present. The manifestation has no physical presence, and it cannot attack or be attacked. Demons possess esoteric knowledge and the ability to empower mortals in numerous ways, but the advice or power of a demon is never given freely. Some demons accept trade of magic items or secrets, while others demand favors or promises for their aid and information. Some demons offer service in exchange for being told what unpleasant ends the boon is to be used for.

The ritual facilitates the bargain between you and the summoned demon, imbuing you with a small amount of abyssal power or knowledge. The terms of the bargain are up to you, but the DM determines the scope of power and knowledge that a demon can impart.

In addition, convincing a demon to provide what you need typically requires a skill challenge. The details of this challenge are left up to the DM, but can include such elements as bargaining with Diplomacy, threatening with Intimidate, or coercing with knowledge gleaned by Arcana or Religion. Failure ends the ritual and might bring the summoned demon to your location in physical form. "Betrayal of the Master," below, provides an example of such a skill challenge.

Special: If you use a demon's truename in the ritual in place of its name, you take no penalty to the Arcana or Religion check made for the ritual. In addition, you do not need to undertake a skill challenge to bargain with the summoned demon (at the DM's discretion).

Few demons except demon lords have truenames, and demon lords guard their truenames at any cost. If you summon a demon lord by the use of its truename, the bargain you strike should also involve ensuring that you are not destroyed once the pact is completed.

Focus: A circle of summoning runes. These are traditionally forged of silver and inlaid on the ground, but the runes can also be inscribed within a gemstone or crafted of gold and worn as jewelry. This focus must be crafted by the caster.

Betrayal of the Master

The adventurers are preparing to enter Abysm to steal an artifact from Demogorgon. To improve their chances of getting out alive, they hope to convince one of the demon lord's lieutenants, Uzrinam, to become a short-term ally. This challenge takes place after one of the adventurers summons Uzrinam by performing the Summon Demon ritual.

Level: 18 (XP 6,000).

Complexity: 3 (requires 8 successes before 3 failures).

Primary Skills: Arcana, Bluff, Diplomacy, Insight.

Arcana (DC 20): The character comes up with incentives for Uzrinam to aid the party, based on legends and information gleaned from ancient tomes. For example, Uzrinam might collect magic items that drain life from other creatures and seek the locations of significant areas of blood rock (see Dungeon Master's Guide®, page 67) in the mortal world. This skill can be used to gain 3 successes in this challenge.

Bluff (DC 25): A character using Bluff can lead Uzrinam to believe something she wants to hear. For example, she might be told that once the heroes possess the artifact, she will be able to seize an abyssal layer or even replace Demogorgon in Abysm after he has been weakened or destroyed. This skill can be used to gain 3 successes in this challenge.

Diplomacy (DC 20): The character attempts to convince Uzrinam that Demogorgon has turned his attention away from his enemies since the artifact entered his domain, creating extra demands on his lieutenants. Loss of the artifact would rekindle his anger and focus his attention on enemies without, granting Uzrinam greater freedom. This skill can be used to gain 3 successes in this challenge.

Insight (DC 20): The character can tell whether offers please or displease Uzrinam. The character also notices that direct insults to Demogorgon enrage Uzrinam, but she finds indirect digs at Demogorgon's power amusing.

Secondary Skills: Intimidate, Religion.

Intimidate (DC 20): The character promises Uzrinam that if she does not help the party, they will take the opportunity to ruin certain of her plans in Abysm, or that they will use evidence of this conversation to turn Demogorgon against her. This grants a +2 bonus to the next Bluff or Diplomacy check made in the challenge.

WILLIAM O' CONNOR

Religion (DC 20): The character shares knowledge of other demons that acted against their master's wishes, either for the greater good of the master or for the benefit of the demon. This grants a +2 bonus to the next Arcana or Insight check made for this challenge.

Success: If the characters achieve 8 successes, Uzrinam assists the adventurers during their trek into Abysm, as long as her involvement remains secret. The nature of her help depends on the heroes' needs.

Failure: If the characters get 3 failures, Uzrinam informs Demogorgon of their plans or vows to stop them and earn her master's praise. In addition, the failure of the ritual might allow her to manifest at the characters' location for a combat encounter.

Demonic Monster Themes

Demons are born of the raw essence of chaos, and their wide range of features and powers reflects this chaos. Although individual demons of the same type resemble each other, this chaotic nature can manifest in differences between them. Likewise, creatures tainted by demonic power can adopt a dizzying array of new abilities and twisted forms.

The demonic themes presented in this section provide a DM with tools to customize demons, creating variations on the standard creatures presented in the Monster Manual and other supplements. These themes can also be used to give fiendish qualities to nondemons, reflecting the way in which the Abyss warps all life that dwells there.

In addition to the themes presented here, Chapter 4 of Dungeon Master's Guide® 2 presents three themes designed for servants of the lords of the Abyss: the Demogorgon cultist, Lolth's chosen, and the Orcus blood cultist.

Using Themes

Applying a monster theme allows you to customize an existing monster's role and powers. The process is like applying a template, but it is much simpler and does not require rebuilding a monster's statistics block. You can run the monster with only a few notes jotted in the margin to detail its additional features.

Step 1: Choose a Theme

The themes presented in this section allow you to grant a specific flavor to the servants of a particular demon lord. For example, vrocks that serve Dagon can feel and act different from vrocks bound to Pazuzu. Specialized themes can also be used to customize mortal demon cultists or spellcasters who bind demons to their service.

Step 2: Choose a Monster

After you've selected the monster theme, choose the monster you want to modify. You might select a monster appropriate for the theme or choose one that best fits a specific encounter or adventure.

Some themes work better with particular types of creatures or monster roles. Each theme describes the roles it fits best. You can modify creatures of other roles with one of those powers, but the modified monster takes on some of the feel of the role described with the power. This doesn't change the monster so much that its original role changes.

Some powers grant a monster the leader role, as noted in the text. Powers that do not reference a specific role are suitable for all creatures.

Step 3: Choose Story Changes

A theme is more than a menu of new powers. It's also a story template that you can use to turn a mundane creature into a unique opponent. It's easy to forget description and story elements when assembling a monster's statistics and powers, but story plays an important role in how a monster functions in a game. A monster without a good story is just a collection of numbers and can result in forgettable encounters.

When adding a theme to a monster, take note of any changes to its appearance or behavior. These changes should reflect both the monster's altered powers and its new allegiance to a specific demon lord.

Choosing story changes can take place after choosing new powers if that works better for you. In fact, some powers might suggest particular story changes and vice versa, so jump back and forth between Step 3 and Step 4 as you need to.

Step 4: Choose Powers

Each theme adds a number of powers to the monster you've chosen to rework.

Choose one attack power and one utility power from the theme and add them to the monster's statistics block. You can also apply the theme's skill modifications, though this is optional.

Avoid the temptation to pile on new powers. Adding more than two new powers to a monster not only makes it more complicated to run (potentially slowing down combat), it risks increasing the creature's effectiveness in combat beyond its normal level.

Most powers use the level of the creature they are applied to for calculating attack rolls and damage rolls. Melee attack powers marked "melee reach" use the reach of the base creature's melee basic attack.

Attack Powers: Each theme includes a number of different attack powers. Some give a monster a new attack or the ability to impose some debilitating effect on its foes. Others powers provide enhancements to a monster's existing attack powers. Each power is written in the style of a normal monster power entry, with a header noting which part of a monster's statistics block it is added to. This is accompanied by a description of the most appropriate roles for the power, along with optional story hooks.

Utility Powers: In addition to attack powers, a theme might include options such as auras, healing powers, special movement, and situational benefits.

In most cases, adding a utility power doesn't alter a monster's core identity or tactics as drastically as adding a new attack power. Possible exceptions are noted in the option's text.

BAPHOMET'S HORNED LEGION

The Horned King commands legions of creatures that have sacrificed reason for feral cunning and brute strength. Minotaurs and demons are most common among his followers, but the races enslaved by those creatures also come to adopt Baphomet's faith. Isolated human, dwarf, and dragonborn enclaves also offer prayers to the Horned King. Any of these creatures can show the influence of Baphomet by adopting this theme.

Followers of Baphomet are noted for their low intellect and love of brute force, particularly powers that allow for crushing charge attacks. As a result, brutes, skirmishers, and controllers make the best Baphomet-themed monsters.

Baphomet's legendary arrogance manifests in the faithful of his Horned Legion, which take on the physical appearance of the minotaur lord. Minotaur followers of Baphomet grow even more bestial in appearance, and followers of other races grow horns and cloven hooves.

Baphomet appears in Manual of the Planes.

Skill Modification: +2 bonus to Perception checks.

Attack Powers

Many of Baphomet's cultists specialize in charge attacks and the use of the horns and hooves that are the signs of his faith. Others use the powers bestowed on them by the Horned King to bind foes body and mind in the maze stalked by their demon lord.

Baphomet's Maze

This power casts the target's mind into Baphomet's Endless Maze, the 600th layer of the Abyss. There, it wanders helplessly until it can escape. Baphomet commonly grants this power to oni, minotaur priests of his cults, and tomb demons (page 150). This power is best suited for controllers, and is a sign of Baphomet's utmost favor.

Minor Actions

Baphomet's Maze ✦ Encounter

Attack: Ranged 10 (one creature); level + 3 vs. Will

Hit: The target is stunned (save ends). At the start of each of its turns, the target can make an Intelligence check to end the stunned effect (DC equal to 10 + this creature's level). The target gains a +5 bonus to this check for each prior failed check.

Crushing Hooves

Baphomet's champions delight in charging their enemies, and many foes of the Horned King's followers have died beneath their iron-shod feet. Crushing hooves works best for controllers and brutes, including ogres, carnage demons, and minotaurs (see the Monster Manual). Any monsters that can knock targets prone—or that have allies that do so—can make good use of this power.

Standard Actions

Crushing Hooves ✦ Encounter

Attack: Close burst 1 (prone enemies in burst); level + 3 vs. Fortitude

Hit: Damage equal to this creature's level + 5.

Hook and Throw

Some of Baphomet's champions undergo a transformation that tips their horns with jagged tines of barbed steel. Among Baphomet's abyssal servants, barlguras and hezrous most commonly adopt this power, but it can be assigned to any brute, controller, or skirmisher.

Minor Actions

Hook and Throw ✦ Encounter

Attack: Melee reach (one creature); level + 3 vs. Fortitude

Hit: This creature slides the target 3 squares and knocks it prone.

Utility Powers

Cultists of Baphomet and demons bound to his service are blessed with the Horned King's brute strength and battle prowess.

Skewering Charge

Creatures that make use of skewering charge develop razor-sharp horns that resemble their demonic lord's. Carnage demons in the Horned King's service often adopt this power, as do other brutes and skirmishers.

Traits

Skewering Charge

Whenever this creature charges, it gains a +2 bonus to attack rolls (instead of +1) and a +5 bonus to damage rolls. If it hits with the attack made as part of a charge, it also knocks the target prone.

FAITHFUL OF GRAZ'ZT

Of all the demon lords, the grand schemer Graz'zt best breaks the mold of the mindless destroyer bent on laying waste to creation. From his abyssal realm of Azzagrat, he plots the downfall of his greatest rival and sworn enemy, Demogorgon. Though he cannot match the Prince of Demons in raw power, Graz'zt's cunning makes him a most dangerous foe.

Compared to other demon lords, Graz'zt is eager to find followers among the mortal races. Once a devil in service to Asmodeus, the Dark Prince retains a diabolic penchant for corruption and manipulation. Graz'zt views his followers as pawns in a great game played against the other demon lords. His mightiest followers in turn view their servants as pawns of their own.

Creatures that swear allegiance to Graz'zt seek his gifts of cruelty and cunning. Artillery, controllers, and lurkers are best suited to his cults. He grants his followers the ability to concoct deadly plots, to deceive their enemies, and to manipulate the followers of other demon lords to the Dark Prince's own ends.

Graz'zt appears in Manual of the Planes.

Skill Modification: +2 bonus to Bluff checks.

Attack Powers

Although other demon cultists favor brute force and chaos, the servants of Graz'zt revel in the more subtle tactics of trickery and deceit.

Dictum of Graz'zt

Graz'zt teaches his followers to twist their enemies' will, turning ally against ally in the heat of combat. Give this power to controllers or lurkers.

Standard Actions

Dictum of Graz'zt (charm) ✦ Encounter

Attack: Close burst 5 (one enemy in burst); level + 3 vs. Will

Hit: The target is dominated (save ends).

Shield of Deception

A cultist of Graz'zt weaves a subtle illusion around a nearby foe, causing another enemy's attack to target that foe. This power works best for controllers and lurkers.

Triggered Actions

Shield of Deception (illusion) ✦ Encounter

Trigger: This creature is hit by an enemy's melee or ranged attack.

Attack (Immediate Interrupt): Close burst 5 (triggering enemy in burst); level + 5 vs. Will

Hit: An enemy adjacent to this creature becomes the target of the triggering attack instead of this creature.

Utility Powers

Graz'zt's followers prefer retreat to a bloody fight to the death. The example of their devious master allows them to escape their enemies.

Dark Veil

The power of the dark veil is bestowed on creatures that have slain a powerful enemy of Graz'zt through treachery or assassination. This swirling shroud of shadows is best suited to lurkers.

Minor Actions

Dark Veil ✦ Encounter

Effect: This creature gains concealment and is phasing until the end of its next turn.

Dying Whispers

Enemies that would strike down the faithful of Graz'zt are stricken by the Dark Prince's power, allowing his other servants to move in for the kill.

Triggered Actions

Dying Whispers ✦ Encounter

Trigger: An attack reduces this creature to 0 hit points.

Effect (No Action): The triggering attacker grants combat advantage to this creature's allies (save ends).

Treacherous Escape

Graz'zt's high priests and other favored servants can call on the Dark Prince's power when a battle seems lost. This blessing allows them to escape while their foes are stricken by their deceit. Artillery and lurkers make the best use of this power.

Move Actions

Treacherous Escape (illusion, poison, teleportation, zone) ✦ Encounter

Effect: This creature creates an illusory duplicate of itself in its current space, turns invisible until the end of the encounter or until it attacks, and teleports 5 squares. If any creature attacks the illusion, the illusion disappears and creates a zone in a burst 2 centered on the illusion. Any creature that enters the zone or starts its turn there takes 5 poison damage. The zone lasts until the end of the encounter.

KOSTCHTCHIE'S WINTER HOST

The Prince of Wrath draws the worship of creatures that seek to emulate his strength and unmatched bloodlust. The ranks of his followers are filled with frost giants (see Monster Manual® 2, page 122), brutish monsters, and berserkers of every mortal race. The most devoted servants of Kostchtchie take on the demon lord's well-muscled form and berserker battle madness. These followers fight to the death in their master's name against overwhelming odds, driven by their insatiable appetite for blood and death.

The physical power and combat prowess offered by Kostchtchie makes brutes and soldiers best suited to his service. Creatures that use more subtle tactics rarely fall under the sway of the Prince of Wrath.

Kostchtchie appears on page 122.

Skill Modification: +2 bonus to Endurance checks.

Attack Powers

Kostchtchie's followers demonstrate the brute strength and mindless ferocity of their master.

Raging Strike

When badly wounded, a cultist of Kostchtchie becomes heedless of danger, fighting with an increased berserker fury. Brutes and soldiers make best use of this power.

Standard Actions
Raging Strike ✦ At-Will
Requirement: This creature must be bloodied.
Effect: This creature makes a melee basic attack, gaining a +4 bonus to the attack roll and scoring a critical hit on a roll of 18 to 20. This creature is then dazed until the end of its next turn.

Unquenchable Fury

Even death cannot quench the simmering rage of Kostchtchie's servants. Add this power to a brute or a soldier with a high-damage basic attack, or to heroic tier or epic tier minions.

Triggered Actions
Unquenchable Fury ✦ Encounter
Trigger: This creature drops to 0 hit points.
Effect (No Action): This creature makes a melee basic attack.

Utility Powers

In the name of their patron, cultists of Kostchtchie draw strength from their own pain and suffering. When a servant of the Prince of Wrath falls, it counts on taking as many foes as possible with it.

Indomitable

Kostchtchie's followers can fight their way past any enemy's defenses, shrugging off potent physical or magical effects. Give this power to brutes.

Triggered Actions
Indomitable ✦ Encounter
Trigger: This creature is hit by an attack that imposes an effect that lasts until the end of the attacker's next turn.
Effect (Immediate Interrupt): This creature makes a saving throw against that effect.

Inevitable Strike

A follower of Kostchtchie strikes at its foe relentlessly, even when doing so leaves it open to attack. Give this power to brutes and other reckless melee combatants.

Triggered Actions
Inevitable Strike ✦ Encounter
Trigger: This creature misses with a melee weapon attack.
Effect (Free Action): This creature deals half damage with the missed attack, but grants combat advantage until the end of its next turn.

Kostchtchie's Blood

Kostchtchie's faithful push themselves to the limits of endurance, ignoring the ravaging effects of combat as they lay into their foes. Brutes and other reckless melee combatants make best use of this power.

Triggered Actions
Kostchtchie's Blood ✦ At-Will 1/round
Trigger: This creature misses with an attack.
Effect (Free Action): This creature takes damage equal to twice its level and rerolls the triggering attack.

Unfettered Wrath and Unfettered Vengeance

Creatures that embrace Kostchtchie's power sacrifice accuracy in their berserker rage, but they lash out at their enemies with increased ferocity. Give these two powers to soldiers.

Traits
Unfettered Wrath
While bloodied, this creature takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls and gains a +4 bonus to damage rolls.

Triggered Actions
Unfettered Vengeance ✦ At-Will
Requirement: This creature must be bloodied.
Trigger: An enemy starts its turn adjacent to this creature.
Effect (Immediate Interrupt): This creature can make a melee basic attack against the triggering creature.

OUBLIVAE'S RUINLORDS

The Queen of Desolation exults in the fall of civilizations. The sundering of the ties that bind kin and clan together is her passion, as are the endless mortal wars that turn verdant kingdoms into barren wastelands. She delights not only in the act of destruction, but in the psychic and spiritual echoes left behind by the fall of cities, empires, and whole races. The knowledge that the strongest structures and civilizations will inevitably succumb to the irresistible tide of violence and chaos is the foundation on which Oublivae's dark faith is based.

Oublivae's followers lack the unthinking, brutish physicality of Demogorgon's reavers and Yeenoghu's marauding hordes. They balance their predatory instincts with a twisted sense of artistry—a keen ability to direct the forces of destruction on every conceivable level. A nation leveled by Orcus's undead hordes might rebuild in time. But the lands laid low by Oublivae and her cults are left barren for all time, their peoples' history and spirit undone.

Controllers and soldiers that excel at dictating the pace and flow of combat on the battlefield are common in Oublivae's cults. Oni, hobgoblins, and other creatures whose destructive potential is driven by dark cunning lead her forces on their missions of doom and destruction.

Oublivae offers her followers attack powers only. For the Angel of the Everlasting Void, the direct assault on civilization is the highest and only purpose.

Oublivae appears on page 130.

Skill Modification: +2 bonus to History checks.

Attack Powers

Oublivae shows her followers how to inflict devastating attacks against an enemy's body, mind, and spirit.

Devastation of Eons

A cultist of Oublivae wraps its foes in the essence of their own destruction, crippling them in combat and causing them to waste away if they cannot escape. This power is most effective when used by controllers and other creatures that limit their foes' movement, or by a monster that can make subsequent attacks on its same turn.

Standard Actions

Devastation of Eons (zone) ✦ Encounter

Effect: This creature creates a zone in an area burst 1 within 10 squares. The zone lasts until the end of this creature's next turn. This creature gains a +2 bonus to attack rolls and a +5 bonus to damage rolls against creatures within the zone.

Sustain Minor: Each creature within the zone takes 10 damage and the zone persists.

Grasping Ruins

A servant of Oublivae that masters this attack is able to tap into the deepest subconscious fears of its foes. These fears can drive the toughest creatures to their knees, overwhelmed by the vision of the destruction of their lands and peoples. Soldiers and other creatures that benefit from limiting a foe's movement make good use of this power. Derghodemons (page 111) in the service of Oublivae use grasping ruins to drop a group of foes, then spend an action point to wade in with flailing assault.

Standard Actions

Grasping Ruins (zone) ✦ Encounter

Attack: Close burst 1 (one creature in burst); level + 3 vs. Fortitude

Hit: The target is knocked prone and cannot stand up (save ends). The burst creates a zone that lasts until the end of the encounter. Enemies treat the zone as difficult terrain.

Inevitable Entropy

A servant of Oublivae granted this power can extend the most debilitating effects that wrack an opponent. By dragging out an enemy's torment, the cultist gives it a dark taste of its eventual destruction. Controllers and creatures whose other powers impose a penalty to saving throws use this power to deadly effect.

Standard Actions

Inevitable Entropy ✦ Encounter

Attack: Ranged 10 (one creature); level + 3 vs. Will

Hit: This creature chooses one effect imposed on the target that a save can end. When that effect ends, the target suffers the same effect as an aftereffect. If that effect already had an aftereffect, this aftereffect replaces it.

Theft of Knowledge

With a touch in combat, a cultist of Oublivae steals a glimpse of the future from a foe's mind. That foreknowledge allows the cultist to regain the use of a power, even as that power is strengthened against the cringing foe. This power is best given to soldiers with potent encounter or recharge attack powers.

Minor Actions

Theft of Knowledge ✦ Encounter

Attack: Melee 1 (one creature); level + 3 vs. Will

Hit: This creature recharges a rechargable power or regains the use of an encounter power. The next time this creature uses that power before the end of the encounter, it gains a +4 bonus to the attack roll.

PAZUZU'S DREAD FLOCK

A corruptor and a destroyer of innocence, Pazuzu ranks among the demon lords second only to Graz'zt in cunning and treachery. His servants closely follow his example, spreading a subtle and insidious destruction across the mortal world. They earn their victims' trust with gifts and honeyed words, then turn that trust to betrayal and death.

Graz'zt revels in misdirection and control, but Pazuzu turns his enemies against one another. His priests and followers gain the power to manipulate and corrupt others, using the magic given to them by the Dark Angel of the Four Winds. Artillery and controllers can make the best use of Pazuzu's boons, staying safe at the edge of the fray while they sow distrust and mutiny among their foes.

Pazuzu appears on page 132.

Skill Modification: +2 bonus to Insight checks.

Attack Powers

Other demon cultists use brute force to impose their will, but subtle enticements are a far more effective means of swaying an enemy to Pazuzu's control. His followers turn their enemies against one another with cruel bargains and magical deceit.

Pazuzu's Flock

At a cultist's command, a spectral flock of demonic birds swoops down on the battlefield. This power fits artillery and controllers well, and Pazuzu grants it to many of his priests. When mortal creatures are offered up to the Dark Angel of the Four Winds, Pazuzu's flock is used for the sacrifice.

Standard Actions

Pazuzu's Flock (zone) ✦ Encounter

Attack: Area burst 1 within 10 (one creature in burst); level + 3 vs. Fortitude

Hit: The target is knocked prone and blinded (save ends).

Level 11: 10 damage.

Level 21: 15 damage.

Effect: The burst creates a zone that lasts until the end of this creature's next turn. Any enemy that ends its turn within the zone or that leaves the zone takes 5 damage. This creature can move the zone 3 squares as a move action.

Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Promise of Strength

The target feels a burst of strength that drives its attack, even as its allies are struck down by the abyssal power it unknowingly unleashes. This power suits a controller not afraid to provoke opportunity attacks from the thick of combat.

Minor Actions

Promise of Strength ✦ Recharge ⚄ ⁞⁞

Attack: Ranged 10 (one creature); level + 3 vs. Will

Hit: The next time the target attacks before the end of this creature's turn, it gains a +2 bonus to the attack roll but its allies within 5 squares of it take damage equal to 8 + one-half this creature's level.

Utility Powers

Pazuzu allows his dedicated followers to tap the power of the endless winds scouring the Plain of a Thousand Portals.

Abyssal Storm

The shrieking winds of the Abyss erupt at a cultist's command, sweeping around its allies and shifting them into new positions. This power is most often granted to controllers.

A creature that adopts this power takes the leader role.

Minor Actions

Abyssal Storm ✦ Recharge ⚄ ⁞⁞

Effect: Allies within 5 squares of this creature can shift 2 squares as a free action.

Gift of Pazuzu

Pazuzu's priests use this ability to spy on potential victims or to escape their enemies.

Minor Actions

Gift of Pazuzu (polymorph) ✦ Encounter

Effect: This creature transforms into a Tiny bird. In this form, it gains fly 8 and a +2 bonus to all defenses, and it cannot use any attack powers. This creature can end this effect as a minor action.

Wings of Pazuzu

A gift commonly granted to Pazuzu's servants, this boon manifests a pair of misty, blood-stained wings that can lift a creature safely out of trouble.

Move Actions

Wings of Pazuzu ✦ At-Will

Effect: This creature can fly a number of squares equal to its speed - 1.

YEENOGHU'S DEATH PACK

Known as the Beast of Butchery, the demon god Yeenoghu commands the loyalty of gnolls throughout the planes. Although that brutish race stands at the heart of Yeenoghu's plans to one day forge an empire across the cosmos, the demon lord accepts any creatures as his servants. The weakest of his faithful are treated as slaves, but those that can prove their mettle and their battle madness to Yeenoghu can rise high in his service.

Yeenoghu's cult relies on sheer numbers and the near-suicidal devotion of its members to overcome its foes. Gnoll initiates of Yeenoghu gladly risk their lives to do their lord's bidding. In the heat of battle, all thoughts of self-preservation are cast aside in the name of blood, rage, and ruin.

Yeenoghu appears in Dragon #364, a free download available at dndinsider.com, and in Dragon™ Magazine Annual 2009.

Skill Modification: +2 bonus to Athletics checks.

Attack Powers

The feral champions of Yeenoghu fight with the ferocity of wild animals, throwing themselves into the fray until no foe remains standing.

Cruel Bite

Driven by battle madness, a servant of Yeenoghu follows up its own high-damage attack with a powerful bite against an already-wounded foe. Brutes in Yeenoghu's service use this power to particular effect.

Triggered Actions
† Cruel Bite ✦ Encounter
Trigger: This creature hits a bloodied enemy with a melee attack.
Attack (Free Action): Melee 1 (triggering creature); level + 5 vs. AC
Hit: 1d8 + 4 damage.
Level 11: 2d8 + 6 damage.
Level 21: 3d8 + 8 damage.

Inevitable Slaughter

By pushing past the limits of physical endurance, a champion of Yeenoghu can make up for a missed attack with a vicious follow-up. Give this power to brute followers of the demon lord.

Triggered Actions
† Inevitable Slaughter ✦ Encounter
Trigger: This creature misses with a melee attack.
Effect (Free Action): This creature takes 10 damage and makes a melee basic attack against the target of the missed attack.

Utility Powers

Yeenoghu's faithful manifest their demon god's ferocity as they fight. The power of the Beast of Butchery turns his cultists into a slavering pack of mindless killers.

Blood Feast

The followers of Yeenoghu feed on each other's bloodlust, fighting in close quarters to surround and destroy their foes. Controllers make best use of this power, focusing their attacks on foes adjacent to soldier or brute allies possessing potent basic attacks.

A creature that adopts this power takes the leader role.

Triggered Actions
Blood Feast ✦ Encounter
Trigger: A bloodied enemy is hit by this creature.
Effect (Free Action): One of this creature's allies adjacent to the triggering enemy can make a basic attack against that enemy as a free action.

Death Crazed

Yeenoghu's followers exult in death and destruction on the battlefield. The slaughter of enemies and allies alike drives them to greater fury.

Triggered Actions
Death Crazed ✦ At-Will
Trigger: One of this creature's nonminion allies or one of its enemies drops to 0 hit points.
Effect (Free Action): This creature gains a +2 bonus to attack rolls until the end of its next turn.

Mark of Yeenoghu

The call of a pack leader causes Yeenoghu's faithful to fall on an injured foe in a ravening horde.

A creature that adopts this power takes the leader role.

Triggered Actions
Mark of Yeenoghu ✦ Encounter
Trigger: One of this creature's enemies becomes bloodied.
Effect (Free Action): Allies of this creature within 5 squares of the triggering enemy can shift 5 squares to a square adjacent to that enemy as a free action.

Pack Hunter

A follower of Yeenoghu becomes a fearsome pack hunter when fighting alongside its allies.

Minor Actions
Pack Hunter ✦ Encounter
Effect: Until the end of this creature's next turn, this creature's attacks deal 5 extra damage against any enemy that has two or more of this creature's allies adjacent to it.

ZUGGTMOY ROT CULTISTS

Though the power and influence of the Lady of Decay have been weakened by struggles and setbacks, many creatures still swear allegiance to her and to the lesser demons bound to her service. The cultists of Zuggtmoy gain the power to lay waste to an enemy's flesh and weaken its mind. Such victims are turned against their most treasured causes and become new servants of the Queen of Rot.

Creatures blessed by Zuggtmoy undergo a physical transformation. Fungi sprout across their bodies, eating away their flesh and changing them into creatures of poison and decay. Many of Zuggtmoy's followers resemble zombies in their appearance, and her magic grants these servants unmatched endurance. The deadliest weapons' blows can pass through a servant of Zuggtmoy with ease, the cultist's rotted fungus-flesh knitting together to bear no lasting damage.

Artillery, controllers, and soldiers are best suited to Zuggtmoy's service, honing their existing powers with boons that give them greater control over their enemies.

Zuggtmoy appears on page 156.

Skill Modification: +2 bonus to Endurance checks.

Attack Powers

Zuggtmoy's cultists revel in the physical changes they undergo, learning to use the fungi that permeate their flesh as a weapon.

Creeping Rot

The decay that is the hallmark of the Queen of Rot spreads around her cultists in combat, hindering and poisoning their foes. Artillery, controllers, and creatures whose powers can knock foes prone make best use of this power.

Minor Actions

Creeping Rot (zone) ✦ Encounter

Effect: This creature creates a zone in an area burst 1 within 10 squares. The zone lasts until the end of the encounter. Any enemy that enters the zone or starts its turn there takes poison damage equal to one-half this creature's level. In addition, a prone enemy within the zone must make an Athletics check (DC 12 + this creature's level) to stand up.

Spore Burst

The fungi that consume Zuggtmoy's followers also affect their weapons, filling the air around a target with a toxic burst of spores. Give this power to controllers and soldiers that fight closely grouped foes.

Triggered Actions

Spore Burst (poison) ✦ Encounter

Trigger: This creature hits with a melee attack.
Attack (Free Action): Area burst 1 centered on the target of the triggering attack (enemies in burst); level + 3 vs. Fortitude
Hit: Poison damage equal to one-half this creature's level, and the target is slowed until the end of this creature's next turn.

Touch of Decay

A cultist's touch causes an enemy's flesh to rot, consuming it from the inside out. Brutes and soldiers make best use of this power.

Standard Actions

Touch of Decay (necrotic) ✦ Encounter

Attack: Melee reach (one creature); level + 3 vs. Fortitude
Hit: Ongoing 5 necrotic damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to saving throws (save ends both).
Each Failed Saving Throw: The ongoing necrotic damage increases by 5, to a maximum of ongoing 25 necrotic damage.
Level 11: Ongoing 10 damage, maximum 30.
Level 21: Ongoing 15 damage, maximum 35.

Utility Powers

Zuggtmoy's followers share a universal imperviousness to attack, their half-rotted bodies allowing them to shrug off the most potent blows and effects.

Strength from Death

Tendrils of fungus twist out from a servant of Zuggtmoy to steal the last dregs of life from a fallen comrade. Soldiers that fight close by their allies make good use of this power.

Triggered Actions

Strength from Death (healing) ✦ At-Will

Trigger: An ally adjacent to this creature drops to 0 hit points.
Effect (No Action): This creature regains 5 hit points.

Strength from Decay

The rot that infests a follower of Zuggtmoy grants it a unique resilience in combat. The deadliest attacks deal only part of their damage when cutting through a cultist's wasted flesh. This power is useful to artillery and soldiers.

Triggered Actions

Strength from Decay ✦ Encounter

Trigger: This creature takes damage.
Effect (Immediate Interrupt): The damage taken is reduced by half.

Demon Summoners and Bound Fiends

A warlock traces mysterious patterns into a stone floor, eldritch energy feeding into each symbol to create a dangerous trap. Deep in the forest, cultists gather under the full moon at a bloodstained altar, chanting litanies whose power can unlock the barriers between the planes. A legendary wizard is found dead in his laboratory, his grisly remains a testament to a failed ritual of demon summoning

Summoning and binding demons has long been a staple of fantasy fiction. When a DM places demons as foes in a temple or a ruin in the mortal realm, it is easy enough to assume that a summoning ritual brought them there. Establishing a stronger link between a demon and its master, however, can create more memorable encounters.

This section presents two monster themes usable for bound demons and their masters. The powers presented here are a product of the pact between a demon and the creature that controls it. "Summoning Demons" (page 18) has more information on the Summon Demon ritual. The powers presented in this section are meant to be applied only to monsters and nonplayer characters. Regardless of their alignment, player characters cannot bind demons to permanent service.

Demon Summoning

A creature that seeks to bind a demon to its service can approach this dangerous task in one of two ways. A powerful spellcaster can use brute force, compelling the demon to serve with threats of punishment or destruction. Creatures lacking such talents must instead entice a demon into service, typically with sacrifices and promises of fealty to the demon's own master. Regardless of which path is taken, demon and summoner are inexorably linked by the process that calls the demon forth. A demon's fundamental nature changes in response to that link, creating a bond that the summoner can use to its advantage.

The powers in this section represent the link created by a pact of demonic binding. They are a sign of the bond between a demon and a specific nonplayer character spellcaster, high priest, or other champion of the Abyss. A master can have more than one bound demon, but a bound demon has only one master.

Bound Demon Powers

A bound demon appears in the world at the behest of a mortal creature, typically in response to a sacrifice or other reward. The greater the sacrifice offered, the more powerful the demon that can be bound to service. Alternatively, a demon lord might compel a servant to swear loyalty to a faithful mortal follower for the lord's own ends.

The following powers are given to bound demons to represent the link between a demon and its master.

Abyssal Transference

Demon lords that love deception, most notably Pazuzu and Graz'zt, make great use of this power. They grant it to brute and soldier demons bound to mortal followers as bodyguards and enforcers.

Move Actions

Abyssal Transference (teleportation) ✦ Encounter

Effect: If this creature and its master are within 10 squares of each other, the creature and master swap positions.

Blood Oath

Blood oath is imposed on a bound demon by its master, but the demon retains control over when the oath is used.

Triggered Actions

Blood Oath ✦ Encounter

Trigger: This creature's master takes damage and is within 10 squares of this creature.

Effect (Immediate Interrupt): This creature takes the triggering damage instead.

Bond of Absolute Obedience

Powerful spellcasters force this pact on bound demons to prevent their betrayal. It fits artillery and controllers best, whose area powers can be lethal to its master and his or her allies if not controlled.

Traits

Bond of Absolute Obedience

This creature's attacks, auras, and other powers have no effect on its master unless the master chooses to allow it.

Bond of Mastery

Demon binders often entice demonsin to service with this boon. Bond of mastery increases the demon's power as its master succeeds in combat.

Triggered Actions

Bond of Mastery ✦ Encounter

Trigger: This creature's master reduces an enemy to 0 hit points or fewer for the first time in the encounter.

Effect (No Action): This creature gains 1 action point.

Bond of Protection
A demon bound to serve as a bodyguard (typically a brute or a soldier) is granted this power to aid it in defending its master.

Traits
Bond of Protection
This creature gains a +2 bonus to attack rolls against enemies adjacent to its master.

Bond of Vengeance
This power is given to demons bound to masters who are important to their demon lord, including high-level cult leaders. If the demon's master is slain, its death is answered with bloody vengeance.

Triggered Actions
Bond of Vengeance
Trigger: An enemy's attack reduces this creature's master to 0 hit points.
Effect (No Action): This creature gains a +4 bonus to attack rolls against the triggering enemy until the end of the encounter.

Demonic Vanguard
A demon that stays in the thick of combat is granted this power to become a focal point for its master's attacks. Give this power to brutes, lurkers, skirmishers, or soldiers—particularly Large or larger demons that can have more creatures adjacent to them.

Traits
Demonic Vanguard
This creature's master gains a +2 bonus to attack rolls against enemies adjacent to this creature. The master's close and area attacks target this creature only if the master chooses.

Demonic Master Powers
Just as a demon gains additional powers when bound to a mortal's service, its master can benefit from unique boons granted by the control of the demonic servant. Such powers are mastered by spellcasters or demonologists who specialize in rituals of binding, or by high priests and other powerful characters in the service of a demon lord.

The following powers are given to demon summoners to represent the link between a demon and its master.

Bond of Action
An artillery or a controller master sends a bound demon into combat in its place, foregoing its own attacks to empower its demon servant.

Standard Actions
Bond of Action ✦ At-Will
Effect: A demon bound to this creature and within 10 squares of it can take an extra standard action during the demon's next turn.

Instant Summons
A demon's master uses instant summons to call a nearby bound demon to its defense in combat. Artillery and controller masters make best use of this power when they fight at the edge of the fray.

Minor Actions
Instant Summons (teleportation) ✦ Encounter
Effect: A demon bound to this creature and within 10 squares of it teleports to a space within 2 squares of this creature.

Fiery Banishment
Lesser demons in service to mortal masters live in fear of this power. At the whim of its master, a bound demon can be sacrificed in combat to strike down the master's foes.

Minor Actions
Fiery Banishment (fire) ✦ At-Will
Effect: A bloodied demon bound to this creature and within 10 squares of it explodes and is reduced to 0 hit points. Enemies adjacent to the demon take fire damage equal to 5 + one-half the demon's level.

Lash of Fury
A demon's master strikes with lash of fury to drive its bound servant to greater savagery in combat. Artillery and controller masters use this power to keep their demon servants focused on defending them, lashing their thralls to death if need be.

Minor Actions
Lash of Fury ✦ At-Will (1/round)
Effect: A demon bound to this creature and within 10 squares of it takes damage equal to 5 + one-half this creature's level. The demon then makes a melee basic attack as a free action.

Replenishing Banishment
When a demon is bound to service, abyssal power imbues the bond between master and servant. If pressed, a master can end the bond of servitude to replenish itself with that power.

Triggered Actions
Replenishing Banishment ✦ At-Will
Trigger: A demon bound to this creature and within 10 squares of it becomes bloodied.
Effect (Immediate Reaction): The triggering demon returns to the Abyss and this creature gains temporary hit points equal to 20 + the demon's level. In addition, this creature gains 1 action point.

Replacing Variable Resistance

Many demons have variable resistance to certain types of damage (see Monster Manual, page 282) to reflect their chaotic elemental origins. This variable resistance comes into play only in encounters that feature significant amounts of those damage types. In particular, demons fighting martial characters often have their variable resistance go to waste.

This section presents a specialized monster theme that provides benefits that can replace variable resistance. These powers provide another way to demonstrate a demon's innate connection to chaos. Any of the creatures in Chapter 3 could be modified in this way.

Abyssal Horror

Some demons are so horrid to behold that only the most resolute adventurers can remain near them. A creature with this power might suffer from disfiguration or cause foul images and blasphemous whispers to fill its enemies' minds. Artillery and controller demons make good use of this power to keep attackers at bay, but it is equally suitable for any demons corrupted by the madness of Tharizdun or the Far Realm.

Minor Actions

Abyssal Horror (fear) ✦ Encounter
Attack: Close burst 1 (creatures in burst); level + 3 vs. Will Hit: This creature pushes the target 2 squares.

Abyssal Vigor

Demons are dangerous enemies for many reasons, but their unpredictability is perhaps their most insidious trait. A demon might flee from melee one moment to hurl bolts of fire, then turn around and charge back into the fray with claw and fang. Demons with this ability are able to fly into a frenzy of movement, catching their foes by surprise with a sudden flurry of attacks.

Traits

Abyssal Vigor
This creature has 1 action point.

Bloodletting Soul

Demons rule through brute force, whether that is physical coercion, threats, or manipulation. But a demon with this power has a more direct path to command. An aura of rage and fury surrounds it, sending its allies into a mindless bloodlust that compels them to throw themselves against this demon's enemies.

Traits

Bloodletting Soul ✦ Aura 2
An ally in the aura that is reduced to 0 hit points makes a melee basic attack as an immediate interrupt.

Blur of Claws

The fiercest demon warriors become more deadly when granted this power. Brutes, skirmishers, and soldiers make good use of blur of claws, throwing themselves into the thick of combat with allies that can flank, daze foes, or knock foes prone.

Traits

Blur of Claws ✦ Aura 1
At the start of this creature's turn, each adjacent enemy that grants this creature combat advantage takes 5 damage.
Level 11: 10 damage.
Level 21: 15 damage.

Caustic Blood

Though demon blood is universally foul, it is harmless except in extreme cases. Brute and skirmisher demons can be given caustic blood to sear foes that put them on the defensive.

Triggered Actions

Caustic Blood (acid) ✦ At-Will
Requirement: This creature must be bloodied.
Trigger: This creature is damaged by an enemy's melee attack.
Effect (Immediate Reaction): The triggering enemy takes 2 acid damage.
Level 11: 5 acid damage.
Level 21: 10 acid damage.

Demonic Harvest

Demons that hunt and fight in packs make good use of this power, which allows the death of any demon to strengthen its kin. Give demonic harvest to lurkers and skirmishers to let them absorb the unspent power of a soldier or a brute ally then unleash that power from the edge of the fray.

Triggered Actions

Demonic Harvest ✦ Encounter
Trigger: A demon with an unused encounter power drops to 0 hit points within 5 squares of this creature.
Effect (Free Action): This creature gains the use of the unused encounter power. If the triggering demon had more than one unused power, this creature chooses which one it gains. If not used, the new power is lost at the end of the encounter.

Demonic Vassals

The hierarchy of the Abyss demands that each demon stand above its weaker kin and cower in fear from its more powerful cousins. Some demons bind and command lesser demons, forcing them to serve. By invoking this power, a demon summons its vassals and throws them into the fight.

Minor Actions

Demonic Vassals ✦ Encounter

Effect: A demon minion of a lower level than this creature appears within 5 squares and acts at the end of this demon's turn. The minion's initiative count is the same as this demon's.

Furious Triumph

The most bloodthirsty demons turn the fall of each foe into a redoubled assault against other prospective victims. Brute demons given this power can add to their effectiveness in combat, particularly those like goristros possessing a specialized charge attack. Controllers and skirmishers also make good use of this power, taking foes by surprise with their unexpected ferocity.

Triggered Actions

Furious Triumph ✦ At-Will

Trigger: This creature reduces an enemy to 0 hit points or fewer.
Effect (Free Action): This creature charges.

Material Instability

Their inherently chaotic nature allows some demons to phase out of the material world for a short time. A lurker demon with material instability uses it to escape from a vulnerable position. Skirmishers employ this power to dart through enemies and barriers, making their movement-based attacks even more effective.

Minor Actions

Material Instability ✦ Encounter

Effect: This creature is phasing until the end of its turn.

Nauseating Stench

The foulness of the Abyss surrounds a demon like an unseen cloud, debilitating any foe that moves too close. Controller and soldier demons favor this power for its ability to protect them from melee attackers.

Traits

Nauseating Stench ✦ Aura 1

Any enemy that starts its turn within the aura is slowed until the end of its next turn.

Soul of Slaughter

In the heat of battle, a demon's successful strike inspires it to greater savagery against other nearby targets. This soul of slaughter can drive even the most intelligent of demons into a state of feral bloodlust.

Triggered Actions

Soul of Slaughter ✦ At-Will

Trigger: This creature scores a critical hit.
Effect (Free Action): This creature makes a melee basic attack against a creature other than the target of the critical hit.

Soul Stealer

Demons are forces of raw destruction. When left to their own devices in the world, they tear down trees, rip apart bushes and shrubs, and chase down and slay wildlife. Any signs of health and vigor drive this demon to a rage, causing it to lash out with a vicious attack.

Traits

Soul Stealer ✦ Aura 1

If an enemy in the aura spends a healing surge, this demon makes a melee basic attack against it with a +5 bonus to its attack and damage rolls as a free action.

Spell Eater

Owing to their elemental origin, demons are infused with a variety of magical energies. The abilities they possess arise from the ebb and flow of power within them, and demons are voracious devourers of all things in part because they must struggle to maintain a high level of energy at all times. A demon with the spell eater power derives sustenance from the raw stuff of magic. It can absorb the energies contained within a magical zone and use them to fuel its powers.

Minor Actions

Spell Eater ✦ Encounter

Attack: Close burst 5 (one zone in the burst); level + 3 vs. Will of the zone's creator
Hit: The zone is destroyed, and this creature recharges one power of its choice.

Vicious Assault

A demon's feral nature allows it to overwhelm a foe's defenses with sheer spite. Brutes employ vicious assault to increase their chances of hitting with an encounter or a recharge power. A controller demon with this power uses it before using a burst or a blast.

Minor Actions

Vicious Assault ✦ Encounter

Effect: The next attack this creature makes before the end of its next turn is made against the lowest of the target's defenses.

Campaign Arc: Rise of the Obyriths

The extent of the obyriths' power and the nature of their goals remain mysteries to even the other demon lords. Few sages have studied these creatures of ancient evil, and fewer still have any inkling of the extent and effect of their plans. Rumors as old as the Abyss whisper that the rise of the obyriths spells the end of creation.

This campaign arc illustrates the obyriths' influence by showing their effect on the Nentir Vale (see Dungeon Master's Guide, page 206).

Heroic Tier: An Endless Dark Arises

Characters at the beginning of the heroic tier might normally be far beneath the notice of the obyriths. Likewise, creatures of epic power would seem to have little direct interest in isolated worldly realms such as the Nentir Vale. But the obyriths' far-reaching plots are woven of subtle threads, and they will touch every part of the cosmos before the end.

The obyriths seek to create the opportunity to seize power by inciting war between demon lords. From the Abyss to the streets of Fallcrest, demon cultists engage in open conflict with one another. The adventurers might delve into the stronghold of a cult of Orcus only to find gnolls dedicated to Yeenoghu sacking the place. Time and again, demon cults come to blows and the land teeters on the edge of chaos.

As the situation in the Nentir Vale grows bleaker, prophets walk the streets and demon worship is an ever-growing problem. Cults become more aggressive in their attacks and recruitment. Abyssal scavengers (page 102) and carnage demons (see Monster Manual, page 54) appear in growing numbers, soon followed by monsters that are even more powerful.

As the obyriths grow in power, their plans begin to balance aggression with careful subtlety. The conflicts they have sparked among the followers of the demon lords allow them to begin a new campaign of misdirection. Their mortal agents incite open warfare between cults, all the while spreading the rituals used to open more and more demongates. The obyriths expect the endless tide of demons swarming into the world to keep their enemies occupied as they pursue their even darker goals.

With each adventure, the characters must drive back rampant demons, prevent assassinations, quell the growing power of the cults, and defeat the high priests that are summoning these demons into the world. As level 10 approaches, the party faces its greatest challenge—preventing the whole of the Nentir Vale from becoming a demonic battleground as more and more cults open portals to the Abyss.

Paragon Tier: To the Abyss and Back

The characters might stem the tide of demons in the Nentir Vale, but not every civilized realm has such heroes to save it. Beyond the vale, demons continue to mass. The characters learn that agents of an unknown power based in Sigil (see Dungeon Master's Guide 2, page 186) are behind the spread of the secret rituals that have opened a large number of demongates. The adventurers travel to Sigil, beginning a section of the campaign that combines demon stomping with high levels of stealth and intrigue.

The obyriths have veiled their plans in layers of deception. No one involved in the conspiracy to open the gates knows more than is necessary, and the obyriths' most senior servants use deceptive magic, mundane disguises, and aliases to cover their tracks.

Early in this part of the campaign, the adventurers track down a raavasta (see Manual of the Planes, page 136) named Karrath. Karrath appears to be behind the spread of the rituals, but he has not been seen in Sigil in some time. After piecing together clues left in his lair, the adventurers embark on a journey across Sigil to find Karrath and his allies, eventually discovering that the raavasta has a fortress on the Plain of a Thousand Portals.

The characters must storm the fortress, slay the raavasta's guardians, and capture him. When they do so, they learn that Karrath is only one of a dozen duplicates—creatures magically spawned by the obyriths to serve as ultimate masterminds. The characters must track down and slay the remaining duplicates, each of which has been imbued by the obyriths with different powers and abilities. (See "Demonic Monster Themes," page 20, for inspiration.)

In the campaign's final act, the characters learn that the last remaining Karrath has vanished into the Underdark. To find him, they must sneak into a drow city. In so doing, they witness a turning point in the obyriths' plans: An alliance of Baphomet, Demogorgon, Orcus, and numerous lesser demon lords destroys Lolth and several other evil deities.

This act weakens the deities' ranks, just as the obyriths have planned. Either directly or by manipulating demon lords, the obyriths engineer the deaths of more evil gods as good deities grapple with the demons' invasion of the world. In the end, the conflict in the Abyss draws in the good deities when they learn of the obyriths' plans—realizing that the evil deities' destruction heralds the rise of an even greater evil.

As the adventurers rise through the paragon tier, they draw the attention of the obyriths. Pazuzu in particular is fascinated by them, and the obyrith lord, in the guise of one of his many aliases (see "Pazuzu Secrets," page 133), offers them a boon. Though the characters do not yet realize it, the demon lord plans to use them as pawns if the obyriths' scheme fails, knowing that the deities will stop at nothing to annihilate him and his kind.

Epic Tier: Against the Obyriths

In contrast to the paragon tier's conspiracies and secrets, the epic tier is an unabashed exercise in destroying the most powerful entities in the Dungeons & Dragons game. Since most of the obyriths have kept their identities secret, the DM now has the chance to reveal which of the game's demon lords are the secret members of the Quorum of Twelve.

Demons in Your Campaign

It's easy to cast demons as a world-destroying threat, because that's what they are. However, in your own campaign they don't have to pose such a grand threat to the entire cosmic order. In fantasy fiction, demons are often depicted as inscrutable, scary, and dangerous foes without being the level of threat they are presented as in this book. The role of the obyriths and the story arc of the Abyss presented here is only one possible role for demons in your game. Don't feel that demons are a threat that all adventurers must eventually tackle, or that they are the only real threat that epic tier characters can face.

With that said, this book was specifically designed to help build the framework for an epic campaign. Demons, as a threat against the very structure of the cosmos, are easy villains to use when you want to pull a variety of deities, primordials, and other mighty beings together. On the other hand, if you just want some tough, strange, and powerful enemies to populate your dungeons, be lackeys to your villains, and pose a limited threat to the characters, you can easily dial down the Abyss's threat. Perhaps the obyriths' plans still need thousands of years of work, or maybe in your campaign they don't even exist. As with all things in the Dungeons & Dragons game, it's up to the Dungeon Master to determine the role of demons and their true story in your campaign. Think of the background material here, and the suggested campaign arc, as one possible route you can take.

In the campaign's final act, the adventurers must lead an army into the Abyss. The obyriths are on the verge of triumph, and only their destruction can save the cosmos. The primordials, the gods, and the primal spirits must set aside their ancient differences and declare war on the Abyss. Throughout the first half of the epic tier, it's up to the heroes to use their knowledge and skills to bring these disparate factions together.

If the party succeeds, the First and Last Alliance takes form, and the characters become the leaders of the greatest army ever assembled. They lead the invasion of the Abyss, serving as field commanders, champions against the mightiest demons, and assassins charged with slaying the mightiest warlords of the forces of evil.

With each battle, the alliance claims another layer of the Abyss. The characters face an array of challenges. Demons are striking at lightly guarded areas of the Astral Sea and the Elemental Chaos, causing numerous deities and primordials to abandon the alliance and protect their home planes. Moreover, as demon lords not part of the obyrith conspiracy fall to the alliance, those demon lords that remain grow stronger.

As the epic tier draws to a close, the situation grows more desperate. The obyriths slay the last of the lesser demon lords and lay claim to the Abyss, threatening to reverse the alliance's gains. In a final gambit, the characters must venture to the bottom of the Abyss to find the shard of evil at its heart. To distract the obyriths, the First and Last Alliance launches a suicidal attack against them. The obyriths that survive quickly learn of the party's plans.

The campaign comes to its conclusion with the adventurers battling the obyriths. If they win, the characters can perform a ritual to expel the shard of evil from the cosmos, stopping the Abyss's endless growth and destroying the obyriths once and for all. Sealing the rift might require the adventurers to sacrifice themselves or to remain behind in the empty void to ensure that the shard is forever kept isolated. With the obyrith threat ended, the characters have reshaped the Abyss and the cosmos in their own image.

Disrupt the Cult Ritual

The rituals allowing fiends to be summoned by demonic cults are each a long, complex process. A cult leader must possess the unique skill necessary to control the power of a demonic ritual, and a proper sacrifice must be prepared. Moreover, the ritual must be allowed to proceed uninterrupted over the prolonged period necessary to build up and harvest its power.

Disrupting a demonic ritual can make a suitable foundation for any adventure. The adventurers might be charged with retrieving an artifact stolen by a cult for dark purposes, or with preventing an ancient ritual book from falling into the wrong hands in the first place. But by far the most exciting way to disrupt a summoning ritual features the adventurers crashing into the cult's lair to find a living sacrifice strapped to an altar, a heartbeat away from death. This kind of climactic encounter can incorporate a skill challenge modeled after the one presented here.

This challenge is not written for characters of a specific level. Instead, it sets the skill check DCs as easy, moderate, or hard, as given on the table in Dungeon Master's Guide 2, page 80, or the revised numbers from the Dungeon Master's Guide available at dndinsider.com.

The Ritual of Calling

This powerful ritual allows the caster to call forth a demon from the depths of the Abyss, establishing a bond with it and offering a sacrifice in exchange for fealty for a specific length of time. The Ritual of Calling is a basic tool of any demonologist, from a hedge wizard calling forth low-level fiends to slay her rivals, to a high priest of Orcus summoning infernal legions that can lay waste to an entire kingdom.

The Ritual of Calling requires a period of negotiation between the ritual caster and the demon to be bound. The ritual requires a minimum of a few hours to complete, depending on the demon's power and the caster's skill. One creature performs the ritual, using a standard action on each of its turns. The most powerful demons require the greatest length of time to bind, with negotiations over the details of the pact and the size and nature of the sacrifice sometimes stretching out over days. Most intelligent demons play a waiting game with inexperienced ritual casters, knowing that any error in the ritual might allow the demon to seize the caster and return with it to the Abyss.

Breaking the Ritual of Calling

This short skill challenge is designed to be used as part of a larger combat encounter. While the adventurers face off against the guards and monstrous servants of a demon cult, they must attempt to prevent the cult's high priest from binding a powerful demon to its service.

The adventurers can gain only one success per round in this challenge. Once the ritual has been disrupted with a successful check, additional successes in the same round have no further effect. The party's next success cannot be gained until after the end of the ritual caster's next turn.

Failures in the skill challenge are accrued differently than normal. See "Failure" below for more information.

Level: Any.

Complexity: 1 (requires 4 successes before 3 failures).

Primary Skills: Arcana, Athletics, Religion.

Arcana (hard DC by level, standard action): The character attempts to disrupt the ritual by manipulating the dangerous flow of arcane energy through which caster and demon communicate. One other character can use the aid another action to assist the character making this check.

A character making or assisting this check must be within 2 squares of the ritual caster and must have line of sight and line of effect to the ritual caster.

Athletics (moderate DC by level, standard action): With an Athletics check, the character attempts to physically prevent the ritual caster from undertaking the complex gestures needed to complete the ritual. The Athletics DC equals the caster's Fortitude defense. One other character can use the aid another action to assist the character making this check.

A character making or assisting this check must be adjacent to the ritual caster.

Religion (hard DC by level, standard action): The character uses his or her knowledge of the dark ritual being performed to counter its magic. One other character can use the aid another action to assist the character making this check.

A character making or assisting this check must be within 2 squares of the ritual caster and must have line of sight and line of effect to the ritual caster.

Secondary Skills: The Ritual of Calling typically requires the sacrifice of residuum, a relic consecrated to a good or a lawful good deity, or a sentient creature. The secondary skills in this challenge are dependent on the specific setup of the ritual, but might include Thievery or Strength checks.

Thievery (hard DC by level, standard action): A victim intended to be sacrificed as part of the Ritual of Calling is typically chained or tied to an altar, ready to be consumed by the demon when the pact is complete. A victim can be freed with a successful Thievery check. In addition to granting a success in the challenge, a successful Thievery check made to free a victim grants a +2 bonus to all subsequent primary skill checks made in this challenge.

Strength or Thievery (moderate DC by level, standard action): Residuum or a relic slated for sacrifice is placed on an altar close to the ritual caster. The magic of the ritual protects the sacrificial object, hindering its removal before the ritual is completed. With a successful Strength or Thievery check, the adventurer physically breaks those bonds of protection and moves the offering from the altar.

Once a successful check is made to remove the offering, a character can move it 10 or more squares away from the ritual caster to grant a +2 bonus to all subsequent primary checks made in this challenge.

Attacking the Caster: Attacking the ritual caster directly might seem the quickest way to end the ritual. But harming or killing the caster before the ritual is completed is dangerous. Whenever the ritual caster takes damage, roll a d20. On a result of 19 or higher, the demon targeted by the ritual appears and runs rampant (see "Special" below). This roll takes a +2 bonus for each previous time the caster has taken damage. If the caster is slain or becomes unconscious as a result of an enemy attack, the demon likewise appears and attacks.

The caster can be disrupted in other ways to safely hinder the ritual's completion. If the caster is unable to use a standard action on its turn to continue the ritual, each primary check made in the challenge before the start of the caster's next turn gains a +4 bonus. Attacks that daze, stun, or dominate the ritual caster without dealing damage can be used to this end.

Success: If the characters earn 4 successes, the ritual is ruined and cannot be restarted. The caster is now free to fight the party, but the demon returns to the Abyss.

Failure: Unlike with a normal skill challenge, the characters' failed primary skill checks during this challenge do not count toward overall failure. Instead, the characters gain 1 failure at the end of the caster's turn if the caster used a standard action on that turn to continue the ritual, and if the characters have not gained a success since the caster's prior turn.

If the characters fail the skill challenge, the ritual is completed. Any living sacrifices are instantly slain, and the demon appears and acts at the caster's command.

Special: If the demon runs rampant because the ritual caster is attacked, made unconscious, or killed, the characters automatically fail the challenge. However, the demon is not under the ritual caster's control when it appears, and it attacks the party and the cultists with equal fervor.

Increasing the Complexity

The setup of the skill challenge assumes that one or two characters focus on the challenge while the other characters battle cultists or protect their comrades. The complexity of the challenge can be increased with one or more of the following options, making it a bigger part of the encounter.

Communal Ritual Casting: In addition to whatever guards and hazards are present to protect the ritual caster (see "Rounding Out the Encounter" below), add two assistant ritual caster cultists to the encounter to add an additional level of complexity. Use minions appropriate to the type of cult and the level of the challenge. These cultists aid the ritual caster through chanting and prayer, such that slaying them can hasten the breaking of the ritual.

These dedicated minions do not attack. Instead, they take the total defense action each turn (+2 to all defenses) while they aid the ritual caster as a minor action. For every two cultists the adventurers kill, they gain a success in the challenge.

Expanded Sacrifice: For a more complex skill challenge, replace a single altar with three or more altars set across the encounter area. The ritual caster works before one altar, though each altar has its own sacrifice that can be freed to disrupt the ritual.

Successes Per Round: If the complexity of the challenge increases to 3 or higher, allow the characters to obtain up to two successes per round.

Rounding Out the Encounter

This skill challenge is intended to function as part of a combat encounter or alongside hazards and traps. If the characters face only a single ritual caster, it becomes easy for them to line up with the aid another action and ruin the ritual in short order.

A character must be close to the ritual caster to ruin its efforts, so defensive barriers can slow the party down. Low walls, rubble piles, pools of flaming oil, or a demonic trap or hazard (page 36) can make it more difficult for the adventurers to move into position. There should also be plenty of guards on hand to run interference. In particular, controllers using forced movement powers can keep characters away from the ritual caster while artillery attackers lay down an assault around them.

Demonic Traps and Hazards

With the Blood War in a state of dark truce, the conflict between devils and demons plays out more and more in the mortal realm. The demon cults of the world are all too eager to spread the power of their abyssal masters, and their temples and sanctuaries quickly become polluted by dark magic.

This section presents new hazards and traps for use in designing demonic encounters, and it describes features commonly found in the temples and shrines of worldly demon cults.

Pillars of Chaos

The inner precincts of many demonic temples are lined with pillars carved to reflect the visages of their abyssal lords. The magic of these pillars presents a potent obstacle to any creatures that trespass.

Pillars of Chaos Level 4 Obstacle
Trap XP 175

The pillars set around this chamber are covered with leering demonic faces, their eyes seeming to follow you as you move.

Trap: Planar energy infuses the pillars of chaos, hurling victims randomly throughout the chamber. Six pillars make up this trap, each of which occupies 1 square.

Perception
No Perception check is necessary to notice the pillars.

Additional Skill: Arcana
✦DC 12: These pillars are infused with the planar energy of the Abyss.
✦DC 17: The pillars of chaos warp space around them. Demons can use the power of the pillars to teleport, but other creatures are drawn through the teleportation field at random.

Trigger
A pillar attacks whenever a nondemon starts its turn adjacent to it.

Attack
Opportunity Action Close burst 1 centered on the pillar adjacent to the triggering creature
Target: The triggering creature
Attack: +7 vs. Fortitude
Hit: The target is teleported to an unoccupied square adjacent to one of the trap's other pillars, determined randomly.
Special: As a move action, a demon adjacent to a pillar of chaos can teleport to any unoccupied space it can see adjacent to another pillar of chaos.

Countermeasures
✦A character adjacent to a pillar of chaos can make a DC 17 Arcana check (as a move action) to control the trap's teleportation field. On a successful check, the character teleports to any unoccupied square it can see adjacent to another pillar of chaos.
✦A character can attack a pillar to destroy it (AC 5, Reflex 5, Fortitude 10, 30 hit points). Destroying all the pillars ends this trap's threat.

Demon Face Idol

The lairs of many cults are scribed with the leering faces of demon lords and lesser abyssal creatures. These graven idols are more than decoration, however. A cult's high priests can employ unique rituals to see through an idol's eyes, allowing them to keep a close watch on distant areas of the temple. In addition, the presence of enemies triggers abyssal magic that causes a demon's face to animate, shrieking blasphemous oaths that break the will of intruders.

Demon Face Idol Level 6 Warder
Trap XP 250

The leering face of a demon has been carved into the stone wall of this temple.

Trap: The demon face idol hangs in 1 square on a wall or a pillar. It provides enemies with a view of the area, and aids the servants of its abyssal master in combat.

Perception
No Perception check is necessary to notice the idol.

Additional Skill: Arcana (trained only)
✦DC 12: The idol is magic, and it reacts to any creature's approach.
✦DC 17: Another creature sees through the idol's eyes, watching all who pass.

Initiative +5

Trigger
The trap activates and rolls initiative when any enemy enters a square within 5 squares of it, or when a character makes a failed Thievery check or attacks the idol (see below). When the idol activates, one creature linked to it becomes aware of the presence of every creature within 5 squares of the idol.

Attack
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: +10 vs. Will
Hit: The idol pushes the target 4 squares. If the target ends this movement next to an ally of the demon face idol, that ally can make a melee basic attack against the target as an opportunity action.
Special: The trap treats all nondemons that are not part of the idol's demon cult as enemies. It treats all members of the cult and their allies as its allies.

Countermeasures
✦By making a DC 17 Stealth check, a character can move within 5 squares of the idol without activating it or alerting the creature linked to it.
✦A character adjacent to the idol can make a DC 17 Thievery check (as a standard action) to disable the trap until the start of the character's next turn. Three successful Thievery checks destroy the trap.
If the trap has not yet been activated, a failed Thievery check activates it (as above).
✦A character can attack the idol (AC 22, Reflex 22, Fortitude 21, 21 hit points). Doing so activates the trap (as above). Destroying the idol ends its threat.

Altar of Pain

Where the power of the Abyss is strongest in the world, it twists and deforms the essence of life. Unspeakable acts are committed in such places for the greater glory of the demon lords, centered on the altar of pain. This simple slab of black rock is permanently stained by blood and scored by the marks of sacrificial blades. The demon lord's faithful gather here to perform their savage rites, protected by the altar's dark power.

Altar of Pain Level 7 Blaster
Hazard XP 300

This crude altar is carved from black rock, the dark bloodstains of uncounted sacrifices covering its surface and the ground around it.

Hazard: The altar occupies 2 contiguous squares, and it is imbued with abyssal power deadly to creatures that oppose its purpose.

Perception
No Perception check is necessary to notice the altar.

Additional Skill: Religion
✦ DC 14: This area is oppressive with the presence of this black altar, which is dedicated to the power of the Abyss.
✦ DC 19: The altar deals damage to enemies that fight within reach of its power.

Trigger
The altar activates when a nondemon adjacent to it or on it takes damage.

Attack
Immediate Reaction Close burst 3
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: +10 vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + 5 damage.
Special: The hazard treats all nondemons that are not part of the altar's demon cult as enemies. It treats all members of the cult and their allies as its allies. The altar blocks movement, but a creature can jump onto it by making a DC 10 Athletics check.

Countermeasures
✦ A character adjacent to the altar can attempt to sanctify it by making a DC 19 Religion check (as a standard action). If the check succeeds, the altar makes an attack (as above) that targets its allies rather than its enemies. The altar cannot make another attack until after the end of the character's turn. With three successful Religion checks, the altar is destroyed.
✦ A character can attack the altar (AC 5, Reflex 5, Fortitude 10, 40 hit points). Destroying the altar ends its threat.

Mirror of Madness

When demonic cults flourish over many years, the corruption of the Abyss seeps through into the natural world. Such corruption creates a window into that realm, forging a trap for creatures that intrude in demonic temples and shrines.

Mirror of Madness Level 8 Blaster
Trap XP 350

A section of wall ahead is polished to a mirror sheen. Strange colors swirl within its surface, coalescing into frightful, leering forms.

Trap: A mirror of madness occupies a space 2 squares wide along a wall. Creatures that linger too close to the trap are rendered senseless.

Perception
No Perception check is needed to notice the mirror of madness.

Additional Skills: Arcana or Religion
✦ DC 14: This section of mirror-bright wall is a window into the Abyss. Any creature gazing into it risks madness.
✦ DC 19: The energy held within the mirror of madness is unleashed in a blast if the wall is damaged.

Initiative +6

Trigger
The trap activates and rolls initiative when any creature moves within 5 squares of it.

Attack
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: +12 vs. Will
Hit: The target is dazed and immobilized (save ends). First Failed Saving Throw: The target is instead dominated (save ends).
Miss: The target is dazed until the end of its next turn.
Special: The trap treats all nondemons that are not part of its demon cult as enemies. It treats all members of the cult and their allies as its allies.

Countermeasures
✦ A character adjacent to the trap can make a DC 19 Arcana, Religion, or Thievery check (each as a minor action) to hinder the mirror's attack. Each successful check imposes a -2 penalty to the trap's attack rolls. With three successful checks, the mirror of madness is permanently disabled.
✦ A character can attack the mirror (AC 5, Reflex 5, Fortitude 10, 40 hit points). Whenever the trap is hit by an attack, each creature within 5 squares of it takes 5 psychic damage. Destroying the mirror ends this trap's threat.

Altar of Pazuzu

The demon lord Pazuzu delights in turning wholesome folk to the ways of evil. His altars exert a dark influence on creatures foolish enough to invade the precincts of his temples.

Altar of Pazuzu Level 11 Lurker
Trap XP 600

A finely appointed altar is covered in gleaming gold and set with finely crafted gems. Its glittering surface shimmers, inviting your approach.

Trap: The altar occupies 2 contiguous squares, and it attacks any creatures that venture too close.

Perception

✦ DC 10: The altar's rich dressings are revealed as cheap paste gems and the thinnest gilding of low-quality gold leaf.

Additional Skills: Arcana or Religion

✦ DC 16: This altar is a magic trap designed to corrupt creatures drawn to it.

✦ DC 21: The altar is a tool of the demon lord Pazuzu, known for his treachery and for his love of corrupting the innocent. His magic is said to turn friend against friend, setting good folk down a path of damnation.

Initiative +6

Trigger

The trap activates and rolls initiative when any enemy moves within 3 squares of the altar.

Attack

Standard Action Close burst 3

Target: Each enemy in burst

Attack: +14 vs. Will

Hit: The target is overcome with a compulsion to steal items from the altar (save ends). While this effect lasts, the target must take a standard action on each of its turns to pry worthless gems from the altar. If it does not, the target takes 10 psychic damage at the end of its turn.

Special: The trap treats all nondemons that are not part of Pazuzu's cult as enemies. It treats all members of the cult and their allies as its allies.

Countermeasures

✦ A character adjacent to a creature overcome by the altar's compulsion can end the effect on that creature by making a DC 21 Religion check (as a standard action).

✦ A character can attack the altar (AC 5, Reflex 5, Fortitude 10, 40 hit points). Destroying the altar ends its threat.

Garden of Rot

As the Lady of Decay, Zuggtmoy wields power over fungi, mold, and other organisms that thrive on rot and putrescence. Groves of such growth held sacred by Zuggtmoy are known as gardens of rot, flourishing within her temples and around the strongholds of her followers. In addition to its defensive value, a garden of rot is used as a sacrificial site. Zuggtmoy's faithful bury victims alive, consigning them to a slow, painful transformation as the fungi of the garden overwhelm and consume them. Such sacrifices rise eventually as scions of Zuggtmoy (page 142).

Cultists of Zuggtmoy bury undead creatures and bound demons within a garden of rot as guards. Such a creature gains a +5 bonus to Stealth checks to hide while buried. It can emerge from the ground and stand up as a move action.

Garden of Rot Level 15 Obstacle
Hazard XP 1,200

A grove of ten-foot-tall mushrooms is permeated by a haze of sickly fog.

Hazard: The toxic haze of a garden of rot is deadly to creatures that enter it. The garden fills a 5-square-by-5-square area and is difficult terrain.

Perception

No Perception check is needed to notice the garden of rot.

Additional Skill: Nature

✦ DC 18: The plants and mushrooms in this garden carry the taint of the Abyss. The haze that fills the garden is a shifting cloud of spores.

✦ DC 23: The abyssal power permeating this garden of rot allows demons and undead creatures to lurk safely within it. Only fire can burn away this infestation.

Trigger

The trap attacks whenever a creature enters the area or starts its turn there.

Attack

Opportunity Action Close burst 1 centered on the triggering creature

Target: Each enemy in burst

Attack: +18 vs. Fortitude

Hit: 2d6 + 8 poison damage, and the target cannot see more than 3 squares (save ends).

Special: The hazard treats all nondemons that are not part of Zuggtmoy's cult as enemies. It treats all members of the cult and their allies as its allies.

Countermeasures

✦ As a minor action, a creature can make a DC 23 Nature or Perception check to seek the safest path through the garden. With a successful check, the creature can move completely through the hazard (assuming it has enough movement to do so). The creature is subject to the above attack at the end of its move even if it has left the area of the hazard.

✦ A garden of rot can be attacked to destroy it. Each square of the garden has AC 22, Reflex 22, Fortitude 21, and 50 hit points. The fungi of the garden are immune to all damage other than fire damage.

Demonskin Tapestry

The foulest demon cults flay the skin from living victims, then infuse it with demonic essence. Cultists hang these demonskin tapestries to block doorways and passages within their temples, creating traps that can grab and crush intruders.

Demonskin Tapestry Level 19 Warder
Trap XP 2,400

A stitched tapestry of bloodstained leather hangs from the wall.

Trap: A demonskin tapestry occupies 2 squares of a wall or a doorway. It animates as a writhing sheet of flesh that attempts to grab enemies within reach.

Perception

✦ DC 22: The tapestry ripples slightly, though nothing can be seen behind it.

Additional Skill: Arcana
✦DC 27: This foul tapestry is stitched of the skin of sacrificial victims, and is animated by abyssal magic.
Trigger
The tapestry attacks whenever an enemy starts its turn adjacent to it or moves into its space.
Attack
Opportunity Action Melee 1
Target: The triggering creature
Attack: +22 vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + 5 damage, and the target is immobilized (save ends).
Special: The trap treats all nondemons that are not part of the tapestry's demon cult as enemies. It treats all members of the cult and their allies as its allies.
When closed, a demonskin tapestry blocks line of sight and line of effect and is difficult terrain. The tapestry can open or close as a standard action. It can still attack when open.
When it attacks, the tapestry emits a keening wail that alerts nearby creatures.
Countermeasures
✦A character adjacent to a creature immobilized by the tapestry can free that creature by making a DC 27 Athletics check (as a move action). The immobilized effect ends on the target.
✦A character can attack the tapestry (AC 22, Reflex 22, Fortitude 21, 50 hit points). Destroying the tapestry ends its threat.

Slaughter Monolith

Carved of rock mined in the deep layers of the Abyss, this monolith pulses with raw evil. Slaughter monoliths are commonly found in abyssal temples and powerful centers of demon worship across the planes, driving would-be intruders into a state of mindless mania.

Slaughter Monolith Level 23 Blaster
Trap XP 5,100

An upright slab of black stone is shrouded in a blood-red haze.

Trap: A slaughter monolith clouds the minds of creatures that approach it, causing them to lash out at their allies. The monolith occupies a 2-square-by-2-square area and is blocking terrain.
Perception
No Perception check is necessary to notice the monolith.
Additional Skill: Arcana
✦DC 24: The black monolith channels the raw essence of the Abyss. It radiates evil, and it can overwhelm the senses of creatures that draw too close.
✦DC 29: The monolith dominates creatures that approach it, causing them to lash out against their allies.
Initiative +8
Trigger
The trap activates and rolls initiative when any creature moves within 10 squares of it.
Attack
Standard Action Close burst 3 centered on the monolith
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: +27 vs. Will
Hit: The target moves its speed and makes a basic attack against the nearest creature. If the target can charge the nearest creature, it does that instead. If the target cannot attack, it makes a double move toward the nearest creature.
Miss: 15 psychic damage, and the monolith pushes the target 2 squares.
Countermeasures
✦A character adjacent to the monolith can make a DC 29 Arcana, Religion, or Thievery check (each as a standard action) to hinder the monolith's attack. On a successful check, the monolith takes a -2 penalty to its next attack roll, and that attack has no effect on a miss. With three successful checks, the monolith is permanently disabled.

Field of Doom

The cursed essence of the Abyss permeates the physical landscape in areas explorers call fields of doom. Here, the ground heaves and opens up shrieking mouths, attacking the unwary in both body and mind. These manifestations are most common near the locations of powerful shrines, demonic temples, and the hiding places of abyssal relics.

Field of Doom Level 30 Blaster
Hazard XP 19,000

The ground heaves like a living creature. A multitude of shrieking mouths open up across the rocky landscape, venting clouds of acid.

Hazard: This hazard fills a 5-square-by-5-square area. It is difficult terrain.
Perception
No Perception check is needed to notice the field of doom.
Additional Skill: Arcana
✦DC 28: This hazard is a field of doom, said to be the essence of the Abyss given physical form.
✦DC 33: The mouths of a field of doom vent clouds of caustic acid and unleash a primal shriek that tears at a victim's mind.
Initiative +6
Trigger
The trap activates and rolls initiative when any creature moves within 5 squares of it.
Attack
Standard Action Melee
Target: Each creature within the area
Attack: +33 vs. Will
Hit: 4d10 + 4 psychic damage, and the field of doom pulls the target 3 squares toward the field's center.
Miss: The field of doom pulls the target 3 squares toward the field's center.
Special: Any creature that enters the field of doom or starts its turn there takes 15 acid damage.
Countermeasures
✦A creature within the field of doom can make a DC 33 Arcana check to minimize the field's attack. With a successful check, the field's next attack takes a -5 penalty to the attack roll and its acid damage is reduced to 10 points. With 3 successful Arcana checks, the field becomes dormant. A dormant field remains difficult terrain, but it cannot be triggered again for twenty-four hours.

CHAPTER 2

The Abyss

ARNIE SWEKEL

The Abyss is cruel, savage, and utterly without mercy—traits inherited by its demonic children. Its malign presence feeds on the Elemental Chaos and the world alike, possessed of a hunger that promises a day when it will consume all existence. The endless layers of the Abyss are its flesh and bones—bleak, inhospitable climes ruled by sadistic monsters of unmatched power.

The demons of the Abyss treat their realm as more than a world. The Abyss is the mother that grants them life and the temptress that seduces them with its hunger for destruction. It is the reaper that consumes them and the dark midwife that brings them back to repeat their endless cycle of bloodshed and pain. The Abyss is the nexus of every demon's existence, and its madness is all they know.

The nature of the Abyss makes this realm anathema to the mortal races. But those who dare the Abyss can reap rewards beyond description. Within this realm's deadly landscapes and alien dimensions, lore and relics that have been lost or forgotten for of eons can be recovered. Within the Abyss's desolate Barrens and Gaping Maw, fearless seekers can learn the answers to timeless mysteries. Deep in the Iron Wastes and the Blood Rift, fantastic treasures await those with the strength to seize them from the demons guarding them.

This chapter explores the physical landscape and nature of the Abyss, including the following.

- The Abyssal Realm: The structure and organization of this dark plane.
- The Layers of the Abyss: A sampling of the layers that make up the Abyss, from the entry layer of the Plain of a Thousand Portals to the Deep Layers from which it is said no outsiders escape.
- Abyssal Portals and Demonic Temples: The taint of the Abyss seeps into the mortal world through abyssal portals and the temples of demonic cults.
- Demonic Delves: A pair of dungeon delves let epic tier characters face off against a cult of Phraxas and infiltrate one of the Abyss's deadliest fortresses.

The Abyssal Realm

The legends of the mortal realm tell of the Chained God Tharizdun, and of how he sought a seed of evil in the remote darkness of the cosmos. Tharizdun coveted this seed, hoping that he might destroy all creation with its darkness. It is said that he cast the seed into the Elemental Chaos, where it festered, and there the Abyss was born.

The true story is more complex—and far more frightening.

The seed of absolute evil that lies buried at the Abyss's heart was created by the obyriths—the vile masters of a lost realm. It was not by chance that Tharizdun stumbled upon their creation. Indeed, the seed of evil was a trap by which the obyriths hoped to be drawn from their dying realm into a new cosmos that they would control. Though their plans were corrupted and dashed, the obyriths are ultimately responsible for the creation of the Abyss. This true history of the Abyss (page 7) is known to only a few.

Eons have passed since the Abyss was rocked by the titanic battles between Tharizdun and the obyrith lords that sought to control him. Wars between gods and primordials soon followed, to be followed in turn by the endless Blood War of the demons. Throughout its history, the madness of the Abyss has manifested in bloodshed. In recent centuries, however, kind of peace has been imposed on this chaos.

Today, the former front lines of the Blood War are silent, the iron fortresses of the devils standing empty across the Plain of a Thousand Portals. Tharizdun sleeps in his deep prison, lost from the sight and thoughts of even the gods. The obyriths are scattered and silent, their Queen of Chaos not seen in generations. Demogorgon, Orcus, and the greatest of the demon lords snipe and snarl at each other, even as they avoid large-scale conflicts for fear of losing what power they have.

And deep beneath it all, unseen and unstoppable, the seed of evil continues its descent down the blackness of the Blood Rift. As it cleaves through the cosmic firmament, it unleashes the hidden whispers that urge all demons to destroy in the name of their dark realm. Year by year, century after endless century, the Abyss consumes more of the Elemental Chaos from which it was spawned. In the end, all creation will be consumed by evil if the Abyss has its way.

The Vortex of Chaos

From the darkest depths of the Elemental Chaos, the Abyss appears as an immense vortex of elemental energy and debris, the nexus of which forms a whirling pit with a mouth wide enough to devour whole worlds. The dark void at the center of the vortex pulls the fabric of the Elemental Chaos toward it, drawing it ever downward. As creatures and objects are swallowed by the maelstrom, a dark and alien realm begins to manifest around them—a dimension that operates under its own ever-changing rules.

Though few mortal creatures can survive this direct journey across the threshold of the Elemental Chaos and into the Abyss, those that do describe the vortex in vastly different terms. What all such tales have in common, though, is that at some point in the downward journey, a great red sun resolves in the heart of the vortex, surrounded by orbiting motes of earth. Creatures and objects are drawn past this sun and its swirling earthmotes, to be hurled down on a broken plain riddled with pits and rusting iron fortresses. This is the Plain of a Thousand Portals—the fixed topmost layer of the Abyss, called Pazunia by those that dwell there. Its ruined landscape is cleft by the Blood Rift—an enormous chasm that extends the path of the vortex down into darkness.

The Structure of the Abyss

The Abyss is not just a location, but an entire alternate dimension. The layers of the Abyss stretch out along the Blood Rift's dark axis, each one its own bounded reality. Mortal sages and explorers have assigned names and numbers to only the most stable layers of the Abyss—those that have been explored and whose landscapes have been fixed by time or the will of their demon lords. The numbering of abyssal layers does not signify a specific order or sequence. The system instead marks the abyssal layers' order of discovery. No full tally of these layers has ever been made, and it is thought that the Abyss expands down the rift to infinite depths.

The Plain of a Thousand Portals is noteworthy as the only layer of the Abyss that stays in a fixed relationship to the Elemental Chaos above it and to the Blood Rift below. The layers beneath Pazunia shift as the abyssal vortex endlessly churns. Worldly explorers might enter a specific layer from directly beneath the Plain of a Thousand Portals, only to find that layer cast down to the abyssal depths when they attempt to leave.

In addition to their numbers, the layers of the Abyss are sometimes grouped according to their function and form. The entry layers are those by which most mortal creatures arrive in the Abyss. The best known of these is Pazunia (page 48), whose uncounted portals draw creatures from across the planes. The realm of Azzagrat (page 58) welcomes traders from the mortal world, who come by spelljammer, planar dromond, and other forms of magical transport (see Manual of the Planes). The Blood Rift, the great chasm that descends from Pazunia, cuts its way through every other abyssal layer. The bravest and most reckless explorers descend the rift to enter the shifting layers alongside it—some of which can be accessed by no other route.

The middle layers make up most of the Abyss, and include such realms as the Iron Wastes (home of the frost giant demon lord Kostchtchie) and Abysm (home to Demogorgon). Such layers typically contain portals or access points, but these are few in number, hidden away, or connect mostly to other abyssal layers.

The deep layers of the Abyss are the most difficult to breach. The Endless Maze, the Barrens, and Thanatos are the most well known of the deep layers. Creatures caught in such realms typically perish there.

Only one creature has reached the heart of the Abyss, where the seed of evil lies. In the earliest epoch of the Abyss, before the endless depths of that realm had been fully formed, the angel Asmodeus plunged into the unfurling Blood Rift and down to the Abyss's heart. He survived long enough not only to locate the seed, but to break off and steal from it a single black shard. Forging this shard into a ruby-tipped rod, the angel used it to slay the god he served.

Though it is said that no creature will ever repeat Asmodeus's deed, the fact that the heart of the Abyss was broken fuels the rage of the warring demon lords. With the theft of the shard, Asmodeus and the angels that followed him were transformed into devils and banished to the Nine Hells, from which the Blood War was launched. Though that conflict has ebbed, the demon lords hunger for the return of the shard, even as Asmodeus and his princes of hell scheme to steal more of the Abyss's power.

The Graveyard of Time

The Abyss consumes everything drawn into it, and not even the demon lords can survive its unseen depths. Since before the world was made, the Abyss has devoured everything within its grasp. It is said that all things ever lost have found the end of their journey there.

In the darkest abyssal layers, the rotting bodies of colossal primordials writhe in their endless death throes. The abandoned dreams of dead gods take shape as maddening whispers in the deep layers, and in the nonspace between layers, the detritus of broken worlds is shattered and remade. The Abyss's everlasting hunger has devoured whole astral dominions, assimilating them into its maelstrom of evil.

The Abyss is a place to which the defeated are drawn, continuing their struggle to establish their power over others. Among the self-styled lords of the Abyss are beings such as Graz'zt—a fallen angel who became a fallen devil, then became a demon. The goddess Lolth, failing in her plots to rule the elves, was cursed with transformation and exiled to her abyssal realm in the Demonweb. Primordials who failed in their attempt to control the mortal realm name themselves "lord" or "prince" as they hide in their abyssal strongholds and plot their revenge. And somewhere in a forbidden prison, Tharizdun remains chained for his crimes and for his mad longing to destroy all creation.

Power in the Abyss

Any creature whose unmatched evil and power allow it to solely dominate an entire layer of the Abyss can proclaim itself lord of that layer. When a demon gains uncontested control of an abyssal layer, it asserts its will over that layers' inherent power. The landscape and features of the layer shift to reflect the essential nature of its abyssal lord.

The Abyss is a violent arena of relentless demonic blood sport. It is a primitive battleground where demons wage constant war against one another, enduring an endless cycle of battle, death, and rebirth. The defeated return to life as lesser demons, changing their forms but retaining their memories as they seek power once again.

The Abyss whispers to its demons, setting them against each other as they take control of layer after layer. Ultimate power is promised to the one creature that can conquer the Abyss, and although demons slaughter and depose one another in endless battles, they all ultimately fail in this goal. Not even the obyriths have come close to ruling the Abyss, and only the demon lord Graz'zt has succeeded in dominating more than two layers.

Layers of the Abyss

Within the infinite depths of the Abyss, a handful of the known layers are reckoned the most important. The might of their demon lords, the secrets they hold, and the wealth and power that can be found there make these layers the most common destination of mortal explorers and adventurers.

The layers described here are the ones likely to be of most use—and to represent the most danger—to heroes. The Plain of a Thousand Portals might be the way in, and the Blood Rift might be the way down, but even the Witch Queen could not say for certain how to find the way out of the Abyss.

The Plain of a Thousand Portals

Gateway to the Abyss, where myriad pits lead brave travelers to newfound fortune or to death

Exposed to the raw, turbulent forces of the Elemental Chaos, the uppermost layer of the Abyss is an inhospitable wasteland of scouring winds and scorched earth. Called Pazunia or the Plain of Yawning Pits by some, this layer swarms with demons searching for prey. But despite its armies of fiends, sandblasted terrain, and sweltering heat, the Plain of a Thousand Portals attracts explorers and merchants from across the planes. Most travelers come seeking the vast number of pits that dot the landscape: demonic portals leading to nearly every abyssal layer.

The strategic value of the Plain of a Thousand Portals has served as a catalyst for endless slaughter. On the edges of great earthen cavities stand the iron fortresses that are the relics of the Blood War. These citadels now serve as palaces for lesser demons that have carved small fiefdoms from the wasteland. Demons pledged to Pazuzu name this expansive wasteland Pazunia, and no other demon lord has yet challenged the Prince of the Lower Aerial Kingdoms for his claim on this barren, unforgiving realm.

JARED BLANDO

PLAIN OF A THOUSAND PORTALS TRAITS

Type: Abyssal layer.

Size and Shape: Vast arid wasteland nearly five hundred miles across, its sky dotted with floating earthmotes; recursive.

Gravity: Normal on the surface, switching to elemental buoyancy when entering the atmosphere (approximately four hundred feet above the surface).

Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)

History

The 1st layer of the Abyss, Pazunia is a portal-pocked desert that connects to locations throughout the Abyss and the planes beyond. Its dusty landscape has witnessed an untold number of battles, and is still regularly drenched with blood and ichor. It has served as a front in the Dawn War, the Blood War, and many bloody battles between demon lords and lesser fiends.

The Plain of a Thousand Portals seems destined to be embroiled in eternal conflict. Beings that understand the history of this realm, however, look to the dusty landscape's horizon to glimpse its future. Once every millennium, an immense orbiting mote of elemental earth eclipses the dying star that marks the edge of the upper abyssal vortex, blanketing the layer in darkness. This earthmote, named A'othorh, heralds the end of one great cycle and the start of the next.

This rare twilight lasts for several days, during which time the ever-shrewd Pazuzu defers his authority to the Queen of Chaos (see "History of the Abyss," page 7). During the occlusion, it is said that the Queen crawls up to the Plain of Yawning Pits from her demesne in the Steaming Fen, the 14th layer of the Abyss. At the Great Ziggurat of Oth-Magurloth (page 47), along the Blood River's central floodplains, the Queen of Chaos holds court with the remaining obyrith lords.

Now, with the faint outline of A'othorh visible on the parched horizon, the denizens of Pazunia know the cycle's end is near, and disquiet spreads through Pazuzu's flock. Seers have prophesied that the Queen of Chaos will claim the Rod of Seven Parts during the next conclave, heralding the intervention of the Wind Dukes of Aaqa and the start of the next Chaos War.

Features and Terrain

The Plain of a Thousand Portals is nearly five hundred miles across. Travelers who trek continuously toward the horizon eventually move beyond the Abyss and into the Elemental Chaos. Although it is finite in size, huge sections of Pazunia and most of its pits remain unexplored. Fierce storms and frequent rockfalls gouge the plain, endlessly reworking its geography. Numerous maps of the layer exist, but these cover only small sections under the control of lesser local demons.

CARL CRITCHLOW

The Badlands

Pazunia's most prominent feature is its endless expanses of barren, cracked earth. Subjected to millennia of scorching heat and other brutal elemental phenomena, the land's severe ecology is deadly to mortal life. Its hot winds reek of burned flesh. That stench, coupled with stinging grit, compels explorers to shroud themselves while crossing the desolate countryside.

In addition to the unforgiving terrain, travelers crossing the Badlands must contend with supernatural hazards. Spinning clouds of gravel, formed from the bones of millions who have fallen here, are commonplace (treat as a field of everflame, Dungeon Master's Guide, page 92, that deals normal damage instead of fire damage). Occasionally, these dust devils converge into shrieking cyclones—vicious storms laden with course grit that can strip flesh from bone and turn bone to dust in minutes.

Infrequently, the Badlands see rain in the form of chaos-storms. Spectacular in size and appearance, malevolence burns at the heart of these tempests. The storms alter course to hunt down travelers, and the deluges change from common rain into sheets of fire, acid, or frost. Treat such storms as hellfire (see Manual of the Planes, page 22) that rains from the sky and deals fire, acid, or cold damage.

The Blood River

The dark waters of the Blood River originate from a spring deep in the uncharted heart of the Plain of a Thousand Portals. The river meanders through the layer, occasionally breaking off into streams that disappear into the pits of Pazunia. The Blood River fills Lake Main as it flows toward the looming fortress of Khin-Oin (page 51), then cascades into the depths of the Blood Rift (page 50).

Experienced explorers avoid the riverbank and the hidden dangers lurking in the fetid water. They cross the river at shallow fords and only in large numbers. Demonic ferry operators are occasionally seen piloting small boats and rafts on the river's turbulent surface.

The Over-Realm

Free-floating chunks of earth, known as motes, soar above the parched plain of Pazunia. These sky islands vary greatly in size, altitude, and foliage. Some motes are barren rock, but others support a dusting of plant life or whole forests riddled with freshwater ponds and streams. These high-altitude forested motes are the only consistent source of fresh water on the layer.

Pazuzu's flocks of winged demons gather in the Over-Realm, and have formed settlements on many of the larger motes. Long considered the de facto ruler of the layer, Pazuzu solidified his claim on the Plain of a Thousand Portals when he moved his aerie of Lord's Rook from his former demesne in Torremor (the 503rd layer of the Abyss) to a great earthmote in the Pazunian sky.

The higher explorers roam above the Plain of a Thousand Portals, the closer they come to the Elemental Chaos. The point where the Abyss ends and the Elemental Chaos begins has never been clearly defined. Ancient primordial predators stalk this hinterland between the planes.

Netherbian Plains

Elemental debris is frequently caught in the Abyss's immense gravity well and flung to its surface. Jagged tors, hundreds of feet high, jut haphazardly across the blasted Netherbian Plains. These monumental spires plummet from the sky, coming to rest in the shallow craters blasted out by their landings.

A residual taint from the Elemental Chaos typically spreads a few hundred feet around each monolith. Taints can range from a glacial ice sheet (see treacherous ice sheet, Dungeon Master's Guide, page 89) to a magma field or a small lake of fresh drinking water. Attracted to the randomness of this landscape, chaos shards (see Monster Manual 2, page 34) frequently roam the tors.

Exploring the Plain of a Thousand Portals

Spending time in Pazunia requires stamina, nerves of steel, and luck. This section presents two example skill challenges that explorers to the Plain of a Thousand Portals might face.

Exposure

The most pressing challenge that characters must overcome while traveling across Pazunia is exposure to the layer's stifling heat. The adventurers must undertake this skill challenge each day they spend traveling across the Plain of a Thousand Portals. The number of skill challenges necessary to reach a particular destination depends on the length of the characters' journey.

Level: Varies.

Complexity: 1 (requires 4 successes before 3 failures).

Primary Skills: Endurance.

Endurance (moderate DC by level, group check): Between four and six times between extended rests (at the DM's discretion), each character must attempt this check to resist the harsh conditions of Pazunia. If at least half the characters succeed, the party gains a success in the challenge. If half fail, the party earns a failure, and each character loses a healing surge. Healing surges cannot be regained until the party's journey is complete.

Secondary Skills: Arcana, Heal, Nature.

Arcana or Nature (moderate DC by level for Arcana, hard DC by level for Nature): Before the characters attempt a group Endurance check, one character must attempt this check to find safe shelter. A success yields a safe place to rest. On a failure, each character takes a –2 penalty to his or her Endurance check.

Heal (moderate DC by level): This check can be attempted by a character subject to a –2 penalty to his or her next Endurance check because of a failed Arcana or Nature check. With a successful Heal check, the character negates the penalty.

Special: Using the Endure Elements ritual (see Player's Handbook, page 304) on each party member gains 4 successes for this skill challenge.

Success: If the characters earn 4 successes, they make their way safely and can take an extended rest. The characters do not regain healing surges until the journey is finished.

Failure: If the characters accumulate 3 failures, they are able to make their way across Pazunia, but the harsh environment prevents them from taking an extended rest. In addition, each character loses another healing surge.

Navigation

The barren and shifting landscape of Pazunia is treacherous to navigate. Lacking a proper guide, the characters must engage in this skill challenge each day they spend journeying across the Plain of a Thousand Portals. The number of skill challenges necessary to reach a particular destination depends on the length of the adventurers' journey.

Level: Varies,

Complexity: 1 (requires 4 successes before 3 failures).

Primary Skills: Arcana, Nature, Perception.

Arcana (moderate DC by level): The character uses his or her knowledge of Pazunia and the chaotic nature of the Abyss to help blaze a trail.

Nature (hard DC by level): Though not familiar with the abyssal landscape, the character can adapt his or her knowledge of the outdoors to chart a course.

Perception (hard DC by level): A quick eye can keep the party on the trail, but Pazunia holds hidden dangers. A successful Perception check earns 1 success in the challenge. A failed check earns the characters 1 failure in the challenge, but also leads them into a group of wandering monsters of a level one less than the party's level.

Secondary Skills: Acrobatics, Athletics, Bluff.

Acrobatics and Athletics (moderate DC by level): Using strength and reflexes to overcome Pazunia's dangers, the character grants a +2 bonus to the next primary skill check made in the challenge.

Bluff (hard DC by level): When an ally fails a Perception check, one other character can attempt to use guile and deception to avoid the encounter. With a successful check, the characters avoid the wandering monsters. On a failure, the wandering monsters gain surprise.

Special: Using Hand of Fate (see Player's Handbook®, page 306) before a primary skill check grants a +2 bonus to that check. Using Find the Path (see the Eberron® Player's Guide, page 117) earns the characters 4 successes in the skill challenge.

Using an accurate map of the area or an equivalent navigational tool grants a +2 bonus to all primary skill checks made in this challenge.

Success: If the characters earn 4 successes, the party stays on course for one day of travel.

Failure: If the characters get 3 failures, each character loses a healing surge, and the party makes no progress toward their goal.

Locations

Rusting iron bastions and towering ziggurats are scattered across the blasted landscape of Pazunia. Some of these locales are well guarded; others are abandoned, waiting to be discovered and plundered.

Bastion of Skycleave

The ruins of a great town lie abandoned alongside a lake of molten iron. Raazorforge, once known for its impressive forging operations during the Blood War, is now remembered for the striking palace that floats in the skies overhead. A colossal steel chain rises out of the parched earth at the center of Raazorforge, anchoring a soaring earthmote high above. Atop the earthmote is the Bastion of Skycleave, a majestic djinn citadel of flying buttresses, vaulted porticos, and soaring domes adorned with stained-glass windows.

Centuries past, an unknown curse befell the town of Raazorforge and the citadel floating above it. Demons shun the site, making it one of the safest locales on Pazunia, or so scholars believe. For travelers who have nerves of steel, the primordial-forged chain offers an arduous climb to the floating isle.

Great Ziggurat of Oth-Magurloth

A colossal stone structure of multicolored step terraces, the Great Ziggurat of Oth-Magurloth is the largest known structure on Pazunia. At the start of each millennial cycle, the opulent temple atop the edifice serves as the meeting place for the Queen's Conclave. The Queen of Chaos presides over this gathering of the unknown obyrith lords. In the centuries between conclaves, scores of acolytes defend and maintain the temple and the ziggurat's sprawling subterranean complex. Most demons, including the demon lords, avoid the Great Ziggurat for fear that the site is cursed.

The Great Ziggurat of Oth-Magurloth is a challenging endgame dungeon crawl for epic tier adventurers. A labyrinthine subterranean complex stretches for miles beneath the ziggurat and is filled with monsters and hazards. The dungeon culminates at the Well of Entropy, a portal said to be the only connection to the ruins of the obyriths' former realm.

Lord's Rook

Built on a gigantic earthmote whose size pales only in comparison to A'othorh, Lord's Rook serves as palace and aerie to the demon lord Pazuzu (page 132). The complex's main structure is carved deep into the floating island. It is adjacent to a magnificent open-walled cathedral from which Pazuzu observes his realm.

While in the cathedral, the demon lord perches on his Blinding Claw throne, a powerful artifact fashioned from the talon of a fiendish roc. It is embossed with gold and studded with rubies the size of vulture's eggs. The Blinding Claw remains fixed in space, hanging unsupported in the open air. When Pazuzu scouts other realms, he brings his throne with him. The demon lord travels with his personal guard on such excursions—the Six Wings of Pazrael. Each guard is a mighty balor commanding hundreds of advanced vrocks.

While Pazuzu is away, a murder of vrocks defend Lord's Rook. When not roaming the Abyss, Pazuzu can often be found in the world, where he spreads pestilence and lures mortals into his flock.

Plague-Mort

The largest settlement in the Plain of a Thousand Portals, Plague-Mort was once a thriving city of the mortal realm. It was drawn through a huge demongate millennia ago, quickly devolving into the grimy, disease-ridden colony it is today. More a collection of somber ruins than a proper city, Plague-Mort swarms with pestilence and is scoured by stinging grit.

The city straddles the Blood River at its intersection with the River Lethe, a smaller tributary. This confluence attracts merchant traffic without which Plague-Mort would collapse. The settlement is still a miserable slum filled with sick and distraught mortals desperate to flee the Abyss. A yawning demongate stands at the edge of town, but the portal operates only in one direction. From time to time, confused mortals stumble from it to become Plague-Mort's newest citizens.

PLAGUE-MORT

A festering urban morass, Plague-Mort is a sprawling cesspool overripe with danger and treachery.

Population: Approximately 50,000. Demons and demon spawn make up most of the city's population, but a sizable number of genasi and members of the mortal races also dwell in Plague-Mort.

Government: A demon spawn with the title of archlector rules from a grand residence of gilded spires at the center of the city.

Defenses: Plague-Mort has no jail or courts. The Hounds, a militia of demonic brutes, act as judge, jury, and executioner. Anyone making trouble is dismembered on the spot, and a trail of corpses lines each day's patrol path.

Inns and Taverns: Run by mortals condemned to live out their lives in Plague-Mort, the Eye of the Dragon, the Golden Griffon, and the Bell and Whistle are reasonably safe resting places for outsiders and adventurers.

Supplies: The best shops and stalls are in Merchant's Row. High-quality weapons can be purchased at reasonable prices. The proprietor of Poisoner's Phial is a talented apothecary, though her prices are exorbitant.

Temples: Plague-Mort is one of the few places in the Abyss where open reverence of astral deities is tolerated. Pazuzu has little interest in the city, and the archlector doesn't mind new shrines popping up as long as the local priests submit to his authority and divert a large portion of their tithes to his coffers.

Pits of Pazunia

The uppermost layer of the Abyss is well named. The Plain of a Thousand Portals serves as a gateway to deeper layers of the Abyss, thus drawing an endless number of merchants, pilgrims, and explorers to Pazunia's bleak environs. Most of the pits are two-way portals, but others strand travelers in deeper layers with no way to return. Anyone who enters a pit is instantly drawn away to the abyssal depths. While in transit, a traveler has no control over his or her movement. Although the journey takes a matter of seconds, some portal users swear that they have seen other layers while en route. "Roll of Abyssal Layers," page 80, lists some of the known layers of the Abyss, any of which could be a destination point for Pazunia's portals.

The following are a few of the better-known pits of Pazunia.

Angorogo Crevasse: Few sights are more bizarre in the parched Pazunian wastes than the Angorogo ice sheet. Covering a vast swath of Pazunian desert, this glacier grows larger every year as it slowly swallows the surrounding landscape. At the ice sheet's heart is an immense crevasse, its icy depths plunging toward Soulfreeze, the 566th layer of the Abyss (page 78). A great stone bridge spans the frozen gorge below the rim of the crevasse. At each end of the bridge, stout fortresses are carved into the permafrost of the sheer canyon walls. A powerful jarrlak (page 120) named Thaclighaua claims this pit, which is guarded by his ice archon rimehammer legions (see Monster Manual, page 20).

Pool of Madness: Few demons dare to approach the shadowy waters of the Pool of Madness. None wants to draw the attention of Dagon, Prince of the Depths (see Monster Manual 2, page 45). The shallow pool is only five feet deep. Diving into its tepid waters plunges a swimmer into the twilight depths of the Shadowsea (see "Abysm," page 68).

Effect: A creature that ends its turn adjacent to the pool takes ongoing 5 psychic damage per tier (save ends). On a failed saving throw, the affected creature makes a melee attack, a ranged attack, or a charge against the nearest creature as a free action. If it cannot attack, it moves its speed toward the nearest creature as a free action.

Usage: Particularly vicious demons hunt the areas around the Pool of Madness. They keep away from the pool's edges as they herd their quarry toward it.

Chasm of Rtha-haz: Similar to the 503rd layer of Torremor (page 78) where this pit leads, the interior of the chasm is a tangled latticework of rope bridges, wooden ladders, and jangling chains. Vast aeries teeming with winged demons line the uppermost reaches of the chasm. These demons are loyal to Pazuzu. They guard the pit, ensuring that Lamashtu and her servitors do not escape into the Plain of a Thousand Portals (see "Pazuzu Secrets," page 133).

Citadel Ug'ggot: At the height of the Blood War, devils constructed this towering iron fortress. Citadel Ug'ggot stood as the forward outpost of the forces of the Nine Hells as they laid siege to the Abyss. With the cessation of the Blood War, the devil garrison at Citadel Ug'ggot retreated, abandoning the rusting stronghold. Today, abyssal eviscerators (see Monster Manual 2, page 51) overrun the citadel. A pit descending from the citadel's central bailey offers access to a dozen abyssal layers left abandoned in the aftermath of the Blood War.

Fetid Pit of Vakorcha: The Fetid Pit of Vakorcha is a sweltering salt mire dotted with outcroppings of moss-covered rock and tangled vegetation. The air is thick with biting and stinging insects, and the sodden earth seethes with vermin and parasites. The pit is a sucking wound of putrescence that leads to the Steaming Fen, the 14th layer of the Abyss and the reputed lair of the Queen of Chaos (page 8). The mire is home to a trio of menacing bebiliths (see Monster Manual 2, page 52) that maintain loyalty to Miska the Wolf-Spider (see "The Cult of Elemental Evil and the Dawn War," page 8). Vakorcha, the largest of the three bebiliths, is able to lure victims to the Fetid Pit through haunting dreams and hallucinations.

Sotholo: The ruined town of Sotholo perches over a large sinkhole that connects to Vorganund, the 52nd layer of the Abyss. Thralls of Yeenoghu rule the settlement—gnoll slavers that round up lesser demons and sell them in bulk to the highest bidder. The town's slave pens are crowded with pitiful manes (page 126), slack-jawed dretches (see Monster Manual 2, page 54), and lumbering rutterkins (page 141).

Among the dozens of well-known slave sites in Pazunia, Sotholo is known for the blue dye slavers use to mark their stock. Made from the brightly colored scrub that grows around the pit, the dye is added to the slaves' gruel and quickly spreads to skin and chitin alike. Slaves from Sotholo are easy to spot in an engagement, since scores of blue demons charging across a battlefield are a memorable sight.

FROM THE DEMONOMICON OF IGGWILV

As the end of the millennial cycle approaches, denizens of the Abyss turn their collective gaze to the Plain of a Thousand Portals. Already, Pazuzu and his flock are preparing for the momentous assembly, positioning their soaring enclaves into a defensive ring around the Great Ziggurat of Oth-Magurloth. Yet, the perigee of A'othorh could advance my goals as well. I still possess the Iron Flask of Tuerny, holding a portion of Demogorgon's primal animus. That should permit me to spy upon the obyrith conclave. Yes, perhaps it is time to reach out to the Prince of Demons and tempt fate once more.

Inhabitants

The Plain of a Thousand Portals was a major front during the Blood War. Vast legions of devils marched against wave after wave of battle-frenzied demons. For a time, the devils controlled vast expanses of territory. The great iron fortresses dotting the landscape are a testament to the devils' occupation. After the Blood War ended, the devils withdrew, and for the first time in long centuries, stretches of Pazunia have returned to desolate wasteland.

Travelers can roam Pazunia for days without encountering another creature. However, the Plain of a Thousand Portals might be the Abyss's most populous layer. A regular influx of merchants and explorers are willing to brave its dangers to reach Pazunia's numerous gates and the riches of the Abyss. The Plain of a Thousand Portals is also home to more varieties of demons than any other layer of the Abyss, including avian types not encountered elsewhere.

THE BLOOD RIFT

The shadowed chasm that plunges from the height of Pazunia to the Abyss's unseen depths

When the seed of absolute evil was cast down in the struggle between Obox-ob and Demogorgon, Orcus, and Baphomet, it cut a great scar in the base elemental matter from which the Abyss was formed. This scar is the Blood Rift, a vast canyon that cuts through the infinite layers of the Abyss like a raw wound. The 4th layer of the Abyss is named for the Blood River that flows down its sheer canyon walls.

An unknown magic lingering within the rift prevents the entrance of any creatures powerful enough to claim the seed of evil. Asmodeus was only an angel when he entered the rift in its birth throes, though he emerged a god. No other living creature has since survived the descent to the depths of the rift, and even the mightiest demon lords must content themselves to watch and wait for the power of those wards to fade.

BLOOD RIFT TRAITS

Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: An endless abyssal rift opening up from the Plain of a Thousand Portals; depth unknown.
Gravity: Normal, oriented toward the depths of the rift.
Mutability: Normal.

History

Despite its strategic significance as a direct conduit to every known abyssal layer, no demon lord dares to enter the Blood Rift. The chasm's ancient wards are still potent, and they instill the endless rift with an aura that repels the most powerful demons. The demon lords' interests here must be carried out by emissaries and lesser minions.

Features and Terrain

Originating on the Plain of a Thousand Portals, the Blood Rift pierces every layer of the Abyss. Though its lowest reaches have never been charted, the rift is thought to be infinite.

Vast outcroppings of rock, ancient crumbling bridges, and sudden shifts in slope guarantee an unpleasant impact for any creature falling into the rift. The temperature in the rift ranges from freezing cold to blisteringly hot, and can change without warning.

The blood-red mist that rises from the river clouds the cliff walls, which are covered with endless fields of foul lichen and moss. Such fungal colonies glow with their own dim light, casting eerie shadows along the rift's endless descent.

The Blood River

The waters of the Blood River are tainted with abyssal energy and toxic to all creatures except demons. Mortal explorers descending the rift must be able to create potable water or trade for it at the few uncontaminated wells in the city of Morglon-Daar.

The Blood River's exact course is impossible to predict, because the Abyss continuously shifts around the axis of the Blood Rift. Two successive trips down the river rarely follow the same path. Travelers soon discover that repeat journeys to an identical destination take entirely different courses through the inscrutable rift.

Locations

The cliff walls of the Blood Rift are etched with odd glyphs and symbols. These ancient runes mark sealed entryways into magnificent crypts—the final resting places of demon lords from ages past. Such tombs are not constructed by any hand. Rather, they form on their own as a lasting record of abyssal history, preserved for all time by the rift's lingering magic.

Sepulcher of Mydianchlarus

One of the many tombs lining the Blood Rift, this ostentatious mausoleum is believed to house the remains of Mydianchlarus, former ruler of the Wasting Tower of Khin-Oin (see below). This ultrodemon lord (see Monster Manual 3, page 47) is famed for the merciless destruction of any and all creatures that might have challenged his rule. He successfully led the denizens of the Blood Rift through some of the worst fighting of the Blood War, but his focus on that conflict allowed his lieutenant Phraxas to unseat him.

Mydianchlarus's sepulcher is a magnet for adventurers and ambitious demons, because it is rumored that the greatest of the treasures won from his enemies were buried with him. A section of the Rod of Seven Parts, the Axe of the Dwarvish Lords, and three spellbooks owned by Vecna during his mortal life are a few of the artifacts rumored to be hidden here.

Tumulus of Abhorrence

Undisturbed for millennia, this burial mound holds the undecaying remains of Asima—a demon lord said to have betrayed the obyriths in ages past. The resting place of Asima the Unanticipated is defended by her seraph—a klurichir demon (see Monster Manual® 3, page 41) known as the Guardian of the Gates. As a result, no being has yet breached the outer walls of her barrow. More powerful demons are said to lie in wait for intruders that defeat the guardian. Aside from the great treasure said to be stored here, legends tell of a mosaic within the burial mound that reveals the identity of the twelve obyrith lords.

Khin-Oin, the Wasting Tower

Rising a mile above the plain of Pazunia and descending twenty times that distance into the Blood Rift, Khin-Oin resembles as an immense spinal column clinging to the cliff walls. Some say that's exactly what Khin-Oin is—the last skeletal remains of a primordial lost while exploring the rift's infinite depths in the earliest days of the Abyss. The Wasting Tower is the domain of the demon lord Phraxas (page 134). He rules from a gargantuan artifact throne called the Siege Malicious, set at the summit of the tower. Around his seat of power, the rooms and floors of Khin-Oin are said to have no end.

Inhabitants

Though Tharizdun is long lost, the Blood Rift retains the power of the seed of evil that the Chained God was first to claim. The demons of the Blood Rift are descended from some of the first demons spawned when the Abyss was formed, and they retain a loyalty to Tharizdun. With their master imprisoned, those demons have become independent entities, drawing on the power of the Abyss but standing outside the machinations and rivalries of the great demon lords.

The demons of the Blood Rift are noted for their self-importance, and for the greed that inspires the commerce for which the rift is known. Making lives as independent mercenaries, traders, and emissaries, rift demons are the closest thing to neutral parties in the Abyss. The demons of this layer remain thoroughly evil, however, and even the most noteworthy traders and disciplined mercenary captains can quickly find themselves on the wrong side of negotiations gone bad. It is thought that the spawn of Tharizdun's madness still serve their lord on some level, and adventurers who deal with such demons are wise to exercise caution.

In recent centuries, the cunning elemental shapechangers known as raavastas have taken on positions of importance in the Blood Rift, alongside Tharizdun's spawn. Because they are able to quickly mobilize mercenary armies to nearly any layer of the Abyss, the raavasta princes deal openly with most of the demon lords, and have earned their grudging respect. With the Blood War in a state of uneasy truce, the raavastas have transformed the rift into a vital artery of abyssal commerce.

CARL CRITCHLOW

THE CITY OF MORGLON-DAAR

A cesspool of vice and debauchery, Morglon-Daar is nonetheless one of the few settlements in the Abyss to offer relative safety for travelers. Carved into the walls of the Blood Rift at the base of Khin-Oin, the Wasting Tower, Morglon-Daar is a frontier boomtown whose life and commerce pulses with the taint of the Abyss. The city is governed by elder demons spawned by Tharizdun, and controlled by a cabal known as the Blightlords. From here, mercenary armies of demons and elementals are dispatched throughout the Abyss, anything imaginable can be purchased or sold, and everyone has a hidden agenda.

MORGLON-DAAR

One of the Abyss's few permanent settlements open to outsiders, Morglon-Daar is a center of commerce and trade.

Population: Approximately 40,000 citizens, primarily demons and demon spawn. Slaves, elementals, and other planar creatures bring the city's total population to over 100,000.

Government: A cadre of ambitious magistrates known as the Blightlords rule Morglon-Daar's five wards. The Blightlords are independent of (but beholden to) the city's true masters—the mysterious demonic council known as the Priory of Rot.

Defense: Three regiments of battle-hardened demons are the city's permanent army, led by the Archgeneral of the Blood Rift. In times of crisis, all citizens, slaves, and visitors can be conscripted to Morglon-Daar's defense.

Inns and Taverns: As a center for trade, Morglon-Daar offers the amenities of any worldly city. But the taint of the Abyss is a constant undercurrent here, and visitors must be wary. The establishments most commonly frequented by mortal adventurers include Razack's Tear in the Spray, Cinnibar Shadows in Beggar's Fall, the Bramblehaunt in the Melakovian Hive, and the Craven Talisman in Riftwatch.

Supplies: Morglon-Daar is built entirely on interplanar trade, and virtually anything—and anyone—can be bought or sold here. The Bazaar is the center of the city's commerce, but private markets come and go in every tavern and on every street corner. Soul larvae (page 14) are the preferred currency in the city.

Temples: Worshipers of the gods rarely make their faith known in Morglon-Daar, and its demonic residents acknowledge no divine masters. The demons do, however, maintain the Watching Tower, a temple sanctified to the Elder Elemental Eye. In addition, secret assemblies venerating Phraxas the Decayed, master of Khin-Oin, are common throughout the city.

Approaching Morglon-Daar

Though Morglon-Daar might resemble the cities of the mortal world, the evil of the Abyss is ever-present here. Visitors arriving at city's Blood River docks are greeted by the grisly remains of lawbreakers and dissidents—thousands of flayed bodies hanging from chains descending from the darkness above. Piscodemon sentinels serve as the city watch, their tentacled maws writhing to mark their ravenous hunger for mortal flesh. But because commerce is the most important concern in Morglon-Daar, travelers are granted a modicum of protection within its walls.

Morglon-Daar is a twenty-mile descent down the Blood Rift from the Plain of a Thousand Portals. Above the city, the rift and Khin-Oin stay in a fixed relationship with Pazunia, farther above. Below, the Blood Rift becomes a shifting core around which the layers of the Abyss churn. The city is most commonly reached by planar vessel, and its docks are lined with planar dromonds and spelljammers. More dangerous is the approach along the treacherous Blood River as it courses down alongside the Wasting Tower. Smaller rafts piloted by demon spawn make this journey, but these rafts never tie up at the docks. They only linger long enough for passengers to embark or disembark before silently vanishing into the vermillion mist.

Like much of the rift, the city's ambient temperature fluctuates between freezing cold and blisteringly hot, depending on the orientation of the surrounding abyssal layers. The air here is thick with moisture and the scent of rot and decay. Luminescent fungus and lichen cling to the walls of the rift and the city, shedding dim light throughout Morglon-Daar. The city's more upscale districts are brightly lit by street lamps powered by enslaved chaos shards (see Monster Manual 2, page 34).

The water of the Blood River is tainted with abyssal energy that makes it toxic to mortal creatures. Morglon-Daar features a small number of wells containing potable water. The city has no sewers or other system of waste management. Filth and offal are simply poured over the edge of the Blood Rift.

Architecture

Grisly fleshmasons ply their trade in the elite quarters of the city, designing Morglon-Daar's most opulent edifices from towering walls of magically preserved corpses. Buildings in the less ostentatious districts are constructed of more mundane materials or carved directly from the rift wall. In Beggar's Fall, the city's poorest neighborhood, residents raise ramshackle dwellings along the inner face of the

JARED BLANDO

Blood Rift, linking natural ledges and stone shelves with a webwork of narrow catwalks and unstable bridges. Dwellings along the inner rim of the rift are at constant risk of destruction under an endless hail of debris falling from above.

Laws and Society

An ever-changing cabal of power groups led by the Blightlords governs Morglon-Daar, though they do so only at the sufferance of the Priory of Rot (see "Power Groups," page 54). Moreover, the proximity of Khin-Oin means that the master of the Wasting Tower (page 51) has significant influence over the city. Blightlords attain the title by direct challenge, so that power and allegiances can shift quickly in Morglon-Daar.

Citizens who can afford it avoid trouble with generous bribes to the Blightlords, even as they hope to avoid attracting the Priory's attention. Morglon-Daar has no rule of law. Victims of broken contracts and fraud in the city have no recourse to justice except what they mete out, and outsiders in Morglon-Daar can be attacked, tortured, or killed without provocation. Lower-class malgodemons (page 125) commonly act as enforcers for the more powerful demons and merchants of Morglon-Daar, stalking the city's alleys and back streets on their masters' errands.

External threats to Morglon-Daar are rare, but the city is ready to defend itself with fifteen thousand well-trained demon warriors, led by the Archgeneral of the Blood Rift. If a larger force proves necessary, all creatures within the city's walls are expected to come to its defense or be executed on the spot.

Power Groups

As a city of demons, Morglon-Daar is a place of competing power groups and always-shifting alliances. Long centuries of conflict and commerce have left two notable organizations in unique positions of power in this otherwise anarchic society.

The Blightlords: Charismatic individuals possessing a thirst for power, the Blightlords are the de facto governors of the city's five wards. They rule by cunning and guile, but their hold on power is judged by martial strength. A challenge can be issued in the Carnival Anathema (page 57), after which the ruling Blightlord (or, more commonly, the best champion money can buy) must engage in single combat against a contender for the position. The winner of this Blightlords' Crucible claims the title of Blightlord until it is deposed in a future challenge.

Notable Inhabitants of Morglon-Daar

A small handful of Morglon-Daar's residents hold positions of power and interest that make them likely contacts for adventurers. For more information on the locations mentioned here, see "The Districts," page 55.

Satugla, the Grand Assessor: A charismatic, fox-headed raavasta (see Manual of the Planes, page 136), Satugla governs as Blightlord of the Spray. He delights in intrigue and serves as an information broker to creatures willing to pay his exorbitant fees. Of all the Blightlords, Satugla is the most likely to aid adventurers passing through the city.

Lady Akaama: A philanderer who uses her power to fulfill her own perverse pleasures, Akaama is a piscodemon (page 136) with a gift for taking on the appearance of any creature's greatest carnal desire. She is the longest-reigning Blightlord, having governed Riftwatch for nearly a decade.

Dogobaz: A hulking and unusually intelligent derghodemon (page 111), Dogobaz is the newest Blightlord of Morglon-Daar, having defeated the previous lord of the Melakovian Hive at the most recent Carnival Anathema. Dogobaz celebrated his new authority by having his principle rivals publicly impaled on the palisade enclosing the slave market at Bonespike Court.

Faman-dûr: A fearsome Blightlord and proficient artificer, Faman-dûr is a yagnodemon (page 154) who rules the Anvil with a literal iron fist. When his enlarged left arm (common to all his kind) was lost, Faman-dûr crafted a replacement limb forged of abyssal iron and adamantine. From his seat of power, he oversees the mining operations that spread through the tunnels surrounding the city.

Vaugormoor: A sadistic taskmaster, the mezzodemon Vaugormoor became the Blightlord of Beggar's Fall by unearthing the fabled Scepter of Athava-Ingo from a secret reliquary outside the city. With the power of this artifact, Vaugormoor successfully challenged his predecessor. However, fearing a challenge against his own power, he now rarely leaves his stately hovel.

Packaos the Immortal: A mysterious figure known to all residents of Morglon-Daar, Packaos appears as a cherubic halfling in his late adolescence. Despite having met his demise countless times in front of witnesses, Packaos always appears in the city the following day as if nothing untoward has occurred. He has held the title of Blightlord twice, but quickly grew bored with the position. Today, Packaos runs an enterprising mercantile operation that makes regular trading runs up and down the Blood Rift.

Bavamach, Archgeneral of the Blood Rift: One of the most powerful demons of the Blood Rift, the yagnodemon Bavamach ascended to the rank of Archgeneral after distinguishing herself in the Blood War. When not leading campaigns on the city's behalf, Bavamach commands the demon legions of Morglon-Daar from the great fortress of Citadel Faurozoun. Though the Archgeneral has no formal authority in Morglon-Daar, she is revered by the city's demons.

The Blightlords convene only to debate issues that do not clearly fall within one individual lord's purview. Such disputes are resolved quickly, for fear that the Priory of Rot will become involved.

The Priory of Rot: The Priory is a cadre of enigmatic, robed magistrates. Although they claim ultimate power in Morglon-Daar, the members of the Priory seem content to allow the Blightlords to govern the city in their stead. The true nature of these creatures remains unknown even to the Blightlords, though they are said to be elder demons created by Tharizdun and as old as the Abyss itself. Whatever their origin, however, the members of the Priory are universally feared by the citizens of Morglon-Daar.

The Priory and its members hold court in the Anchor of Khin-Oin. They are typically drawn out of the Anchor only in the face of a significant threat to the city.

The Districts

Morglon-Daar is a congested, bustling settlement occupying a network of huge caverns set along the face of the Blood Rift. Though demon culture is alien to most mortal races, Morglon-Daar's importance as a center of trade and commerce means that traditional shops, markets, inns, and taverns can be found throughout the city. The Blightlords have divided Morglon-Daar into five regions, although no formal boundaries divide the city. The map on page 53 shows these city wards and a number of sites of interest.

The Spray

The Spray is Morglon-Daar's busy transport district, where most visitors and goods first enter the city. The district is named for the ever-present mist rising from the Blood River as it cascades into the harbor known as the Stomach. This churning estuary is home to packs of hydrodemons and serves as a harbor for the water traffic that moves in and out of the city daily. The Spray is also the heart of Morglon-Daar's vast engineering works, the Blood River powering a score of waterwheels as it cascades into the Stomach, then disappears into the rift beyond.

The Bazaar (A): Beyond the harbor walls stands a ramshackle collection of stone structures that constitutes the commercial center of the city. At its heart is the open-air market known as the Bazaar, a teeming maze of temporary stalls and carts where hawkers ply their wares. Renowned as a place where literally anything can be bought and sold, the Bazaar is home to demon merchants celebrated as purveyors of cadavers, slaves, poisons, talismans, and other wares.

Hall of the Grand Assessor (B): The estate of the local Blightlord, Satugla, this sizable manor sits atop a jutting ledge adjoining the Bazaar. Its distinctive green marbled dome and impressive onyx portico speak to the great wealth and prestige of its owner. The hall's forecourt is open to the public and contains the Grand Assessor's office, from which Satugla's business deals are conducted.

Ogrémoch's Span (C): It is said that the first Priory of Rot successfully summoned the elemental prince Ogrémoch, binding him in the construction of twin bridges crossing fifty feet above the Stomach. Small shops and domiciles are clustered on a spire of rock that connects the two spans.

Razack's Tear (D): This modest stone inn is named for the establishment's signature spirit, a potent alcoholic beverage distilled from the tears of enslaved devas. The proprietor of the inn, a shrewd rakshasa noble named Xamraif, actively courts the business of mortal adventurers seeking lodging in the city. His rooms are not extravagant, but Xamraif's advanced security makes this one of the safer locations in the city.

Beggar's Fall

As Morglon-Daar's influence and wealth have increased, its population has exploded. The city's limited area has shunted its poorest residents out of the core caverns and driven them to construct decrepit dwellings along the sheer chasm wall of the Blood Rift. Endless stairwells and ladders climb up and down the crumbling cliffs, exposed to the bottomless depths of the rift below. The malgodemons that make up most of the city's underclass are common here.

Acidgloom Aerie (E): At the top edge of Beggar's Fall, a sheer obsidian promontory juts out over the void below. Vrocks, chasmes, and other winged demons nest here, apart from the rift dwellings of Morglon-Daar's other outcasts. Intruders are not welcome in the Aerie, and they are attacked on sight.

Cinnabar Shadows (F): Excavated from gargantuan masses of petrified fungi clinging to the rift wall, the inn known as Cinnabar Shadows offers better accommodations than the ramshackle kips common in Beggar's Fall. Although its rooms are damp and overgrown with mold, the inn draws adventurers for the high-stakes games of chance played in its back rooms. Wagers here are made in soul larvae and residuum.

Morglon-Daar in the Campaign

The city of Morglon-Daar is intended to serve as a "point of light" for the adventurers—at least as much as such things are possible in the Abyss. Though the city is fraught with danger for characters of all levels, paragon tier and epic tier adventurers can make good use Morglon-Daar as a base of operations in an abyssal campaign.

The Garden (G): The walls of the Blood Rift narrow beyond the span of Daat-Hagoth Bridge. This cleft in the rift face teems with huge colonies of lichens, edible moss, and fungi that serve as a primary source of food for the inhabitants of Beggar's Fall.

Lower Pens (H): The harsh barracks of the enslaved denizens of Morglon-Daar, the Lower Pens are a place of endless toil and squalor. Emaciated slaves dwell here in dilapidated tents barely secured to the rift face. A series of chain nets prevents the escape of captives possessing the gift of flight. Slave labor is punishment for even minor crimes in Morglon-Daar, and the city has no prisons. Slaves that foment dissent or fail to pull their weight are pushed over the edge of the rift as a warning to others.

Melakovian Hive

The tunnels and caverns known as the Melakovian Hive are excavated entirely from the hard bedrock beyond the rift face. A confounding warren of winding passages, earthen hovels, and strewn debris, the hive is unnavigable for outsiders, who must seek escorts if they hope to avoid becoming lost in the labyrinthine burrow.

The Melakovian Hive houses most of the city's mezzodemons and derghodemons (page 111). Its history predates the oldest legends of the Blood Rift; even the origins of its name have been lost. Some believe that the melakovians were an ancient race of demons, created by the fall of the seed of evil through the primeval depths. Others claim that the hive is named for the first lord of Khin-Oin, who established the initial settlement that would become Morglon-Daar.

Bonespike Court (I): This slave market is the heart of the Melakovian Hive. The Blightlord Dogobaz personally oversees the evaluation and sale of new stock. The weak and infirm are relegated to Beggar's Fall or conscripted into press gangs headed for remote battlefields. The choicest slaves are paraded before the Blightlord's advisors, who assign them to the breeding pens, the gladiatorial arena, the sacrificial altars, and other, fouler fates.

The Bramblehaunt (J): Its walls fashioned from the bones of death giants, this inn caters to the few nondemons that dwell within the Hive. Management provides no pledge of safety for patrons, however, and guests are encouraged to set their own defenses and protective wards.

Howling Devil (K): A favorite haunt of the Hive's debased residents, the tavern known as the Howling Devil is a tribute to demonic veterans of the Blood War. Demon temptresses ply their trade in this raucous and dangerous establishment, which is frequented by adventurers seeking contacts among the city's darker criminal enterprises.

Mausoleum of Woe (L): This desecrated mausoleum was once the tomb of a powerful demon queen. Despite a shortage of space in the city, the tomb's halls of cracked and weathered stone remain empty for fear of their ageless curse. Creatures that explore the Mausoleum of Woe are never seen again. The few exceptions return to Morglon-Daar as shattered shells, stricken mute and clinging desperately to the last remnants of their sanity.

Riftwatch

This affluent ward of Morglon-Daar presents a stunning view of the Blood Rift and the Spray on the far side of that yawning void. Winged nycademons (see Monster Manual 2, page 57) occupy tall houses nearest to the rift wall, while sly raavastas congregate in palatial villas carved into deep recesses of the spacious cavern.

Anchor of Khin-Oin (M): The Anchor of Khin-Oin marks the base of the colossal Wasting Tower, and it is the home of the Priory of Rot. Visitors are not permitted to enter the Anchor without permission of the Priory, and the residents of Morglon-Daar live in fear of a summons to its dark doors.

See "The Wasting Tower" delve, page 88, for more information on Khin-Oin.

The Black Pool (N): Mortal visitors to Morglon-Daar quickly learn of this deep well on the periphery of Riftwatch. Despite its dark coloration, the Black Pool holds pure, clean water—one of the few such wells in the city from which mortal creatures can drink.

Farogogon Villa (O): This overgrown manse was once the magnificent estate of a powerful raavasta. Some years ago, an unknown creature crawled up out of the Blood Rift and consumed the villa's inhabitants. The unknown abomination still dwells within, devouring creatures foolish enough to enter the villa in search of the wealth its former master left behind. Moreover, damage done by the creature to the building's structure threatens to collapse it at any time.

The Craven Talisman (P): One of the city's best inns, the Craven Talisman caters to wealthy outsiders who seek the comforts of home and a slate of exotic services. Prices at the Talisman are steep, but Sensate Mistress Vaetu, the inn's demon spawn proprietor, prides herself on the staff's ability to meet her guests' every need. Set on an outcropping above the broad, open courtyard known as the Promenade, the Craven Talisman offers a spectacular view of the Blood Rift.

Watching Tower (Q): Cloaked in a shifting nimbus of violet shadow, this immense, hollow stalactite houses the only openly acknowledged temple to a deity in the city. Here, acolytes of the Elder Elemental Eye venerate their Chained God with acts of unsurpassed cruelty. Practitioners of wild magic from across the planes journey to Morglon-Daar to supplicate themselves before the priests of the Watching Tower, hoping to obtain secret lore known only to the faithful of Tharizdun.

The Anvil

This remote section of the city is a sprawling subterranean delve of stone columns and vaulted caverns. The Anvil takes its name from the mining and smithing operations centered here, its laborers smelting and working rare metals found only in the Abyss. The smiths of Morglon-Daar forge weapons and masterwork armor, the metal of which swirls with a distinctive auburn radiance. Hulking yagnodemons and their canoloth thralls account for most of the residents here, because the ward's austere dwellings are well suited to these demons' few needs.

Carnival Anathema (R): The residents of Morglon-Daar gather regularly at the upper reaches of the Anvil to witness the Carnival Anathema. This tournament of bloodletting and mania plays out in a great arena suspended over the Blood Rift. Lesser contests between slaves and gladiators whip spectators into a frenzy before the Blightlords' Crucible begins. The ranks of the five Blightlords are decided by this test of combat skill. A unique psionic effect set in place over the arena by the Priory allows the cheering mob to experience the raw emotions felt by both competitors as they battle.

Citadel Faurozoun (S): Despite its relative exposure at the edge of the Blood Rift, Morglon-Daar is one of the best-defended sites in the Abyss. The imposing Citadel Faurozoun pierces the void above Riftwatch and serves as a bulwark against invasion. Legions of battle-hardened demons are quartered at the citadel.

Rumors in Morglon-Daar

Adventurers who spend any amount of time in Morglon-Daar have the opportunity to learn more about the city and its residents.

Streetwise DC 15: The shifts of the abyssal layers through which the Blood Rift cuts are presaged by tremors that reverberate up and down the great chasm. Longtime residents of Morglon-Daar are used to these quakes, and secure their structures and belongings accordingly. The ill-fated residents of Beggar's Fall hold on for dear life when a tremor hits, hoping that the whole of the rift wall above doesn't come crashing down on top of them.

Streetwise DC 20: The Shadow Shoal, a small but powerful cabal of assassins, has begun to recruit hydrodemons from the Spray into their organization. Street thugs in the know say that the Shadow Shoal once operated from a secret base deep beneath the oceans of the mortal realm, but that the group has suffered crippling losses and the death of its leadership. The full extent of its plans in the Abyss and Morglon-Daar remain to be seen.

Streetwise DC 25: Lady Akaama's current champion is a powerful zovvut (page 155) named Uroxah. However, this duplicitous fallen angel of Tharizdun secretly spies on the Blightlord for the masters of the Watching Tower. Unknown to Uroxah, Lady Akaama is fully aware of her champion's disloyalty, but she has her own reasons to tolerate his deceit—including a desire to establish control over Tharizdun's temple.

Streetwise DC 30: Word on the street suggests that the Archgeneral Bavamach, spoiling for a fight worthy of her skill since the cessation of the Blood War, is gathering a massive host in a remote corner of the Blood Rift. Mercenaries that have fled the Archgeneral's force believe that she is preparing to assault Khin-Oin and depose Phraxas.

Adventure Hooks

Adventurers arriving in Morglon-Daar inevitably attract the attention of Satugla, the Grand Assessor. A charismatic, fox-headed raavasta, Satugla governs as Blightlord of the Spray from his large manor house beyond the Bazaar. If the adventurers are seeking work, he has a steady stream of assignments ready for them.

Satugla can be used to best effect during the adventurers' initial forays to Morglon-Daar. Through his considerable influence and contacts throughout the city, he can provide healing aid, magic, and numerous quests and adventure hooks in the Blood Rift. Satugla begins to feel increasingly threatened by the adventurers once they reach the upper paragon tier. At that point, the Blightlord focuses on silently disposing of the adventurers and acquiring their wealth.

AZZAGRAT

The Dark Prince's triple realm of Rauwend, Barogûnd, and Voorz'zt, where bustling bazaars and seedy pleasure palaces draw visitors from across the planes

Azzagrat consists of three distinct abyssal layers woven together by the Dark Prince Graz'zt—of Rauwend (the 45th layer), Barogûnd (the 46th), and Voorz'zt (the 47th). On first appearance, this realm appears safer than many other regions of the Abyss, owing to Graz'zt's decree protecting merchants and other travelers. Characters who journey here soon discover that Azzagrat's dangers are just better hidden than the dangers of other layers.

History

Azzagrat was established when Graz'zt, then a devil and a trusted advisor to Asmodeus, invaded the Abyss in search of the evil seed that created it. The Dark Prince was challenged by scores of demon lords as his infernal legions fought their way down the Blood Rift. First to bow down before Graz'zt was the demon lord Verin, who grudgingly abdicated control of his abyssal realm. Graz'zt renamed the layer Voorz'zt and continued his relentless march with the subsequent conquests of Barogûnd and Rauwend.

Pressure from Orcus and Demogorgon stalled further advances toward the heart of evil, prompting Graz'zt to solidify his holdings and rethink his strategy. In the end, the Dark Prince rejected his heritage and became a demon lord, carving out the Kingdom of Azzagrat from his conquered territory.

Despite setbacks and delays, the Dark Prince still has designs to add additional layers to his kingdom. With the support of his son Athux, Graz'zt recently overthrew Adimarchus, demon lord of Occipitus (the 507th Layer). He has since begun anchoring that astral dominion to Azzagrat. Likewise, Graz'zt has been spending an increasing amount of time scouting Skeiqulac, the Ocean of Tears, for future conquest. The Dark Prince's efforts to expand his abyssal realm to that 48th Layer have thus far been stymied by his longtime nemesis, Demogorgon.

Rauwend

The facade of Azzagrat is most benign in the verdant arboreal realm of Rauwend. First-time visitors to this layer often wonder if they have somehow been redirected to the Feywild or Arvandor. The entire layer is covered with a humid, pristine woodland of alien flora. The noticeable lack of animal life is disquieting at first, but travelers are quick to remind themselves that abyssal animals are typically no less dangerous than the demons that feed on them.

RAUWEND TRAITS

Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: Dense, arboreal realm approximately four hundred miles across its widest axis; bounded.
Gravity: Normal.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)
Shadow Affinity: Attacks that have the shadow keyword gain a +1 bonus to the attack roll. Creatures gain a +2 bonus to Stealth checks.

Barogûnd

Barogûnd is most notable for the unearthly lighting that pervades the layer. No sun shines here, but the ground glows with an inner incandescence. In places where the ground is obstructed, towers of darkness rise up from the ground like magnificent columns, casting dark shadows against the sky.

The terrain of Barogûnd is predominantly arid moorland—vast rolling fields covered with coarse bloodthorn scrub and scattered tors of weathered rock. The landscape becomes a desert as one moves closer to the Salt Swamp. The creatures that dwell here consist mostly of ravenous abyssal scavengers adapted to the dry conditions and peculiar lighting. Most track their prey with blindsight or tremorsense.

BAROGÛND TRAITS

Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: Bright, windswept moorland approximately four hundred miles across its widest axis; bounded.
Gravity: Normal.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)
Salt Affinity: Extremely dry and salty air speeds dehydration. Any creature that has the aquatic or water keyword takes 2d6 damage at the start of each of its turns.

Voorz'zt

A wan cerulean sun feebly illuminates the dark skies over Voorz'zt, where heat and cold exist in a strange inversion. All flame burns blue or purple here, and deals cold damage rather than fire damage. Likewise, any effect that normally deals cold damage deals fire damage on the 47th layer.

Voorz'zt is the most temperate of Azzagrat's three layers, and the only one to support a significant sea. The layer is noted for its sweeping grasslands and rolling hills. If not for the strange blue lights washing over the landscape—as well as the throngs of gibbering manes hidden by the thick undergrowth—it would be easy to mistake this realm for some temperate region of the mortal world.

No known portal leads directly to Voorz'zt from the Plain of a Thousand Portals. To reach this layer, one must either traverse the Blood Rift, employ one of the few known portals scattered across Rauwend or Barogûnd, or risk passage through an oven gate (see "Terrain" below).

VOORZ'ZT TRAITS

Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: A savannah of rolling hills approximately four hundred miles across its widest axis; bounded.
Gravity: Normal.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)
Inveiglement: Attacks that have the charm or illusion keyword gain a +1 bonus to the attack roll.

Features and Terrain

Rauwend, Barogûnd, and Voorz'zt are each a dark shadow of the natural world. Explorers and adventurers will find this realm strangely familiar. However, that familiarity only serves to underscore Azzagrat's threats.

The Bay of Choking Bile

As the River of Salt flows through the steppes of Voorz'zt, it cascades down thousand-foot cliffs to fill the Bay of Choking Bile. Here, viscous alkaline tides ebb and flow with the miasma of the Blood Sea to which the bay connects. Abyssal fish and other creatures sometimes stray into the bay from the Blood Sea, their decomposing bodies adding to the caustic muck filling the inlet. This clinging muck burns anything it touches. Any creature that enters the bay or starts its turn there takes 10 acid damage per tier (save ends).

On the shores of the Bay of Choking Bile, Graz'zt keeps a flotilla of swift planar dromonds (see Manual of the Planes, page 159) and rare chaos ships (see The Plane Below: Secrets of the Elemental Chaos, page 10). The greatest of these is the Dark Prince's chaos flagship, Waukeen's Tears. Graz'zt and his lieutenants have made active use of this port in recent years as he scouts Skeiqulac for future conquest.

Bloodthorn

The brambles of the bloodthorn bush are a common hazard in the moors of Barogûnd and other areas of Azzagrat. A healthy bloodthorn has leaves of yellow or brown, interspersed with bright red berries.

Effect: Any creature that ends its turn in an area of bloodthorn takes 10 damage per tier. Squares containing bloodthorn are difficult terrain.

Usage: Bloodthorn can hedge combatants in during an encounter, and it can severely limit a party's ability to flee from a fight.

The Forests of Rauwend

The layer of Rauwend is a dim realm of dense woodlands, all of which present dangers to the unwary. Only a few feeble rays of sunlight peek through the thick forest canopy, shrouding this layer in twilight and muting its colors. This peculiar dullness also extends to sounds, which fade quickly to reveal a hiss of whispers accompanying a traveler's every step.

The most unusual (and most dangerous) of Rauwend's woodlands is Zrintor, the Viper Forest. Stands of viper trees (see below) can be found across the layer, but Zrintor is almost exclusively forested by these sentient plants. From time to time, terrible fires race through Rauwend's forests, their viper trees burning with screams of terror. Only Graz'zt can quench such conflagrations, but it is said that he takes a dark delight in the pain of the living woods.

Graz'zt and his councilors hunt lesser fiends in Rauwend's forests for sport. The Dark Prince is a generous lord, however. Demons that survive the hunt for a day and a night are granted clemency from future hunts and offered positions serving the Dark Lord.

The Light of Barogûnd

Visitors to Barogûnd must take steps to shroud their eyes from the radiant ground, using special visors similar to those worn in sunlit arctic climes. Without such protection, a creature suffers temporary blindness within twenty-four hours. Creatures that remain on the layer without protecting their vision become permanently blinded within a few days.

Oven Gates

These unusual stone ovens can be found everywhere from the darkest depths of the Viper Forest to the streets of every settlement in Azzagrat. Scalding green flames lick the entrance arches of an oven gate, some of which are large enough to hold an ogre.

Stepping inside an oven gate instantly transports a creature to another oven somewhere else in Azzagrat. Travelers cannot make out any details of their destination by peering into the flames, instead seeing only the inside of another oven. In all other ways, an oven gate is treated as a teleportation circle (see Player's Handbook, page 307). But this means of transport comes at a price. Any creature that enters or starts its turn inside an oven takes 10 fire damage per tier (10 cold damage per tier in Voorz'zt). Many oven gates are dormant, but their flames burn as hot.

Oven gates can be used as a means of travel throughout Azzagrat for characters who can withstand an oven's fire damage. The connections between gates are fixed, but only a few gates are so well used that their destinations become commonly known. The only reliable way to determine an oven's destination is to step inside.

The River of Salt

A torrent of white crystalline slush snakes through the three layers of Azzagrat like a river. Specially constructed trade vessels known as silt sloops traverse its salty surface in an endless route that brings them to every major settlement in Graz'zt's domain.

Travelers navigating the river are required to wear protective face gear to avoid suffocating in the salt dust that shrouds its course (see Dungeon Master's Guide, page 159). Any creature that enters the River of Salt is caught up in its grinding mass of razor-sharp crystals (see the corrosive salt stream hazard, below).

Corrosive Salt Stream Level 20 Obstacle
Hazard XP 500

A crystalline mass of salt flows like a corrosive river.

Hazard: The corrosive salt stream attacks any creature that falls into it.

Perception

No check is necessary to notice the corrosive salt stream.

Trigger

Whenever a creature enters the corrosive salt stream or ends its turn there, the corrosive salt stream attacks.

Attack

Opportunity Action Melee 0
Target: One creature in the corrosive salt stream
Attack: +23 vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d6 + 6 damage, and the target is slowed (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target is slowed until the end of its next turn.
Special: Whenever a creature starts its turn in the corrosive salt stream, the current moves the creature 5 squares downstream.

Countermeasures

✦ By making a DC 26 Acrobatics or Athletics check as a minor action, a character can float atop the corrosive salt stream until the end of its turn. The corrosive salt stream does not attack at the end of that turn.

Viper Trees

These scaly white trees set with leafless branches are native to Rauwend, but they have long since spread throughout the rest of Azzagrat and to other layers of the Abyss.

Viper Tree Level 22 Obstacle
Hazard XP 500

The snakelike branches of this strange tree lash the air as you approach.

Hazard: A viper tree fills a space up to 3 squares on a side, and lashes out at any creature within 3 squares of it.

Perception

✦ DC 16: The character notices that the branches of the viper tree have the appearance of snakes.

Additional Skill: Arcana

✦ DC 24: The character recognizes the viper tree and knows that it attacks nearby creatures.

Initiative +11

Trigger

The hazard activates and rolls initiative when any creature comes within 3 squares of it.

Attack

Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Creatures in burst
Attack: +27 vs. AC
Hit: 2d6 + 7 poison damage, and the target is immobilized and takes ongoing 15 poison damage (save ends both).

Countermeasures

✦ The viper tree fears fire. It takes a -4 penalty to attack rolls against any creature carrying open flame.
✦ A character can attack the viper tree (AC 26, Reflex 24, Fortitude 24, 12 hit points, vulnerable 10 fire). Destroying the viper tree ends its threat.

Locations

Azzagrat features a number of locations of potential interest to adventurers and explorers.

Allagash

Other than the great city of Zelatar, few settlements of any size can be found in Rauwend. However, ruins scattered throughout the forest indicate that this wasn't always so. The town of Allagash was once the site of clandestine demon breeding programs designed to provide Graz'zt with an edge on the abyssal battlefields. An invading army under the command of Orcus wiped out the settlement, the inhabitants, and the abominations created there—all slain and reanimated in service to Orcus.

The invasion was ultimately put down by demons in service to Graz'zt, but not even the Dark Prince now knows what lurks in the town's forlorn streets.

The Salt Swamp

As the River of Salt winds its way across Barogûnd, the crystalline slush backs up against a lowland escarpment to form an acrid bog of brackish earth and shifting quicksalt pits. A coven of hags dwells in a sodden village at the heart of the Salt Swamp. Their leader is Zhelamiss, a night hag envoy of the exiled archfey Cegilune.

Though local demons pay allegiance to Graz'zt in word, they are ultimately loyal to Zhelamiss. The Dark Prince tolerates this as long as it is necessary for him to avoid conflict with the hag's patron. Spies within her coven keep him constantly updated on the night hag's operations and ambitions.

CARL CRITCHLOW

Samora

In the farthest reaches of Voorz'zt stands a lawless den of vice and depraved dreams. Mortals and demons coexist more or less peacefully in the city of Samora, which caters to planar travelers and keeps its bloodshed out of sight. The chaos of the Abyss is reflected in the construction of the city—a hodgepodge of buildings erected without any particular plan. Open sewers run down the center of the city's streets, which twist, turn, and come to dead ends without warning.

It is said that any fantasy can be had in the pleasure pits of Samora, for the right price. The city's gaudy parlors and perfumed spires attract plane-traveling merchants and dilettantes alike. Most adventurers are smart enough to steer clear, not wanting to become entertainment for the city's jaded pleasure-seekers.

Samora features stockyards filled with exotic herd animals and wildlife, including thunderfury boars (see Monster Manual, page 35) and dusk unicorns (see Monster Manual, page 257). Such rare delicacies keep the gluttonous clientele of Samora well fed.

SAMORA

The planes hold few places like the city of Samora—and none are as extreme in avarice and gluttony.

Population: Approximately 5,000, primarily demon spawn, cambions, and other humanoids born of fiendish bloodlines. A smaller number of drow and other natives of the mortal world also dwell permanently in the city.

Government: Maretta, Lady of the Counting House, nominally rules Samora.

Defense: The city guard, led by thirteen female fiendish warlords known as the Lady's Lancers. That order once included Graz'zt's daughter, Thraxxia.

Inns: Maretta's Beds and the Sleeping Berk. An oven gate burning outside the Sleeping Berk leads to the outskirts of Zelatar.

Taverns: The Lord's Pawns, the Sodden Solar, and the Weeping Goddess. A number of breweries, distilleries, and wineries operate in and around the city, brewing rare beverages such as abyssal blood wine, deva's bile, and malefic mead.

Supplies: Market Plaza. All manner of products and services can be bought and sold here—particularly those of interest to evil creatures.

Temples: None. However, shrines and statues venerating Graz'zt are common throughout the city.

Tornbend and Skyshrine

On the frontier of Barogûnd beyond the Salt Swamp stand the scattered ruins of Tornbend. This settlement once served as a trading outpost between Graz'zt's demons and the djinn citadel of Skyshrine, floating on an earthmote high above. Once, Skyshrine was a majestic citadel of sweeping arches and soaring domes adorned with stained-glass windows. Then, decades past, some ill fate befell the djinns, who vanished and were never seen again.

With its trade interrupted, Tornbend was quickly abandoned. Over the intervening years, packs of bloodseep demons (see Monster Manual 2, page 53) have taken refuge in the town's weathered towers. A colossal steel chain still rises out of the parched earth at the center of town, anchoring the soaring earthmote high above. Characters with nerves of steel can attempt to climb the primordial-forged chain to reach the floating isle.

Zelatar

No place in the Abyss is free from danger, but Zelatar remains one of the safest locations for explorers and adventurers. A cosmopolitan city, Zelatar is the crown jewel of Graz'zt's abyssal kingdom. Powerful dimensional magic allows Zelatar to exist on Azzagrat's three abyssal layers simultaneously. Great avenue-sized portals remain open continuously, permitting residents to pass to and from the city's three distinct neighborhoods.

Zelatar's streets wind and weave in a thoroughly perplexing manner that sometimes defies the laws of reality. Characters dwelling in the city for less than a year must rely on assistance and guides to find their way between locations. Such assistance typically requires a DC 25 Streetwise check or an impromptu skill challenge.

Most of the city's inhabitants are demons and demon spawn, though cambions, succubi, githyanki, tieflings, and other fiendish creatures call Zelatar home. Graz'zt's decree of protection for merchants is law, though his will is not uniformly enforced.

Argent Palace: Graz'zt's Argent Palace, built of iridescent white stone, dominates the city of Zelatar. The palace's cold beauty can confuse visitors, who expect the structures of the Abyss to reflect that realm's foul nature. According to rumor, Graz'zt tricked the angels of Celestia into quarrying the stone from which the palace was built. The Argent Palace's sixty-six towers are capped in the purest ivory of the mortal realm and the Feywild. Within, one hundred mirrored halls reflect the brilliance of its lord.

Darkflame: The most remote of Zelatar's three neighborhoods, Darkflame is a haven for those who do not want to be found. Graz'zt houses many of his deadliest assassins and agents within the district. All maintain deep cover identities that mask their true natures from even their closest neighbors. Shadow demons abound in the mazelike alleys, seeking out those who would use the obscurity of Darkflame to plan sedition against their prince.

Fogtown: The poorest laborers of Azzagrat toil just outside the scythe-topped walls of this Rauwend neighborhood, harvesting colorless, edible fungi from the featureless plains surrounding the city. Fogtown is a place of gulags and asylums, where hope is scarce and violence lurks at the heart of every shadow.

Gallenghast: The largest of Zelatar's three neighborhoods is packed with the villas of demonic nobles and the markets of traders from every corner of the universe. Numerous inns and lodging houses of dubious character crowd the peripheries of vast market squares. Here and there, gaps in the paving allow the natural light of Barogûnd to blast upward in vibrant towers of eerie luminescence.

For all his enticing qualities, Graz'zt is simply a tool in my hands. I am not foolish enough to believe that the deceitful Dark Prince ever truly loved me. Decades of imprisonment and lingering scars are proof enough of that. Even so, his conquest of Occipitus coincides with my own plans. I might distract Orcus for a time, to permit Graz'zt to expand his little fiefdom.

From the Demonomicon of Iggwilv

Zelatar

Graz'zt's capital city spreads across the three layers of his domain: the neighborhood of Fogtown rests on the layer of Rauwend, cosmopolitan Gallenghast on Barogûnd, and Darkflame on Voorz'zt. Because Graz'zt welcomes merchants to his domain, Zelatar is one of the few places in the Abyss that travelers can visit—as long as they show proper obedience to those carrying Graz'zt's banner or sign, emblazoned with his six-fingered hand.

Population: Approximately 15,000. Primarily demons and demon spawn, but also including drow and other natives of the world, efreets and other elementals, and a handful of rogue githzerai.

Government: Graz'zt is the undisputed ruler of Zelatar. His Argent Palace is visible from all three neighborhoods of the city, but exists in none of them—or in all of them at once.

Defenses: Hordes of demons protect Zelatar from attack, but few other demon lords are foolish enough to challenge Graz'zt's citadel.

Inns and Taverns: Unremarkable taverns in Gallenghast ward. Most of Zelatar's inns and taverns are in the Gallenghast ward, crowded around the edges of market squares. None are savory places, but merchants under Graz'zt's protection can stay in them safely and find food they can at least stomach, if not enjoy.

Supplies: Market squares in Gallenghast ward. Shady traders from across the universe come to the market squares of Gallenghast to do business, enjoying some measure of Graz'zt's protection.

Temples: Chosen's Tabernacle (cult of Graz'zt). The Chosen's Tabernacle, cathedral of Graz'zt's cult, dominates the large central square of Gallenghast. The temple's marilith high priestess, Lavendeth, is a manipulative administrator with a penchant for dirty dealing. She is a favorite consort of the Dark Prince.

Inhabitants

Azzagrat's inhabitants are as varied as its layers and as foul as the secret plots of its lord. Demons of every kind are found here, but so too are devils and all manner of creatures from the mortal realm. Graz'zt's heritage makes Azzagrat one of the few places in the Abyss where devils consort openly with demonkind—a fact that helps to foment the animosity between the Dark Prince and the other demon lords.

Graz'zt possesses a fascination with the world all but unknown among other demons. Because of this curiosity, he welcomes mortal traders and travelers to Azzagrat. Characters looking for other explorers and adventurers find Zelatar a good starting point.

THE IRON WASTES

A layer of portals and ice, where not even the fiercest blizzards can rival Kostchtchie's rage

Towering glaciers and howling blizzards make the Iron Wastes a fitting home for Kostchtchie, the frost giant demon known as the Prince of Wrath (page 122). Only desperation or foolishness brings a traveler to the 23rd layer, where death awaits in the form of Kostchtchie's rage, brutal weather, and roaming bands of frost giants (see Monster Manual 2, page 122), demons, and fouler creatures. This layer is rife with portals leading to other abyssal layers and across the planes, and it holds numerous prizes for adventurers who come here. Only the Plain of a Thousand Portals boasts more gates. Moreover, the ancient demon lord Veshvoriak was cast into an icy tomb here by Demogorgon in ages past. Veshvoriak's knowledge of the Abyss is second only to Dagon's, and he provides divinations and secrets to anyone who first does his bidding.

IRON WASTES TRAITS

Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: A realm of ice fields and glacial mountains approximately one thousand miles across; bounded.
Gravity: Normal.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)

History

In the first centuries after the Abyss first formed, the Iron Wastes changed little. Then. a little less than a century ago, Kostchtchie entered this layer and claimed it as his own. Until that time, the Iron Wastes was an inhospitable wasteland that attracted few worldly explorers. Though the layer boasted a number of stable portals to other planes, even the mightiest demon lords considered the wastes too dangerous to conquer.

When Kostchtchie arrived, everything changed. The Prince of Wrath, made impervious to the layer's weather by his frost giant heritage, shattered glaciers, trampled paths to the layer's scattered portals, and began his ceaseless campaign of destruction within the Abyss. The first demon lord capable of thriving in this layer, Kostchtchie now uses its portal network to wage his war against demonkind. Of particular interest to adventurers, Kostchtchie's fits of rage continually level glaciers and mountain ranges, revealing new portals leading to unknown destinations.

It was during one of his rages that Kostchtchie uncovered the eye of the demon lord Veshvoriak. The great eye, nearly as large as the frost giant demon, now casts a stream of telepathic whispers on the winds of the Iron Wastes, offering long-forgotten lore to creatures that do its bidding. A balor named the Keeper of the Eye watches over Veshvoriak and serves as its major-domo. The Keeper was once a mezzodemon that rendered Veshvoriak some great service. Its newfound might now serves as a magnet to others who seek a similar path to power.

Features and Terrain

The Iron Wastes is a series of glaciers, mountains, and snowdrifts. Adventurers brave the layer's violent weather, unearthly cold, and Kostchtchie's wrath in search of ancient secrets or portals to lost lands.

Endless Blizzard

Howling winds and driving snow lash the Iron Wastes. These storms never relent, their violence rising and falling unpredictably. Characters traveling in the Iron Wastes must make Endurance checks every hour, rather than every eight hours as normal for environmental dangers (see Dungeon Master's Guide, page 158). In addition, characters can take only short rests while exposed to an endless blizzard. Before the characters make these checks, roll a d6 to determine the current conditions on the layer.

IRON WASTES ENDLESS BLIZZARD

| d6 | Endurance DC | Maximum Line of Sight | Fly Speed |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 | 14 | Normal | Normal |
| 2-3 | 20 | 20 squares | Normal |
| 4-5 | 22 | 10 squares | Half speed |
| 6 | 27 | 5 squares | Creatures cannot fly |

Ice Peaks

Wind-carved spires and towering mountains of ice dominate the physical geography of the 23rd layer. Climbing these slopes requires a DC 27 Athletics check. Wandering monsters in the wastes often lurk in the ice peaks, forcing characters to fight while climbing (see "Athletics," Player's Handbook, page 182). While trekking across an ice mountain, characters must make a group Athletics check for each hour of climbing. If at least half of the characters succeed, the group moves at half speed over the course of an hour. Otherwise, the group moves at a quarter of its speed, and one character chosen at random loses a healing surge due to a climbing accident or another hazard.

Ruins

Numerous demon tribes lived in the Iron Wastes before Kostchtchie arrived. Remnants of their habitation have since been buried beneath layers of snow and ice, thanks to the demon lord's rampages. In crossing the desolate lands, adventurers periodically come across chimneys piercing the icy crust or battlements heavy with icicles. Some of these ruins were outposts during the Blood War and are typically small towers or bunkers of only one or two rooms. A few of the ruins were once great castles, manors, or towns built by the demon tribes around the layer's portals. The now-scarce demon tribes of the wastes inhabit those structures the eternal blizzard has not yet claimed.

Caves

The caves that dot the icy peaks of the Iron Wastes are twisting hollows that slope up and down, creating passages that weave over, around, and through one another. Myriad demons and other creatures dwell in these caverns. In addition, the unstable ice is prone to collapse (see the cave-in hazard, Dungeon Master's Guide, page 91).

Frigid Wastelands

The Iron Wastes is an endlessly hostile region. From patches of frozen fire on the brink of exploding to ice maws ready to rend warm flesh (see The Plane Below: Secrets of the Elemental Chaos, page 15), danger lurks in every corner of this layer. Slides and whirlwinds can throw travelers off course (see Dungeon Master's Guide, pages 68–69). Creeping ice (see Dungeon Master's Guide 2, page 58), erratic portals (see Manual of the Planes, page 22), and pockets of infectious disease (see The Plane Below: Secrets of the Elemental Chaos, page 16) waylay unwary creatures, as well.

Kostchtchie's Rage

Since his arrival in the Iron Wastes, Kostchtchie regularly thrashes the layer with his fury. His rage is so potent that it has become palpable, and travelers encounter it throughout his domain (particularly on the Road of Fury). Kostchtchie's rage first manifests as irritability among comrades and escalates into physical violence at the smallest provocation.

Effect: If a creature ends its turn in an area of Kostchtchie's rage, it makes a melee basic attack against an ally adjacent to it as an opportunity action.

Usage: Place this terrain in one or two small areas of an encounter. Monsters that know the rage is present occupy those areas while staying well away from their allies. Creatures that can do so pull, push, or slide characters next to each other within the area of Kostchtchie's rage. Other monsters might set up traps or manipulate terrain features to force characters into the hazard's area.

Locations

The Iron Wastes is a barren expanse of ice and snow. A number of important locations and structures built in ages past dot the frozen landscape.

The Eye of Veshvoriak

A deep cleft opens in a field of blue-white ice, forming a shallow slope that drops several hundred feet. Weather permitting, characters peering into the cleft can see a large splotch in the ice at its bottom. Cracks spread from the splotch in a spiderweb pattern. At its center is a single red eye. A ring of stones stands to the left of the cracked surface. The eye sweeps back and forth in a slow, steady motion, carefully surveying the area. This is the eye of Veshvoriak, an ancient demon lord that Demogorgon trapped in the ice long ago.

A balor (see Monster Manual, page 52) known as the Keeper of the Eye stands watch here, serving as Veshvoriak's major-domo. The Keeper was once a mezzodemon that rendered Veshvoriak a great service. Its newfound might acts as a magnet to others seeking a similar path to power. The Keeper of the Eye wears a crown of blue ice studded with purple gems. It is an arrogant, sneering creature. It demands that visitors grovel before the eye as they seek gifts of power. In return, the balor assigns the task Veshvoriak has telepathically communicated to it. Once the petitioner completes this assignment and returns, the trapped demon lord grants his gift.

Minor demons are Veshvoriak's most frequent visitors, seeking shortcuts to demonic ascension (page 14) or access to rituals and magic by which they might bind other demons to their service. Mortals also make pilgrimages to Veshvoriak, typically in search of forbidden knowledge or the locations of lost treasures.

Tasks Veshvoriak assigns include slaying a specific demon, finding a magic item or an artifact and bringing it to him, or destroying a portal in the Abyss. The reward he offers matches the risk of the task he sets. In game terms, use the nonmagic item treasure rules (see "Alternative Rewards," Dungeon Master's Guide 2, page 136) as a model for Veshvoriak's boon. Veshvoriak orders characters who seek a magic item, a ritual, or another treasure to undertake a task equal to three encounters of the item's level + 2 to earn it. These might be combat encounters or skill challenges. The details are left to the DM.

Veshvoriak yearns to be free of the icy tomb into which Demogorgon bound him. To that end, he gathers potent artifacts that create or control magical fire, captures powerful demons to sacrifice them in the standing stones near his eye, and opens portals from the Abyss to areas of intense heat and fire.

The Glacier Citadel

When Kostchtchie first arrived in the Iron Wastes, he launched a murderous crusade against every living creature he could find in the layer. The arrival on the plane of Doresain the Ghoul King (see Monster Manual, page 208) and a horde of ghouls provided more challenging victims to slow Kostchtchie's rampage. Doresain escaped to report the new demon lord's nature to Orcus, but his hundreds of abyssal ghouls were lost to Kostchtchie's wrath.

When the undead slaughter momentarily slaked his bloodlust, Kostchtchie sought a place to rest. He found it in the glacier citadel, a tower of ice that rises five hundred feet above the Iron Wastes. The tower's interior is divided into ten chambers, each filling a floor. A spiral staircase runs down the citadel's center. Kostchtchie has pummeled the tower into rubble several times in fits of anger, but the citadel rises again within a day.

The tower shifts its form in response to Kostchtchie's desires. As a minor action, he can create a wall of ice anywhere within the citadel, extending from floor to ceiling, up to twenty-five feet in length and five feet thick. As a minor action, Kostchtchie can also create an opening up to twenty feet on a side in any wall, floor, or ceiling of the citadel.

The spoils of Kostchtchie's conquests fill the citadel's uppermost levels. The still-living head of Bayemon, a batlike demon lord, hangs from the eighth level's ceiling. Magic items, the blasted stones of fallen abyssal palaces, and huge caches of coins and gems fill the ninth level. The tenth level is the lair of Svafnir, an ancient white dragon (see Monster Manual, page 85) advanced to level 30. He serves as Kostchtchie's companion and guardian of the tower.

The first level is a guardroom, where a dozen frost giant warriors are stationed. The second and third floors are barracks and living quarters for more frost giants and frost titans (see Monster Manual, pages 122–123) that serve as Kostchtchie's lackeys.

Kostchtchie lives on the fourth and fifth floors. The fourth floor features a number of iron cages suspended from the ceiling by great chains. These cages hold creatures the giants take captive. They are kept alive to serve as objects for the Prince of Wrath's tantrums. Pools of frozen blood and shattered bones are fused into the floor's ice. A huge pile of furs and skins dominates the fifth floor. Kostchtchie rests here between forays into other abyssal layers.

Despite its vast treasure horde, the tower is relatively undefended. The frost giants pay more attention to keeping Kostchtchie's rages directed away from them, and Svafnir spends his time hunting across the layer when Kostchtchie does not need him in battle. Only one thief is known to have managed to steal an item from Kostchtchie's citadel. Three days later, Kostchtchie leveled the mortal city to which the thief fled. The Prince of Wrath claimed the stolen jeweled crown and the lives of half the city's population. For a trophy, he dragged the highest tower in the city back to the Iron Wastes. Its shattered remains are still littered about the base of the glacier citadel.

Portals

Portals are scattered across the Iron Wastes, many buried beneath the layer's ice and snow. Permanent paths wind their way between regularly used portals.

The fiercest weather in the Iron Wastes unceasingly buffets the Stoldottir Gate. Adventurers who survive the frost giant guardians step through a rift into frost giant territory in the Elemental Chaos.

The Gate of the Void stands between two towering statues of Orcus, battered and defaced but still intact. It leads to the bottom of a thousand-foot pit in the Shadowdark, the infinite tunnels beneath the Shadowfell.

Dim, dancing lights in the eternal storm lead travelers to the Gate of Seven Lights. It leads directly into a dungeon beneath the Feywild city of Astrazalian, which eladrin paladins vigilantly guard.

Other gates include the Shrieking Gate, which emits a constant scream and leads to the tower of the great wizard Zenopus in the natural world. The Gate of Ruins carries travelers to Kalandurren, the Darkened Pillars, in the Astral Sea. It is abandoned and rarely used.

Road of Fury

Kostchtchie wanders the Iron Wastes when he is not marauding in other abyssal domains. He keeps a surprisingly regular pattern, descending from his glacier citadel to pass close by several of the layer's more prominent gates. He then loops through the lowlands before drawing near Veshvoriak's frozen form. This path, dubbed the Road of Fury in honor of its creator, is the easiest but most risky way to travel in the Iron Wastes. During the fiercest storms, the weather on the road is mild. Kostchtchie can be encountered along this route at any time. The crushed and torn corpses of demons and other creatures are scattered along the road.

Inhabitants

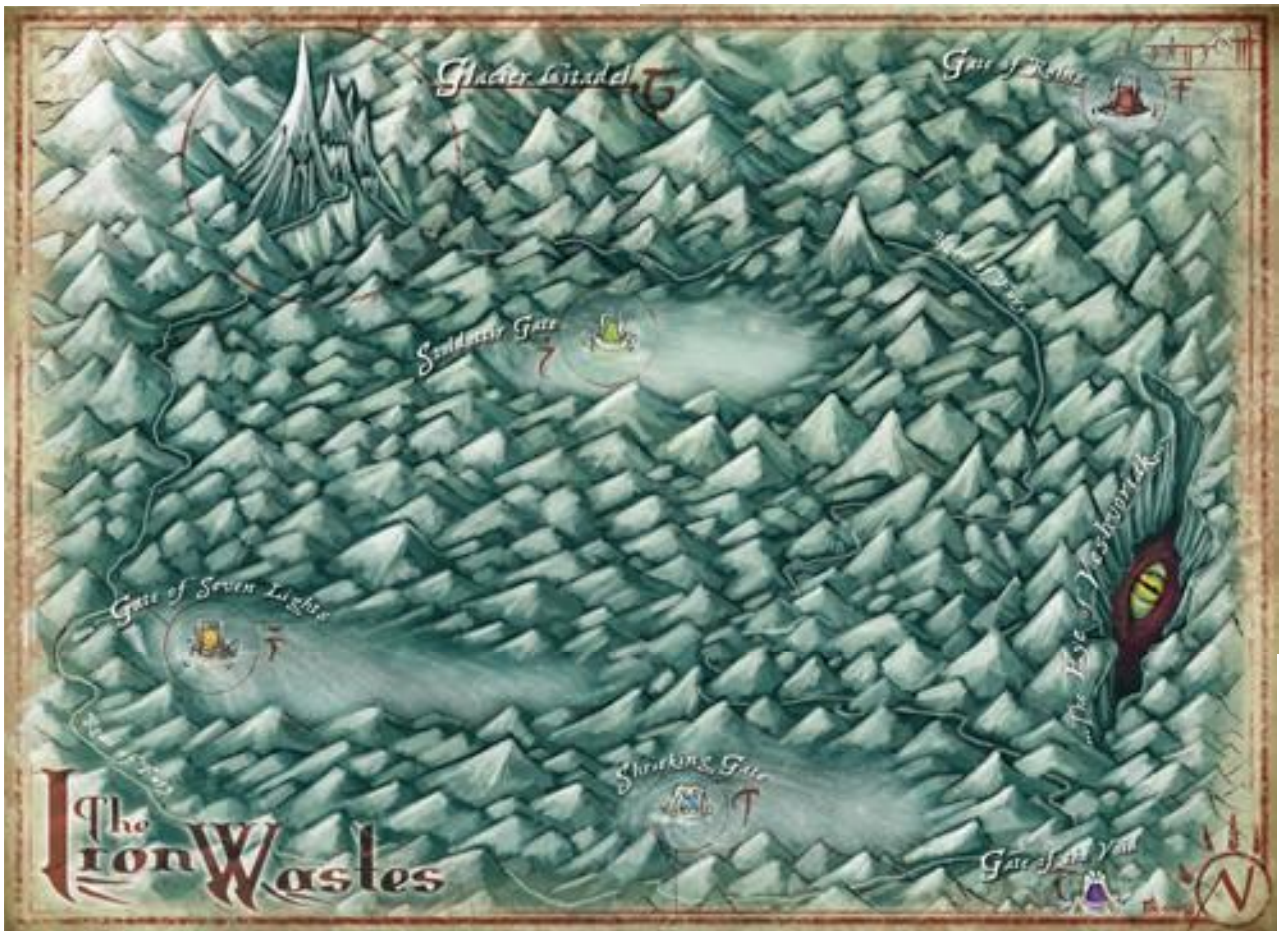
The demon lord Kostchtchie retains his original frost giant form, and he gathers powerful frost giant warriors to his side as his trusted servants. They travel the layer on sleds hooked to winter wolves. The frost giants have little to do when Kostchtchie rests in the Iron Wastes, so they track down intruders to stuff into the citadel's cages.

Frost giants are not the only powerful creatures wandering the frozen wilds. Although the Iron Wastes is a stark and lonely place, desperate demons enter this layer when fleeing powerful enemies or vengeful masters. Others come seeking audiences with Veshvoriak.



Mavawhans (page 127) nest in the trackless mountains, swooping down on any creatures traveling in the open. Though most of the mavawhans of the wastes have been bound to Kostchtchie's service, others dwell here to launch attacks into the mortal realm through its portals. The Iron Wastes is also home to wandering bands of rageborn (page 138). Always hungry, these fiends fall in waves on any creatures they encounter.

A small colony of ice archons (see Monster Manual, page 20) has also recently crept into the Iron Wastes. They search for the Heart of Ice, an artifact spear that once belonged to a primordial and which the archons believe is buried somewhere in the mountains of the wastes. Several ice devils (see Monster Manual, page 63) serve the archons, although they have an ulterior motive for their presence in the layer. One of the dukes of the Nine Hells has sent the devils to scope out the Iron Wastes as a possible invasion point.

FROM THE DEMONOMICON OF IGGWILV

The Iron Wastes has long been a desolate wasteland, but only I saw the wisdom in controlling it. This layer is a planar crossroads second in importance only to the Plain of a Thousand Portals. Kostchtchie's depredations through the gates have already upset the Abyss's balance of power.

I worry, though, about my dear Kostchtchie. The slumbering demon Veshvoriak whispers secrets into Kostchtchie's mind each night, and I cannot brook any chance of failure. Veshvoriak once ruled this realm. Does he know my plans, or is he simply eager to escape? If some group of mortal so-called heroes can be tricked into slaying Kostchtchie for me, the truth will be revealed. Kostchtchie's death might well destroy the gates and possibly all the Wastes, but can I risk the alternative?

ABYSM

The realm of the Gaping Maw and the Screaming Jungle, reflecting the schizophrenic ferocity of its master

Mirroring its demon lord's dual nature, Abysm is a realm divided. Its most prominent feature is a primeval forest dotted by impenetrable swamps—the Screaming Jungle, 90th layer of the Abyss. At Abysm's heart lies the 88th layer of the Gaping Maw—an inland sea whose black waters descend for miles. Overhead stretches a roiling olive sky of thick clouds and alien moons. All creatures here bow down before the might of Demogorgon, the Sibilant Beast and Prince of Demons. Even the unknowable Dagon, who lurks in the depths of the Shadowsea, makes no challenge to Demogorgon's control of this realm.

History

A little over a century ago, Demogorgon executed a plan to unleash a savage tide of chaos and death across the mortal world. Had his plot succeeded, the Prince of Demons would have undergone an apotheosis, transforming himself into something akin to a god. Demogorgon's plans were ultimately foiled by a party of mortal heroes. With a host of archfey and rival demon lords, the heroes led an invasion into Abysm and slew Demogorgon in a desperate final battle. Though numerous other demon lords had long coveted the mantle of Prince of Demons, the mortal who struck the killing blow claimed that title in the end.

Like Obox-ob and Orcus before him, Demogorgon did not remain dead for long. Spontaneously reformed by the power of the Abyss, the resurgent demon lord quickly set out to reclaim his throne. As he always had, the demon lord Dagon once more gave Demogorgon his aid, claiming only the mortal usurper's life in payment.

FROM THE DEMONOMICON OF IGGWILV

Dagon's endgame remains as mysterious and inscrutable as ever. I have no doubt that the Lord of the Darkened Depths could have easily claimed Abysm in Demogorgon's absence, yet he did not. In the end, Dagon's reasons might have simply mirrored my own. Many perils are associated with becoming Prince of Demons. Better to manipulate events from the shadows than stand in the open and draw fire to yourself.

The Gaping Maw

GAPING MAW TRAITS

Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: Inland sea approximately one hundred miles across and twenty miles deep (including the Shadowsea); bounded.
Gravity: Normal.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)

Referred to as Dagon's Maw in the most ancient texts, the Gaping Maw (88th layer of the Abyss) is a turbulent sea broken by rocky promontories used as rookeries by flying demons. Innumerable streams and two large rivers feed the sea. The Indigo Wash bubbles up from the depths of the Screaming Jungle, while the ubiquitous Blood River courses down from the heights of the Blood Rift. The waters of the Gaping Maw are unlike any known to mortal mariners. Every part of this sea, from the pounding surf to the denizens of the depths, carries a dark malevolence. A great whirlpool called the Stygian Eye swirls about the base of the Abysm Fortress.

The Screaming Jungle

SCREAMING JUNGLE TRAITS

Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: Jungle continent; unbounded.
Gravity: Normal.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)
Corruption: Attacks that have the disease or poison keyword gain a +1 bonus to the attack roll. Healing powers restore only half as many hit points as normal.

A primeval dark continent covered in dense rainforest, the Screaming Jungle is named for the constant keening of its fiendish wildlife. Near the coast of the Gaping Maw, the jungle thins into a fetid bog. Farther

THE BLOOD SEA

The depths of the Gaping Maw link to the Blood Sea, a bottomless ocean thriving with demonic sea life. Also known as the Abyssian Ocean, the Blood Sea connects to every other ocean and sea in the Abyss, including the Bay of Choking Bile in Azzagrat (page 59), Blood Shallows (81st layer), the Shadowsea of Dagon (89th layer), and the Scalding Sea (245th layer).

inland, the ground hardens and the canopy grows dangerously lush. Malevolent flora and fauna abound here, lurking beneath a forest canopy so thick that the jungle floor is perpetually cloaked in darkness. This 90th layer of the Abyss is home to the most feral of Demogorgon's servitors, exemplifying his aspect as a force of primal strength and brutality.

Features and Terrain

The twin layers of Demogorgon's realm offer explorers and adventurers any number of ways to die.

Hazards of the Jungle

The festering landscape of the Screaming Jungle features many hazards familiar to worldly explorers. But even familiar hazards become more deadly in the realm of Demogorgon. Characters who stumble into spiderwebs and grasping slime (see Dungeon Master's Guide, pages 68–69) or a grasping bog (see Dungeon Master's Guide 2, page 60) find their momentum slowed—and alert nearby creatures to their presence as they struggle to extract themselves. Demon jags, acidic mire, and wrath mud (see The Plane Below: Secrets of the Elemental Chaos, pages 12–13) impede a party's progress and can kill characters who stumble into them.

Plants and Insects

The plant life of the jungle includes razorvine (see Manual of the Planes, page 22) and grab grass (see Dungeon Master's Guide, page 68). Blood midge clouds (see Dungeon Master's Guide 2, page 58) and other insect swarms can slow a party's progress and provide cover for lurking monsters. Such creatures likewise take advantage of the cover provided by clouds of infectious pallor (see The Plane Below: Secrets of the Elemental Chaos, page 16) and other airborne hazards.

The Gaping Maw

Where the Blood River pours into the Gaping Maw, it creates a powerful tidal current that drags any creatures caught in it out toward the Stygian Eye. This colossal swirling maelstrom drains the Gaping Maw into the Blood Sea (see the sidebar). The skies above the Gaping Maw roil with incredible storms, relentlessly blasting the region with driving rains and hurricane-force winds.

Scalepox Cloud

Native to both layers of Abysm, a scalepox cloud is a gray mist that drifts of its own accord even against strong winds. Demogorgon concocted this plague, using it to infect and convert enemies that infiltrate his domain. A scalepox cloud covers an area from 3 to 5 squares on a side.

Effect: When a creature not loyal to Demogorgon is hit by an attack while in a scalepox cloud, the creature is exposed to screaming scalepox. Squares containing a scalepox cloud are lightly obscured.

Usage: Scalepox clouds drift throughout both layers of Abysm, and add an extra layer of danger to any combat encounter in Demogorgon's realm.

Locations

The untamed chaos of Abysm conceals a number of lethal sites.

Abysm Fortress

Near the Stygian Eye that swirls at the center of the Gaping Maw, twin serpentine towers rise out of the inky depths. The fearsome fortress of Abysm serves as Demogorgon's palace and personal sanctuary, and gives his realm its name. Here, the Prince of Demons labors to unlock abyssal secrets that are ancient even by his reckoning. The palace rises a few hundred feet above the roiling sea, but the bulk of its structure extends impossibly deep, down through the Gaping Maw and penetrating the floor of the Shadowsea (page 70). Its spiraling towers are tipped with minarets, each resembling an enormous fanged skull.

The Brine Flats

A shallow, brackish seabed surrounding the swampy mainland of the Screaming Jungle, the Brine Flats provides shelter from the otherwise intense tides of the Maw. Demogorgon's favored ixitxachitls (page 119) dwell here, carving out enormous tunnel complexes in coral reefs just below the surface. The mightiest and most malevolent ixitxachitls reside in shallow tidal pools among the sunken ruins of Lemoriax (see page 70).

| Screaming Scalepox | Level 15 Disease |

Chauden Gap

Land travelers bound for the Guttering Grove (see below) pass through the Chauden Gap to avoid the dangerous slopes of the surrounding mountains. This section of low peaks remains perpetually cloaked in mist, blinding travelers to monstrous battlebriars (see Monster Manual, page 28) and other animate plants.

The Demonwing

Somewhere within the pinnacles of rock that dot the Gaping Maw lies the shattered hulk of Demonwing, a colossal chaos ship that once sailed throughout the cosmos. It is said that Demonwing is, in fact, an entire lost layer of the Abyss unto itself, built by an ancient prince of demons. What befell the mighty vessel remains unknown, but even the fiercest demons avoid the site of the wreck.

The Guttering Grove

The Guttering Grove is a hidden plateau of the Screaming Jungle ruled by barlguras and other demonic simians. This region was once a distinct abyssal layer, until Demogorgon invaded and merged it with his own realm centuries ago. Its deposed demon lord, Ilsidahur, still dwells here, now a faithful servant of Demogorgon.

The Guttering Grove is significant in that it holds a demongate to the Feywild, thought to be the last of the portals used by the Court of Stars (see Manual of the Planes, page 36) to invade the Abyss in eons past.

The Indigo Wash

This raging watercourse runs from the heart of the Screaming Jungle wends to the Gaping Maw, carving deep canyons as it goes. Its sheer gorges are honeycombed with caverns, within which dwell blood fiends (see Monster Manual, page 12). The deepest tunnels are thought to connect with the Sibilant Deeps (see below). Despite its bizarre coloration, the waters of the Indigo Wash are safe to drink.

Lemoriax

Once a thriving metropolis of towering ziggurats and broad avenues teeming with thousands of demonic sycophants, Lemoriax fell into ruin a century ago. Constant tidal erosion has eaten away at Lemoriax's foundations, leaving it underwater in the salty shallows of the Brine Flats. Though the city's tallest towers still jut up above the waves, only aquatic ixitxachitls (page 119), sahuagins, and water archons dwell there now.

Since the fall of Lemoriax, Demogorgon has made no move to establish another city or trade center in his realm. Nonetheless, cultists and thralls of Demogorgon revere the sunken city as a holy site, undertaking dangerous pilgrimages there to make offerings or conduct sacrifices in their lord's name.

The Shadowsea

Descend deep enough into the brackish depths of the Gaping Maw and one eventually passes into the Shadowsea. This region is coterminous with the Maw but is its own abyssal layer (the 89th), controlled by the inscrutable demon lord Dagon, Prince of the Darkened Depths (see Monster Manual 2, page 45).

The Shadowsea is a tortured undersea landscape of jagged mountains and abyssal trenches. No light penetrates these waters, which teem with oozes able to withstand the immense pressures of the deep. Necroclasm clouds (see below) are among the several hazards of the Shadowsea.

Many sunken cities can be found here—ancient ruins in which dwell kuo-toas (see Monster Manual, page 172) and aboleths (see Monster Manual, page 8) bound in service to Dagon. The largest of these cities is the demesne of the demon lord. Dagon's amorphous mud palace looms over a madness-inducing panorama of twisted towers, yawning gulfs, and halls and grottos that shimmer with their own unearthly light.

Necroclasm Cloud Level 20 Obstacle

Hazard: The necroclasm cloud fills an area 4 squares on a side.

Perception

Trigger

The necroclasm cloud attacks when a creature enters any of its squares.

Hit: 2d8 + 6 necrotic damage, the target is blinded and takes ongoing 15 necrotic damage, and the necroclasm cloud shrinks from its space to occupy the target's square (save ends all). When the target saves, the cloud expands in a close burst 4 from the target's square.

Shatik Peaks

Two great volcanic mountains rise from the dense reaches of the Screaming Jungle. One spews forth billowing smoke and ash between infrequent but violent magma eruptions. The second peak is more active, erupting in torrents of superheated water and steam. The Shatik Peaks are each home to a faction of warring troglodytes dwelling in subterranean complexes.

The Sibilant Deeps

Scattered sinkholes throughout the Screaming Jungle lead into the Sibilant Deeps, an immense subterranean realm inhabited by elementals and tribes of marauding demons. Creatures falling into a sinkhole drop fifty feet or more down a vertical shaft before hitting bottom.

The Tor of Fangs

Close by the Indigo Wash, the Tor of Fangs is a granite pinnacle named for twin spires of petrified wood that resemble great teeth. Within the tor lies the Sanctum of Ahmon-Ibor, home to a flesh cult (see Open Grave, page 146) led by a death knight.

Uami-Gubot, the Slithering Fen

This murky swamp extends along the shores of the Gaping Maw. Though populated primarily by hydras, nagas, and snakes (see the Monster Manual), the Slithering Fen takes its name from its most fearsome inhabitant. Uami-Gubot is a fiendish behir (see Monster Manual 2, page 22) thought to be the spawn of Demogorgon. This behir rules over a tribe of lizardfolk called the goro, distinctive for the tentaclelike arms granted to them for their faith in Demogorgon.

Ungorth Reddik

Once a tall tower marking the gateway to the city of Lemoriax, the fortress of Ungorth Reddik now juts from the waters of the Brine Flats. The fortress crawls with retrievers (see Monster Manual 2, page 177), golems, and constructs not seen elsewhere.

Inhabitants

The two layers of Abysm teem with life—all of it as deadly as this realm's master. The creatures of the Screaming Jungle exemplify Demogorgon's aspect of primal strength and brutality. Behemoths (see Monster Manual, page 31) battle for territory against dire apes and barlguras, while hundreds of thousands of demons lurk in ruined fortresses, ready to fight at Demogorgon's whim. The uncharted expanses of the jungle are populated by dinosaurs, fiendish troglodytes, drakkoths (see Monster Manual 2, page 90), hezrou demons, and the cults of the yuan-ti.

Aquatic demons and chaotic elementals are the natural inhabitants of the Gaping Maw, though fiendish sharks and other sea monsters found in the natural world also swim these waters. But, of all the creatures of Abysm, the most terrifying are the abominations that Demogorgon takes a hand in creating. The Prince of Demons is a master of the art of shaping demonic life—secrets thought to have been stolen from the obyrith lords.

THE BARRENS

The bones of civilizations fallen and yet to fall litter Oublivae's realm

The Barrens are an endless expanse of desolate wilderness littered with the ruins of every civilization that has ever existed—or ever will exist. The layer's sheer enormity, eternal wreckage, and constantly fluctuating composition lend credence to Iggwilv's belief that the Barrens, the 100th layer, was once an astral domain that fell into the Abyss. Knowledge seekers across the cosmos hunger for the long-forgotten secrets and treasures entombed inside these ruins, but traveling to the Barrens is most often a one-way trip. The Barrens is a lonely prison that reflects the failures of civilization's grandest dreams. Wendigos, cannibals, and undead fiends haunt its wilds, and the destructive forces that doomed the layer's stolen cities taint their ruins.

The landscape here is in a state of constant transformation, making navigation all but impossible. Like travelers on the Astral Sea, explorers in the Barrens must will themselves toward a destination. Only by steady seeking and strength of purpose can travelers reach their intended destination. Those who fail perish among the ruins of history.

THE BARRENS TRAITS

Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: A shifting landscape covered with timeless ruins; unbounded.
Gravity: Normal.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)

History

When the demon queen Oublivae (page 130) first appeared in the Abyss, the wreckage of every civilization in past or future history materialized in the Barrens. Demons exiled to the Barrens flocked to the deserted cities, hoping in vain to discover a way out. Oublivae watched as they settled among the husks of unnamed cities and became slothful. Meanwhile, mortals carried to the layer with their former homes built small settlements in the shadows of the ruins and thrived.

Oublivae then whispered to the demons, promising freedom and armies to the most ruthless among them. She whispered to the mortals, vowing fortune and protection to those who worshiped her, and they called her an angel. When the mortals grew strong, Oublivae removed her protection and turned demons and mortals against each other. She relished the brutality and slaughter. When the demons became mighty, she granted mortals the power to repel and destroy them.

In the uncounted years since, the cycle of death turns round and round in the Barrens, a microcosm of the Abyss. The strongest inhabitants lay waste to the already-broken cities as the survivors struggle against their misfortune. From somewhere in the heart of the bottomless pits beneath the Fortress of the Forgotten, Oublivae's whispers compel each side to action.

Features and Terrain

Amid vast swaths of desolate wilderness, the time-worn ruins of all civilizations come to rest. Whether destroyed by war, natural disaster, the wrath of fiends, or other dark means, the wreckage of these places mysteriously appears in the Barrens. Each city materializes looking as it did when the culture that built it was extinguished.

Most creatures that travel in the Barrens seek either knowledge of or escape from that layer. Some travelers search for secrets buried in a city's wreckage, while others scour the rubble for portals that pulse faintly with life. A select few hope to solve the mysteries of the labyrinthine passages beneath the great pits known as the oubliettes, where the Demon Queen of Desolation dwells.

Smoldering Plain

This ruined plain is riddled with smoking craters. Forests of dead scrub trees burn constantly but are never consumed. Soot blackens the sky to a flickering red twilight, parting only periodically when flaming meteors, rains of magma, or dragons strike the plain to pound new craters and pulverize the ruins. The largest craters are twenty feet deep. The ground around a crater is difficult terrain.

Firestorms surge across the plain every hour. Burning vapor or an Avernus cinderstorm (see Manual of the Planes, pages 22–23) can be used as the basis of a firestorm. A creature caught in a firestorm must make a DC 24 Endurance check or lose a healing surge. Adventurers can take short rests on the Smoldering Plain, but they cannot take extended rests.

Charred Wasteland

The Charred Wasteland is home to blackened structures that have the psychic shadows of the buildings' previous inhabitants permanently emblazoned on their walls. Magic of incalculable destructive power was unleashed against these cities, their residents destroyed or transformed into aberrant monsters.

The Charred Wasteland is imbued with a radiation that grants low-light vision to creatures within it. Each creature in the wasteland must make a DC 21 Endurance check each hour or be exposed to wastelands sickness. Areas of blood rock are common in the ruins (see Dungeon Master's Guide, page 67), as are entropic fissures (see Manual of the Planes, page 24).

Land of the Dead

By day, the cities in the Land of the Dead stand whole and tranquil. Their tall spires salute the skies, but not a creature stirs on their empty streets. By night, the cityscapes morph back into ruins, and hordes of undead boil up from their foundations. Characters traveling through the region can safely take an extended rest by day. At night, however, vampires (see Monster Manual, page 258), skull lords (see Monster Manual, page 236), and other undead roam the land. In addition, the Land of the Dead is defiled ground (see Dungeon Master's Guide 2, page 59).

Plague Ruin

Metropolises, cities, and towns strewn with corpses are scattered throughout the Barrens. Thick dust rides the winds through these open graves, reeking of blood and death. This dust acts as a contagious form of mummy rot (see Dungeon Master's Guide, page 49) that attacks creatures within the area every hour at +11 vs. Fortitude. Improve: DC 21; maintain: DC 16; worsen: DC 15 or lower.

Locations

The Barrens are a desolate wilderness pocked with broken cityscapes. Infinite wonders can be discovered in the debris of these once-great settlements.

Broken Portals

The most advanced cities summoned to the Barrens possessed portals connecting them to other locations across the planes. Most of these gates were powered by worldly magic, though some were built with complex arcane technologies. Such portals were rendered inoperative when their cities were drawn to the Abyss. Some of these portals can be repaired using arcane components hidden in nearby demon lairs or reactivated with skill challenges. Over the years, a few crafty adventurers have managed to briefly revive portals and use them to escape the Barrens.

Bound Demon Locales

Demons are sometimes cast into the Barrens for offenses against more powerful masters. Isolated ruins, foul ponds, dead trees, and other landmarks become the prisons of these fiends, which are magically bound to such sites as eternal punishment for their insubordination or crimes. Though often driven insane by their endless incarceration, these demons can sometimes be convinced—or forced—to provide information.

Grand Ruins

Sprawling demon-infested metropolises crumble to pieces in the Barrens, including legendary settlements such as Waterdeep, Sharn, and Palanthas. The ruins of every great city but Sigil (see Dungeon Master's Guide 2, page 186) can be found on this layer. Adventurers who explore the Barrens should encounter the grand ruins of one or more cities familiar to them.

Grand ruins are the domains of the Barrens' most powerful demons. Trapped in this layer, the fiends attack each other and the mortal settlements that grow like weeds around the ruins. Demons hope to attain enough power in this way to gain Oublivae's favor, believing that the Queen of Desolation rewards the strongest with the power that might allow them to escape from this accursed realm.

The Floating Kingdoms

Small networks of settlements soar above the Barrens like clusters of bubbles. They arc in spiral patterns, mimicking the markings on Oublivae's body. Inhabitants of these floating settlements don't know they dwell in the Abyss. To the people of the Barrens, life is a dark dream. Demons hoping to consume mortal souls gather at their gates, and the only way to defeat the fiends is to strike back again and again. Holy warriors emerge from these civilizations, becoming saints and heroes. These warriors' hopes rest with the foul Oublivae, who they know as the blessed angel. She alone gives them the power to repel the demons and push back the night.

Skill Challenge: Encountering Oublivae

Desperate travelers lost or trapped in the wilds of the Barrens sometimes invoke Oublivae's name. The demon lord might agree to aid her callers if they first perform a task.

Diplomacy is an important skill for influencing Oublivae, and she loves flattery even though she does not believe it. Characters trained in History attract her attention because she enjoys correcting them. Insightful characters might detect Oublivae's sudden mood shifts, while experts in Nature might empathize with her bestial aspects.

Offering services to Oublivae, on the scale of exterminating an entire culture, automatically wins her favor. But the Queen of Desolation destroys creatures that betray her, either by hurling them into the oubliettes, transforming them into wendigos, or razing their homelands.

RALPH BEISNER

According to settlement elders, demons come from the wilderness below the floating kingdoms. They arise from the corpses of the cities, which fell from the sky when the citizens' forebears strayed from the blessed angel's perfect direction. Their teachings say that evil boiled up from great pits on the surface, and that it must be cast back again before a glorious new age can dawn.

The Fortress of the Forgotten

Fading in and out of existence at the shifting heart of the Barrens, the Fortress of the Forgotten is an ancient ruin said to be Oublivae's center of power. When the fortress appears, it manifests dozens of immense, rectangular pits in the surface of the Barrens beneath it. Each of these pits—named oubliettes for the Queen of Desolation—is one hundred feet wide by two hundred feet long, and is walled in blackest obsidian. Rectangular corridors pierce the walls of the pits, leading to unknown destinations while the oubliettes descend into bottomless darkness.

Iggwilv has theorized that the oubliettes extend to the bottom of the Blood Rift (page 50), and that whatever is cast into them is lost forever. The Witch Queen further states that the shifting of the ruined cities on the surface of the Barrens owes to the layer turning beneath them on the oubliettes' axis.

When Oublivae is angry, she casts her enemies into the black depths, their screams fading into oblivion. Occasionally, brave explorers willingly enter the oubliettes to scale the pits' sheer walls, attempting to reach the dark passages that punch through the obsidian. Some sages believe that the still-living memories of the cities claimed by the Barrens glitter in the deep darkness of the oubliettes like diamonds, providing passage to an infinite number of locations in time and space. Some passages are known to lead to the Plain of a Thousand Portals, to the lairs of fell demons and other creatures, and to other planes. At least one such path leads to Oublivae's secret domain deep below the Barren's surface.

Getting Lost, Getting Out

It is not easy to escape the Barrens. Though the ruins and settlements of this layer remain stationary, the landscape around those sites shifts, and characters navigating the layer risk getting lost. To travel toward a destination, a traveler in the Barrens must form the destination in his or her mind and set off in a direction. Regardless of real distance, such travel takes 1d10 days.

A few means of escaping the Barrens are known to creatures that dwell there. The Fortress of the Forgotten is the only physical link to the oubliettes whose side passages lead to myriad locations across the planes. The fortress appears at random, however, and actively eludes creatures that want to find it. Broken portals in the Barren's fallen cities can sometimes be repaired, but they are typically guarded by powerful demons also seeking to escape from the layer.

The most dangerous means of escape from the Barrens is to call on the Oublivae (see the skill challenge).

Inhabitants

Humanoids horribly transfigured by whatever cataclysm claimed their fallen cities wander insane through the desolation of the Barrens. They have no true wishes, desires, or thoughts beyond the mad urge to destroy. They are not the only creatures trapped here. Powerful demons sometimes bind servants or rivals to particular locations in the Barrens as punishment. These bound demons go insane over time.

The layer's numerous undead creatures are the discarded remnants of once-mighty civilizations. They hunger for the lives they once had and long to consume the embers of vitality that warm living hearts. Other demons thirst for the living as well, striking out into the wilds in search of poorly defended ruins or mortal settlements. These demons spare heroes they find in the Barrens if the heroes swear to assist in overthrowing a humanoid town or ruins inhabited by other demons.

Lycanthrope tribes dominate the Barrens' dense, gloomy forests. These creatures hunt in humanoid form to lure prey close, then transform before they strike. They paint themselves with the blood of their victims in the spiraling patterns of Oublivae, whom they praise for sending them sustenance.

Wendigos (page 152) hunt alone in the wilds, stalking small groups of wanderers. If a wendigo can kill and eat a creature without getting caught, it does so. Otherwise, it waits for its prey to be distracted by another of the Barrens' creatures or hazards.

FROM THE DEMONOMICON OF IGGWILV

The Barrens have served me well in my quest to obtain knowledge of powers great enough to destroy worlds. Of the hundreds of adventurers I send to that realm, few return. But each new piece of information is well worth its price in meaningless mortal lives.

The monster Oublivae complicates matters. Though she seldom attacks other lords directly, the exiled demons she frees from the Barrens return seeking vengeance against their former masters. Far more powerful and with armies at their backs, these demons have proved a potent inconvenience. The Queen of Desolation's actions signify her unspoken message: The Abyss shall have no lord but ruin.

The deep layers of the Abyss are those regions most remote from the traditional entry points to that dark realm. Though the deep layers are difficult to gain access to, escaping from them is an even greater challenge.

Garavond

If the airless void doesn't kill you, the Mad Artificer's creations surely will

GARAVOND TRAITS
Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: An expanse of vacuum approximately five miles in diameter; recursive.
Gravity: Elemental buoyancy.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)
Perils of the Void: Outside Haagenti's lair, Garavond is a vacuum containing no air (and no materials to convert to air). Living creatures in Garavond risk suffocation (see Dungeon Master's Guide, page 159).

Even by the standards of the Abyss, Garavond is a particularly deadly realm. In its natural state, the 548th layer is a void, lacking light and atmosphere. Within this emptiness hangs a great metallic orb, the layer's only physical feature and domicile of Haagenti, Demon Lord of Alchemy and Artifice. Haagenti's spherical fortress is as much laboratory as palace, its halls crawling with retrievers (see Monster Manual 2, page 177), golems, clockwork horrors (page 109), and evil constructs seen nowhere else in the planes.

When he wants to do so, Haagenti can expose the whole of Garavond to the Elemental Chaos, exchanging the layer's airless void for a sea of magma, a storm of living lightning, or any other element necessary to fuel his mad experiments.

Few creatures can survive in the airless void of Garavond, though many constructs (many of Haagenti's own design) call this layer home. It is whispered that Haagenti might be a living construct—the last member of a long-extinct race forged at the beginning of time.

Garavond is one of the few abyssal layers not intersected by the Blood Rift. Portals to Haagenti's realm can be found in Pazunia and Shedaklah, the latter layer the site where Haagenti's agents collect the demon lord's alchemical reagents.

Gibbering Hollow

Demons pile atop one another in a sea of slashing claws and gibbering screams

GIBBERING HOLLOW TRAITS
Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: A sprawling realm of winding subterranean tunnels three hundred miles in length; bounded.
Gravity: Normal.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)

For sheer size, few abyssal entities can match Ollomegh. This long-forgotten primordial came to the Abyss long ago in search of food to satiate his unquenchable appetite. In Gibbering Hollow, the 69th layer of the Abyss, his gluttonous cravings met their match. For reasons unknown, the Gibbering Hollow spawns more manes (page 126) than any other layer of the Abyss. Even with Ollomegh endlessly devouring uncounted tons of the creatures, the tunnels of this realm continue to fill.

Gibbering Hollow is so densely populated that its surfaces are literally covered with wretched, squirming manes and gibbering mane swarms. Visitors arriving here by way of the realm's few portals are caught in the crush of bodies, and must fight their way through the manes or risk suffocation (see Dungeon Master's Guide, page 159). In his great cavern, slothful Ollomegh lies buried deep beneath the sprawling mass of his victims.

Phage Breeding Grounds

A nightmarish nursery of decaying viscera and howling slaves

PHAGE BREEDING GROUNDS TRAITS
Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: The perpetually rotting entrails of a long-dead primordial, winding approximately ten miles in total length; bounded.
Gravity: Normal.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)
Corruption: Attacks that have the disease or poison keyword gain a +1 bonus to the attack roll. Healing powers restore only half as many hit points as normal.

The 53rd layer of the Abyss, the Phage Breeding Grounds are a putrescent layer of winding, mucus-lined tunnels avoided by all demonkind. Explorers who brave this layer and live to return describe it as something akin to the interior of a colossal swath of intestines, which isn't far from the truth.

The breeding grounds are ruled over by the slaad lord Urae-Naas, former consort of the primordial Ramenos, from whose rotting carcass this layer is formed. An uncounted number of half-conscious thralls are imprisoned here in vast, ichor-filled chambers, their bodies partially entombed within the breeding grounds' viscous walls. Slaad brood mothers implant embryos in these unfortunate hosts in a foul process that quickly drives them to madness. The gestation period ends after a few days with the host's merciful death, after which a clutch of newborn slaad tadpoles burrow out from the unfortunate victim's skull.

Urae-Naas appears as a bloated slaad, too obese to use her legs. She drags herself through her realm's slime-encrusted tunnels by digging her sizable claws into their fleshy walls, her elongated tongue dangling freely to nearly scrape along the ground.

Shedaklah

Glistening molds and slime-striated fungi drip with putrescence and filth

SHEDAKLAH TRAITS

Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: A fungal, slime-covered garden stretching four hundred miles across; bounded.
Gravity: Normal.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)
Corruption: Attacks that have the disease or poison keyword gain a +1 bonus to the attack roll. Healing powers restore only half as many hit points as normal.

Situated between two sluggish branches of the Blood River, the 222nd layer of Shedaklah is a bubbling morass of oozing, fetid sludge. Here and there, a low hillock or fungal forest rises from this plain of caustic slime. A thin film of moisture covers everything on Shedaklah, while an overcast sky of mud-brown and rotten-green clouds casts the layer in a pallid gloom. Every few hours, a pregnant cloud bursts, spilling torrential rains of filth.

E. M. GIST

Shedaklah is the contested abyssal domain of the demon lords Zuggtmoy, Queen of Fungi, and Juiblex, the Faceless One. All manner of plant and fungal creatures dwell on the surface (a realm known locally as Mycorji), paying honor to Zuggtmoy as they endlessly feed on each other. Creatures of slime born of Juiblex infest the unnamed deeper reaches of this layer, their numbers so great that they form a subterranean sea.

Slugbed

Dreams come to die here, consumed by darkness, apathy, and utter somnolence

SLUGBED TRAITS

Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: A temperate region of fog-shrouded forests and shallow seas approximately seven hundred miles across; bounded.
Gravity: Normal.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)
Dense Fog: These mist-covered lands are heavily obscured. Stealth checks gain a +2 circumstance bonus.
Utter Darkness: All light sources (including magical illumination) are quenched within ten miles of Lupercio.

An expanse of arboreal forests, subterranean vaults, and shallow seas, Slugbed teems with fiendish gastropods. Lupercio, Baron of Sloth, is lord of this 128th layer of the Abyss. His long periods of total indolence and complete apathy toward the creatures around him preclude any true idolatry among the layer's inhabitants.

The fog-shrouded surface of this layer is dimly illuminated by a faintly glowing sky except in the dung-filled riverbeds where Lupercio sleeps. There, the darkness of his body extinguishes all illumination for ten miles. With no light to reveal his amorphous ebon-colored form, few can say what the demon lord's true appearance is. When the Baron of Sloth stirs from somnolence, his movements are ardent and manic, triggering powerful tremors in his wake. Shadow demons (see Manual of the Planes, page 122) flit around Lupercio's form, feeding on his limitless shadows.

On the rare days when the feeble sun burns through Slugbed's thick fog, the sky overhead reveals dazzling radiant clouds, some adorned by majestic castles swarming with angelic beings. It is speculated that these immortal creatures are attempting the impossible task of converting Slugbed into a bastion of goodness and light, while Lupercio sleeps unknowing and uncaring in the filth below.

Soulfreeze

Unimaginable, mind-numbing cold, where even thoughts and emotions freeze

SOULFREEZE TRAITS

Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: A glacier two hundred miles across; bounded.
Gravity: Normal.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)
Cold Affinity: Attacks that have the cold keyword gain a +1 bonus to the attack roll.
True Cold: A creature that starts its turn in the bitter cold of Soulfreeze takes 1d6 cold damage.

The 566th layer of the Abyss is a vast expanse of ice and snow choked by a cold so bitter that few living creatures can withstand it. Soulfreeze is predominately a permafrost landscape slowly being consumed by an encroaching ice sheet. Originating in the Elemental Chaos, this glacial mass is the creation of Aseroth the Winter Warlock, an elemental prince of evil turned demon lord. Aseroth rules Soulfreeze from the icy domain known as the Crystal Caverns, a deep fissure cleft from the ice sheet. Remorhazes (see Monster Manual, page 176), ice archons (see Monster Manual, pages 20–21), and demons all serve here.

Beyond the obvious dangers inherent in a land of utter cold, travelers to Soulfreeze must deal with this realm's unique malevolence. So cold and malign is this layer that a creature's thoughts and emotions can freeze, drawn out of heart and mind to drift as ice crystals on the bitter wind.

Torremor

A malevolent aerie of depraved deformity

TORREMOR TRAITS

Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: An immense void littered with tangled webs of debris, six hundred miles across; recursive.
Gravity: Elemental buoyancy.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)
Air Affinity: A flying creature gains a +2 bonus to its fly speed.

The 503rd layer of Torremor is a tangled nest of beams and perches, rooks and pinnacles, bridges and arches, all connected by writhing ropes and jangling chains. Though it floats in an endless void, the enormous structure is solid enough. Creatures can walk along its surfaces with ease; those knocked from its perches fall to their eventual deaths, broken and shattered on the bridges and pinnacles below. Streams of water and waste pour from the more stable sections of the realm, drying to dust or drifting away as clouds.

The lord of Torremor is the vile and hateful Lamashtu, Demon Queen of Monstrous Births. She rules from the prison known as Onstrakker's Nest, a striking edifice of timber, bones, earth, and stone pillars hundreds of miles in diameter. Her former consort Pazuzu bound her here, when Torremor was that demon lord's demesne. Though she has long since taken control of the layer, Lamashtu remains impaled on the gleaming spire with which Pazuzu held her fast.

Torremor swarms with bizarre demon hybrids not seen elsewhere in the Abyss, and serves as a kind of shrine for flesh cultists seeking demonic or monstrous grafts. Worldly visitors cluster within the few solid structures that dot the realm.

Writhing Realm

Sprawling tunnels filled with a rank, writhing darkness

WRITHING REALM TRAITS

Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: Subterranean realm of winding tunnels one hundred miles in length; bounded.
Gravity: Normal.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)
Earth Affinity: Burrowing creatures gain a +2 bonus to their burrow speed.

Untold miles of spiraling subterranean corridors create the Writhing Realm of Ugudenk, the Squirming King. So extensive and frequent are Ugudenk's excavations that this 177th layer of the Abyss has collapsed in on itself many times, entombing his servants and followers. Ugudenk was unleashed on the Abyss following a brief tryst between Zuggtmoy and the primordial Torog, the King that Crawls. Drawn by his father's power, Ugudenk has designs on establishing a permanent gate between the Underdark of the mortal world and his Writhing Realm in the Abyss.

In recent centuries, the Demon Lord of Worms and Hungry Parasites has taken to burrowing into neighboring abyssal layers along the route followed by the Blood Rift. This is dangerous for Ugudenk, for each time he breaches the rock walls of the rift, he risks severing his realm's connection with the Abyss. Despite the peril, Ugudenk has managed to carve away and infest a small corner of Hollow's Heart, 176th layer of the Abyss and the realm of the demon lord Fraz-Urb'luu.

Zionyn

A wasteland inundated with a discordant drone of deafening, maddening sound

ZIONYN TRAITS

Type: Abyssal layer.
Size and Shape: Vermin-infested badlands abutting vast oceans of thick resin, two thousand miles across; bounded.
Gravity: Normal.
Mutability: Abyssal mutability. (Demon lords and other powers are able to influence their surroundings.)
Corruption: Attacks that have the disease or poison keyword gain a +1 bonus to the attack roll. Healing powers restore only half as many hit points as normal.
Maddening Discordance: Attacks that have the thunder or psychic keyword gain a +2 bonus to the attack roll.

Zionyn is the 663rd layer of the Abyss—domain of the ancient obyrith lord Obox-ob, the first to claim the title Prince of Demons. Slain by the treachery of the Queen of Chaos (page 8), Obox-ob was later reborn by the will of the Abyss. With his power stripped from him, he now languishes in fetid Zionyn. Reduced to a mere Prince of Vermin, the once-great demon lord dreams of slaying Demogorgon, reclaiming his title, and purging the Abyss of its current masters.

The seas of Zionyn are a putrid sludge that the insectoid demons serving as Obox-ob's debased aristocracy use in the construction of enormously complex hive cities. Mortal victims are dipped into this reeking miasma, which petrifies them at the exact moment of suffocation. Such victims become unique sculptures of death—corpse-pillars from which the great towers and cathedrals honoring the Prince of Vermin are built.

WAYNE REYNOLDS

The collective of anarchists known as the Doomguard (see Manual of the Planes) believe that the universe trudges inexorably toward oblivion, and that the holes in the cosmos made by portals are largely to blame. The Doomguard foretells a time when portals become so numerous that reality rips apart like moth-eaten fabric, allowing the Abyss to reach through and devour all creation. Sages and planar travelers almost universally dismiss the Doomguard as a gathering of reactionary nihilists or dupes of Oublivae (page 130). But even the most skeptical sages acknowledge one dark fact: The Abyss is hungry.

Demon Holes

Most abyssal portals are demon holes: temporary, two-dimensional openings in space that manifest under specific conditions. Any number of horrors, such as a living sacrifice, a demonic ritual, or the reawakening of an ancient evil, can open an entry into the Abyss.

A viewer gazing into a demon hole beholds the blasted vista of the Abyss and is likely to see demons slaughtering one another or laying waste to their surroundings. The entrance to a demon hole is flat, and exists on only one side. As the viewer moves around the portal, the view of the abyssal landscape fades and vanishes. A demon hole cannot be interacted with or seen from behind, although it creates a vague shimmering in the empty air.

Dimensional Passageways

If demon holes are the jaws of the Abyss, dimensional passageways are its barbed tongues, constantly probing for prey. Dimensional passageways have protracted entrances that stretch along routes of travel, making transitions from the world to the Abyss nearly impossible to detect over the minutes, hours, or days it takes to make them. Dimensional passageways are usually one-way, so that by the time creatures realize where they have wandered, they find it impossible to return. Proceed too far into its grasp, and the Abyss claims its prey.

Dimensional passageways are often found within demonic temples, where labyrinthine halls lead in directions that make no sense in the normal world. A wrong turn can leave a traveler on the wrong side of a wall of blood rock (see Dungeon Master's Guide, page 67), cut off from the mortal world and trapped in the Abyss. In areas of the natural world tainted by abyssal magic, a dimensional passageway might be found along a verdant river that becomes progressively wasted and more desolate, finally gushing as a ruddy torrent into the Blood Rift.

Demongates

Framed with decorated reliefs of leering demons, arcane hieroglyphs, and runes carved by races long extinct, demongates (see Manual of the Planes, page 65) are permanent, two-way access points to the Abyss. Retaining their power even when apparently destroyed, demongates typically resemble huge demonic mouths that feature jagged teeth set beneath luminous eyes. In the mortal realm, they stand in demon temples, dark citadels, and the domains of powerful evil beings. Many demongates connect to the Abyss through the Plain of a Thousand Portals.

An open demongate is a harbinger of apocalypse. When demons pour forth from the mouth of a demongate, they lay waste to everything in their sight. Local realms and the wider world teeter on the brink of the Abyss during such invasions, causing enemies to set aside their differences to fight this common foe.

When demons are driven back, heroes can close a demongate off from the world, sealing the site with magic and assigning it protective wards or guardians. Demongates have been encased in stone, buried beneath mountains, and placed within monuments designed to warn of their dangers. Long after a demongate is sealed away and forgotten by mortal folk, however, the memory and will of the Abyss lingers where it once stood. A demongate lasts forever, even if its entire physical structure is reduced to dust. It lurks unseen on the boundary between worlds, whispering for willing creatures to find its resting place and awaken it once more.

The Whispering Abyss

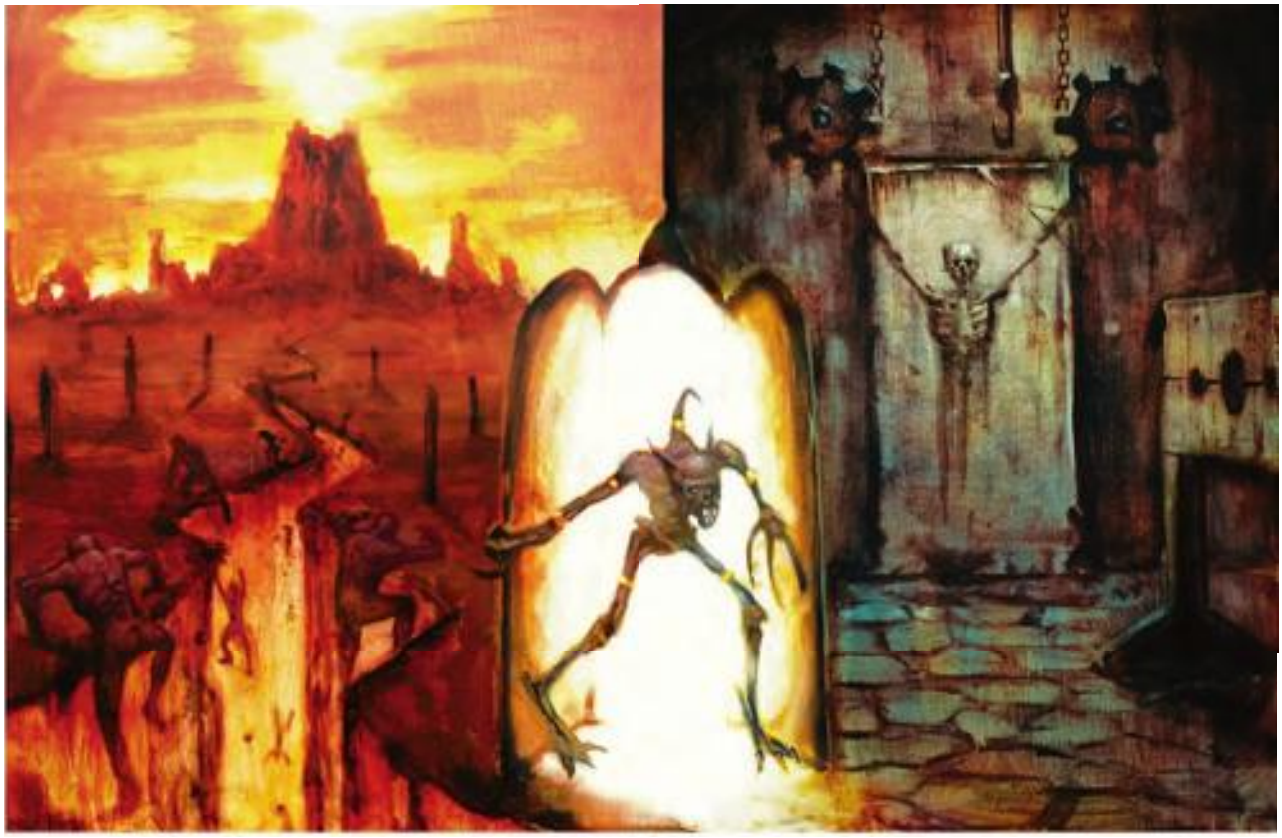
When a portal to the Abyss opens, the voice of that dark realm whispers from it. Calling to creatures in their hearts, souls, and subconscious minds, the song a portal sings is the same as the one sung to all demonkind: Destruction. Subjugation. Power.

The Abyss targets minds susceptible to its taint, focusing on the miserable, the weak, and the misbegotten as it promises an escape from worldly woes. The Abyss validates the wretched existence and secret desires of such creatures. It offers instant gratification for deviant fetishes and relief from long-term suffering. And above all else, it orders creatures that hear its song to kill.

Humanoids raised in even the most anarchic societies lack the destructive instincts of demonkind. As a result, mortals that heed the Abyss's call are less likely to engage in open bloodshed as they are to plot their kills. Channeling their dark compulsions, they carefully stalk their quarry, calculating the best time to strike so as to minimize the risk of discovery.



Such creatures quickly become addicted to the euphoria of power and control that consumes them as a victim breathes its last. The most notorious mass murderers and serial killers of the mortal realm are thought to have been inspired by the whispering voice of the Abyss. The only reward such creatures receive for their service is demonic possession or death.

Abyssal Portal Encounters

A heroic battle in front of a demongate or on the brink of a dimensional passageway makes a fantastic conclusion to adventures in which characters combat demons and evil cultists. As long as a portal stands open, it might draw creatures toward its maw and incite the most heroic characters to perform random acts of violence.

This hazard can be scaled to the level of any adventuring party. The remainder of this section discusses layer-specific effects for portals, as well as advice for customizing portals.

Abyssal Portal Obstacle
Hazard XP by level

A portal to the Abyss whispers in your mind, drawing you forward as it compels you to revel in chaos and murder.

Hazard: The abyssal portal is a demon hole or part of a demongate or a dimensional passageway. The DM determines its size. The abyssal portal does not provide cover or block movement.

Perception

✦ DC 10 + one-half the abyssal portal's level: The character notices the presence of the portal, as determined by the DM. Demongates and demon holes might require no Perception check. A dimensional passageway might not be noticed with a Perception check.

Additional Skill: Insight

✦ DC 15 + one-half the abyssal portal's level: An unknown evil taints this area, whispering of murder as it calls for you to approach.

Trigger

When any creature moves within 5 squares of the abyssal portal, the hazard attacks.

Attack

Opportunity Action Ranged 5
Target: The triggering creature
Attack: The abyssal portal's level + 4 vs. Will
Hit: The target makes a melee basic or ranged attack as a free action, targeting a random creature determined by the DM.
Aftereffect: The abyssal portal pulls the target 2 squares.
Special: If the target is pulled into the abyssal portal, it leaves the plane the portal is on and enters the Abyss. The target's location in the Abyss and any option to return depend on the nature of the abyssal portal, as determined by the DM.

Countermeasures

✦ As a minor action, a creature can make a Charisma check (DC 15 + one-half the abyssal portal's level) to ignore the hazard's effect until the start of the creature's next turn.
✦ If a creature closes the abyssal portal, the abyssal portal cannot attack. The process for closing an abyssal portal varies, but it typically involves a ritual and a skill challenge (see below).

E. M. GIST

Closing an Abyssal Portal

When the fate of worlds hangs in the balance, the stoutest hearts must make the greatest sacrifices. Heroes venture into vile dungeons and dark temples, overcoming nearly impossible odds to banish demons to the Abyss and close the portals through which they entered the world.

Like demons, abyssal portals have a never-ending hunger for blood and souls. Also like demons, an abyssal portal's hunger can be cowed by power greater than its own. To manifest that power, the characters must first procure a specific ritual. The rituals to close demon holes and dimensional passageways are typically discovered through research or ancient lore. A ritual to close a demongate can often be found in a cultist's ritual book or as runes inscribed on the portal's frame.

The characters must work to assert their collective will over a portal. This takes the form of a skill challenge undertaken during a battle against the portal's guardians (or the demons pouring through it), and complicated by the hazard that the portal presents (see "Abyssal Portal Encounters," above).

This skill challenge assumes that the characters have already determined the ritual necessary to close the portal.

Level: By party level.
Complexity: 2 (requires 6 successes before 3 failures).
Primary Skills: Arcana, Heal, Intimidate, Religion.

Arcana (moderate DC by level, standard action): The character executes the rite of closing. The character must be within 3 squares of the portal to make this check.

Heal (easy DC by level, standard action): The character distracts the portal by the gift of his or her life force. Whether this check is a success or a failure, the character loses two healing surges. The character must be adjacent to the portal to make this check.

Intimidate (hard DC by level, standard action): Using the strength of his or her personality, the character commands the portal to close. The party can gain a success with this check only after 5 successes have been accrued in this challenge.

Religion (hard DC by level, standard action): The character calls for divine aid to speed the rite. If the character fails, the portal flares and deals 10 damage per tier to each nondemon within 5 squares of it. The character must be within 3 squares of the portal to make this check. This skill can be used to gain 2 successes in this challenge.

Secondary Skills: Endurance, History.

Endurance (moderate DC by level, standard action): The character shields one ally adjacent to the character from the chaos beyond the portal. If that ally fails his or her next Arcana or Heal check in the challenge, the ally can reroll the check. If the ally fails his or her next Religion check in the challenge, the portal does not flare and deals no damage.

History (moderate DC by level, standard action): The character recalls ancient lore describing the closure of a similar portal. The next three Arcana, Heal, or Religion checks made in the challenge each gains a +2 bonus. A failure on this History check counts as a failure for the challenge.

Success: If the characters achieve 6 successes, this portal will no longer threaten the world, at least for a while.

Trapped in the Abyss

Many abyssal portals work in one direction only. Many are the heroes who have chased demons into the Abyss, only to realize that the demongate through which they passed does not exist on the other side—a discovery that is often their last. The Abyss hungers for souls, but it does not readily relinquish the creatures it swallows. Characters who seek to escape the Abyss have three different options.

Portals: Finding a return portal is the best means of escape from the Abyss. Portals can be found in almost every abyssal layer. However, most of those portals transport travelers only to other layers. The Plain of a Thousand Portals (page 44) contains the most portals to the world and the planes. Both temporary demon holes and permanent demongates can be found in that layer's ancient fortresses and endless pits. Locating such a portal requires stranded travelers to first reach Pazunia, then brave swarms of winged demons as they search its wasted desert landscape for a return portal.

Demonic Servitude: The mightiest demons might have the power to open a demon hole that can transport wayward adventurers home, and they are willing to do so for a price. A demon takes the precaution of creating a demonic compact to cover any services rendered. If the characters fail to uphold their end of such a bargain, the contract's severance clause takes effect—and is neither pleasant nor merciful.

Physical Transport: Escaping the Abyss by traveling across its boundary with the Elemental Chaos is neither easy nor quick. However, adventurers trapped in the Abyss can easily track down adventurers, traders, and other planar travelers in both Azzagrat (page 58) and the Blood Rift city of Morglon-Daar (page 52). Planar dromonds and spelljammers ply the dangerous frontier with the Elemental Chaos, and can return characters to the world beyond. The adventurers and traders who routinely come to the Abyss are seldom trustworthy, nor are they inclined to trust anyone they meet there. Many have already been betrayed by so-called stranded travelers, and it can take a significant show of faith—or a more significant display of wealth—to convince them to take on passengers.

Failure: If the characters obtain 3 failures, the portal remains open and a force of demons is drawn through it to the party's location. The demons are an encounter group of a level equal to the party's level + 1. The skill challenge can be attempted again.

Special: Once a portal is closed (or, in the case of a demongate, neutralized for a time), it can be sealed using the ritual the characters have already determined is necessary.

Portals to Specific Layers

Where gateways to the Abyss stand open in the mortal realm, the natural world warps in response to their evil. For miles around a newly opened portal, the environment gradually adopts characteristics of the abyssal layer to which the portal connects. Trees wither and twist, or begin to shriek where they claw the ground. Animals savage their masters, wells turn poisonous with black ichor, meek villagers become murderers, and evil omens abound.

A portal might introduce new creatures to its environment, create hazardous terrain connected to its destination layer, or impose specific effects as described below. When using a portal hazard (see "Abyssal Portal Encounters," page 83) to represent a portal to a specific abyssal layer, modify the hazard's effects according to the nature of the layer the portal connects to.

Abysm

Sailors lost at sea rejoice at the sight of a tropical island where they can find food and fresh water. But soon enough, a trek through the island's primeval jungle leads them to a realm where they fall prey to enormous reptiles and bloodthirsty humanoid lizard cultists. Characters who manage to avoid being permanently trapped beyond this dimensional passageway to Abysm (page 68) flee screaming to their vessel, content to risk starvation rather than face the island's horrors. The waters around the ship then come alive with tentacles, and a sea kraken (see Monster Manual 3, page 122) from the Shadowsea ensures that the sailors' tale of horror never leaves these shores.

Customizing Portals

A portal to the Abyss presents unique battle terrain and creates new environments for characters to explore. Ask yourself what mood you want to convey, and try to visualize how a horror movie or a novel might portray your idea. What scent is in the air? Do strange sounds play through the vicinity, or does an uncanny silence pervade? Write down three physical changes occurring in the land near the portal, then feed that information to the characters bit by bit as they approach it. The more specific the details, the more vivid you can make the encounter.

Azzagrat

Forest dwellers dread the wind that hisses around a portal to Rauwend in Azzagrat (page 58). Thick growths of ropy vines sprout from the boughs of trees nearest to the portal, forming a tangled web so thick it blots out daylight and shrouds the forest floor in deep gloom. Within this arboreal twilight, such vines constrict even the strongest trees, strangling all growth. In the end, clusters of snakelike branches burst from their pulpy sinews, transforming these woods into a writhing stand of viper trees (page 60).

The Barrens

Portals to the Barrens (page 72) appear within the hazy ruins of a city on a site where no settlement ever stood. Ghosts terrorize the countryside around this phantom city, and the cannibal folk of races lost to history drag mortals into the ruins. This ghost city typically appears for only a day. When it vanishes, it takes any creatures trapped within or exploring it back to the 100th layer of the Abyss.

The Blood Rift

A shadow falls over the sun as an eerie chittering echoes over the land. Nearby, a black void opens up in the empty air. A cacophony of demonic voices echoes from its darkness, hypnotizing any who hear it and pulling them slowly forward. Creatures caught up in the song of the Blood Rift (page 50) are dazed by it and are unable to defend themselves as they march toward their doom.

The Dreaming Gulf

An abyssal focus—typically a magic item, an artifact, or a possessed object—causes sleeping creatures to open portals to the mysterious Dreaming Gulf, the 230th layer of the Abyss, through their dreams. Dreamers within the vicinity of such an object might be wounded or killed in their dreams, their bodies showing the marks of struggles they will already have forgotten when they wake.

Those whose dreams do not pull them immediately into the Dreaming Gulf are stalked by demons as they dream, tormenting them over long nights. In the end, these dreamers' souls are dragged through the dream portal to the Abyss, their bodies vanishing from the world. Because the portal to the Dreaming Gulf exists only within the dreamer's mind, characters must magically enter the dream to destroy the portal, or must destroy the physical focus that caused the portal to manifest.

The Iron Wastes

Portals to the Iron Wastes (page 64) bring blasts of snow and ice to the lands surrounding them. Even in summer, the areas around such portals are unseasonably cold, experiencing snowfall and hail when neighboring lands have only rain. A portal to the Iron Wastes deals 20 cold damage per tier to any creature stepping through it.

Molor

Muck and slime burble from sewers and swamps near open portals to Molor, the Stinking Realm (see The Plane Below: Secrets of the Elemental Chaos, page 120). The proximity of the realm of the demon lord Juiblex causes swamps to eat away at roads and forests, turning the land surrounding an open portal into a foul marsh filled with fungi and stinking ooze.

A sticky slime fills all squares within 2 squares of a portal to Molor. When any living creature moves within 10 squares of the portal, the slime animates, expanding outward at a rate of 2 squares per round on initiative count 0. The slime can extend no farther than 10 squares from the portal. The area of the slime is difficult terrain. In addition, a creature that starts its turn within the slime is slowed until the end of its next turn.

Thanatos

Portals to Orcus's realm of Thanatos (see Manual of the Planes, page 82) might overlay the doors of mausoleums or stand among oddly arranged headstones. When a portal to Thanatos opens, the skies darken and the weather turns cold. The shades of folk that died in the surrounding lands reappear to wreak havoc, then vanish. The earth boils beneath cemeteries, churned by the dead. Within 10 squares of such a portal, a creature that dies rises on its next turn as a mindless corporeal undead of a type of the DM's choice. The undead creature attacks the nearest living target.

Door Guardians and Nabassus

Nabassu demons (page 128) have the unique ability to use the exterior doors of structures in the world as portals out of the Abyss. From vantage points across the Plain of a Thousand Portals, these demons are able to observe and infiltrate the world.

In the Abyss, nabassu demons gaze into the shadows of ancient pits or through the keyholes of doors in iron fortresses abandoned in the aftermath of the Blood War. From these vantage points, they spy on mortals dwelling within the fabricated structures of the world beyond. When a mortal commits an evil act, a nabassu witnessing the act can try to access the structure's door.

The legends of various mortal races tell that when the Abyss was formed, elemental spirits fearing the rise of demonkind found safety in the structures built by the creatures of the world. Every site with four walls and at least one door has such a guardian.

If the mortals that dwell within a structure have noble hearts and pure spirits, the door guardian can keep the nabassu from crossing into the world. Structures abandoned by their residents or corrupted by evil acts weaken these door guardians, thinning the planar boundaries between the Abyss and the world. If the planar boundary is thin enough—and the door guardian is weak enough—the demon breaks through the door and enslaves the door guardian.

Whether or not the myth of door guardians is true, it is known that nabassus can enter the mortal realm more easily than most other types of demons. Once a nabassu enters a structure, the demon works quickly to convert the structure's door into a permanent portal, setting the stage for invasion.

DEMONIC TEMPLES

Within the ruins of primitive civilizations, savage humanoids perform unspeakable acts in reverence to demons they worship as gods. In towns and cities across civilized lands, secret cults pay fealty to demon lords, plotting to unleash a tide of bloodshed and violence against the world.

Sites and Locations

With few exceptions, the temples of demon worshipers exist in secret places. Demonic temples are found perched on treacherous cliff tops, in volcanic craters, in swamps of quicksand, and in poisonous jungles. Ancient ruins and remote caverns are home to these dark cults, but so too are the lightless dungeons and hidden cellars of humanoid fortresses and cities.

Demon worshipers infiltrate the towns and cities of civilized races, establishing their dark shrines in scholarly academies, nobles' villas, and temples to other deities. By the light of day, the faithful play their expected roles and perform their social duties. But when darkness falls, secret cabals within these institutions unlock hidden doors and embrace their secret masters' dark rites.

The entrances to demonic temples are hidden and are usually well guarded. More so than almost any other creature, demons inspire a fear so sharp that their temples are destroyed with extreme prejudice wherever they are found. Demon worshipers in the world must be as cunning and subtle as their masters are blatantly brutal, biding their time until they have consolidated their power. Only when bolstered with demonic might (typically in the form of a demon summoned and bound to service) do such cults reveal themselves, most often in a frenzy of bloodshed.

Structure and Setup

In civilized lands, demonic temples can be hidden rooms beneath the smallest buildings, widespread subterranean complexes, or tiny closets concealing extradimensional sanctuaries. Away from civilization, demonic temples can take any form, from pristine shrines to bleak, skeletal ruins.

On the outside, demonic temples seldom resemble the magnificent holy edifices dedicated to deities. Only in cultures where demon worship is the rule are demonic temples constructed in the open. Distorted reflections of the grandest edifices of the gods, these rare structures resemble great dark cathedrals, carved throughout with reliefs depicting rampaging demons, human sacrifice, and the horrors of the Abyss. Such temples rise higher than any other structure in the vicinity, their demon lords taking every opportunity to demonstrate their power.

Despite such extreme variations in location and appearance, demonic temples share numerous common features. The center of a demonic temple is a sacrificial altar, typically scribed in profane glyphs and stained red-black by the blood of victims. Demonic idols and macabre sculptures line the walls of most temples, as do bas reliefs depicting debauchery and bloodshed.

Many demonic temples are protected by guardian creatures whose lairs are central to the temples' design. The inner sanctum of a temple's leader is typically close by, as are prison cells, pits, and torture chambers. Special chambers set with summoning and binding circles are used by the ritualists to call demons to the material world. The most powerful temples feature permanent portals to and from the Abyss.

Ritual knives, unholy scrolls, and specially crafted candelabra, cauldrons, and braziers can serve as focus elements in demon worship and for powerful demonic rituals. Although such items might seem mere decoration, the potency of abyssal magic is strengthened by these relics, which absorb demonic power over time.

See "The Mouth of Demogorgon" delve (page 94) for an example of a hidden demonic sanctuary.

Demonic Cults

Despite the common belief to the contrary, most demon worshipers are not insane, nor do they seek out the worship of fiends in the name of simple amorality. Power is first and foremost the currency of demon worship. Folk that freely follow this path are typically offered an opportunity for power that they take advantage of, hoping to rise from obscurity or misfortune. Some demon worshipers feel slighted by the injustice of the world—often as shown by the gulf between their power and their ambitions. Others want to cast off the yolk of oppression forced on them by governments or religious orders. Magically cursed or physically deformed folk, spurned by their cultures, trade their loyalty to demonic cults for acceptance and a sense of purpose.

Although vast numbers of unwitting followers can be tricked into demon worship by charismatic cult leaders, a great many cultists follow demons by choice. Such cultists worship as they do to gain a place of power and strength. They accept the risks that come with that power, choosing brief, hedonistic lives over a long, dull existence beneath the heavy hand of authority. In a dark world dominated by violence and monsters, life is uncertain, and the only constant is that the strongest monsters most often win. For some folk, demon worship is an admission of the inevitability of that reality, and of the hope that one might attain a measure of power before the end.

Demonic Delve: The Wasting Tower

A delve for five 20th-level adventurers

The ancient tower of Khin-Oin rises to impossible heights, stretching twenty miles up the gloomy depths of the Blood Rift to loom a full mile above the Plain of a Thousand Portals. The realm of the demon lord Phraxas (page 134) and his followers, Khin-Oin and its inhabitants are dangerous, unpredictable, and thoroughly evil.

Background

Arcana DC 30: It is said that no one but the lord of Khin-Oin knows the name of the primordial whose dead bones make up the tower. Some sages believe that knowledge of the name is the key to controlling Khin-Oin's power.

See "Lore" (page 134) for more information.

Religion DC 25: Phraxas rules from the Siege Malicious, a gargantuan artifact-throne set at the tower's summit. Any creature that can mount an assault on the tower, fighting to the top past its demon defenders, can challenge the current lord. The victor of such a battle masters the power of the Siege Malicious and assumes control of the mighty fortress. However, the great throne is possessed of fell magic, and corrupts whoever sits upon it.

Streetwise DC 20: Phraxas's present rule over Khin-Oin has lasted only a century. But the demon lord has been master of the tower before, and has ruled Khin-Oin for a total of three thousand years.

Hook: Shemeshka's Offer

The adventurers are passing through Sigil, the City of Doors, on their way to the Abyss. Gathering intelligence in preparation for their journey, they learn of Shemeshka the Marauder—a capricious raavasta known as one of the most influential power brokers in the city. If the characters do not elect to consult her, Shemeshka learns of their plans through her network of spies and informants and approaches them, instead.

More information on Sigil, Shemeshka, and A'kin the Friendly Fiend (who appears later in the delve) can be found in Dungeon Master's Guide 2 (see "Sigil, the City of Doors," page 186).

Shemeshka offers to provide tactical intelligence about the denizens and hazards of the Abyss. She also offers to fully fund their expeditions throughout the planes. In exchange for her support, the characters need only to agree to retrieve a minor trinket from Khin-Oin—the torc of Bin A'kin.

Shemeshka gives the adventurers a magic talisman forged of abyssal iron, which can be presented to the guards of the Wasting Tower to gain entrance. Once they enter Khin-Oin, they are to seek out a high-ranking priest—the Archdegog Kaugothirn. He knows where the torc can be found, and is expecting a delegation from Shemeshka to collect it. Shemeshka's reputation has earned her Phraxas's enmity, and neither she nor her servants are welcome in Khin-Oin. Only Kaugothirn knows of the heroes' link to the raavasta.

Any Insight check tells the adventurers that Shemeshka is on the level. Likewise, any Arcana check reveals that the talisman contains powerful protective magic. But the wily raavasta is a consummate liar, and she is setting the party up to take the fall for plots of her own.

Approaching Khin-Oin

Beneath the apex of the Wasting Tower, Pazunia is a dead, blighted region of putrescence and despair. The bone walls of Khin-Oin sway in the howling winds of the Plain of a Thousand Portals. Lesser towers, both those attached to the main structure and those that float alongside it with the help of powerful magic, twist around the bleached walls of Khin-Oin.

Khin-Oin clings to the rock face of the Blood Rift as it descends twenty miles toward the distant city of Morglon-Daar. The Blood River flows through and within the tower in more than one spot. Magically warded grates are set at the river's entry and exit points to regulate river traffic and to trap the detritus and bodies swept along in that foul flow.

The chambers and levels of Khin-Oin seem to have no end. Spawning vats, magic laboratories, meditation chambers, orreries, map rooms detailing the Abyss and other planes—all of these and more can be found here. Dedicated explorers could spend years simply walking through the twisting passages of Khin-Oin. Learning the Wasting Tower's secrets might take centuries.

As the characters approach Khin-Oin across the Plain of a Thousand Portals, read:

Framed by the black scar of the Blood Rift, Khin-Oin stretches impossibly high into the vermillion sky. The imposing edifice has the shape of the twisted spine of a long-dead colossus. Legions of demons swarm around the apex of the Wasting Tower, driven into formation by leaders whose shrieked commands can be heard at a distance.

The sight of the tower is disturbing enough, but your gaze begins to inspire dark thoughts. An unnamed fear lurks beneath your conscious mind, twisted through with strange sensations of pleasure and pain. Without knowing how, you understand that these are the thoughts of Khin-Oin's mysterious master, whose presence shrouds the structure like an unseen cloud.

1: Pazunia Gatekeep

At ground level, curtain walls set with great barbicans defend the upper entrances into Khin-Oin. Legions of mezzodemons drill in the fields outside the tower, attacking creatures that cannot present proper credentials and evidence of legitimate business within the tower.

Adventurers presenting Shemeshka's talisman are turned away by the sentinels but are not attacked. They are instructed to present the token to the Priory of Rot at the Anchor of Khin-Oin, twenty miles below in the city of Morglon-Daar. Transport by way of ferryboat is available nearby, at the banks of the Blood River, along the rift's edge.

2: The Anchor of Khin-Oin

The Anchor marks the lowest point of Khin-Oin's winding descent down the Blood Rift. Here, the base of the tower's spine is plated in abyssal iron, its pilings driven deep into the rift wall. The Anchor and the segments above constitute the domain of the Priory of Rot (see "Power Groups," page 54).

Ultrodemon guards (see Monster Manual 3, page 47) watch over the numerous entrances into the Anchor. Adventurers bearing Shemeshka's talisman are granted entrance and are given free access to Khin-Oin's winding corridors. The talisman is taken by the guards, but the characters are given a receipt token allowing them safe passage within the tower.

The characters can ask the guards for directions to Archdegog Kaugothirn in the priory confessional. This delve can be expanded by adding a skill challenge to find the archdegog. Failures in the challenge incur additional combat encounters with roving bands of mercenary demon guards, but such combat attracts no attention in Khin-Oin's chaotic halls.

3: Priory Confessional

The Priory Confessional is a torture chamber, in which interrogations are undertaken on behalf of the Priory of Rot. Every conceivable implement of pain to be found in the world or across the planes is here, including tools of coercion designed to break the mind and spirit as well as the body.

Tactical Encounter: "Unhallowed Benediction," page 90.

4: Debate Hall

In this hall, the elite demons of Khin-Oin settle conflicts and set their vile agendas before their peers. Such debates typically end in murderous violence as the different demonic factions within the Wasting Tower jockey for power and influence.

Tactical Encounter: "Shemeshka the False," page 92.

UNHALLOWED BENEDICTION

Encounter Level varies (see "Experience")

Setup

Archdegog Kaugothirn (A)
5 mezzodemon sycophants (S)

The torture chamber has two sections: an upper observation deck and the lower confessional.

When the characters first approach the door to the torture chamber, read:

A shriek of pain echoes from beyond the door, followed by whimpering. From beneath the door, a strange glow pulses white, then black, then purple.

Perception Check
DC 20: The words "Priory Confessional" are faintly etched on the worn door in rough Abyssal runes.

Archdegog Kaugothirn is in the process of interrogating his latest subject, a deva being tortured to death.

When the adventurers enter the chamber, read:

The scent of fresh blood hits hard as the door opens. At the bottom of a flight of stairs, a mortally wounded deva hangs in chains. Blood pools on the floor, shifting of its own accord to take the shape of arcane runes. A hooded figure watches the process intently, taking notes with a stylus. He turns at your entrance. Five mezzodemon guards stand at various places in the chamber.

"Ah, yes." The voice drips with venom. "Shemeshka's playthings have arrived."

The characters are expecting a negotiation, but Kaugothirn attacks at once. See "Development" below for details.

The deva is unconscious. Although the characters can restore her to health in the aftermath of combat, she cannot aid the adventurers during the fight.

Experience

The baseline experience for Kaugothirn and the five mezzodemon sycophants provides a level 18 encounter. The level increases depending on how many sycophants are summoned by the blood pentacle (see "Features of the Area"). Award full XP for any summoned creatures slain by the characters.

5 Mezzodemon Sycophants (S) — Level 18 Minion Soldier (Leader)
Medium elemental humanoid (demon) — XP 500 each

HP 1; a missed attack never damages a minion. — Initiative +17

Standard Actions

⊕ Trident (weapon) ✦ At-Will
Attack: Melee 2 (one creature); +25 vs. AC
Hit: 10 damage.

Triggered Actions

Essence Transference
Trigger: The mezzodemon sycophant drops to 0 hit points.
Effect (No Action): The nearest nonminion demon within 5 squares of the sycophant gains 20 temporary hit points.

Variable Resistance ✦ 2/Encounter
Trigger: The mezzodemon takes acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder damage.
Effect (Free Action): The mezzodemon gains resist 10 to the triggering damage type until the end of the encounter or until it uses variable resistance again.

Tactics

Archdegog Kaugothirn opens with fiery rays and treacherous gaze against targets on the stairs, forcing a dominated creature to move and fall from the observation deck. He then pairs hypnotic gaze or treacherous gaze with fiery rays. If the characters close, Kaugothirn uses longsword as he calls his minions to him, using demonic authority to grant them extra attacks.

The mezzodemon sycophants spread out to avoid area attacks, but they stay within 5 squares of Kaugothirn to bestow essence transference on him when they fall.

The archdegog remains in the torture chamber unless the characters successfully disable the blood pentacle (see "Features of the Area"). At that point, Kaugothirn commands his remaining sycophants to delay the characters as he makes his escape through one of the side rooms.

Development

Kaugothirn is in the pay of Shemeshka, and he has been ordered to destroy the heroes now that their part in her plan is done. Though the characters do not know it yet, Shemeshka's only goal was to have them bring the talisman into Khin-Oin under the eyes of its watchful guards. The potent magic in the talisman is a focus that allows the raavasta to teleport into Khin-Oin past the citadel's powerful magic wards.

If Kaugothirn is killed, the characters find coded letters on his body detailing Shemeshka's plots and describing "the final action in the great debate hall." If the archdegog flees, the characters can pursue him to the debate hall (area 4). If they catch him, he reveals the information above in exchange for his life. Otherwise, he bursts into the hall ahead of them, becoming one of the victims of Shemeshka's groom guardians. See the next encounter for details.

Features of the Area

Illumination: The walls of the chamber pulse with unnatural energy that sheds dim light throughout the area.

Observation Deck: The observation deck overlooks the floor from a height of ten feet. It has no railing.

Ritual Stone Slabs: Five stone slabs are spread with grisly implements of torture. A slab is four feet high and provides cover for a creature next to it.

Blood Sign: In response to Kaugothirn's mental command, this blood-traced summoning circle disgorges two additional mezzodemon sycophants each round on initiative count 0.

To disable the blood sign, the characters can slay Kaugothirn or undertake a skill challenge: Arcana or Thievery DC 22; 4 successes before 3 failures. If the characters fail the challenge, the blood sign summons eight more mezzodemon sycophants but then is overloaded and destroyed. Summoned mezzodemon sycophants move to aid Kaugothirn in the torture chamber.

Force Cages: Three stone slabs are set into the floor of the chamber. Any creature that enters the area of a slab is restrained and stunned (no save). Each force cage can be occupied by one Large or smaller creature. A trapped creature can be released only from the outside. It takes a DC 27 Athletics check to free a creature from a force cage.

SHEMESHKA THE FALSE

Encounter Level 21 (17,200 XP)

SETUP

Shemeshka (S)
10 groom guardians (G)

The debate hall is a huge auditorium lined with descending tiers along three walls. A large L-shaped dais stands at the center of the chamber.

When the adventurers arrive outside any of the debate hall's three doorways, read:

From beyond the closed door comes the sound of distant violence. Demonic shrieks and bloodcurdling screams sound out, then are suddenly silenced.

When the adventurers can see into the area, read:

Scores of lesser demons have been slain in the audience tiers of this huge debate hall. A huge stone dais at center is lined with the bodies of six butchered raavastas. Several demons scavenge among them, disinterested in you. Below them, a hooded raavasta looks up at your approach.

If the adventurers approach the cowled figure without attacking it, read:

The raavasta's visage is that of a feral jackal, his robes partly concealing a jeweled torc around his neck. "That treacherous Shemeshka was unwise to send you here," he says with a smile. "Your presence in the Tower has not gone unnoticed. You should leave, friends, and quickly."

Streetwise Check
DC 14: You recognize this raavasta by his appearance and garb. This is A'kin, the well-known owner of the trinket shop known as the Friendly Fiend in the city of Sigil.

Insight Check
DC 22: Despite the raavasta's friendly demeanor, his intent is threatening.

Perception Check
DC 27: The raavasta's mannerisms give away the creature's true identity: This is Shemeshka, preparing to attack.

Shemeshka (S) Level 23 Elite Controller
Medium elemental humanoid (shapechanger), raavasta — XP 10,200

HP 428; Bloodied 214 — Initiative +16
AC 37, Fortitude 35, Reflex 38, Will 36 — Perception +22
Speed 6 — Blindsight 10
Resist 15 psychic
Saving Throws +2; Action Points 1

TRAITS

Torc of Bin A'kin
When subject to an effect that imposes the dominated condition that a save can end, Shemeshka can make a saving throw against that effect.

STANDARD ACTIONS

Blinding Claw ✦ At-Will
Attack: Melee 1 (one creature); +26 vs. AC
Hit: 1d6 + 5 damage, and the target is blinded (save ends).

Mind Lure (psychic) ✦ Recharge ⚄ ⚅
Requirement: Shemeshka must be in friendly fiend form.
Effect: Shemeshka makes the following attack.
Attack: Ranged 10 (two creatures); +26 vs. Will
Hit: 2d10 + 7 psychic damage, and the target is pulled 5 squares and dazed (save ends).

Mind Stab (fear, psychic) ✦ Encounter
Attack: Close burst 5 (enemies in burst); +26 vs. Will
Hit: 5d6 + 9 psychic damage, and the target moves its speed away from Shemeshka.

MINOR ACTIONS

Two-Faced Shemeshka (polymorph) ✦ At-Will
Effect: Shemeshka can alter her physical form to take on the form of A'kin the Friendly Fiend, or return to her form as Shemeshka the Marauder. When she takes on the marauder form, she can use call groom guardians. When she is in friendly fiend form, she can use mind lure.

Bind (charm, psychic) ✦ Recharge when Shemeshka uses enforce contract
Effect: One creature that Shemeshka can see must choose to take ongoing 20 psychic damage (save ends) or be dominated (save ends).

Call Groom Guardians ✦ Recharge when first bloodied
Requirement: Shemeshka must be in marauder form.
Effect: Shemeshka summons five groom guardians. Each groom guardian appears in an unoccupied square within 10 squares of Shemeshka.

TRIGGERED ACTIONS

Enforce Contract ✦ Recharge when Shemeshka uses bind
Trigger: Shemeshka is hit by an enemy's melee or ranged attack.
Effect (Immediate Interrupt): A creature affected by Shemeshka's bind power becomes the target of the triggering attack. Using this power ends the effect of bind on that creature.

Vanish (illusion) ✦ Recharge ⚄ ⚅
Trigger: Shemeshka is hit by an enemy.
Effect (Immediate Reaction): Shemeshka shifts 3 squares and is invisible until the end of her next turn or until she attacks.

Variable Resistance ✦ 2/Encounter
Trigger: Shemeshka takes acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder damage.
Effect (Free Action): Shemeshka gains resist 15 to the triggering damage type until the end of the encounter or until she uses variable resistance again.

Level 28 +6 2,125,000 gp
Item Slot: Neck
Enhancement: Fortitude, Reflex, and Will
Property: You gain a +2 item bonus to Diplomacy and Insight checks.
Property: You can understand any language, even if you cannot speak it.
Property: When you are subject to an effect that imposes the dominated condition that a save can end, you can make a saving throw against that effect.
Power (Daily): Immediate Interrupt. Trigger: An attack misses you but still damages you. Effect: You take no damage from the missed attack.
Power (Daily): Move Action. You move twice your speed. While you move, you are insubstantial and are phasing.

Tactics

Shemeshka opens with mind stab to drive her opponents away from her, then chooses a victim to bind. She uses bind and blinding claw as often as she can, letting her groom guardians target blinded or dominated foes. When advantageous, Shemeshka switches forms to A'kin and back again, using mind lure to pull enemies into reach for blinding claw.

The groom guardians use blink whip to teleport attackers away from their master.

Development

Shemeshka was truthful in telling the characters that she intended to claim the torc of Bin A'kin. Her plan was to seize it from a raavasta lord who had stolen it from her, using the attack on the debate hall as cover. The characters (ideally already dead at Kaugothirn's hand) would then be blamed. The adventurers can discover the raavasta's plots by using the Speak With Dead ritual on one of Shemeshka's minions. Alternatively, one or more of the raavastas in the chamber can remain badly wounded but alive for questioning.

With the torc in their possession, the characters have the option of beating a hasty retreat from Khin-Oin, or returning the torc to Phraxas's servants to gain the favor of the demon lord. The full import of Shemeshka's plot (and the real relationship between her and A'kin) is left to your development.

Features of the Area

Illumination: Glowing magic orbs set into the walls shed dim light throughout the area.

Chairs: The chairs on the dais are disquieting, having been fashioned of devil flesh. Each is large enough to provide cover to a creature that is adjacent to it (but not to a creature sitting in it).

Dais: This five-foot-high slab of stone holds a podium from which a speaker can address the spectators assembled in the hall. Moving up onto the dais requires an additional move action or a DC 20 Athletics or Acrobatics check. Creatures on the dais have cover against ranged attacks made from the floor. The podium provides cover for any creature standing beside it.

Staircase: The three staircases in the hall are difficult terrain. A creature attempting to charge, run, or double move on the stairs must make a DC 20 Acrobatics check. On a failed check, the creature falls prone at the end of its movement.

Treasure: If Shemeshka is defeated, her body disappears, leaving only the torc of Bin A'kin behind. If the characters decide to give up the torc, the surviving raavastas offer them equivalent treasure.

JARED BLANDO

Demonic Delve: Mouth of Demogorgon

A delve for five 25th-level adventurers

A reeking saltwater fen floods the fields of a once-bountiful land, its wasted crops rotting where they stand. Beyond the remains of the only town that still clings to life here, the mouth of a cave vomits forth a bloody tide of brine. A shrieking wind screams a challenge to the heroes—calling out with the voice of Demogorgon.

Background

Arcana or Nature DC 17: The brine is not a natural phenomenon, and it carries a particular dark essence. This flood comes from Abysm, the realm of Demogorgon, Prince of Demons.

History or Religion DC 26: A story is told of the heroic adventurer Saint Daenor, who turned his back on wealth and fame to settle in these lands generations ago. Though the area had a reputation as a demon-haunted waste, Saint Daenor was said to have driven the demons out and tamed it.

Hook: Friends in Need

The town affected by this disaster should have a connection to the adventurers. It might be the home of a trusted friend, a patron, or a contact. Moreover, the loss of this important agricultural region is felt beyond the town and the abandoned settlements around it. The local lord or monarch stands to lose resources, subjects, and trade unless the ongoing disaster is undone. The lords of bordering lands might see these abandoned territories as an excuse to send in spies or armies of occupation.

Approaching the Town

In ages past, an open demongate to Abysm made this region a wasteland. The powerful adventurer Saint Daenor closed the gate after a brutal struggle against the demons and the cultists that defended it. Over long centuries, the land healed and was prosperous. However, by the use of dark rituals, the cultists of Demogorgon have opened the demongate again, bringing ruin down on the area. Like the tentacles of its murderous lord, the brine of Abysm lays waste to all it strikes.

- The lands in and around the town are difficult terrain.
- The brine blast hazard makes it difficult to enter the temple. Characters moving up the slope between the brine cavern and the temple treat the slope as difficult terrain. A hit from the brine blast knocks a creature back, as noted in the hazard statistics block.
- Side caves branch out from the main cavern, and can be used to avoid the brine blast.

1: The Town

Set the first part of the adventure in the town after the heroes have ventured there to find it destroyed. Populate the settlement with stragglers who have refused to abandon their homes, including one or more nonplayer characters with ties to the party. See "Creating NPCs," Dungeon Master's Guide, page 186, for ideas on detailing the townsfolk the characters meet.

The flooded landscape is bleak and lifeless. Several of the town's buildings are sinking into the mire, and all appear strangely drained of color. The salt water lingers in stagnant pools, the ground around them a mass of clinging mud. Where the fields are dry, they show how water has flowed and evaporated, leaving stains of red-brown salt.

Allow the heroes to investigate, to make skill checks to learn the information presented under "Background," above, and to talk to the remaining townsfolk. Any conversation reveals that although most of the townsfolk fled shortly after the floods first came, four farmers who vowed to stay behind disappeared during the night. Neighbors describe this behavior as odd, saying that the missing townsfolk had been dead-set against leaving.

2: The Tomb of the Saint

Rays of dusty sunlight break the darkness of the tomb, illuminating an ancient stone sarcophagus. The light reflects in a way that makes the coffin glow with a pale radiance. The face of Saint Daenor has been sculpted into the stone. It appears peaceful, as if waiting patiently.

By making a DC 16 Arcana or Religion check, a character intuits that the spirit of Saint Daenor lingers in this place and can be appealed to for aid. The characters can undertake a skill challenge to convince the spirit of their need: complexity 1 (4 successes before 3 failures); level 26 (XP 9,000); primary skills Diplomacy, History, and Religion.

If the characters are successful in the challenge, a ritual book appears on top of the sarcophagus in a burst of radiance. The ancient tome contains a record of Saint Daenor's struggle to close the demongate when it was first active. Using the book, the characters gain a +2 bonus to checks made to close the portal to Abysm.

3: The Haunted Hills

Like the flooded fields, the foliage of the hills above the town has a burned and withered look. The destruction here is so intense that it takes a DC 27 Nature check to discern the path of the brine and follow it back to its source. If the characters fail this check, they stumble on the correct path after a half-day's searching. During that time, the cultists in the "Gateway to Abysm" encounter sacrifice one townsperson. When the characters begin that encounter, they begin the "Closing the Portal" skill challenge with one failure.

The hike up into the hills is a long one. Once you reach higher ground, the land becomes dry again, although the vegetation here is as burned and desolate as that on the plain below. Your search ends as you follow the devastation to a torrent of water flowing from a cave and eroding the hillside beneath it. Giving the flow a wide berth, you come up around the side of the hill to the cave's entrance.

4: The Brine Cavern

The cave mouth opens up to a dark cavern. Two smaller caves are set above it like eyes over a mouth, but these shallow caverns do not connect to the larger cave network.

Set deep into the hillside, three natural caverns resemble a malformed, screaming face whose mouth vomits forth a rushing flow of red-black brine. The hiss of salt-tinged wind comes steadily from the central cavern. The cavern's interior is pitch black beyond the entrance. The torrent slows to a trickle, then flares again to drench the hillside in saltwater.

Tactical Encounter: "Guardians of the Temple," page 96.

5: The Demon Temple

The huge cavern within the hillside is a temple to Demogorgon and the sanctum of the Demon Prince's cult.

At the passageway's end, an enormous chasm opens up within the hill. Flickering torchlight sends shadows dancing along the walls. Where the natural floor of the cavern gives way to smooth flagstones, mighty granite columns carved with snarling demon faces reach halfway to the ceiling thirty feet above. The shadows of the cavern seem to whisper with a multitude of incoherent voices, beckoning you on.

Tactical Encounter: "Gateway to Abysm," page 98.

JARED BLANDO

Encounter Level 25 (38,150 XP)

Setup

1 guardian demon souldrinker (G)
3 hezrou manglers (H)

The demonic temple consists of a large central cavern fronted by a series of branching caves. A steep slope leads up to the temple, but the portal to Abysm sends violent waves of brine down the slope that can wash creatures out of the cave. A guardian demon and three hezrou lie in wait here for intruders.

When the adventurers enter the cave, read:

The stench exuding from the shadowed entrance to this cavern is abominable. The tang of salt air mixes with the rank taint of death. Pools of brine cover the cavern floor, filled with otherworldly shells of prismatic color and the flitting shapes of tiny, two-headed fish. Past the mouth of the cave, an unnatural darkness looms.

The guardian demon lurks in the center of the main cavern, drawing the characters' attention as it grants the hezrous a +2 bonus to their Stealth checks to hide.

Perception Check
DC 31: Beyond the gloom, the thrum of chanting voices comes from a distance, faint above the echoing ripple of the pools spread across the cavern floor. Suddenly, something snakelike—some kind of whip or tentacle— flickers in the shadows before disappearing from sight.

When the adventurers spot the guardian demon, read:

A horrid creature rises from the darkness of the cavern ahead. Its four eyes gleam above a maw of knifelike teeth; its arms split into coiling tentacles that mimic the form of Demogorgon.

If the hezrous are not spotted, they wait until the adventurers pass their hiding places before ambushing from behind. If they are spotted, the hezrous fight from the cave entrances, blocking them to keep the characters in the cavern where they are vulnerable to the brine blast hazard.

Features of the Area

Illumination: The cavern is dark. The brine blast douses any nonmagic light sources carried by creatures struck by it.

Channel: The deadly brine of Abysm flows down the channel and out of the cavern. See the brine blast hazard.

Side Caves: Creatures within the side caves winding off the main cavern cannot be targeted by the brine blasts. The Large demons must squeeze to enter the side caves.

JARED BLANDO

| Brine Blast | Level 27 Blaster |
|---|---|
| Hazard | XP 11,000 |

A blast of red-tinged saltwater slams through the cavern like a river of blood.

Hazard: The brine blast randomly explodes, rushing down the channel in the center of the map and dashing creatures against the walls and sweeping them away.

Perception

✦ No Perception check is required to notice the brine blast.
✦ DC 26: Each explosion of brine is preceded by the same faint roaring sound.

Trigger

Although this hazard is always active, it attacks at random. Roll initiative for the hazard at the start of the encounter. On each of its turns, roll a d20: The hazard attacks only on a roll of 10 or higher.

Attack

Standard Action Area squares within the brine blast's path

Target: Each Medium or smaller creature in the path of the brine blast.
Attack: +32 vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d10 + 8 damage, and the brine blast pushes the target 8 squares along the path of the blast and knocks it prone.
Special: Once activated, this hazard remains in effect during the "Gateway to Abysm" encounter.

Countermeasures

✦ Creatures in any of the side caves cannot be targeted by the brine blast.
✦ A creature that succeeds at a Perception check to notice the sound preceding the brine blast gains a +2 bonus to Reflex against the hazard's attack.
✦ If the portal to Abysm is closed, the hazard is deactivated. See the "Closing the Portal" skill challenge in the "Gateway to Abysm" encounter.

Tactics

If their ambush is successful, the hezrous use their surprise round to attack with reach. A hezrou tries to keep the characters within its noxious stench aura whenever possible.

The guardian demon uses tentacle seize and fearsome gaze to immobilize enemies in the path of the brine blast.

Whenever a character is carried away by the brine blast, the hezrous and the guardian demon concentrate their attacks on the remaining characters, advancing into the main cavern as necessary. They attempt to block the side caves, preventing the characters from seeking safety there.

Encounter Level 27 (61,000 XP) or Level 29 (75,000 XP)

Setup

1 balor (B)
2 Demogorgon fury cultists (C)

The missing townsfolk are here, held captive as sacrifices to Demogorgon. Adjust the number of townsfolk if the adventurers took additional time to find the caves (see "The Haunted Hills," page 95).

When the characters move into the temple, read:

A stone dais, streaked with blood, is crowned by a sacrificial altar and two glowing cauldrons. At the foot of the dais, a steaming pit opens and closes, spewing forth a blast of brine that courses out of the cavern.

Three of the missing townsfolk kneel at the front of the dais, blindfolded and bound. A fourth lies dead on the ground behind them, two black-robed humans savagely dismembering the body with axes. The cultists heave the two halves of the corpse into the pit, from which an enormous demon rises.

Dark Summoning

To complete the ritual and summon an aspect of Demogorgon, the cultists must kill and dismember three more victims and throw them into the pit. The adventurers can prevent this by slaying the cultists or closing the portal (see below).

Victims must be ritually sacrificed, as above. It takes a standard action for a cultist to slay a victim, followed by a standard action to hurl the corpse into the brine pit. One cultist can sacrifice a victim in two rounds. Both cultists working together can sacrifice a victim in one round.

Each time another victim is sacrificed, read:

The surface of the brine pit flares and froths with abyssal fire. Long tentacles lash the surface, as if some creature within the pit was straining to escape.

If the cultists sacrifice the last victim, read:

As the last body falls into the pit, four tentacles break the surface of the pool. A two-headed aspect of Demogorgon shrieks as it clambers to the cavern floor.

Closing the Portal

Use the "Closing an Abyssal Portal" skill challenge (page 84) to allow the characters to shut down the portal to Abysm. If the characters recovered the ritual book from the saint's tomb (area 2), they gain a +2 bonus to all checks made in the challenge.

Level: 25 (XP 14,000).

Special: In addition to failed primary skill checks, the characters earn a failure in the challenge for each townsperson sacrificed beyond the first.

Success: If the characters earn 6 successes in the challenge, they close the portal.

Failure: If the characters incur 3 failures in the challenge, an aspect of Demogorgon (see Monster Manual 2, page 44) emerges from the portal and attacks.

Portal: The portal is a pit opening into the waters of the Gaping Maw in Abysm (page 68). See the hazard statistics block for more information.

Features of the Area

Illumination: Torches and the glow of the cauldrons fill the area with dim light. The balor sheds bright light in a forty-foot radius.

Channel: The deadly brine of Abysm flows down the channel and out of the cavern. See the brine blast hazard in the "Guardians of the Temple" encounter.

Dais: The natural stone dais rises fifteen feet from the cavern floor and is accessible by steep stone stairs. The stairs cost 6 squares of movement to ascend or descend. The cauldrons are fixed in place. The altar provides cover.

Pillars: These fifteen-foot-high pillars can be toppled by a Huge creature as a minor action (Athletics DC 35). A falling pillar makes an attack in 3 contiguous squares, starting in a square adjacent to its original position and extending in a line in the direction of its fall: +28 vs. Reflex; 2d10 + 10 damage, and the target is restrained (save ends).

The squares in which a pillar falls become a wall 5 feet high. The wall provides cover and requires a move action to clamber across.

Sibilant whispers rise from the steaming brine pit, urging you to approach.

Trap: The portal to Abysm calls out to enemies of Demogorgon, inciting them to violence and murder.
Special: This effect of the portal is in addition to the brine blast hazard (page 97).

Perception
✦ No Perception check is needed to notice the pit or hear its voice.

Additional Skill: Insight
✦ DC 25: The character realizes that the voice from the pit is imbued with a raging bloodlust. The character and his or her allies gair a +2 bonus to saving throws against being dominated by the hazard.

Trigger
The portal attacks when an enemy ends its turn within 5 squares of it.

Attack
Opportunity Action Ranged 5
Target: One enemy
Attack: +31 vs. Will
Hit: The target is dominated (save ends). The portal forces the dominated target to attack the target's allies on each of its turns. Each Failed Saving Throw: The portal pulls the target 2 squares.
Special: Any creature that enters the pit makes a saving throw. On a successful saving throw, the portal's domination is broken (if applicable) and the target is knocked prone in an unoccupied square adjacent to the pit. On a failed saving throw, the target is drawn into the Abyss and transported to Abysm (page 68). The DM determines whether the other side of the portal can be used to return to the cave, and under what circumstances.

Countermeasures
✦ If the portal to Abysm is closed, the hazard is deactivated. See the "Closing the Portal" skill challenge.

Tactics

The balor uses flame whip to prevent the characters from reaching the cultists on the platform and to keep them within range of the hazard's attack. The balor topples a pillar if any character tries to use it as cover.

One cultist concentrates on sacrificing the remaining victims while the other fights alongside the balor, using greataxe. If the first cultist is slain, the second takes its place on the platform and continues the sacrifice. If the characters attempt to close the portal using the skill challenge, the second cultist joins the first to speed up the sacrificial process.

CHAPTER 3

Demons

JOHN STANKO

THE RAW chaos of the Abyss spawns demons whose full number can never be known. Their forms are as varied as their powers, but demons share a singular thirst for destruction and mortal blood. Some demons are representative of great abyssal hordes, dwelling in that realm in incalculable numbers. Others are called into being to wreak havoc in the planes or in the world, then they are never seen again.

Demons are drawn to the mortal realm like carrion creatures to a corpse, exulting in the destruction of the living world whose spirit and beauty is the antithesis of their own realm of evil and chaos. Demonologists have long labored to record the full roll of these creatures, and worldly adventurers know the names of the most common demons long before they have mastered the power necessary to challenge them. The demons cataloged in the Monster Manual represent only a fraction of the horrors the Abyss has spawned.

This chapter presents more than seventy new demons and demon lords, ready to challenge adventurers from the beginning of the heroic tier to the height of any epic tier campaign. Any of the creatures presented here can be modified with the suggestions about replacing variable resistance on pages 30–31.

- Abyssal Demons: From the stealthy abyssal scavenger to the mighty zythar; from the lowly mane to the unstoppable mahataa, these new demons epitomize the horrors of the Abyss.
- Demons of the World: All demons are capable of carrying their madness out of the Abyss, but creatures such as abyssal scavengers, demon spawn, ixitxachitls, incubi, nabassus, and wendigos are found more often in the mortal world than in their native realm.
- Demon Lords: This chapter presents statistics and backgrounds for five demon lords—Kostchtchie, Oublivae, Pazuzu, Phraxas, and Zuggtmoy.

ABYSSAL SCAVENGER

Abyssal scavengers are thought of as vermin in their native realm—a reputation that inspires these horrors to seek easy hunting grounds in the mortal world. Creating strength in numbers, a pack of abyssal scavengers can quickly lay waste to even the largest humanoid settlements.

Lore

Arcana DC 15: Like all demons, abyssal scavengers live to destroy. In contrast to most of their kind, scavengers consume the creatures they kill in order to spawn hatchlings. In the Abyss, their numbers are kept in check by the voracious appetites of demons more powerful than they are. An infestation of scavengers in the world can quickly multiply to overwhelm humanoid settlements.

These creatures are also known for a deadly side effect of their insatiable appetites. Each scavenger carries a mote of the raw essence of the Abyss within it. If significant numbers of scavengers gather in tight quarters, their abyssal essence can consume them, leaving a demongate in its wake. Such gates rarely last for long, but they can touch any layer of the Abyss. Other demons take advantage of these temporary crossings to the mortal world, and what began as an infestation of relatively weak scavengers can quickly become a full-scale demonic invasion.

Encounters

Few sane spellcasters attempt to summon abyssal scavengers, for fear that their numbers will quickly grow out of control. These creatures' potential to create demongates does. however, make them a favorite target of summoning rituals by apocalyptic cults of Demogorgon and Oublivae (page 130).

Abyssal Scavengers in Combat

Abyssal scavengers attack together, staying close to maximize the effect of frenzied claw and death shriek. A scavenger becomes more animated and aggressive with each foe that drops to its allies' attacks.

MATIAS TAPIA

ABYSSAL WURM

Serpentine demons that revel in malice and ruin, abyssal wurms guard the gates that lead out of the darkest depths of the Abyss. The regions where the wurms nest are so malevolent and savage that even the demon lords avoid them.

Lore

Arcana DC 33: Abyssal wurms are the offspring of the goddess Tiamat and the two-headed demon lord Kothok, the master of gates and portals. When these two-headed wurms were first spawned, Kothok gathered them to his breast, protected them from Tiamat's voracious hunger, and set them to guard secret gates he bored into the very fabric of the Abyss.

Encounters

Given their arrogance and their penchant for toying with lesser creatures, ancient abyssal wurms rarely allow others to dwell in their presence. They typically work only with their kin. Abyssal wurms are paired at demongates to prevent passage out of the Abyss, not to stop creatures that want to enter. Abyssal wurms take their duties as portal guardians seriously, rarely venturing far from their posts. Only the command of a demon lord might dissuade one from its task.

Ancient Abyssal Wurms in Combat

An ancient abyssal wurm toys with its prey before unleashing its breath attack. The wurm's sheer, scaly size and immense teeth are enough to overwhelm opponents with fear. Each time the wurm unleashes its breath weapon, it disappears, reforming in a more advantageous position. If seriously wounded, the wurm might retreat through a gate it guards.

Saving Throws +2; Action Points 1

Traits

Pit of Despair (fear) ✦ Aura 2
Any enemy within the aura that misses with an attack takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls against the abyssal wurm until the end of the enemy's next turn.

All-Around Vision
Enemies can't gain combat advantage by flanking the abyssal wurm.

Double Actions
At the start of combat, the abyssal wurm makes two initiative checks. Each check corresponds to one of its heads, and the wurm takes a turn on both initiative counts. It has a full set of actions on each of its turns, and its ability to take an immediate action refreshes on each turn.

Dual Brain
At the end of each of its turns, the abyssal wurm saves against effects that include the dazed or stunned condition and against charm effects.

Standard Actions

Bite ✦ At-Will
Attack: Melee 2 (one creature); +35 vs. AC
Hit: 6d8 + 11 damage.

Breath Weapon (varies) ✦ Recharge ⚅, or ⚄ ⚅ while bloodied
Attack: Close blast 5 (creatures in blast); +33 vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d12 + 12 acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder damage, and the target takes a -4 penalty to AC (save ends).
Effect: The wurm dissolves into a torrent of elements and flows with its breath weapon. The wurm moves instantaneously from its current location to a square adjacent to the area of the blast.

Suicidal Presence (charm) ✦ Encounter
Attack: Close burst 5 (enemies in burst); +33 vs. Reflex
Hit: The target is dominated until the end of its next turn. For its action, the dominated creature uses one of its at-will powers of the wurm's choice against itself.

Triggered Actions

ARMANITE

Encased in armor of demonic chitin strong enough to repel mortal steel, armanites are the descendants of corrupted centaurs that traded their proud heritage for the bloodlust and nihilism of the Abyss.

Lore

History DC 27: In ages past, fomorians enslaved six Feywild centaur clans. The captives were forced to serve as armorsmiths, beasts of burden, expendable cavalry, and playthings. Corrupted by the brutality of the twisted giants of the Underdark, the centaurs began to follow their tormentors' example.

Eventually, the centaur slaves broke free, escaping into the depths of the Underdark. There, they stumbled on a portal leading to Pazunia. A few searched for a way home to the Feywild, but the darkness of the Abyss quickly claimed the others. Abandoning their kin, they took up lives as abyssal mercenaries and were transformed into demons. Today, the armanite legions serve whichever demon lord offers the best pay in territory or soul larvae.

Encounters

When the Blood War raged across the Abyss, armanites were stationed with Baphomet's rage-mad bulezaus (page 107). Their vicious assaults were instrumental in repelling the devils. Once the devils were in full retreat, squadrons of territorial armanites and bloodthirsty bulezaus battled to claim the spoils. The grudges born from this battle die hard, and the two types of demons now attack each other on sight. It is a rare armanite band that allies with Baphomet, and usually only briefly. Many armanites now rally under the banner of Demogorgon or pledge themselves to the wrath of Kostchtchie (page 122).

Armanite Lancers in Combat

An armanite charges into battle, using its superior spear skills to fell enemies as it waits for them to unwisely attempt to flank. Like their centaur forebears, armanites are fiercely territorial. They tolerate no interlopers into their lands or within the realms of their masters. Arrogant and clannish, these demons employ coordinated tactics and a militaristic discipline that even devils admire.

Attack: Close burst 2 (enemies in burst); +25 vs. AC
Hit: 3d12 + 8 damage, and the target falls prone.
Miss: Half damage, and the lancer pushes the target 2 squares.

Minor Actions

Air Walk ✦ Encounter
Effect: The lancer gains a speed of fly 8 (hover) until the end of its next turn.

Triggered Actions

Fiendish Kick ✦ At-Will
Trigger: An enemy moves to a square where it flanks the lancer.
Attack (Immediate Reaction): Melee 1 (triggering enemy); +23 vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + 6 damage, and the lancer pushes the target 2 squares and knocks it prone.

Fiendish Charger ✦ At-Will
Trigger: The lancer hits a creature with a charge attack.
Effect (Free Action): The charge attack also knocks the target prone. The lancer then shifts 2 squares, ending that move adjacent to the target of the charge attack.

Variable Resistance ✦ 3/Encounter
Trigger: The lancer takes acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder damage.
Effect (Free Action): The lancer gains resist 10 to the triggering damage type until the end of the encounter or until it uses variable resistance again.

BLOOD DEMON

Blood demons spawn in the snaking Blood River within the endless depths of the Blood Rift. The polluted waters of the river imbue them with a vague sentience that focuses entirely on destruction.

Lore

Arcana DC 21: Blood demons are an enigma to demonologists. At times, these creatures move in great swarms across the Abyss, but these swarms disappear soon after they emerge. No one knows for certain why they form or what happens to them. Iggwilv believes the blood demons are the scattered essence of an obyrith lord that Tharizdun destroyed in the Abyss's earliest days. She theorizes that if enough of them gather together, the slain obyrith might reemerge from the swarm.

Encounters

Blood demons hunt natives of the Abyss and outsiders with equal fervor. Few demons bother trying to compel these mindless creatures into service. Fiends fighting in close proximity to the Blood River often attempt to drive wounded foes toward it, hoping to inspire a blood demon assault.

Blood Demons in Combat

The scent of blood brings these fiends to a frothing boil. Hunger and rage drive a blood demon, and it attacks bloodied enemies in preference to other targets, moving twice rather than attacking in order to run down a badly injured foe.

BONEGOUGE ASSASSIN

When it takes control of an abyssal layer, a demon lord can mold the demons there. Bonegouge assassins are believed to be the creation of Orcus.

Pitiless and cruel, a bonegouge assassin is wholly focused on its assignment. It lusts after nothing and follows the orders of its master without question.

Lore

Arcana DC 29: The discipline, loyalty, and single-mindedness of the bonegouge assassin are atypical of demonkind. Some sages believe these creatures were interlopers that first became demons through Orcus's manipulation of abyssal energy rather than as pure creations on his part.

It is said that Orcus crafted the first bonegouge assassins from a guild of shadow assassins. The Lord of Undeath trapped guild members in pits near the crystalline heart of the Abyss for more than a century, infusing their souls with abyssal power. Once transformed, the assassins were fed an endless stream of combatants, perfecting their skills and sealing their place at the right hand of their master.

Encounters

A bonegouge assassin works with others only when ordered to do so. This stealthy creature often gathers demon-worshiping assassins to its side to use as decoys on dangerous missions. A bonegouge assassin is sometimes sent or summoned into the world, where it establishes an assassin school or leads bands of outlaws to harass or destroy local lords.

Bonegouge Assassins in Combat

A bonegouge assassin employs mercurial tactics, poised to capitalize on an opponent's weaknesses. It lures a foe into its gloom shroud, which is projected as a black cloud of smoke and dust. A bonegouge assassin's dart sinks into an enemy's throat before the foe ever guesses that a demon lurks within the gloom. After it strikes, the assassin teleports to an advantageous position, leaving the gloom and its victim behind.

BULEZAU

Bulezaus in Combat

A bulezau can be heard approaching, because it howls with glee in anticipation of battle. The scent of blood sends this creature into a frenzy as it seeks out the weakest opponents. Any creature knocked to the ground draws a bulezau's attention and its fiercest attacks. The demon roars in satisfaction as body after body is crushed under its ferocious assault.

Created from the freshly buried corpses of mortal females who gave their lives in the service of good deities, bulezaus are ritual-spawned demons that imitate Baphomet's brutality and appetites. Scholars have dubbed these ram-headed creatures the demon lord's perfect children. Bulezaus know no emotion but rage, and savor only the struggle for life and death.

Lore

Arcana DC 21: Before the Abyss corrupted him, the being now known as Baphomet created the minotaurs. As with most races, some became savage and warlike as others came to value honor and trade. Yeenoghu noticed this schism and mocked Baphomet, saying, "Poor, stupid Baphomet. You have pride in your children, but half of them are cattle in spirit as well as in form. See how my children take what yours make and burn what yours build." For the sake of his bruised vanity, Baphomet began sending his acolytes to steal the corpses of pure mortal females. Consumed in unholy rituals, these offerings gave life to the first bulezaus.

Encounters

In the Blood War, Baphomet's bulezaus fought in the front ranks under the captains of every demon lord except Yeenoghu. With the war now in an uneasy truce, bulezaus still serve other demons, but they are uncooperative and abuse weaker fellow soldiers.

Mortals who bring bulezaus into the world find them difficult to work with but useful when unfocused destruction is on the agenda. These demons are quick to answer a summons from evil minotaurs, though they resent the peaceful and honorable members of that race.

CITY CORRUPTOR (EVANISSU)

When a city grows corrupt, its people succumbing to degradation and decadence, the seams of the natural world can be split so that the evil of the Abyss seeps through. A city corruptor is not a punishment for a people's lack of moral fortitude; it is a consequence. A natural predator of the urban environment, the city corruptor stalks the dark streets that are the arteries of the city it feeds on. As the city's weak and vulnerable begin to die in increasing numbers, this foul demon spreads fear among even the most powerful.

Lore

Arcana DC 29: City corruptors appear in desperate, depraved, or hopeless urban centers—places where the people either cannot reverse the moral decay of their city, or where they do not care to. A city corruptor is not attracted to combat. Rather, the demon lusts after the blood of helpless victims lost to an environment shifting closer to collapse each day. To hasten the destruction of such an environment is every city corruptor's ultimate delight.

These sly demons first appeared in Zelatar, spreading quickly to other abyssal settlements. As a mortal city decays, the nature of an abyssal city aligns with it, and a city corruptor steps through. Only one demon passes through during such an alignment. City corruptors fight among themselves for the exclusive right to claim a city in the mortal realm.

Encounters

A city corruptor picks off the lonely and unloved, creating a nonstop campaign of murder and fear to destroy a city from within. A charismatic demon, the city corruptor gathers murderers, assassins, thieves, wererats, doppelgangers, and other urban predators to its cause. It is only with other demons that a city corruptor refuses to share its glory.

City Corruptors in Combat

On its own, a city corruptor treads silently through the darkness. A city corruptor entices a weak-willed creature from a crowd, pulling it out of sight before attacking. When cornered or fighting with allies, a city corruptor favors picking off opportune targets with bone dagger.

CLOCKWORK HORROR

Merciless and numerous, clockwork horrors are a mechanical plague of demonic constructs bent on exterminating organic life.

Lore

Arcana DC 21: Ages ago, a forgotten demon lord of iron and artifice constructed the first clockwork horrors, imbuing their mechanical forms with the abyssal life force claimed from the ritual sacrifice of his lesser servants. Proving the success of his design, the clockwork horrors quickly slaughtered their creator, then escaped from the Rift of Corrosion, the 652nd layer of the Abyss.

Swarming into neighboring layers, the horrors consumed everything in their path as their numbers grew. This grinding plague was contained only with the intervention of the demon lord Haagenti, who now controls these creatures' allegiance in the Abyss. Clockwork horrors also thrive beyond that realm, increasing their numbers in the hidden reaches of unsuspecting worlds.

Encounters

Unlike most constructs, clockwork horrors possess both intelligence and free will. They work only with their own kind and other servants of Haagenti (see "Garavond," page 76), destroying weaker creatures on sight.

Arachnid Clockwork Horror

A swarm of arachnid clockwork horrors can send the most battle-hardened demon troops fleeing in fear. The numbers of these ravenous constructs swell in battle with each enemy that falls.

Arachnid Clockwork Horrors in Combat

Arachnid clockwork horrors swarm a vulnerable target with coordinated, flanking attacks. When an arachnid clockwork horror's foe is bloodied, its replicated spawn attacks a new victim while the original finishes off the wounded target.

DEMON SPAWN

When the taint of the Abyss breaches the mortal world, it plants seeds that allow it to spread. Hags and evil spellcasters conduct dark rituals to give birth to abominable creatures, while unfortunate victims of demonic curses cradle wretched babes whose touch turns animals feral and curdles their mothers' milk. These demon spawn grow from cruel children into vile adults, blighting the world with the horror of their blood.

Lore

Arcana DC 19: It is said that as many varieties of demon spawn walk the world as there are demons in the Abyss. Although the horrible forms they take have no discernible pattern, demon spawn have a common background. Cast out or attacked as children, they hone their dark talents as they grow up alone. Young demon spawn instinctively know what they are, but they lack the ability to articulate their increasingly dark nature. The Abyssal tongue comes to them unbidden as they enter adulthood, at which point the full extent of their dark heritage manifests.

Encounters

Shunned by most folk, demon spawn quickly learn to ally with evil humanoids and practitioners of dark magic. They are drawn to demonic cults, whose members treat demon spawn with reverence. At the same time, demon spawn yearn to connect with their kin in the Abyss, seeking demongates by which they can summon demons into the world.

Demon Spawn Adept

Demon spawn are marked by deformities—a hunched back, a cat's eye, extra digits on hands and toes. The most cunning demon spawn quickly learn to conceal these abnormalities. In ancient ruins, cavernous hill-tombs, and libraries of forbidden lore they learn of their true heritage—and embrace the fell purpose for which they were born.

Demon Spawn Adepts in Combat

A demon spawn adept focuses on keeping enemy melee combatants at a distance. It uses feast of demons against foes in battle with its demonic allies, reserving forbidden speech to keep powerful warriors on the ground.

DERGHODEMON

Derghodemons are the mindless muscle of the Abyss. Too brutal and too dense to take on complex missions, derghodemons are common among the bloodthirsty mercenary bands of the Blood Rift.

Lore

Arcana DC 21: A derghodemon's instinct is to slaughter, a purpose these dread creatures fulfilled in the Blood War. With the Blood War in a state of truce, some derghodemons live as independent marauders in the Elemental Chaos. Such derghodemons dwell in elemental mountain ranges, earthbergs, and the caverns that honeycomb such locations.

Encounters

The dimwitted derghodemons can be easily convinced to enter into one-sided or abusive contracts. They rarely bargain individually, but on occasion, a single derghodemon strikes a deal with a mortal spellcaster. Such bargains are tilted in the spellcaster's favor, but the derghodemon doesn't care as long as it has a steady stream of enemies to shred. Demonologists also employ derghodemons as brute assassins and marauders. Attempts to employ derghodemons as bodyguards often end in the demons growing bored because of a lack of victims, then murdering the creature they were supposed to protect.

Derghodemons in Combat

Employed as shock troops in abyssal armies, derghodemons are adept at burrowing beneath—and smashing through—enemy fortifications. A derghodemon barrels across the battlefield, moving to the center of an enemy formation to rend and tear foes using its claws. A derghodemon is near-suicidal in its aggression. Even when vastly outnumbered, a derghodemon fights to the death.

FERROLITH

Sometimes referred to as iron demons or the Handmaidens of Pain, ferroliths are a twisted metallic mockery of the succubi that accompanied Graz'zt on his initial foray into the Abyss.

Lore

History DC 29: The succubi that accompanied Graz'zt on his first forays to the Abyss sought to betray him, but the Dark Prince uncovered their treachery and cast them into a pool of molten iron. The succubi lost their supernatural beauty as this abyssal pool seared their flesh and bonded with their bodies, and they became the first ferroliths.

Since that time, more ferroliths have crawled from ancient pits and pools of molten abyssal iron. Ferroliths retain a spark of their succubus origins. They love subterfuge and are incredibly cunning.

A ferrolith's hair is a rippling net of razor-sharp wire capable of shredding flesh. Its skin is tougher than any metal worked in a forge, and its claws can tear through virtually any physical or magical defenses.

A powerful ferrolith known as the Iron Maiden has seized a small fortress crafted from the broken remnants of a million swords on the Plain of a Thousand Portals. She has sent emissaries to the Nine Hells in hopes of enticing Asmodeus into an alliance against the Dark Prince.

Encounters

Ferroliths found in Graz'zt's service fight only because of the powerful bonds of servitude placed on them. These demons nurse a hatred for Graz'zt, and freely ally with other demons that actively oppose him.

Ferroliths in Combat

Ferroliths fighting in groups target the strongest melee combatants, slicing into them with spiked webs and razor-sharp claws. A solitary ferrolith hits softer targets first, energized by the hope of a quick kill as it rends vulnerable flesh and bone. A whirling engine of destruction on the battlefield, a ferrolith presents a formidable barrier to any enemy's advance.

FIRE DEMON

Elemental flame shaped to demonic form and madness, fire demons are a scourge of the planes. Born where the Abyss burns, these creatures quickly strike out to destroy anything in their path.

Lore

Arcana DC 23: According to legend, a weapon forged in a blaze ignited by the flames of a dying fire demon is particularly deadly when used against other demons. Rituals designed to banish or defeat powerful demons often require a fire demon's essence.

Encounters

Fire demons are commonly bound and controlled by demonologists with a penchant for destruction, servants of the Elder Elemental Eye, and priests of Oublivae (page 130). Oublivae's followers relish unleashing these creatures in the world, touching off infernos that can wipe whole cities from the map.

Fire Demons in Combat

A fire demon dances across the battlefield, slipping away from enemies as it chars them with its touch. Creatures that attack a fire demon are lashed by tongues of flame.

GUARDIAN DEMON

Named for the ease with which they are bound into service by rituals, guardian demons stalk lightless tombs, treasure vaults, and the temples of dark cults. Lying in wait to feed and destroy, a guardian demon consistently fulfills its deadly obligations as it awaits its release.

Lore

Arcana DC 25: Some sages believe that guardian demons possess a limited ability to see into the future. A guardian demon instinctively knows the day it will be released from servitude, or when creatures will stray into the site it guards. It is thought that this explains the creature's uncanny patience and the ease with which it ambushes intruders when they appear.

Encounters

The rituals by which guardian demons are bound into service are numerous. These creatures protect tombs and other sites across the mortal world. They are found in the company of other creatures summoned or created by powerful spellcasters, including homunculi, golems, and undead.

Guardian Demon Abomination

The treasures of antiquity gleam in faint torchlight where they spill from the alcoves of the ruined vault. In a thousand years, no mortal has seen this sight, yet something lurks here just the same. Glowing eyes and spiraling tentacles suddenly erupt from the shadows, snuffing out the light and the screams of adventurers who are never seen again.

Guardian Demon Abominations in Combat

An abomination taunts its foes as it seizes a victim and crushes the life from it with its powerful tentacles. When a grabbed target's life ebbs, the abomination tosses it aside and grabs for another victim.

Guardian Demon Soul Drinker

Although being bound into service slows a soul drinker's progress toward the upper echelons of demonic power, these oldest of the guardian demons gain an awareness and patience unusual among their kind.

Guardian Demon Soul Drinkers in Combat

As it consumes a foe's life force, a soul drinker grows more powerful in combat, spending an action point to use fearsome gaze in addition to its tentacles. A soul drinker targets divine power users and wizards, feeding on an enemy's knowledge and memories as it is destroyed.

HAURES

Haureses are eight-legged undead demons wholly dedicated to fighting in the name of powerful abyssal masters. They are common among the armies of Orcus, but many other demon lords use haureses in the front ranks of their own forces as expendable shock troops.

Lore

Arcana DC 27: The first haureses were created from goristro demons that fell in combat defending Orcus. Experimented on for centuries to perfect their current form, haureses have no thought or memory of anything other than battle. These creatures relish their roles as leaders, frontline soldiers, and executioners in service to abyssal lords.

Encounters

Haureses are typically found carrying out Orcus's orders, keeping company with balors, glabrezus, and mariliths. When at the head of armies, haureses lead large contingents of mezzodemons, armanites (page 104), and jovocs (page 121). Haureses are rarely seen outside the Abyss, although they have been known to range into the Underdark as advanced scouts. Their spiderlike form is seen as an affront to the demon queen Lolth, and other demon lords take pleasure in sending haureses against her drow and drider forces.

Haureses in Combat

A haures skitters into combat to assault the strongest melee combatants. Utterly fearless, the demon jumps into harm's way to surround itself with foes. A haures grudgingly shares the fight with allies only because it can't be everywhere at once.

HYDRODEMON

HYDRODEMONS ARE THE MOST SKILLED NAVIGATORS of the waters of the Blood River. Their clawed hands and feet are webbed, granting them an agility that allows them to swim the waters of the Blood Rift—perhaps the only sentient creatures that can.

LORE

Arcana DC 25: Hydrodemons resemble toads with their bulbous eyes and mucus-covered skin. The intricate glyphs and sigils that adorn their chests, arms, and legs speak to their ancient heritage and abyssal power. A hydrodemon stands ten feet tall, though it typically rests in a crouched position that allows it to strike from hiding.

Hydrodemons live as scavengers, hunters, and guides. Able to move through the waters of the Blood River, these lithe creatures freely explore where others cannot. Hydrodemons sell maps to gates and ruins they discover, as well as relics found while exploring the Blood Rift. The deals they offer at market in the city of Morglon-Daar (page 52) are rarely as good as they seem. In many cases, a hydrodemon has only the barest understanding of the objects it discovers, and it is as likely to demand a fortune for a piece of junk as to sell a rare and powerful relic for a few soul larvae. A savvy adventurer with an alert eye and a knowledge of abyssal history can sometimes gain worthwhile items and maps in a trade with a hydrodemon.

ENCOUNTERS

Hydrodemons accompany any creature willing to pay them for travel through the Blood Rift, acting as couriers and scouts for demon lords and explorers alike. Like most other demons of Morglon-Daar, hydrodemons are self-centered mercenaries willing to undertake almost any task for the highest bidder. Unlike other demons for hire, however, hydrodemons develop and nurture their own elaborate schemes for gaining power and fortune.

HYDRODEMONS IN COMBAT

A cunning hydrodemon is adroit at setting up ambushes to cripple or slow its enemies. Able to pounce from a distance, a hydrodemon launches its lengthy form at an enemy, hoping to keep combatants off balance or push them into nearby water. The Blood River is a hydrodemon's best ally, and few other demons challenge this toadlike creature on or alongside the river's flow.

INCUBUS

Dark-eyed strangers lurking in twilight shadows are to be avoided by young mortals, who must have the wisdom to bar their windows to handsome vagabonds calling from the street below. An incubus stalks the mortal target of its fiendish desire, shifting between forms of mortal, beast, and dream until it catches and savages its quarry.

Lore

Arcana DC 19: When he was an archdevil, Graz'zt invaded the Abyss with his infernal armies, bringing along his palace servants, retainers, and harem of succubi. By the time the Dark Prince had laid claim to his first abyssal layer, the plane's corrupting power had already begun to influence his followers. The devilish succubi were transformed into the first incubi, extending change shape to take the forms of beasts as a reflection of their newly chaotic nature.

Serving as scouts and assassins for the Dark Prince, the incubi soon became Graz'zt's primary forces in the mortal realm. In the world, their skills are uniquely shaped to the corruption and trickery that is the demon lord's forte. Although an incubus can control a mortal host at a distance, its power can be partly blocked at a site consecrated against evil. The demon thus attempts to obtain a creature's trust by inhabiting its dreams, convincing it to willingly accept the incubus's dark embrace.

Encounters

With their minds fractured, an incubus's cast-off victims serve the demon in the hope of regaining its attention and favor. Rakes, thugs, and other dissolute humanoids are often found following an incubus.

Attack: Ranged 10 (one creature); +12 vs. Will
Hit: The incubus enters the target's body and mind. The incubus is removed from play, and the target is dominated (save ends). On each of its turns, the incubus can use its move action to use one of the target's normal movement modes and its standard action to use one of the target's at-will powers. When the target saves against this effect, the incubus reappears in a square adjacent to the target or in the nearest unoccupied square.

Minor Actions

Change Shape (polymorph) ✦ At-Will
Effect: The incubus can alter its physical form to appear as a Medium humanoid or any Medium or Large beast until it attacks, until it uses change shape again, or until it drops to 0 hit points. The incubus retains its statistics in its new form. Its clothing, armor, and other possessions do not change. To assume a specific individual's form, the incubus must have seen that individual. Other creatures can make a DC 31 Insight check to discern that the form is a disguise,

Triggered Actions

Incubi in Combat

An incubus hunts the wilds in beast form, in which it might be taken for a lycanthrope or other worldly shapechanger. In humanoid form, it stalks city streets and rural crossroads, preying on the naive and innocent. An incubus targets a creature it desires, then follows that creature to its home. In dark dreams, the demon corrupts its quarry before consuming its body and soul.

IXITXACHITL

The aquatic ixitxachitls are the faithful servants of Demogorgon, dwelling throughout the natural world. These fiendish manta rays have a hunger for mortal flesh that is never satisfied.

Lore

Nature DC 17: Legend has it that Demogorgon created the manta rays when he was a primordial. The rays' loyal descendants followed him into the Abyss and were corrupted, becoming the ixitxachitls. Weak by the standards of most other abyssal creatures, these fiendish rays dwell in protected areas of the Brine Flats (page 69) and in the mortal world, where they control huge areas of ocean in Demogorgon's name.

Encounters

Though they freely ally with aquatic undead not beholden to Orcus, ixitxachitls prefer to work with their own kind. Ixitxachitls despise sahuagin, and ally with any creatures that fight the sea devils.

Ixitxachitl Demon Ray

JARRLAK

The manifestation of killing cold, a jarrlak is an implacable creature that freezes the life from its victims. These intelligent ice demons have a sadistic nature equaled only by their hunger for power. A jarrlak delights in trapping its foes in a frigid tomb, toying with them before the inevitable end.

Lore

Arcana DC 29: As devastating as a jarrlak is on the battlefield, these demons are more feared for their habit of stealing select survivors from the aftermath of combat. Dragging victims back to its ice caves, the jarrlak encases them in ice to watch them slowly expire. In a jarrlak's clutches, a mortal can linger for decades this way, enduring horrid torment. If rescued, a frozen victim appears not to have aged a day since being captured.

Encounters

As opportunists with a thirst for domination, jarrlaks ally with powerful spellcasters and demon lords that allow them to rule over specific territories. Some jarrlaks venture into the world on their own, hoping to establish personal dominions in areas of frost and snow.

Jarrlaks in Combat

A jarrlak fights methodically, engaging each of its enemies with a patient and deadly purpose. The demon uses abyssal ice to encase enemies or block off routes of escape, freezing each foe before moving on to the next.

JOVOC

This diminutive demon looks as though it might be a child or a halfling by its size. But once a traveler treads within killing range, a jovoc's dead gaze gives away its true nature. Its eyes are black pools of inky darkness bulging from its rotting skull, and its skin is charred black. Its mouth stretches into an impossibly wide grin as it sizes up its prey.

Lore

Arcana DC 21: Jovocs are spawned from the gloom and despair of the Elemental Chaos. They live to create strife, willingly serving in the vanguard of demon armies as they throw themselves against more powerful foes. Used as scouts and lookouts for demons on the march, a jovoc's presence in the world is often a harbinger of a larger invasion.

Encounters

Intelligent demon commanders recognize the value of jovocs in their forces, particularly when combined with ranged and area attacks. Jovocs rarely fight in close quarters with other creatures, since they are as likely to harm allies as enemies. Mariliths and other commanders typically lead bands of jovocs in battle, maintaining them in safe formations by threat and torture. Vrocks and other flying demons make great use of the havoc caused by a jovoc war band, staying aloft to avoid the creatures' destructive aura, then swooping down to harry opponents that try to flee the jovocs' assault.

Jovocs in Combat

Jovocs are fast, mobile ambushers that adopt a hit-and-run strategy when fighting larger foes. Although they are relatively weak in single combat, their retribution aura makes them lethally effective in groups. As each jovoc is hit, it tries to maximize the amount of damage it does to its foes, moving through the thick of combat to draw more enemy attacks.

KOSTCHTCHIE

Kostchtchie is called the Prince of Wrath for his destructive rages. Once a mighty frost giant lord and conqueror of vast stretches of the Elemental Chaos, Kostchtchie is driven to destroy by a near-mindless hatred. He has slain several lesser demon lords, and only his limited intellect has prevented him from spreading destruction across the Abyss.

Lore

History DC 33: Kostchtchie was once a king among the frost giants. With the help of the Maul of Brutal Endings, he challenged the elders of his frost giant tribe, quickly slaughtering his way to dominance.

The Prince of Wrath was said to possess an unnatural talent for leading his tribe to ancient treasures, forgotten tombs, and other locations that harbored powerful magic weapons. He and his followers traveled aboard a flying machine called the Ark of Kwalish, with which he launched a devastating raid against the City of Brass.

Kostchtchie's final act as a mortal was a daring raid against the Scalding Mountain—a volcano that rumbles in the Elemental Chaos. He and his followers defeated the devils that guarded that place. Kostchtchie alone entered the volcano's burning core in search of ancient artifacts, but he did not emerge from it. His followers scattered to the winds, and the creatures of the Elemental Chaos breathed a sigh of relief at the end of his reign.

That relief was short-lived. Soon after, Kostchtchie appeared in the Abyss, larger and more powerful than ever. The newly made demon lord quickly conquered the Iron Wastes, where huge numbers of his frost giant allies have since joined him in his citadel of ice. From there, Kostchtchie has launched a crusade against the Abyss. Three minor demon lords have already fallen to the Maul of Brutal Endings, and the Prince of Wrath grows stronger each day.

Kostchtchie in Combat

Even compared to other demon lords, Kostchtchie is an avatar of raw destruction. The former frost giant begins each battle in a howling berserker rage that grows in intensity with each injury he takes. The number of demon lords that have fallen to his maul is a testament to Kostchtchie's overwhelming ferocity. Orcus and Demogorgon are said to avoid direct confrontation with the Prince of Wrath, at least for now. Kostchtchie's rivals know that they will face a final reckoning some day, but they are content to allow him to crush lesser abyssal powers until then.

Encounters

The Prince of Wrath despises most lesser demons and other denizens of the Abyss. Frost giants, white dragons, and other creatures of elemental cold are his soldiers, his servants, and his allies.

Kostchtchie Secrets

Most folk might welcome the rise of a demon lord bent on slaughtering its own kind. But Kostchtchie is merely a pawn in a much larger game. It was Iggwilv the Witch Queen who set the frost giant king along his path to demonhood, and who continues to manipulate him. With her subtle guidance, Kostchtchie grows more powerful as he wages war against other demon lords. If he ever succeeds in conquering the Abyss, Iggwilv stands ready to snatch away the fruits of his victory.

In his youth, Kostchtchie was mocked for his capriciousness and leaden intellect. Although strong, he lacked the cunning of the most powerful berserkers of the frost giant clans. For the crime of killing one of his tormentors, he was banished from his tribe. He he wandered the frozen wastes, until one day he came across a small hut built at the base of a towering glacier.

There, Kostchtchie met the Witch Queen. Iggwilv had foreseen the frost giant's fate, but saw also that a far greater destiny lay before him. Iggwilv granted Kostchtchie two gifts—the mighty Maul of Brutal Endings, and the cacodemon essence of a slain fiend whose intellect she had corrupted.

Possessed by this powerful demonic entity in Iggwilv's control, Kostchtchie began his rise to power, compelled to obey her every secret command. At her behest, he rampages through the Abyss to challenge more demon lords, increasing his strength.

Eventually, Iggwilv believes that the Prince of Wrath will have the power to crush Orcus and Demogorgon. When that happens, Kostchtchie will command the entirety of the Abyss—at which point, Iggwilv will seize that prize from her thrall, becoming the most powerful being in the cosmos.

As yet, no one has confirmed Iggwilv's connection to Kostchtchie, though Graz'zt sees the influence of some greater intellect in the frost giant's tactics. None of the demon lords dare to challenge Kostchtchie directly. Even if the Prince of Wrath were to fall, his foe would be left weak enough that other enemies might quickly overwhelm the victor.

Kostchtchie thus grows stronger with each passing year. By banding together, the lords of the Abyss or the gods of the Astral Sea might stop him. However, by the time those always-feuding entities decide to do so, it might already be too late.

FRANZ VOHWINKEL

Kostchtchie's Cult

Kostchtchie is a relatively new demon lord, and his cults are small and limited in scope. Savage warriors of the frozen tundra pay him fealty, as do creatures that seek raw power and strength in the fury of battle. His former frost giant tribe continues to venerate him, and a growing number of hill giants, ogres, and trolls carry his symbol—a red hammer on a black field.

Kostchtchie out of Combat

Anyone unfortunate enough to encounter Kostchtchie must usually fight him, but the Prince of Wrath sometimes gives his victims a chance to speak before crushing them. Though Kostchtchie is physically powerful, he has the mind of a child, and he is prone to petulant outbursts and fits of rage. Unlike those of most children, Kostchtchie's tantrums can leave whole cities in ruins.

Kostchtchie loves flattery: Diplomacy and Bluff are excellent skills to use against his anger. Intimidate can be effective, but use a minimum DC 40 check to represent the overwhelming challenge of cowing the Prince of Wrath. When such an attempt succeeds, it wins Kostchtchie's respect with its audacity.

Kostchtchie has been known to spare creatures that amuse him. Acrobatics or History checks made to entertain the demon lord can calm his rage.

MAHATAA

These powerful mud demons are thought to have been born from elementals transformed during the first moments of the Abyss's creation. Unruly creatures that crave pure destruction, mahataas have retained much of their elemental nature.

Lore

Arcana DC 33: Fiercely autonomous, a mahataa can be bound for a short time, but it can never truly be tamed. Few mahataas can be cowed or coerced into the service of demon lords, but those that do serve make terrifying assassins and shock troops. Some scholars believe that this willful independence is a ruse, however, and more than one demon lord suspects that large numbers of its mahataa servants are actually agents, spies, and assassins for the Elder Elemental Eye.

Encounters

Although mahataas prefer fighting alongside their own kind, they are also opportunistic. The muddy creatures make short-term hunting pacts with powerful demons if doing so is the only way to reach a desirable quarry. They also pair with other elemental creatures, particularly those with an aspect of elemental stone. More often than not, such alliances end with the mahataas attacking their allies out of sheer capriciousness.

Mahataas in Combat

A mahataa swims through the mud, stone, and muck of the Abyss in constant search of prey. Hunting underground, a mahataa bursts from the earth and attacks creatures less powerful than it is. After its initial assault, the mud demon uses its superior burrowing abilities to escape into the ground again, reappearing where its prey is most vulnerable.

Though unruly and chaotic, mahataas rarely fight alone, preferring to hunt with other mahataas. While in a group, the mud creatures never give away their true numbers, with one or more remaining underground while the others attack above.

MALGODEMON

These monstrous enforcers are said to be forged of abyssal stone and raw fury, serving demons and mortals alike as mindless muscle.

Lore

Arcana DC 23: Malgodemons are slow-witted and servile, but their legendary greed makes them poor allies. A malgodemon offered a bribe is likely to abandon its master unless another less easily swayed ally is on hand to violently remind it of its allegiance.

Malgodemon Thug

A malgodemon thug's thirst for violence is equaled only by its inability to tell friend from foe.

Raavastas (see Manual of the Planes, page 136) make extensive use of malgodemons as muscle, but team them with quasits or mezzodemons to keep them in check.

Malgodemon Thugs in Combat

A thug sends foes flying with its brutal assault, then quickly finishes off prone targets.

MANE

Feeble-minded servitors with no will of their own, manes are among the lowest and most wretched of demonkind. Though they respond to their masters' commands in Abyssal, their shrieking babble only barely approximates speech. Adventurers who have faced an attack by these creatures learn to fear that shrill din.

Packs of shrieking manes are common in the front ranks of demonic forces across the Abyss and in the mortal realm—and are often the last thing inexperienced adventurers facing such an assault ever see.

Lore

Arcana DC 15: Born of chaotic filth and abyssal detritus, the weak and pitiful manes are the servants of other demons. However, these lowly creatures possess a trait greatly feared by others of their kind. Of the myriad varieties of demons in the Abyss, manes are most likely to be spontaneously consumed and reborn as demon lords (see "Spontaneous Ascension," page 15).

Knowing this, existing demon lords go to extreme lengths to keep the population of manes in check, typically by ordering them into battles they have no chance of winning. When the Blood War raged, it was common for tens of thousands of manes to be sacrificed in a single engagement. With that conflict in a state of truce, the population of manes in the Abyss has increased dramatically. Packs of manes without masters have been known to band together for security, and demon lords and their lieutenants keep a keen eye out for such creatures, dispatching them quickly.

Encounters

At the bottom of the hierarchy of demonkind, manes typically toil as slaves or are conscripted into fiendish armies. Their reputation for weakness is as well known as their ability to be commanded, and other demons use them as servants, couriers, and battle fodder, and for blood sport.

Manes in Combat

Though they are consistently slow and stupid, manes are remarkably effective in mass combat. They obey their masters without question, recklessly sacrificing themselves to assist more powerful allies.

MAVAWHAN

The vicious mavawhans once flew in great flocks in the skies above the Iron Wastes. Since the coming of Kostchtchie, they have spread across the Abyss and into the world. Mavawhans are known for their single-minded fury, and for the magic that turns their victims into statues of living ice.

Lore

Arcana DC 27: Though great numbers of mavawhans still dwell in the Iron Wastes, their numbers have steadily dwindled since the rise of Kostchtchie. The Prince of Wrath despises demonkind, and he seeks to slaughter or enslave the mavawhans at every opportunity. Those demons that remain free are more than willing to serve as guides for explorers in the Iron Wastes, and can prove invaluable in avoiding the hazards of that layer.

A creature turned to ice by a mavawhan can be cured by Remove Affliction or any other process that ends normal petrification. A victim can also be restored by being washed in mavawhan blood. This process takes thirty minutes and requires a DC 27 Arcana check.

Encounters

Mavawhans are vicious marauders that prefer to hunt and fight on their own. They have an affinity for other creatures of cold, including jarrlaks (page 120), elementals, and frost giants not in the service of Kostchtchie (page 122).

NABASSU

Where the Abyss connects to the mortal world, explorers and sages inevitably seek out the illicit power of that plane. Nabassu demons depend on this thirst for knowledge and power. Peering through the gates of the Plain of a Thousand Portals and into the natural world, nabassus strike out at explorers, sages, or hapless bystanders who venture too near those accursed passages into the Abyss.

Lore

Arcana DC 27: When Orcus was first corrupted by the Abyss, so too were a number of his elemental servants. A flight of nabassu gargoyles loyal to the former primordial were twisted into horrific forms and infused with a fraction of their lord's necrotic power. In this way, the nabassus were some of the first demons to be born.

These demons thirsted for the destruction of living things and became obsessed with finding a means to escape the eternal vortex. They yearned to enter the mortal realm, whose races would feed them as they wrought the destruction that would glorify their master. On the Plain of a Thousand Portals, nabassus discovered the means to achieve their goal. Lurking in and around the many portals of that layer, these demons were further corrupted, becoming imbued with portal energy and attuned to the connection between the Abyss and the mortal realm.

In the aftermath of the Blood War, the number of nabassus lurking in Pazunia has grown. These portal demons cross over into the mortal world with greater frequency than any others of their kind. They are feral hunters stalking the doorways between the Abyss, the world, and beyond.

See "Door Guardians and Nabassus," page 86, for more nabassu lore.

Encounters

Nabassus can be found haunting any of the multitude of passageways and portals between the Abyss and the world. They ally with any other demons or creatures that promise not to get in the way of the slaughter they seek. Nabassus remain strongly devoted to Orcus, however. When they are found far from the portals that give them power, they are typically in the company of undead and other demons serving their dark master.

Nabassus in Combat

Nabassus are drawn to the vicinity of abyssal portals and demongates, whose power fuels the defensive value of portal link. A nabassu focuses on a single combatant, using soul rip and relentlessly hounding that target. The demon uses its flight and teleportation to evade other combatants until its chosen foe falls, or until the nabassu is bloodied and can refocus soul rip on another target.

Nabassu Deathwing

A deathwing is more than just a larger version of its lesser kin. Its dark appetite can consume a victim's soul in combat, leaving its foes' husks scattered across the battlefield.

Effect: The deathwing flies 8 squares and makes an attack.

Attack: Melee 1 (one creature); +26 vs. Fortitude

Hit: Ongoing 25 necrotic damage (save ends). If the target is under the effect of the nabassu's soul devour, it instead takes ongoing 35 necrotic damage (save ends).

Soul Devour (necrotic) ✦ Recharge when first bloodied

Attack: Melee 1 (one creature unaffected by soul devour); +26 vs. Fortitude

Hit: The target loses three healing surges. In addition, until the end of the encounter, whenever the target hits and deals damage to the deathwing, the target takes 10 necrotic damage.

Triggered Actions

Variable Resistance ✦ 3/Encounter

Trigger: The deathwing takes acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder damage.

Nabassu Deathwings in Combat

A deathwing chooses the most powerful-looking melee combatant as the target of soul devour. Once it knows that this foe attacks the deathwing at its own peril, the demon then ignores it, staying in motion across the battlefield with life-stealing lunge.

OUBLIVAE

She is the Angel of the Everlasting Void, the Demon Monarch of the Barrens, and the Queen of Desolation. Oublivae stalks the empty wastelands, lurks within abandoned shrines and toppled ruins, and haunts the trackless seas and the starry void between planes and worlds.

Lore

History DC 33: It is said that the monster Oublivae crawled up to the Barrens in an unknown age, making her way into the wasteland from the bottomless ruins of that blasted realm. Her head is that of a resplendent fey queen, mounted atop a lustrous insectoid exoskeleton. When the demon lord Ugoreth espied her, he surrounded the creature with his servants and demanded servitude. In response, Oublivae told Ugoreth that she was a herald come from the heart of the Abyss with a message only for him. Blinded by his own vanity, the demon lord granted her private audience. As soon as they were alone, Oublivae attacked the hapless Ugoreth, consuming his soul and hurling his body into the bottomless ruin from which she had risen. She laid waste to his demesne, made a throne of his castle, and became undisputed Queen of the Barrens.

Encounters

Whatever the truth of her origins, Oublivae's eternal work is to divide what is united, isolate those divided pieces, and leave only barren, lifeless desolation in her destructive wake. She allies with select demon lords to limit the expansion of others' realms, helping to perpetuate the endless cycle of violence and chaos that drives the Abyss.

Oublivae's followers in the Abyss live by her example of hopelessness, stalking desolate areas, driving lost travelers to madness or cannibalism, then consuming them. Demons and undead not sworn to the service of Orcus attend the Demon Monarch of the Barrens, dedicating themselves to the ruin that is her legacy.

Oublivae in Combat

It is said that Oublivae has the mind of an ageless archfey and the heart of a rabid beast. When the demon is provoked, her royal demeanor vanishes quicker than thought, and she attacks on all fours like an animal. Driving her foes apart and imposing isolation, she hunts them down one by one.

The Queen of Desolation reveals the future to would-be heroes, allowing them to experience the ruin of their civilization and all they hold dear while she savors their abandoned hopes. She particularly relishes the grief of those enemies who die alone. Oublivae likewise delights in the horror of creatures forced to watch their allies slain and consumed, their blood lapped up by her long, ghoulish tongue.

In the cities, the most desolate slums and demolished quarters are Oublivae's haunts. In such places, anarchists, barbarians, and city corruptor demons (page 108) plot to topple the towers and walls of civilization, making new barrens of glorious cityscapes.

Oublivae out of Combat

If Oublivae has a weakness, it is her fascination for history. Her knowledge is rivaled only by that of Iggwilv, Vecna, and Graz'zt, although her own interests extend only to accounts of downfall and ruin. Nonetheless, heroes brave enough to treat with the Queen of Desolation can discover long-forgotten secrets by asking the right questions.

Oublivae Secrets

Ancient legends tell of a legendary astral domain called the Coruscating Utopia—a glittering realm where the ultimate potential of every city in the cosmos was reflected in perfection. Its ruler was named the Lord of the Diamond Crown, and he proclaimed it the pinnacle of the universe's grandest dream. The legend states that an angel appeared from a void in the Astral Sea, warning the lord of the evils of his vanity.

When the lord asked whose authority she spoke with, the angel drew forth her sword and slew him where he stood. His vast shimmering realm collapsed and fell into the lightless void from whence the angel had come. It became the Barrens, the distorted realm of the 100th layer of the Abyss, where every city past and future lies ruined among its desolate wilds and vast oceans.

Iggwilv suspects that the despoiler of the Coruscating Utopia and Oublivae might both be personifications of the seed of absolute evil that lies at the heart of the Abyss—its incalculable chaos manifesting as a semblance of life and thought.

RALPH BEISNER

Oublivae's Cult

In the world, Oublivae's subjects are the peoples of the barren places—savage humanoids, pirates and outlaws, headhunters and cannibals. They paint and tattoo their skin in imitation of the graven spirals on the demon queen's body. For her glory, they consume the blood and flesh of other humanoids to gain strength and power.

PAZUZU

One of the oldest and most reprehensible demon lords, Pazuzu is a master manipulator and corruptor of mortal souls. The Dark Angel of the Four Winds takes great delight in offering aid that seems beneficial, but which in fact leads to great evil and suffering.

Lore

Arcana DC 33: Pazuzu lusts after innocence, purity, and honesty more than anything else, and the mortal world is a perfect breeding ground for this precious fruit. The demon lord takes from his victims all that makes them pure, then fills their hollow souls with bitterness and cruelty. When not scouting the mortal world for his next conquest, Pazuzu can almost always be found on the 1st abyssal layer—the Plain of a Thousand Portals.

With his attention focused outward from the chaotic scheming of the Abyss, Pazuzu has not garnered many foes among the other abyssal lords. His only true enemy is Lamashtu, Demon Queen of Monstrous Births, though Pazuzu only barely considers this former consort a threat. Long ago, she betrayed the Winged Prince. As punishment, Pazuzu ate out her eyes and imprisoned her in his former realm of Torremor, the 503rd layer of the Abyss. There, the wretched and deformed hag suffered, eventually gaining the power to seize Torremor as her own. The Prince of the Lower Aerial Kingdoms now watches in amusement as Lamashtu (still bound by his dark magic) scrapes for influence and position from that remote abyssal backwater.

Encounters

Beyond his secret alliance with Asmodeus and the Queen's Conclave, Pazuzu commands the respect and loyalty of all evil creatures that fly in the abyssal skies. Though his rule of Pazunia is unquestioned, it is said that Pazuzu's influence extends in secret to aerial kingdoms throughout the Abyss.

Pazuzu seldom travels alone. His personal guard is known as the Six Wings of Pazrael—a formidable troop of balor-led vrocks skilled at reconnaissance and assassination.

Pazuzu in Combat

Pazuzu rarely engages in direct combat, though his abilities make the demon lord a formidable opponent. The plague of abyssal locusts that surrounds him keeps melee and ranged attackers at bay while he spreads his pestilence across the battlefield. The demon lord delights in dominating his most powerful foes, forcing them to cut down their own allies in his name.

Pazuzu Secrets

Pazuzu is secretly an obyrith lord—one of a handful of ancient entities that predate the formation of the Abyss. Trapped in the crumbling ruins of a universe he and his kind destroyed long ago, it was Pazuzu's idea to create the shard of evil that lured Tharizdun into creating the Abyss. (See "History of the Abyss," page 7.)

Pazuzu (in his incarnation as Pazrael; see "Pazuzu's Cult" below) was also one of the generals who aided the fallen angel Asmodeus in the battle that claimed the life of his god. Pazuzu saw this as his chance to aid in the greatest corruption of all—the transformation of a faithful servant into an enemy of the gods. His aid was instrumental in Asmodeus's victory, and it remains a secret known only to Asmodeus and the obyrith lord. Pazuzu's support came at a cost—an as-yet unnamed boon still owed by the archdevil.

Pazuzu was instrumental throughout the last age in fomenting the Blood War, using his secret alliance with Asmodeus to ensure that devils and demons remained evenly matched in that endless conflict. Both Asmodeus and the Queen's Conclave (see "The Obyriths," page 7) used the chaos of the Blood War as a cover for the same goal—to locate and harness the eldritch might of the seed of evil at the Abyss's heart.

Pazuzu's Cult

Unlike most other demon lords, Pazuzu is able to manifest freely in the mortal world. Over millennia, he has perfected the craft of seducing mortals to his will without attracting the attention of the gods that protect them. In ancient texts, the names Imdugud, Pazrael, and Typhon are associated with a benevolent entity that protects against pestilence and blesses childbirth. Folk that call on this entity have their prayers consistently answered, remaining blissfully unaware that these benevolent spirits are avatars of Pazuzu. As word of his beneficence spreads, whole communities soon become unwittingly dependent on the demon lord's aid.

Invariably, folk touched by Pazuzu form new cults dedicated to his teachings. These people do not see themselves as evil, even as their search for blessings inevitably leads them to vile acts committed for the sake of their new master. As they spread the power of their dark patron by tempting others to ask for his aid, these thralls of Pazuzu never learn the demon lord's true identity.

Pazuzu out of Combat

If a creature utters Pazuzu's name or any of his aliases three times in succession, an unholy link between the speaker and the demon lord is established, working over any distance and across the planes. For a short time, Pazuzu can examine the speaker's thoughts to discern whether the caller seeks aid or is trying to trap him. If he wants to and is able to, Pazuzu can appear in the speaker's location. The demon lord almost always agrees to provide aid, but his assistance comes at a steep price.

In game terms, a typical call for aid from Pazuzu can take the form of gaining a free action point, restoring a character to life or to full hit points, recharging an expended power, or some other benefit of the DM's choosing. In exchange for this boon, Pazuzu requires a creature to swear utter obedience for a week or more—and takes full advantage of this service.

PHRAXAS

Master of Khin-Oin and nominal ruler of the Blood Rift, Phraxas the Decayed commands considerable power and authority. To the demons of the rift and the Wasting Tower, he is the Lord of Misery and Despair—worshiped in fear and revered as a god.

Phraxas appears as a gaunt, ghoulish creature draped in moldering gray robes. His skin is covered with ulcers and oozing pustules, and his eyes glow red from deep in their sockets.

Lore

Arcana DC 33: Phraxas was not the first master of Khin-Oin, and he has held control of the Wasting Tower more than once. Though he reclaimed the great throne known as the Siege Malicious only a century ago, Phraxas has ruled Khin-Oin for nearly three millennia all together, far longer than any of his predecessors.

Since resuming power, Phraxas has worked tirelessly to complete two primary objectives: recovering a legendary artifact known as the Staff of the Lower Planes, and completing the construction of the Tower of Incarnate Pain on the boundary of the Blood Rift and Pazunia. A project started under his predecessor Mydianchlarus, the tower is designed to channel power between itself, Khin-Oin, and the ancient Tower of the Arcanaloths on the Plain of a Thousand Portals. This flow of abyssal energy is intended to trigger a planar nexus, channeling virtually unlimited power into the Siege Malicious.

See "The Blood Rift" (page 50) and "The Wasting Tower" delve (page 88) for more information on the rift, Khin-Oin, and Phraxas.

Encounters

Though he trusts no one, Phraxas maintains a small circle of baernaloth viziers as his personal guard. Baernaloths are tall, gaunt demons with horned heads resembling the skulls of rams or cattle. Their glazed eyes run with sickly yellow fluid and their gray skin is stretched tight across their bones. It was through their invaluable service that Phraxas was

Phraxas in Combat

The forces of Khin-Oin are at Phraxas's command, but the master of the Wasting Tower seeks any opportunity to face off against foes in direct combat. A paragon of sadism even among his own kind, Phraxas commands his baernaloth viziers to spread their attacks around—inflicting maximum pain but stopping short of killing their opponents. Knowing that few creatures apart from deities and other demon lords can challenge him, Phraxas relishes using vile compulsion to command enemies to attack their own allies. A master tactician, the demon lord always has backup forces and escape plans at the ready.

Phraxas Secrets

Phraxas spent the better part of the last age hunting down and slaying those demon lords he considered rivals to his claim for Khin-Oin, assuming the guise of other demon lords to accomplish his assassinations. Amassing power as he went, the Lord of Misery then marched on the Wasting Tower and challenged its master, Mydianchlarus, for control of the Siege Malicious. Though Mydianchlarus was slain, Phraxas was thwarted in his attempt to wholly destroy his hated foe. The Sepulcher of Mydianchlarus (page 50) now lingers as a burning reminder of Phraxas's broken reign.

Phraxas's Cult

As a hallmark of their faith, mortal servants of Phraxas are afflicted with diseases that give them a ghoulish, disfigured appearance. Cultists gather in dark shrines called conventicles, where they perform rituals and blood sacrifices in their master's name. Phraxas's cultists revile health, youth, beauty, and innocence, and creatures that possess such qualities are rarely found among the demon lord's followers. Cult priests, known as degogs, dress in crimson robes with black hoods and sashes. The most favored of Phraxas's mortal servants are raised to the station of archdegog, and they are occasionally chosen to serve as the vessel for one of Phraxas's aspects.

Phraxas out of Combat

Supplicants seeking boons or favors of Phraxas journey to the Wasting Tower by the thousands. These faithful are dealt with by the demon lord's archdegogs and viziers. His fear of challenge means that Phraxas spends his time guarding the Siege Malicious, meeting with only a small circle of his most trustworthy followers. Other creatures that come face to face with the demon lord find themselves engaged in combat in short order.

PISCODEMON

The demons of the Blood Rift serve as mercenaries and hirelings to the highest bidder. Mezzodemons and derghodemons form the vast bulk of such military forces, under the control of a vicious officers' corps made up of piscodemons. Cruel and sadistic, piscodemons lord over their weaker followers, although they are subservient and fawning in the presence of more powerful creatures.

Lore

Arcana DC 23: Piscodemons are masterful tacticians, capable of planning and executing battles with the skill of the best mortal generals. Unfortunately for their allies, they are also grasping, ambitious creatures that frequently allow their greed to get the better of them. They are easily bribed and can only rarely turn down the opportunity to betray a hated rival. Savvy characters facing a piscodemon-led force can sometimes alter the course of a battle by finding a way to turn the piscodemon against its masters.

Encounters

Piscodemons fight for any creatures that can afford their services, as they surround themselves with lesser creatures they can lord over. A piscodemon might agree to work for a mortal master in return for a powerful magic item or other treasure, but a piscodemon typically grows bored of extended service and disposes of its master.

Piscodemon Level 14 Controller (Leader)

Traits

☼ Demonic Rally (Healing) ✦ Aura 3
Any bloodied demon that ends its turn within the aura regains 5 hit points.

All-Around Vision
Enemies can't gain combat advantage by flanking the piscodemon.

Standard Actions

⊕ Claw ✦ At-Will
Requirement: The piscodemon must not have two creatures grabbed.
Attack: Melee 1 (one creature); +19 vs. AC
Hit: 2d8 + 6 damage, and the target is grabbed.

⸸ Writhing Tentacles (poison) ✦ At-Will Attack: Melee 1 (one creature grabbed by the piscodemon); +19 vs. AC
Hit: 2d8 + 6 poison damage, and the target takes ongoing 10 poison damage and is weakened (save ends both).

⚚ Vision of Madness (psychic) ✦ At-Will
Attack: Ranged 20 (one creature); +17 vs. Will
Hit: 3d6 + 6 psychic damage, and the target is slowed (save ends). In addition, the target makes a melee basic attack as a free action against a target of the piscodemon's choice.

✲ Writhing Ground (zone) ✦ Recharge ⚄ ⚅
Attack: Area burst 1 within 10 (creatures in burst); +17 vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d10 + 6 damage, and the target is slowed (save ends). The burst creates a zone that lasts until the end of the encounter. Any creature that starts its turn within the zone is slowed (save ends).

Triggered Actions

✧ Bloodied Wail (fear, thunder)
Trigger: The piscodemon is first bloodied.
Attack (Free Action): Close burst 3 (creatures in burst); +17 vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d8 + 6 thunder damage, and the piscodemon pushes the target 5 squares.

Variable Resistance ✦ 2/Encounter
Trigger: The piscodemon takes acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder damage.
Effect (Free Action): The piscodemon gains resist 15 to the triggering damage type until the end of the encounter or until it uses variable resistance again.

Piscodemons in Combat

With their strong sense of tactics, piscodemons are commonly found in command of companies of lesser demons. A piscodemon prefers to unleash vision of madness from the back of the battle, although its powerful claws and poisonous tentacles make it equally dangerous in close combat.

QUARRAK

It is said that the savage quarraks are spawned in pairs, and that if one dies, its twin perishes within a few days. These matched demons argue with each other constantly as they wreak chaos and destruction in the manner of their kind. If they cannot find a more suitable target for their violence, quarraks turn on each other.

Lore

Arcana DC 27: The quarraks' small size leads demons and mortals alike to assume that they are weak. However, these potent warriors have overwhelmed numerous enemies that failed to appreciate their threat. With little ambition of their own, quarraks are used as shock troops by numerous demon lords, gathered together in large groups that can quickly overwhelm an opposing force. Quarraks are insatiable eaters that consume for no reason other than the thrill of gluttony. When a battle is won, they consume the dead, leaving nothing but rent armor and shattered weapons behind.

Quarrak Tactics

If the quarrak flanks with another quarrak, it gains a +3 bonus to attack rolls for the flank instead of the normal +2. If the quarrak flanks with its twin, it gains a +4 bonus to attack rolls instead of +2. If the quarrak hits a target for which it has this +4 flanking bonus, the target is stunned until the end of the quarrak's next turn.

Encounters

Quarraks respond only to fear, and they fear only demons more powerful them themselves. On rare occasion, quarraks ally with evil clerics or warlocks in the mortal realm, as long as those characters provide them with numerous opportunities to feed. Masters that fail to do so typically end up on the menu.

Quarraks in Combat

Quarraks travel in pairs that make up even-numbered groups of combatants. A quarrak is hard to pin down, shifting constantly to keep close to its twin in combat. Twins attack together whenever possible, gaining devastating advantage when they flank.

RAGEBORN

These apelike demons have become numerous in the Iron Wastes since the ascension of Kostchtchie. Numerous kinds of rageborn exist, each with diverse abilities, but all rageborn are servitors of the Prince of Wrath. As befits this status, rageborn are creatures of raw fury, their battle cries infused with the dark will of their lord.

Lore

Arcana DC 25: Great howling storms swept the Iron Wastes when Kostchtchie first seized that layer. In each storm's wake emerged a horde of rageborn—the first ever seen in the Abyss. These demons' absolute subservience to the Prince of Wrath has come to reflect his control over the wastes, and Kostchtchie and his frost giant followers lend rageborn to his cults in the world. Many more have wandered through hidden gates in the Iron Wastes, wreaking havoc in whichever lands they pass to.

Rageborn Frosthurler

Frosthurlers are no less savage in melee than their more powerful rageborn kin. They excel at lashing out at targets from across the battlefield, crippling them with abyssal cold as the frosthurlers' allies close in.

| Rageborn Frosthurler | Level 17 Artillery |

Rageborn Frosthurlers in Combat

The frosthurler is more intelligent than other rageborn, but its tactics are just as violent. The demon lobs ice bolts until it is bloodied, after which it flies into a rage with melee attacks against the nearest foes.

Rageborn Barbclaw

The rageborn barbclaw delights in cutting a destructive swath through its foes. Creatures struck by a barbclaw cannot defend themselves in battle, quickly falling to the demon and its allies.

Rageborn Barbclaws in Combat

A barbclaw unleashes choking vapors to weaken its initial targets, then strikes repeatedly with barbed claw. As long as foes are weakened and slowed, the barbclaw moves from target to target.

DAVE ALLSOP

| Rageborn Barbclaw | Level 17 Soldier |

Traits

Savage Marking

While a creature marked by the barbclaw is adjacent to the barbclaw, it grants combat advantage.

Standard Actions

Barbed Claw ✦ At-Will

Attack: Melee 1 (one creature); +22 vs. AC

Hit: 3d10 + 9 damage, and the target is marked and slowed (save ends).

Choking Vapors (poison) ✦ Recharge ⚅

| Speed 6, climb 4 | Darkvision |

Traits

Combat Advantage

The rageborn ambusher deals 2d6 extra damage against any creature granting combat advantage to it.

Standard Actions

Slashing Claw ✦ At-Will

Attack: Melee 1 (one creature); +23 vs. AC

Hit: 3d8 + 8 damage, and the ambusher slides the target 1 square. The ambusher then shifts 1 square as a free action.

Abyssal Fire (fire, zone) ✦ Recharge ⚄ ⚅

Attack: Close blast 5 (creatures in blast); +21 vs. Reflex

Hit: 4d8 + 8 fire damage, and the blast creates a zone. Any creature that enters the zone or ends its turn there takes 10 fire damage. At the start of the demon's turn, roll a d20. On a result of 15 or higher, the zone ends.

Move Actions

Leaping Ambush ✦ At-Will

Effect: The rageborn ambusher jumps 4 squares. This movement does not provoke opportunity attacks.

Triggered Actions

Variable Resistance ✦ Encounter

Trigger: The ambusher takes acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder damage.

Effect (Free Action): The ambusher gains resist 10 to the triggering damage type until the end of the encounter.

Rageborn Ambushers in Combat

Though no more intelligent than other rageborn, an ambusher possesses more tactical instinct as it coughs up abyssal fire to limit the movement of its foes. An ambusher stays in motion, avoiding opportunity attacks with slashing claw and leaping ambush.

Rageborn Horror

A brute that lives only to destroy, the rageborn horror exemplifies the rageborns' reputation for savagery. A rageborn horror's voice alone can knock foes off their feet.

| Rageborn Horror | Level 19 Brute |
|---|---|
| Medium elemental humanoid (demon) | XP 2,400 |
| HP 222; Bloodied 111 | Initiative +14 |

| Speed 6, climb 4 | Darkvision |

Traits

Reckless Charger

When charging, the rageborn horror gains a +2 bonus to speed and deals 2d6 extra damage if it hits with the charge attack.

Standard Actions

Rending Claw ✦ At-Will

Attack: Melee 1 (one creature); +24 vs. AC

Hit: 3d8 + 16 damage, and the target takes ongoing 10 damage (save ends).

Horrid Bellow (force) ✦ Recharge when first bloodied

Attack: Close blast 5 (enemies in blast); +22 vs. Will

Hit: 4d12 + 7 force damage, and the rageborn horror pushes the target 3 squares and knocks it prone.

Triggered Actions

Variable Resistance ✦ Encounter

Trigger: The rageborn horror takes acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder damage.

Effect (Free Action): The rageborn horror gains resist 10 to the triggering damage type until the end of the encounter.

Rageborn Horrors in Combat

A rageborn horror is all but unstoppable in battle, attacking with single-minded ferocity. Charging into the fray, a horror lacks the cunning to do anything more than repeatedly lash out at the nearest targets, or to let loose with a horrid bellow if surrounded. Easily goaded into a fight, rageborn horrors are predictable in only one situation. When marked, a horror ignores other enemies to strike at the foe that dares to challenge it.

Encounters

The rageborn do not seek out allies. Instead, stronger demons and mortals force them into service with threats of violence, magical compulsion, and promises of fresh meat.

RUIN DEMON

The shuddering corpse splits, spilling out black flies grown fat on rotting flesh. Though these vermin might appear to be ordinary insects at first glance, each bears an approximation of a human face. Slowly they swarm, gathering into a solid form—a mockery of the creature that birthed them.

Lore

Arcana DC 25: The first ruin demons emerged from the Brine Flats of the Gaping Maw in the realm of Abysm (page 68). These creatures reproduce through masses of insectoid eggs laid in the corpses polluting that sea. Their black swarm clouds hover over its blighted shores, stalking the dim borders of the Screaming Jungle and feasting on whatever creatures they find there. The frequent storms that savage the Gaping Maw limit this demon's numbers. But the abyssal winds can also carry ruin demon swarms into other layers and through portals to the mortal realm.

| Swarm | |
| The ruin demon swarm can occupy the same space as another creature, and an enemy can enter its space, which is difficult terrain. The swarm cannot be pulled, pushed, or slid by melee or ranged attacks. It can squeeze through any opening that is large enough for at least one of the creatures that comprise it. | |
| Standard Actions | |
| ⊕ Vile Swarm ✦ At-Will | |
| Attack: Melee 1 (one creature); +19 vs. Reflex | |

Ruin Demon Encounters

With no natural allies, ruin demons devour any creatures they encounter—including other demons. They have no taste for plant life, however, and corrupt treants and similar creatures establish themselves within the protection of a ruin demon infestation. Ruin demons consume the flesh of undead creatures, but they sometimes follow insubstantial and skeletal undead to take advantage of the carnage they create.

Ruin Demons in Combat

The ruin demon attacks the nearest enemy, flowing over the target as a vile swarm that fills eyes, mouth, and ears. A victim that succumbs to the ruin demon's vile infestation becomes the swarm's puppet, flailing about under fiendish control.

RUTTERKIN

RUTTERKINS ARE LOWLY DEMONS born from the lowlier manes. The malformed body of a rutterkin arises spontaneously from a dead mane, shrieking with the pain of its grotesque birth. Hideous even by demonic standards, these tormented abominations live only to destroy.

LORE

Arcana DC 17: Rutterkins are the epitome of the horror that is the life of a demon. Crippling pain wracks these creatures, driving them into a permanent murderous rage. Their only recourse is destruction, and the hope for death in combat that might end their suffering.

Rutterkins are unique among demons in that their anguish sometimes leads to a greater transformation. Rutterkins that distinguish themselves with their thirst for destruction and a history of brutal kills tap into the chaotic essence of the Abyss, undergoing a rebirth into a greater demon of a random type. A demon that has been a rutterkin never recovers from that experience, and it will resort to any means to seize and hold power.

ENCOUNTERS

Rutterkins are combat fodder, taking the field alongside hordes of manes (page 126) and other lesser demons. They are bullied and controlled by their captains, including bulezau shock troops (page 107) and armanite cavalry (page 104).

RUTTERKIN FOOT SOLDIER

The rutterkin foot soldier lives only for battle, throwing itself against its foes with one simple goal. Destroy all creatures that oppose it, or end its miserable life by dying in the attempt.

RUTTERKIN FOOT SOLDIERS IN COMBAT

A rutterkin lurches into battle, wailing in pain as it lashes out with snap-tong and bone barb. Its foes try in vain to avoid the creature's fearful gaze, which can leave the strongest combatants reeling. A rutterkin's weapon of choice is the snap-tong. This short polearm ends in a sharp spike that has one or more crescent-shaped pincers used to grab victims.

SCION OF ZUGGTMOY

Few demons are stranger than these servants of the Lady of Decay—each a creature of reeking flesh and fungi born of Zuggtmoy's horrid Gardens of Rot. Demons captured by her followers are buried alive in the gardens, transforming and then rising as scions of Zuggtmoy.

Lore

Arcana DC 21: Zuggtmoy once commanded legendary armies of powerful, demonic creatures made of fungi and rotting flesh. The power of the Lady of Decay has since waned, as has the strength of her servants. Her scions are ultimately disposable, and Zuggtmoy's more intelligent servants have no compunction about destroying these demons in the course of an attack against a stronger foe.

Most scions of Zuggtmoy are created in one of the demon queen's Gardens of Rot. However, scions can also propagate on their own by infecting the corpses of mortals and demons they destroy using their spores, greatly increasing the strength of Zuggtmoy's armies. As in the Garden of Rot, the type of scion created with spores reflects the nature of the host creature in life.

Of all the demon lords, Zuggtmoy is the most likely to send her scions into the world. She views them as key to winning the support of mortal followers—an integral part of her plots to overcome her enemies and reclaim her former power.

Encounters

Scions act as front line troops for more powerful demons dedicated to Zuggtmoy (page 156), and as bodyguards and enforcers for the leaders of her cult in the world. Large mobs of scions also wander the Abyss, the survivors of skirmishes between Zuggtmoy's followers and her enemies. Masterless scions may attack any creatures that draw near, but they may also suddenly break off in the middle of a battle and ignore all other creatures unless attacked.

Scion of Zuggtmoy Overgrowth

Some demons are incapable of accepting defeat or loss, even in death. When such a creature is planted in a Garden of Rot, it becomes a mass of fungal tendrils that threaten to overwhelm any enemies within reach.

The scion of Zuggtmoy overgrowth regains 5 hit points whenever it starts its turn and has at least 1 hit point.

Standard Actions

Grasping Tendrils ✦ At-Will
Attack: Melee 2 (one creature); +13 vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d6 + 4 damage, and the target is grabbed.

Pulling Tendrils ✦ At-Will
Attack: Ranged 5 (one creature); +13 vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d6 + 4 damage, and the overgrowth pulls the target 3 squares.

Fungal Growth ✦ Encounter
Attack: Melee 2 (one creature grabbed by the overgrowth); +13 vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d10 + 7 damage, and the target takes ongoing 10 damage and is restrained (save ends both). The target cannot escape the overgrowth's grab until it saves against this effect.
Miss: The scion of Zuggtmoy overgrowth regains the use of this power.

Grasping Slime ✦ Encounter
Attack: Close burst 1 (creatures in burst); +13 vs. Reflex
Hit: The target takes ongoing 10 damage and is immobilized (save ends both).

Scion of Zuggtmoy Overgrowths in Combat

When not attacking the nearest creature, an overgrowth chooses its targets from the musty memories of its most hated foes in its past life. It hounds a chosen target relentlessly, attempting to envelop and consume the foe within its slimy tendrils.

Scion of Zuggtmoy Infector

Cowards and deserters rise from a Garden of Rot as infectors, possessed of deadly tendrils with which they enforce Zuggtmoy's will.

Scion of Zuggtmoy Infectors in Combat

The destroyed mind of an infector maintains a shadow of its former incarnation's cowardice, inspiring it to keep a safe distance from enemies. An infector directs its allies to strike against creatures suffering the effect of horrid rot, hoping to drop dangerous foes as quickly as possible.

Scion of Zuggtmoy Spore Lord

Creatures known for their creative and inventive minds rise from a Garden of Rot as spore lords. These powerful scions of Zuggtmoy constantly reform themselves as a shifting mass of spores.

Scion of Zuggtmoy Spore Lords in Combat

A spore lord treats combat as an elaborate game, flowing across the battlefield as it ignores any attempts to hold it back. Whichever opponent seems most vexed by its antics becomes the focus of its attacks.

SESZRATH

Cast out from the vilest pits of darkness in the Abyss, the seszrath is a horrible monstrosity composed of fused corpses and demonic essence. The ravening madness of this undead demon manifests as a never-ending desire to feed.

Lore

Arcana DC 29: Though they do not require food for sustenance, seszraths are driven by the perverse pleasure of hunting, slaying, and consuming sentient prey. It is thought that the first seszraths were created during the birth of the Abyss. However, little is known of these creatures. In particular, how they continue to spawn and from what matter they are created is a source of conjecture. Some believe that new seszraths are continually spawned by an undiscovered demon lord—perhaps an unknown primordial who manipulates the power of undeath as an affront to Orcus. Others believe that seszraths are born of a gate between the Abyss and the Shadowfell, thought to exist at the deepest levels of both planes.

Encounters

Few creatures fight alongside seszraths, since they are as likely to attack allies as enemies in the heat of battle. Seszraths are typically found only in the company of other seszraths or in service to more powerful demons such as balors and glabrezus. Many demon lords maintain forces of these creatures in the Abyss. Some have also been known to send seszraths to the mortal realm to destroy the cults of their enemies.

Seszraths in Combat

Seszraths are brutal frontline fighters, oblivious to danger as they take the battle to the enemy. Their tactical sense extends no further than smashing into the nearest and largest group of foes. A seszrath ignores its allies as those creatures circle around to pounce on foes laid low by its vicious throw. It is typically too consumed by recklessness to focus on slaying its foes, delaying its consume attack until after it is bloodied.

SHAADEE

Shaadees are the risen manifestations of humanoid spellcasters who pledged their souls to the lords of the Abyss. After toiling for their demonic masters in life, these wretches discover that death does not end their servitude.

Lore

Arcana DC 27: Shaadees are spawned from powerful spellcasters—wizards, sorcerers, warlocks, and others who offered their services to powerful demons to increase their own power. Such spellcasters use their dark knowledge to enslave lesser creatures, sow chaos within civilized lands, and acquire vast wealth and power. When a spellcaster bound to a demon dies, however, it becomes a shaadee—an undead demonic slave eternally serving the abyssal lord its mortal soul was pledged to.

Despite their status as slaves of their demon lord, some shaadees regain a measure of their mortal power. By serving its master loyally, a shaadee might be granted a kind of freedom—allowed to return to the world as a hideous reflection of its living self, as long as it continues to advance its master's agenda.

Encounters

Shaadees shackled to the will of a demon lord serve under that lord's lesser demonic servants. Groups of shaadees fight alongside glabrezus or balors sent on missions of destructions across the planes. If released from a demon lord's servitude and allowed to return to the mortal realm, a shaadee quickly gathers servants that remind it of its former life. Apprentice wizards and warlocks, the clerics of evil gods, and intelligent undead can be found in a shaadee's service.

Shaadees in Combat

Having already experienced death, a shaadee knows no fear. It flies over its enemies as combat begins, seeking a powerful warrior or leader to dominate. It then descends into the midst of melee, using withering burst to send foes flying if it is overwhelmed. The shaadee isolates melee targets with night's embrace as it alternates shadow claw and mind grab, howling as it taunts its foes.

SIBRIEX

When Tharizdun plunged the shard of evil into the heart of the Elemental Chaos, he freed the last of the obyriths from their decaying universe. The most powerful of those creatures became demon lords, even as the lesser members of their kind were absorbed by absolute corruption as the Abyss was born. The demons known as sibriexes were spawned from clans of obyrith slavers, savants, and flesh crafters. They haunt the Abyss and the planes beyond, dedicated only to increasing their own power.

Lore

Arcana DC 31: Like the obyriths from which they are spawned, sibriexes are creatures of an alien universe. Demonologists argue over what motivates these mad creatures, but the inner workings of the sibriex mind might never be known. Regardless, their chaos manifests as a thirst for the subjugation, transformation, and destruction of all other creatures. The other demons with which the sibriexes are now kin they regard as raw material for their experiments.

Encounters

The sibriex are arrogant creatures that have no equals among their allies. They are found either as the lords of lower-level thralls, or under the dominion of a powerful demon lord. Even when serving a more powerful master, a sibriex seeks out any opportunity to free itself, growing increasingly ruthless and cruel in the process.

Sibriex Chain Master

Hovering over the wasted abyssal landscape, the sibriex chain master appears as an enormous, deformed head that seems to be tethered to the ground by heavy chains. As it approaches, panic sets in among its foes, a nameless revulsion shattering their resolve.

◀ The target is cured.

◀▶ Initial Effect: The target's body warps to take on a demonic form, as determined by the DM. The target loses a healing surge that it cannot regain until cured of the disease. In addition, the target takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls that target demons.

The target's body continues to warp, losing almost all semblance of its original form. The target loses two more healing surges that it cannot regain until cured of the disease. In addition, whenever the target hits a demon with an attack, the target takes 15 psychic damage.

▶ Final State: The target becomes a free willed sibriex spawn. Special: This final state occurs if the target progresses to it normally, or if the target dies while infected with flesh warp

Sibriex Spawns in Combat

These misshapen spawn surge ahead of their more powerful allies in battle. They trust in their aura of fear to sow chaos, waiting for the attack that reduces them to an explosion of deadly bile.

SPAWN OF JUIBLEX

The Faceless Lord spawns uncountable children, which congeal into formless shapes of burbling ichor. The spawn of Juiblex live for purposes unknown even to themselves, fighting and dying to be reabsorbed and live again in the name of their demon lord.

Lore

Arcana DC 21: It is thought that Juiblex did not always have spawn, and that the proliferation of these oozes is a sign of his growing power. Juiblex shapes the essence of the multitude of creatures that he has consumed over long centuries to create new life. The spawn of Juiblex are living extensions of the Faceless Lord. They are reabsorbed into Juiblex when they finally fall, to be used in the creation of new spawn.

Encounters

Oozes of every kind lurk and feed within the pits of filth where the spawn of Juiblex are found. Aboleths and otyughs are likewise drawn to these servants of the Faceless Lord both in the Abyss and in the world. In the mortal realm, spawn are commonly found in the service of the cults that worship Juiblex.

Ooze Horror

A giant blob of sentient filth, the ooze horror is a living embodiment of primeval chaos. Deep within its thousand eyes flickers a sinister cunning.

Ooze Horrors in Combat

An ooze horror's myriad eyes inspire its fearful infestation as it closes in for the kill. Attacking its foes in both body and mind, the ooze horror envelops and consumes all creatures that stand before it.

Sludge Dredges in Combat

Their lack of intelligence makes sludge dredges exceptional and expendable soldiers. They throw themselves into battle knowing that their deaths are only temporarily, and that they are one with the Demon Lord of Slime's unspeakable will.

TOMB DEMON

Forged of bone and imbued with the powers of death and decay, tomb demons are spawned in the mass graves and former battlegrounds of the Abyss. Although each tomb demon differs in its abilities, they share a similar form. Their long fangs and serpentine, skeletal bodies—which resemble a humanoid and a snake horrifically fused—are a terrifying sight.

Lore

Arcana DC 21: Tomb demons arose in the aftermath of a great battle between Orcus and Sylbarax, an exarch of Zehir known as the Green Death. Sylbarax entered the Abyss, renounced his allegiance to his dark god, and became a demon lord. His reign was short-lived. Orcus assembled a vast host of demons and undead to destroy Sylbarax and the serpentine servants he had drawn to his side.

The first tomb demons were created when the remains of Sylbarax's followers were imbued with the necromantic power commanded by Orcus. Tomb demons have since spread across the Abyss and beyond. Rumors hint that these creatures continue to crawl from Sylbarax's festering corpse, lost in the uncharted reaches of the deep layers. The Jewel of Gharan, an artifact still sought by Zehir, supposedly rests in Sylbarax's dead grasp.

Encounters

In the Abyss, tomb demons ally with others of their kind and with servants of Orcus. In the world, tomb demons serve the leaders of Orcus's cults.

The cultists of Zehir take great pride in summoning and controlling these demons, as a final rebuke of Sylbarax's treachery. Haagenti (see "Garavond," page 76) and Zuggtmoy have also both managed to force tomb demons into their service.

Tomb Demon Constrictors in Combat

A constrictor focuses on one or two lightly armed targets, ignoring attacks from other creatures as it crushes victims in its writhing coils. Only if its chosen victims escape does a constrictor slither into melee. It attacks with writhing coils again as soon as a target presents itself.

VORACALITH

The voracalith is the most gluttonous of all demons, content to wander the Abyss devouring anything that crosses its path. Tales are told of whole legions of demons that misjudged the appetites of a voracalith pack and paid the ultimate price.

Lore

Arcana DC 25: These insatiable fiends are legendary for their ability to devour anything, and strange treasures and objects can be found inside them. Inorganic matter—from short swords to enormous stone idols—settles in a voracalith's stomach, remaining there until the creature is killed and cut open.

DAVE ALLSOP

Encounters

Voracaliths have no interest in alliances, but demon lords bind them to use as shock troops and raiders. Since voracaliths are too dense to follow complex orders, their masters use fresh meat to lure them to a battleground or a desired target.

Voracaliths in Combat

Voracaliths rarely display tactics any more clever than moving toward the nearest group of living creatures and eating as many of them as possible. These ravenous demons are drawn by numbers. They focus on creatures clustered together, their tentacles dragging prey to their ever-hungry maws.

WENDIGO

Nearly all the cultures of the world feature prohibitions against cannibalism—a crime against the laws of nature and the gods. A mortal that commits cannibalism creates a spiritual gateway to the Abyss, through which the dreaded demon known as the wendigo can travel. Once it reaches the world, a wendigo warps the cannibal's soul and body, turning into a flesh-eating monster that reflects the madness of the Abyss.

Lore

Nature DC 23: Not all mortals that commit cannibalism draw the attention of a wendigo to themselves. Those that do, though, are bound within the wendigo's form until the demon is slain.

For a mortal that consumed forbidden flesh out of desperation or dark need, existence as a wendigo is a never-ending nightmare. Trapped in that demonic form, the creature's consciousness endures only enough to maintain awareness of its hunger and the number of sentient creatures it has slain. For mortals that indulge in cannibalism by choice, the curse of the wendigo can become a blessing. A wendigo created from a willing host maintains more of its former knowledge, and can use that knowledge to seek bloody retribution against old enemies.

Encounters

Wendigos are solitary creatures whose madness drives them to inhabit desolate lands. These demons sometimes hunt in the company of dire animals, worgs, and owlbears (see the Monster Manual), as well as other wild creatures that share their ravenous appetites. A wendigo that leads such a hunting pack trains its servants over time, using them to great effect as it harries its quarry.

Wendigo Manhunter

An unfamiliar scent is carried on the wind, and the trackers become skittish. This far from civilization, their imaginations spawn phantoms—a fleeting shape stalking ever closer, reaching out, whispering their names.

Wendigo Soulcatcher

As a wendigo consumes mortal flesh, it grows in power. When a wendigo becomes a soulcatcher, it takes mad pleasure not only in slaying, but in temporarily bestowing its curse on the creatures that fear it. ## Wendigo Soulcatchers in Combat

The soulcatcher seeks out a weak-willed creature in combat, inflaming that victim with cannibal's bite. The wendigo revels in the shrieks of the dominated creature's victims, taking as much pleasure from their terror as from the sustenance the unwilling cannibal's attack provides.

Wendigo Primal Spirit

The oldest wendigos possess a hunger that drives them to consume their own flesh in a grisly feast of self-destruction. Wandering the world as an demonic shade, a wendigo primal spirit is doomed to endlessly slay the creatures it once called kin, but to never slake its hunger on their flesh.

Wendigo Primal Spirits in Combat

A primal spirit's hunger drives it into the thick of combat, where it has little to fear from blades and arrows. Theft of flesh allows the primal spirit to replenish its strength, but it must eat vicariously with hunger born from fear, temporarily forcing its cannibalistic madness into its foes.

YAGNODEMON

Creatures that see a yagnodemon for the first time often assume that it is crippled or infirm. Its left arm is long and powerfully built to match its menacing stature. Its right arm is shortened—weak and withered as if by some grievous injury. Creatures take advantage of this apparent weakness at their peril.

Lore

Arcana DC 23: Yagnodemons can be found across the Abyss and the mortal realm. Most of these demons, however, dwell in the abyssal city of Morglon-Daar (page 52). Though not the most powerful demons in that settlement, yagnodemons serve as enforcers, with the power to banish or execute any creatures that threaten the city's stability. The yagnodemons of Morglon-Daar are the closest thing that chaotic realm has to a force of law, and the justice they mete out is swift and deadly.

Ancient legends tell of how these demons were created in the earliest days of the Abyss, spawned from a race of aquatic humanoids in service to a primordial named Throan. Throan ventured into the Abyss and was slain by Dagon. Before he died, he cast his spirit into his servitors.

These slender creatures were transformed into the first yagnodemons by their master's death and the taint of the dark realm they were spawned in. Their right arms are all that remain from their original form.

Encounters

In the Abyss, yagnodemons typically serve other demons as guards and enforcers. Isolated bands of yagnodemons can also be found traveling remote reaches of the Blood Sea or the Abyss's other watery realms. Yagnodemons found in the world have typically been bound into servitude by mortal spellcasters. Unlike many summoned demons, these warriors respect the power of a master whose goals allow them to wield power of their own. A yagnodemon sometimes continues its service in the mortal realm after the ritual that bound it has ended.

Yagnodemons in Combat

A yagnodemon establishes control of a situation through brutal displays of force. It focuses on the most powerful foe with abyssal harpoon, holding it immobilized as it strikes again and again. When that foe falls, the yagnodemon turns to its less powerful allies, hoping to see them flee in the face of its rage.

ZOVVUT

Zovvuts were once angels in the service of the Chained God Tharizdun. Fleeing into exile when the Abyss was born and their dark master was imprisoned, these demons have been tainted by eons of servitude to their lost master.

Lore

Arcana DC 25: In the millennia before the Chained God's imprisonment, zovvuts were angels of corruption serving the darker deities. When Tharizdun was cast into the bottomless maelstrom of the Abyss, the zovvuts broke with their many masters to pledge allegiance to the ultimate corruption of the Chained God. In the eons since, they have sought in vain for their lost master. As they seek his hidden prison, the zovvuts believe they can hear the voice of Tharizdun, whispering to them in tormented visions.

In a mockery of their divine origins, zovvuts maintain the distinct physiology of their angelic ancestry. They delight in exploiting their appearance to mislead and corrupt priests of the mortal world.

Encounters

As servitors of the Chained God, zovvuts have few allies. Despite their utter corruption by the Abyss, zovvuts are viewed as divine creatures by most demons, and are shunned as a result. In the remote deep layers of the Abyss where the zovvuts search for Tharizdun's prison, they sometimes band together with other demonic exiles, but rarely for long.

EVA WIDERMANN

Zovvuts are commonly found serving the cults of the Elder Elemental Eye. As long as Tharizdun remains unable to communicate with his disciples, the Chained God's mortal followers venerate zovvuts as heralds and keepers of Tharizdun's divine will.

Zovvuts in Combat

Zovvuts count on intimidation to keep them out of combat. When forced to fight, a zovvut waits at the periphery of melee for the right moment to fly in with its brutal melee attacks and crippling gaze. Zovvuts maintain an angelic eldritch mantle that protects them early in combat. That protection fails when they are bloodied, driving a zovvut to greater savagery.

ZUGGTMOY

The Lady of Decay. The Queen of Rot. The Harbinger of Inevitable Doom. The demon lord Zuggtmoy is subtle and patient compared to her more powerful rivals. With a limited appeal to the mortal races, she delights in raising false cults to carry out her bidding, and in subverting the worship of other beings to gain followers. As the Lady of Decay, she takes pleasure in transforming beliefs step by slow step, rotting away the core of a peoples' faith until her own faith has been wholeheartedly embraced.

Lore

Religion DC 29: As befits her title, the Lady of Decay exults in destroying her foes from the inside out. She targets religious orders, cults, and arcane cabals—particularly those dedicated to rival demon lords and good-aligned gods. Unfortunately for Zuggtmoy, her love of treachery and deceit has almost proved her undoing more than once. Legends tell of how she commanded her followers to support the Temple of the Elemental Evil as a front for her worship. In truth, her actions played into the hands of Tharizdun. The Chained God's agents infiltrated Zuggtmoy's own cults and seized the power she sought. With the temple's fall, she was imprisoned and greatly weakened. Though she has since escaped, she remains one of the least powerful demon lords.

Zuggtmoy was nearly slain by Kostchtchie early in the frost giant demon lord's campaign against the Abyss, and much of her domain of Shedaklah was destroyed in that confrontation. The Lady of Decay now fights Juiblex for control of Shedaklah, even as rumors spread of great treasures to be found there—items looted by Kostchtchie and cast aside in his retreat. Adventurers, demons, and other planar travelers now prowl the rotting wastes that are home to the Lady of Decay. All seek to pick through the ruins while she regains her strength—or before her fall allows another demon lord to take her place.

Encounters

Throughout her existence, Zuggtmoy has surrounded herself with mortals who seek power and strength through the magic she offers, as well as legions of demons she has gathered to her side in the Abyss. However, her recent failures have led her more powerful allies to abandon her, leaving Zuggtmoy with armies of lower-level demons and weak humanoid servitors. The scions of Zuggtmoy (page 142) and other fungus creatures of the Abyss retain their abject loyalty to the Queen of Rot, having no other demon lord to follow.

☼ Aura of Rot ✦ Aura 5
Enemies within the aura take a –4 penalty to Fortitude, a –2 penalty to saving throws, and lose any resistance or immunity to poison.

Standard Actions

⊕ Rotting Touch ✦ At-Will
Attack: Melee 2 (one creature); +22 vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d10 + 9 damage, and ongoing 10 damage (save ends).
Each Failed Saving Throw: The ongoing damage increases by 5.

Blinding Spores (poison) ✦ At-Will Attack: Close blast 5 (creatures in blast); +22 vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1d10 + 5 poison damage, and the target is blinded (save ends).

Zuggtmoy's Kiss (charm) ✦ Recharge ⚄ ⁞⁞
Attack: Melee 2 (one creature); +25 vs. Will
Hit: The target is dominated and takes ongoing 20 damage (save ends both).
Each Failed Saving Throw: The ongoing damage increases by 10.

Minor Actions

Rotting Doom (necrotic, poison, zone) ✦ At-Will Attack: Close blast 3 (creatures in blast) or area burst 1 within 20 (creatures in burst); +26 vs. Fortitude
Hit: 15 poison damage, and the blast or burst creates a zone that lasts until the end of the encounter. The squares within the zone are difficult terrain for Medium and smaller creatures. Any enemy that enters the zone or ends its turn there takes 15 necrotic damage. Zuggtmoy can have as many as five zones of rotting doom active at the same time. For each additional zone she creates beyond five, Zuggtmoy ends one existing zone of her choice.

Free Actions

Minions of Decay (poison)
Effect: When Zuggtmoy creates a zone of rotting doom, roll initiative for the zone. On each of its turns, a zone makes the following attack.
Attack: Close burst 1 centered on the zone's origin square (creatures in burst); +24 vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1d10 + 10 poison damage, and the target is restrained (save ends).

Triggered Actions

Variable Resistance ✦ 3/Encounter
Trigger: Zuggtmoy takes acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder damage.
Effect (Free Action): Zuggtmoy gains resist 25 to the triggering damage type until the end of the encounter or until she uses variable resistance again.

Zuggtmoy in Combat

In battle, Zuggtmoy floods the area around her with spores, blinding and debilitating her foes. She saves Zuggtmoy's kiss for her most powerful enemies, forcing them to attack their own allies as their bodies rot away.

Zuggtmoy Secrets

The Lady of Decay is a patron of poisonous fungi, and she shares those organisms' hardiness and ability to spread unseen. Though she remains weak, she is by no means without weapons. After the setback she suffered at the hands of Tharizdun's cult, Zuggtmoy set to work on a risky scheme—one that would either leave her ruined or possessed of power to rival that of Orcus or Demogorgon. Digging deep into her most ancient research, she engineered a pact with Haagenti, Demon Lord of Alchemy. The result of this foul alliance was the creation of a strain of fungus that spreads like a disease among living creatures.

The fungus—known as brittle cough—causes an infestation of mold in the victim's lungs. What starts as a hacking cough turns into labored breathing and, eventually, suffocation. Zuggtmoy's remaining cultists now spread infestations of brittle cough in towns and settlements across the world. After a short time, the fungus causes its victims to expel its spores to infest nearby creatures. With each cough, an infected creature spreads more spores.

Once the sickness reaches a peak, the cult of Zuggtmoy—in the guise of a primal cult dedicated to the spirits of the natural world—offers a cure. With this influx of unwitting converts, Zuggtmoy hopes to regain the power she has lost.

Zuggtmoy's Cult

Despite her setbacks, the Lady of Decay's cult flourishes in the world, most commonly in the wilds where primal cults are at their strongest. Zuggtmoy whispers her dark secrets to ambitious druids, barbarians, and other wielders of primal power, offering her dark magic to characters willing to subvert the natural order.

Zuggtmoy's followers include debased elves, bullywugs, and isolated human tribes that have devolved into inbreeding and madness. Her cult's most notable practice involves the burial of human sacrifices in the muddy soil of a bog. Left with a thin, leather tube to grant it air, a sacrifice is fed a thick gruel of spore-laden fungus that slowly transforms it into a fungus creature loyal to the Lady of Decay. A sacrifice's muffled screams sometimes serve as warnings to those who draw too close to such a site. See "The Garden of Rot," page 38, and "Scion of Zuggtmoy," page 142.

Zuggtmoy out of Combat

Zuggtmoy is desperate to avoid any setbacks in her quest for power. If confronted by a powerful group, she is willing to bargain. Any arrangement or alliance that seems likely to work to her benefit gains Zuggtmoy's support—particularly at the expense of another demon lord or Lolth, her hated enemy. If a group of adventurers is clearly stronger than she is, Zuggtmoy begs for mercy, even offering to serve her enemies in exchange for her life. Of course, the Lady of Decay quickly and inevitably does whatever she can to turn such servitude to her benefit. From a position of safety, she hopes to secretly divide her enemies, turning them against each other through treachery and deception.

ZYTHAR

Zythars take point position in front of their balor master in a charging demonic horde. The other demons fear the zythars—a fear that the balors are happy to exploit as they drive their servants on.

Lore

Arcana DC 31: The zythar were spawned millennia ago by a balor legion whose members sought to seize control of the abyssal layer of their lord. Instilled with the destructive fury of their masters, zythars were given power over abyssal flame and infused with an insatiable appetite for combat. When the balors' rebellion failed, the zythars were claimed by the victorious demon lord, and they have since spread across the Abyss. Zythars do not care whom they serve. They live only to see other creatures burn, howling with dark laughter as their enemies are consumed by abyssal fire.

Encounters

Among demonkind, only creatures with effective immunity against fire feel no fear at the approach of a zythar. Zythars serve balors and other powerful demons, but they are rarely found in freely made alliances. Outside the Abyss, zythars are known to work with azers and fire giants, as long as such alliances allow them to unleash the destructive potential of their living flames.

Zythars in Combat

A zythar hovers above the battlefield, laying down abyssal flamebursts to contain its foes. It concentrates tendrils of flame and flame bolt against opponents at the edge of the fray, using fiery slam to stay away from enemies that close for melee. A zythar drops to the ground and fights with renewed vigor once bloodied, knowing that curse of the balor will create a lasting reminder of its fury.

Introduction

Staunch protector, saver of lives, formidable foe, and worldly representative of the gods—all of these are roles filled by divine characters. Their special connections with the deities and other forces of the cosmos give them a suite of powers and abilities—as well as responsibilities—that make them indispensable in the continual struggle to advance the causes of righteousness and justice. Those who attain the highest levels of accomplishment literally do ascend, becoming entities not unlike the deities they worship and emulate.

Divine Power™ is a tome that broadens the choices available to those who follow the dictates of a deity. In its pages are new ways to build a divine character, along with new options to fill out your role as an avenger, a cleric, an invoker, or a paladin.

Using This Book

As you can see by the table of contents, Divine Power is organized by class. Whether you have a character of a particular class or you want to make a character of that class, all you have to do is consult the proper chapter for new class features, builds, powers, and paragon paths. The final chapter of the book contains a large section on divine domains, dozens of new feats, ten divine-themed epic destinies, several new rituals, and information on deities and divine backgrounds that will deepen your role-playing experience.

D&D Insider: Some of the material in this book was originally featured in articles in Dragon™ magazine, part of D&D™ Insider. It's compiled here, along with plenty of new information, for easy reference at your game table. When you subscribe to D&D Insider, you get access to hundreds of pages of content like this—new powers, feats, and inspiration to make your D&D® game more fun, and to make you a better player. Your D&D Insider subscription also gives you tools like the D&D Character Builder, the easiest way to create and maintain your character at any level. Visit www.dndinsider.com to learn more.

Reimagining Your Character

It happens. You've played your divine character a while, and suddenly Divine Power shows up, offering many new possibilities—options you might have picked if you had known about them earlier.

Don't despair; you have a few choices. Retraining rules (see page 28 of the Player's Handbook®) make tapping into Divine Power easy. If retraining won't do the trick quickly enough, talk to your DM about reworking your character along the lines Divine Power provides. Chances are you can overhaul your PC to match your desires without doing any harm to the campaign. Your DM might even have a way to make the change a part of the story. If doing that ultimately proves too difficult, a dramatic exit for the older character could make way for a new one.

CHAPTER 1

Avenger

"Messenger, enforcer, assassin—in time I might walk each of these paths. I go as I am called, and let the wicked tremble at the sound of my footsteps."

You are an agent of divine justice. It is your task to guard the innocent, to stand watch in the shadows, to censure your deity's foes with sacred power, and to lay them low with your weapon no matter where they hide. The enemies of your god reign unchecked throughout the world; there is much to be done.

Avengers rely on their zealous piety to see them through their battles, employing oath of enmity and Avenger's Censure to destroy their foes. The Censure of Pursuit and the Censure of Retribution are described in Player's Handbook 2. This chapter introduces the Censure of Unity. If you choose this version of Avenger's Censure, you don't focus on chasing after your enemies or driving them away from your chosen foe. Instead, you specialize in powers that bring enemies to meet judgment at your hand one at a time. Through the Censure of Unity, your attacks against your chosen foe gain strength when your allies are nearby, giving you the ability to dispatch foes quickly who arouse your wrath.

This chapter includes material for avengers who choose the Censure of Unity, as well as for other avengers.

- New Class Feature: The Censure of Unity, a new version of Avenger's Censure, rewards you for cooperating with your allies.
- New Build: As a commanding avenger, bring the power of your friends to bear against your sworn enemy.
- New Avenger Powers: Almost a hundred new avenger powers for you to choose from, including powers suitable for the Censure of Pursuit, the Censure of Retribution, and the Censure of Unity.
- New Paragon Paths: New avenger paragon paths are introduced, including the favored soul, the relentless slayer, and the watchful shepherd.

WILLIAM O'CONNOR

NEW CLASS FEATURE

When you choose your Avenger's Censure, you can choose the Censure of Unity instead of another option, such as the ones in Player's Handbook 2.

Censure of Unity: You gain a +1 bonus to damage rolls against your oath of enmity target for each ally adjacent to that target. The bonus increases to +2 at 11th level and +3 at 21st level.

NEW BUILD

Player's Handbook 2 features the isolating avenger and the pursuing avenger. This chapter adds the commanding avenger, who becomes even more formidable when allies enter the fray against his or her foe.

Commanding Avenger

The commanding avenger build is based on the Censure of Unity. Once you have sworn your oath of enmity, you hope to surround your oath of enmity target with as many of your allies as possible. If the enemy seeks to flee, your powers enable you to compel it to face you. Alone you are powerful, but fighting alongside your comrades you are vengeance incarnate. Like other avengers, you should make Wisdom your highest ability score. Intelligence should be your second highest, followed by Dexterity.

Suggested Class Feature: Censure of Unity*

Suggested Feat: Weapon Focus

Suggested Skills: Athletics, Perception, Religion, Stealth

Suggested At-Will Powers: *bond of censure, overwhelming strike

Suggested Encounter Power: *pass at arms

Suggested Daily Power: *strength of many

*New option presented in this book

NEW AVENGER POWERS

The new powers presented in this chapter supplement those already available to avengers. Many of the powers support the Censure of Unity, but the broad range of powers here provides useful options for any avenger.

Level 1 At-Will Prayers

Bond of Censure — Avenger Attack 1

You compel your enemy to come forward and face judgment.

At-Will ✦ Charm, Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will. If the target is your oath of enmity target and no enemies are adjacent to you, you can make two attack rolls and use either result.
Hit: You pull the target a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier. If the target ends this movement adjacent to you, it takes 1d10 radiant damage.
Level 21: 2d10 radiant damage.

Leading Strike — Avenger Attack 1

You show an ally how to hit your foe where it hurts.

At-Will ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Wisdom modifier damage. One ally adjacent to you or to the target gains a bonus to his or her next damage roll against the target equal to your Intelligence modifier.
Level 21: 2[W] + Wisdom modifier damage.

Level 1 Encounter Prayers

Compelling Blade — Avenger Attack 1

Your weapon weaves a subtle trap, locking your enemy's steps to yours.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Wisdom modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, the first time an enemy enters a square adjacent to you on its turn, you can shift 1 square as a free action and then slide the target 1 square into the space you left.
Censure of Retribution: The distance of the shift and the slide equals your Intelligence modifier, but after the slide, you must be adjacent to the target.

AVENGER ORIGINS

The avenger class describes an origin for members of the class outside the normal expectations of a god's worshipers. What's true for your avenger? Did you learn your skills from a recognized religious organization, a breakaway sect of heretics, or a version of the religion thought to be extinct? How do leaders of the faith view you? Are you a hero to them, a trusted servant, a misguided fool, or a dangerous free thinker? What do you think of other faithful? Are they like family to you, or do they seem like blind sheep deaf to the truth? How do you see your own actions? Is your killing a necessary evil, a grim but righteous duty of the faithful, or a tribute to your deity?

Day's First Light — Avenger Attack 1

You envelop your foe in a burning shroud of light. If the foe moves, the brilliance scorches it.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Melee touch
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d8 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage. If the target willingly moves before the start of your next turn, it takes 5 + your Wisdom modifier radiant damage.

Pass at Arms — Avenger Attack 1

Your strike creates an opening that you or a nearby ally can use to change position. If you take advantage of the opening, you can force your foe to move.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Wisdom modifier damage. You or an ally adjacent to the target can then shift 1 square as a free action.
Censure of Unity: If you shift, rather than your ally, you can slide the target into the space you left.

Relentless Attack — Avenger Attack 1

Your attacks drive the enemy away, and no matter where it goes, you are not far behind.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Wisdom modifier damage. You push the target 2 squares and then shift 3 squares to a square adjacent to it.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Wisdom modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, you gain a +2 power bonus to all defenses against attacks made by creatures other than the target.

Speed and Stillness — Avenger Attack 1

You move in a blur, and your strike places a glowing sigil above your enemy. The sigil's strength flows back to you if that enemy moves.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: Before the attack, you shift 1 square.
Censure of Pursuit: The number of squares you shift equals your Dexterity modifier.
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Wisdom modifier radiant damage. If the target moves on its turn before the end of your next turn, you gain 5 temporary hit points.

For the DM: Avengers in the Campaign

You might want to have the avenger represent more than just a class in your campaign setting. With no great stretch of the imagination, you could create an organization made up of, or led by, avengers. Then, depending on the classes, alignments, and deities the PCs choose, the characters could be friends or foes of that group.

Your avenger organization might be made up of knights fighting to reclaim their holy land or a territory that they believe is rightfully theirs. With such a motivation, avengers could come across as heroes or villains. The avengers could also be a clandestine group working behind the scenes, undermining governments or working against greater evils and trappings than the typical political rivalries of nations.

You might encourage a PC to incorporate his or her background into this organization. Perhaps the character is an agent working to keep an eye on the other PCs or to guide them toward certain paths. Or maybe she is trying to recruit the other PCs for the organization's purposes. Or, perhaps the character is trying to escape the organization, hoping to start a new life free of duty or expectations.

Level 17 Encounter Prayers

Accept No Defeat — Avenger Attack 17

Single-minded pursuit is usually your strength, but prayers, like plans, can be phrased with fallback maneuvers.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Wisdom modifier damage.
Miss: You shift 1 square and make a melee basic attack against a different creature, with a +4 bonus to the damage roll.

Lethal Intercession — Avenger Attack 17

Spiritual echoes of your weapon surround your foe, confounding its attacks.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Wisdom modifier damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.
Censure of Pursuit: When you use this power against your oath of enmity target, the power is reliable.
Special: This power can be used as an opportunity attack against your oath of enmity target.

Punishing Blow — Avenger Attack 17

Your sworn enemy and all who stand with it must answer to you now.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Wisdom modifier damage. If the target is your oath of enmity target, each enemy adjacent to the target also counts as a target of your oath of enmity until the end of your next turn.

Vengeful Parry — Avenger Attack 17

You parry your enemy's attack and make a riposte infused with holy power.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Immediate Interrupt Melee 1
Trigger: An enemy adjacent to you hits or misses you
Target: The triggering enemy
Effect: The target takes a -2 penalty to the attack roll. Make the following attack against the target.
Censure of Unity: The penalty to the target's attack roll equals your Intelligence modifier.
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Wisdom modifier damage. You shift 1 square and then slide the target 2 squares to a square adjacent to you.

Wrathful Charge — Avenger Attack 17

You dash across the battlefield, gaining momentum from each attack against you, until you slam into your enemy with your weapon.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee 1
Effect: You gain phasing and a +4 bonus to AC against opportunity attacks until the end of your turn. You then charge and make the following attack in place of a melee basic attack.
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Wisdom modifier damage. The attack deals 2 extra damage for each opportunity attack made against you during the charge movement.
Censure of Retribution: The extra damage for each opportunity attack equals your Intelligence modifier.

Level 19 Daily Prayers

Blade of Astral Hosts — Avenger Attack 19

You stride into the midst of your enemies, laying about with your weapon. For each foe you strike, a celestial blade forms alongside your own, lending might to your final attack.

Daily ✦ Divine, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Effect: Before the primary attack, you teleport 5 squares.
Primary Target: Each enemy in burst
Primary Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Wisdom modifier damage.
Effect: You teleport 5 squares and make a melee secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature adjacent to you
Secondary Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Wisdom modifier damage, plus 2 damage for each enemy hit by the primary attack.
Miss: Half damage.

Bonded by Blood — Avenger Attack 19

Your attack forges a bond between you and your enemy.

Daily ✦ Divine, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4[W] + Wisdom modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Whenever the target moves, you can teleport to a square adjacent to it as a free action after its movement is complete. This effect lasts until the end of the encounter or until you end your turn not adjacent to the target.

Flame Unquenchable — Avenger Attack 19

Your prayer sets your weapon ablaze with blue fire. A single thrust transfers the flames to your foe.

Daily ✦ Divine, Fire, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Wisdom modifier damage, and ongoing 10 fire damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 fire damage (save ends).
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, the target takes a -1 penalty to saving throws against ongoing damage. The penalty worsens by -1 for each creature taking ongoing damage within 10 squares of the target.

SERVING MULTIPLE MASTERS

You can choose one god for your avenger to follow, but there's no reason why your character must champion only a single deity. You might serve the whole pantheon as a weapon against the primordials and others who oppose the immortals, or you could worship a particular pairing or group of gods based upon common cause.

Perhaps you despise slavery and tyrants, and as such you pray to Avandra for luck and Sehanine for stealth as you seek to bring your foes down. You might see yourself as the hand of fate and look to both Ioun and the Raven Queen for what the future should hold. Maybe you strike out in the dark parts of the world, hoping to bring the triune light of civilization, craft, and knowledge, serving Erathis, Ioun, and Moradin. Perhaps your dragonborn avenger puts faith in the might of dragons and pays homage to both Bahamut and Tiamat. You might believe in protecting others from dangerous knowledge and pray to both Sehanine and Vecna, believing that some secrets are better left kept. Your righteous wrath might be directed against undead with the blessings of both Pelor and the Raven Queen. It could be that you take strength from the pristine wilderness, and thus you follow Melora and Kord.

Serving more than one deity gives you more role-playing options. You have more sources for made-up adages, more imagined religious rites you might perform, and more than one lens through which to view the world and express your perspectives. Having multiple deities also increases your opportunities to make a personal mark on the story of the campaign. If your avenger has more than one deity's cause to care about, you'll have more chances to bring those different causes into focus during adventures.

Stroke of Doom — Avenger Attack 19

You brandish your weapon, seeking to drag your foe toward you with divine force. Failing that, you leap to the foe. Either way, your weapon is charged with lethal power.

Daily ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: You pull the target to a square adjacent to you.
Miss: You shift 5 squares to a square adjacent to the target.
Effect: Make a melee secondary attack against the target if it is adjacent to you.
Secondary Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Wisdom modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Level 22 Utility Prayers

Refuge of Piety — Avenger Utility 22

You clear your mind and magically slough off impediments.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Move Action Personal
Effect: You make a saving throw against each effect on you that a save can end. You shift 1 square for each save.

Seeker's Step — Avenger Utility 22

They might hit you once, but you'll be damned if they'll do it twice.

Daily ✦ Divine, Stance, Teleportation
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you are hit by an enemy's melee or ranged attack, you can teleport 10 squares to a square adjacent to your oath of enmity target as an immediate reaction.

Shield of Providence — Avenger Utility 22

Uttering a quick prayer, you partially leave the physical realm for a moment and channel the power of your foe's attack into your own.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: An enemy hits you with an area or a close attack
Effect: You become insubstantial until the end of your next turn. In addition, your next attack before the end of your next turn deals 2d10 extra damage.

Level 23 Encounter Prayers

Chains of Fate — Avenger Attack 23

As you attack, you mystically bind your sworn enemy's fate to yours, causing it to share your injuries.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Wisdom modifier damage. Until the start of your next turn, you take half damage from any source and your oath of enmity target takes the other half.

Excoriating Challenge — Avenger Attack 23

Your holy symbol glows red as you curse your foes. The might of your rebuke hurls away nearby creatures but brings your chosen foe before you for judgment.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant, Teleportation
Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: You teleport the target 5 squares to a square that is farther away from you. If the target is your oath of enmity target, it instead takes 4d10 + your Wisdom modifier radiant damage, and you teleport it to a square adjacent to you.

Fearsome Fury — Avenger Attack 23

Nothing clarifies your objective better than the terror in your enemies' eyes.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fear, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Wisdom modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, when the target makes any attack roll, it takes a penalty to that attack roll equal to the number of your allies adjacent to it.
Censure of Unity: The penalty equals the number of your allies adjacent to the target + your Intelligence modifier.

Threatening Strike — Avenger Attack 23

Your strike knocks your foe aside, and any hope it has of escaping is dashed when it finds your weapon in its face.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3[W] + Wisdom modifier damage, and you slide the target 2 squares. If the target moves before the start of your next turn, you can teleport to a square adjacent to it and make a melee basic attack against it.
Censure of Retribution: Until the end of your next turn, you gain a bonus to your basic attacks' damage rolls equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Vengeful Apparition — Avenger Attack 23

The touch of your weapon sends your foe reeling in terror, and you become ghostly, able to walk through walls and soar through the air.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fear, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3[W] + Wisdom modifier damage, and you push the target a number of squares equal to your Wisdom modifier and knock it prone.
Effect: You gain phasing and a fly speed of 6 until the end of your next turn.
Censure of Pursuit: The fly speed equals 6 + your Dexterity modifier.

Victory Hymn — Avenger Attack 23

You hum a hymn about a time when war will not be needed. But for now, you seek to end the fight as the victorious survivor.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Healing, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Wisdom modifier damage. Before the end of your next turn, you gain a bonus to your next attack's damage rolls equal to your Wisdom modifier.
Effect: If this attack reduces the target to 0 hit points or if you have reduced your oath of enmity target to 0 hit points during this encounter, you can spend a healing surge and make a saving throw.

Level 25 Daily Prayers

Amber Prisons — Avenger Attack 25

When you pull your hand away from your enemy, it leaves behind an amber sigil from which shines an eerie light. Those touched by its glow become encased in amber sarcophagi.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Melee touch
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 5d8 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage, and the primary target is immobilized (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the primary target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.
Effect: Make a secondary attack that is a close burst 1, using the primary target's space as the origin square.
Secondary Target: Each enemy in burst other than the primary target
Secondary Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: You slide the secondary target 3 squares, and it is immobilized until the end of your next turn.
Miss: The secondary target is slowed until the end of your next turn.

Drawn by Fate — Avenger Attack 25

Two shimmering portals appear, drawing you or your enemy to find your fate.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Teleportation
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: You teleport the target to a square adjacent to you.
Miss: You teleport to a square adjacent to the target.
Effect: Make a melee secondary attack against the target using your weapon. In addition, the target is drawn by fate (save ends). Until this effect ends, you can teleport the target to a square adjacent to you as a minor action.
Secondary Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Wisdom modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Mantle of the Astral Champion — Avenger Attack 25

As you attack, your prayer bestows on you the mantle of the astral champion, allowing you to fly like an angelic being.

Daily ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Wisdom modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain phasing and a fly speed of 6, and you can hover.

WHOM TO HUNT?

The avenger walks a dark path of retribution and punishment. Yet with some deities it might be difficult to figure out whom the avenger seeks to censure. When the deity is as fair-minded as Bahamut or as kind as Pelor, what role does your avenger fill? Below are some suggestions for the types of individuals or groups that an avenger devoted to a certain deity might obsess about.

Avandra: Asmodeus worshipers, cheaters, people complacent in the face of evil, slavers, Torog worshipers

Bahamut: Bullies, chromatic dragons, liars, Tiamat worshipers, unjust leaders

Corellon: Drow, fomorians, Lolth worshipers, those who destroy beauty, those who destroy magic

Erathis: Demons, Gruumsh worshipers, overzealous worshipers of Melora, revolutionaries, those who destroy the works of civilization, uncivilized peoples

Ioun: Those who destroy knowledge, those who destroy magic, those who promote ignorant ideas, Vecna worshipers

Kord: Cowards, those who possess strength but fail to use it, those who dissemble or employ subterfuge instead of direct confrontations, those who gain strength by making others weak

Melora: Aberrants, overzealous worshipers of Erathis, Gruumsh worshipers, cultists of Yeenoghu

Moradin: Cultists of primordials, "deviant" dwarves such as azers or duergar, those who leech off others' labors, traitors

Pelor: Shadar-kai, those who cause undue suffering, the causes of famine and disease, undead, Vecna worshipers

The Raven Queen: Cultists of Orcus, those who seek to prolong life beyond its natural end, undead, Vecna worshipers

Sehanine: Asmodeus worshipers, zealots of any kind, those who destroy love, Zehir worshipers

Thunderhead Smite — Avenger Attack 25

You present your holy symbol with a shouted prayer, causing a shock wave to scatter your foes, and thunder crashes over an enemy that remains behind.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: You push the target 3 squares.
Effect: One enemy adjacent to you takes 10 thunder damage for each target hit. If no enemy is adjacent to you, you regain the use of this power.

Level 27 Encounter Prayers

Anvil of Faith — Avenger Attack 27

Summoning strength from your comrades' courage, you deliver a mighty blow that tosses your enemy across the battlefield.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Wisdom modifier damage, and you push the target a number of squares equal to the number of your allies adjacent to it. The target takes 5 damage for each square it enters during the forced movement.
Censure of Unity: The target is knocked prone at the end of the forced movement.

Brilliant Halo — Avenger Attack 27

As you hurl divine light at your enemy, a scintillating halo appears above you. Any enemy that approaches is burned in its glow.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Healing, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d6 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage. Until the end of your next turn, any enemy that ends its turn within 5 squares of you takes 5 radiant damage, and you regain 5 hit points.
Censure of Retribution: Your Intelligence modifier is added to the damage and healing caused when an enemy ends its turn within 5 squares of you.

Hand of Silver — Avenger Attack 27

Your hand shines with a silvery light as you touch your enemy, preventing its escape.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Melee touch
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d12 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage, and the target is restrained until the end of your next turn.
Censure of Pursuit: The attack deals extra radiant damage equal to your Dexterity modifier.

Spark of Hatred — Avenger Attack 27

There is a spark of hatred in every foul creature, and in many fair ones. The power of your oath fans that spark, quick and lethal.

Encounter ✦ Charm, Divine, Implement
Minor Action Ranged 5
Target: One enemy that is not your oath of enmity target
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: The target is dominated until the start of your next turn. Until this domination ends, the target can attack only your oath of enmity target.

Level 29 Daily Prayers

Cataclysmic Duel — Avenger Attack 29

Mighty shock waves resound around you and your enemy. Each exchange of blows sends roiling tendrils of destruction across the battlefield.

Daily ✦ Divine, Thunder, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 7[W] + Wisdom modifier thunder damage, and the target takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls against you (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever the target hits you, it chooses one of your allies within 5 squares of you or within 5 squares of the target. That ally is knocked prone. In addition, whenever you hit the target, you choose an enemy other than the target within 5 squares of you or within 5 squares of the target. That enemy is dazed (save ends).

Divide and Condemn — Avenger Attack 29

You stride instantly to your enemy and set your hand upon it, speaking a prayer of condemnation. Nearby enemies are scattered by your power.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant, Teleportation
Standard Action Melee touch
Effect: Before the attack, you teleport 10 squares.
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 7d8 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You teleport each enemy adjacent to the target 10 squares.

Eye of the Hurricane — Avenger Attack 29

You inhale and draw your enemies close, using their energy to deliver a thunderous attack against the object of your malice.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close burst 3
Primary Target: Each enemy in burst
Primary Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: You pull the primary target 3 squares, and it is deafened (save ends).
Effect: Make a melee secondary attack using your weapon.
Secondary Target: One adjacent creature
Secondary Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 6[W] + Wisdom modifier damage, plus 5 thunder damage for each enemy adjacent to you.

Impaling Summons — Avenger Attack 29

Channeling the fury of the gods, you compel an enemy to fling itself onto your weapon.

Daily ✦ Charm, Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Effect: You pull the target to a square adjacent to you, then make the following melee attack against it.
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 6[W] + Wisdom modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

March of Doom — Avenger Attack 29

You command your foe to march to the place where you intend for it to die, and then send your allies to slay it there.

Daily ✦ Charm, Divine, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: One creature in burst
Effect: You slide the target 5 squares and teleport to a square adjacent to it. You then slide each ally in the burst 5 squares to a square adjacent to the target. Then you make the following melee attack against it.
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Wisdom modifier damage, and you knock the target prone.

Merciless Nemesis — Avenger Attack 29

As you attack, you appoint yourself the nemesis of your chosen foe. Where you go, it must follow.

Daily ✦ Divine, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Wisdom modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever you hit your oath of enmity target with an avenger attack power, you can teleport 5 squares and then teleport your oath of enmity target to a square adjacent to you.

Ardent Champion

"The fires of heaven inflame my soul. I am a sword in the hand of my god. Death means nothing to me!"

Prerequisite: Avenger, Censure of Pursuit class feature, oath of enmity power

Most avengers undergo training in secret temples or monasteries to prepare for their service and receive their powers through rites of initiation, but some are endowed with divine power simply through raw devotion to their god. Such avengers dig deep within themselves to find unmatched reserves of faith, making up for their lack of formal training with holy passion. These are ardent champions.

As an ardent champion, you are an outsider, your spirit touched directly by the hand of your deity. You are most likely unlearned in the esoteric lore of your faith, and you have little connection to any hierarchies associated with it. In fact, others who lack your passion might see you as a threat to the established ways. Where cynics and pragmatists see despair or uncertainty, you see only your divine patron's will, and you set out to accomplish it regardless of obstacles. If you are meant to triumph, you will. If you are not, you are confident that you will soon be shown another way to serve your god.

Ardent Champion Path Features

Holy Ardor (11th level): Whenever you make two attack rolls because of your oath of enmity, you score a critical hit if both dice have the same roll, except if both rolls are 1.

Ardent Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can also make a saving throw or shift a number of squares equal to your Dexterity modifier.

Ardent Fury (16th level): Once per round when you score a critical hit against your oath of enmity target, you can shift 1 square and make a basic attack against that target as a free action.

Ardent Champion Prayers

Fanatical Flurry — Ardent Champion Attack 11

You launch a reckless attack against your chosen enemy and all foes nearby, ignoring your own safety.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: Your oath of enmity target and each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Wisdom modifier damage.
Effect: You take a -2 penalty to all defenses until the end of your next turn.

KEREM BEYIT

Battle Rapture — Ardent Champion Utility 12

You enter a state of zealous passion, consumed by the power of your faith. Defeating your sworn enemy is a test of faith for you.

Daily ✦ Divine, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, your attacks deal extra damage against your oath of enmity target equal to 1d10 + one-half your level. In addition, when any ally deals damage (not ongoing damage) to your oath of enmity target, you take 3d6 damage.

Irresistible Ardor — Ardent Champion Attack 20

Your spirit blazes with devotion, lending holy power to your strike. Your sworn enemy's attacks are as nothing to you.

Daily ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Wisdom modifier damage. You regain the use of an encounter power that you have already used during this encounter.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until you attack a creature other than your oath of enmity target or until the end of the encounter, you gain a +2 power bonus to all defenses against the attacks of your oath of enmity target.

Dervish of Dawn

"In the turnings of the dance, the divine purpose is made clear."

Prerequisite: Avenger

You are among a small number of avengers who seek enlightenment through the study of desert dervish traditions. In the tireless turns of the dervish dance, the cares and distractions of the mortal world fall away, allowing you to perceive divine truths.

There are a number of dervish traditions, and not all dervishes are avengers; most are priests and scholars of desert peoples. Dervishes of the dawn represent a tradition celebrating the mystic power of the sunrise and venerating gods of hope and enlightenment. As a dervish of dawn, you are an agent of hope, a wandering mystic given the sacred task of fighting oppression and despair and setting an example of piety wherever you travel.

Dervish of Dawn Path Features

Celerity of Morning (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can also make a saving throw with a bonus equal to your Wisdom modifier.

Radiant Blessing (11th level): When you use an encounter or a daily attack power that has the radiant keyword, you gain a +2 bonus to all defenses until the end of your next turn.

Dervish Ecstasy (16th level): If you are bloodied during an encounter, you can use a second Channel Divinity power in that encounter.

Dervish of Dawn Prayers

Whirling Assault — Dervish of Dawn Attack 11

You launch into a graceful, spinning dance as you close on your enemy. In the mesmerizing form of your dance, you free yourself from an enemy's power and inspire your comrade as well.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: Before the attack, you shift 3 squares.
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Wisdom modifier radiant damage. You and one ally within 10 squares of you can each choose to do one of the following things:
- ✦ Make an escape attempt against a grab as a free action.
- ✦ Make a saving throw against an effect that a save can end and that dazes, immobilizes, slows, or stuns.

Wild Hope — Dervish of Dawn Utility 12

Your dance inspires you to wild ecstasy. Mortals cannot long endure such joy, but each time you strike your foe, new vigor flows into you.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you hit one or more enemies with an attack, you regain hit points equal to your Wisdom modifier. In addition, whenever you miss every target with an attack, you take 3 damage.

Dance of Sunrise — Dervish of Dawn Attack 20

As you gracefully carry yourself across the battlefield, your weapon begins to gleam. For the rest of the fight, you glow with the hues of dawn, which scorch your foe with light.

Daily ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: Before the attack, you shift 3 squares.
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Wisdom modifier radiant damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, your at-will attack powers against the target deal 1d8 extra radiant damage to it.

KIERAN YANNER

Dread Imperator

"When the gods command, I make sure you obey."

Prerequisite: Avenger, Censure of Unity class feature, oath of enmity power

In the days of the human empire of Nerath, many temples and faiths were wealthy and widespread enough to give rise to powerful hierarchies, kingdom-spanning organizations that often wielded both religious and secular power. These empires of faith lapsed into disorder when Nerath fell. Temples lost touch with each other, local leaders split from their distant masters, and disaffected people abandoned the great temples for generations. But in a few places, the titles and trappings of the old hierarchies survive. Imperators are among these surviving traditions, a reminder of the days when archpriests maintained temple armies led by imperators, ruled over estates, and sponsored vigilant orders of inquisitors to ferret out dissent and disloyalty.

As a dread imperator, you have been invested in accordance with the old ways. Even though your deity's faith is only a shadow of its former kingdom-spanning glory, you still wield divine authority against your deity's enemies. You have the power to compel obedience from your foes and inspire loyalty in your allies. You are a guardian of what you consider the right path, tirelessly seeking out foes both hidden and open. The day will come when the faith is restored throughout the lands, and you mean to be there to see it.

Dread Imperator Path Features

Deceptive Control (11th level): When your oath of enmity target misses you with an attack, your allies gain combat advantage against that target until the end of its next turn.

Imperious Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you also slide an enemy within 5 squares of you 1 square or slide an ally within 5 squares of you 3 squares.

Templar Reaction (16th level): When any ally scores a critical hit against your oath of enmity target, you can make an opportunity attack against that target if it is within your reach. You gain a bonus to the damage roll equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Dread Imperator Prayers

Soul Stab — Dread Imperator Attack 11

A twist of your blade is a twist in your enemy's soul, wrenching it sideways to strike its companion.

Encounter ✦ Charm, Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Wisdom modifier damage, and you slide the target 2 squares. The target then makes a basic attack against a creature of your choice.

Crown of Souls — Dread Imperator Utility 12

The radiant crown settling on your brow symbolizes your mastery. Shadows of the crown flash above your companions.

Daily ✦ Divine, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you make multiple attack rolls at one time against your oath of enmity target and they would all hit, choose an ally within 5 squares of you. That ally gains a +1 power bonus to attack rolls and all defenses until the end of your next turn.

Imperator's Judgment — Dread Imperator Attack 20

You deliver a punishing blow to your foe while pronouncing judgment against it. For a moment, your divine authority compels it to obey you.

Daily ✦ Charm, Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Wisdom modifier damage, and the target is dominated until the end of your next turn.
Effect: You gain another use of your soul stab power for this encounter.

Favored Soul

"Who am I? I am the sword of heaven, forged on the anvil of the world, and you have angered my master."

Prerequisite: Avenger

You have long harbored a divine spark within yourself, a subtle shard of your god's essence. Long has it lain dormant, but as you dispatch your enemies and see your oaths through, the essence awakens and infuses your body with astral brilliance until your mortal shell transmutes into something greater than what it once was. Your deeds are the catalyst for your transformation into a favored soul. Once you set foot on this glorious path, you ever after carry with you the blessings of your god.

Becoming a favored soul triggers several physical changes, specifically the appearance of feathery wings that grow, almost overnight, from your back. These wings have strength enough to bear your weight. Your feathers can be any color you like. As you continue down this path, your body lightens, your bones becoming hollow and strong so you can fly more easily without sacrificing your durability. By the time you complete this path, your lower body trails off into mist when you fly, thus marking you as one of the heavenly host, kin to angels, and a special servant of your god.

EMRAH ELMASLI

Favored Soul Path Features

Favored Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you or an ally adjacent to you can also spend a healing surge.

Heaven's Shield (11th level): While you have maximum hit points, you gain a +1 bonus to all defenses.

Heaven's Boon (16th level): A pair of feathery wings unfolds from your back, and you gain a fly speed of 6. You can use this speed only if you are wearing no armor or light armor.

Favored Soul Prayers

Radiant Rush — Favored Soul Attack 11

You blur into action, speeding across the battlefield to smash into your enemy in a halo of radiance. If your blow misses, the light conceals you.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: Your oath of enmity target
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Wisdom modifier radiant damage, you push the target 2 squares, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Miss: You gain concealment until the end of your next turn.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Wings of Angels — Favored Soul Utility 12

Your lower body fades into swirling mist as you gain mastery of your airborne movement.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, your fly speed increases by 4, and you can hover. In addition, while you aren't blooded, you gain regeneration equal to your Wisdom modifier.

Celestial Skirmish — Favored Soul Attack 20

You take to the sky, your weapon aglow. You swoop and strike repeatedly as you dart past your foes.

Daily ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: You fly your speed + 2. During this movement, you gain a +6 bonus to AC against opportunity attacks. At any point during the movement, you can make the following attack three times, each time against a different target.
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Wisdom modifier radiant damage. If you hit two creatures, the second is dazed (save ends). If you hit three creatures, the third is stunned (save ends).

Relentless Slayer

"I am the bane of your kind."

Prerequisite: Avenger, oath of enmity power

Many avengers find themselves confronting some great threat, such as a group of drow seeking to enslave a surface kingdom, an incursion of demons, a cult of Tharizdun worshipers, or an empire of vampires secretly ruling over human cities. Whatever the threat might be, it is dire enough to drive you to an old and powerful rite of sacred commitment. Through prayerful vigils, you have invested your oath of enmity with tremendous potency. All avengers rely on oath of enmity, but you draw on yours to perform exceptional feats in battle.

As a relentless slayer, you are always alert for signs that your enemies are at work. Your adventures often lead you away from a longtime adversary for weeks or months at a time, but you know that you have a sacred duty to which you must eventually return.

Choosing a Slayer's Enemy

Consult with your Dungeon Master about an appropriate enemy for your character. It should be a kind of monster you've faced before, and one that the DM plans to feature occasionally in upcoming adventures. A slayer's enemy is a specific group of monsters—for example, demons, devils, drow, fire giants, minotaurs, or vampires.

LUCIO PARRILLO

Relentless Slayer Path Features

Slayer's Oath (11th level): Whenever you use oath of enmity, you can target a second enemy with it if that enemy is your slayer's enemy (see the sidebar). In addition, when you make an attack and could make two attack rolls because of oath of enmity, you can choose to forgo making the second roll to cause the attack to deal 2d6 extra damage instead. You make this choice before making the first attack roll.

Lethal Action (11th level): If you spend an action point to make an attack against your oath of enmity target, the attack can score a critical hit on a roll of 18–20.

Relentless Determination (16th level): When you fail a saving throw against an effect caused by an enemy, your divine attack powers deal 5 extra damage until the end of your next turn.

Relentless Slayer Prayers

Slayer's Gambit — Relentless Slayer Attack 11

You recklessly bull your way through the press of enemies to meet your destiny near your chosen foe.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: You move your speed to a square where your oath of enmity target is within your reach. During this movement, you can move through enemies' squares. Then you make the following attack.
Target: Your oath of enmity target
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Wisdom modifier damage. The attack deals 5 extra damage for each opportunity attack made against you during the movement that is part of this power.

Relentless Fervor — Relentless Slayer Utility 12

Success against your chosen foe creates opportunities against nearby enemies.

Daily ✦ Divine, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, when you make two attack rolls because of your oath of enmity, make the rolls one at a time. If the first attack roll hits, you can choose to use the second attack roll as a melee basic attack against another enemy within reach.

Slayer's Ascendancy — Relentless Slayer Attack 20

Through the power of your god, you see the battle as if everyone else was moving at half speed.

Daily ✦ Divine, Stance, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One enemy
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Wisdom modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You assume the slayer's stance. Until the stance ends, you can make a melee basic attack once per round as a minor action.

Serene Initiate

"Only when the mind is calm and the passions stilled can the divine purpose be understood. Never do I wield my sword in anger—only in necessity."

Prerequisite: Avenger, oath of enmity power

You have chosen to follow a path of contemplation and calm. Some heroes are ruled by their passions, but you seek a disciplined approach to your quests. You are not emotionless, but you believe that you should rule your emotions instead of being ruled by them. Anger, despair, fear—all turn the mortal heart away from the divine will. Likewise, you must remain vigilant against excesses of mirth, desire, or pride. You believe that powerful emotions and worldly attachments entangle the spirit with the mortal realm and keep you from paying attention to what is most important.

Although you are slow to anger and careful in your actions, you are no pacifist. The world is full of dangers that must be met with force, and you are a warrior sworn to the service of the divine. When violent action is necessary—as it all too often is—you battle your enemies with dispassionate efficiency. You see no reason to waste words on those who can't or won't listen, or to extend mercy to those who would try to exploit it.

Between adventures, you strive to set an example of moderation and piety. Many serene initiates are cloistered monks who pass their days in monasteries, leading lives of self-discipline and prayer until they are needed to confront darkness again.

Serene Initiate Path Features

Calm Eye (11th level): When you spend an action point to use an at-will attack power, that attack deals 2d10 extra damage.

Serene Edge (11th level): When you miss your oath of enmity target with an encounter attack power, the attack deals damage to the target equal to your Dexterity modifier.

Certain Cut (16th level): When you miss your oath of enmity target with an at-will attack power, the attack deals damage to the target equal to your Dexterity modifier.

Serene Initiate Prayers

Defining Cut — Serene Initiate Attack 11

Your deadly calm shapes the battle.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC. If one of the targets is your oath of enmity target, both targets are treated as your oath of enmity target for this attack.
Hit: 3[W] + Wisdom modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target takes 10 damage the first time it uses an attack other than a basic attack.

Deadly Calm — Serene Initiate Utility 12

Without malice, without anger, each blow is delivered as smoothly and perfectly as a one-word prayer.

Daily ✦ Divine, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, when you make two attack rolls because of oath of enmity and both would hit, the target takes extra damage equal to one-half your level.

Heaven's Edge — Serene Initiate Attack 20

Your strike wins the favor of your deity, which in turn guides your weapon against your sworn foe.

Daily ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Wisdom modifier damage. Before the end of the encounter, when you are next able to make two attack rolls because of your oath of enmity, you can instead make three attack rolls and use the result you prefer.
Special: If you have no encounter attack powers available when you use this power, it is reliable.

AMELIA STONER

Watchful Shepherd

"Sometimes it falls to me to keep the wolves away from the flock. I do what I can."

Prerequisite: Avenger

Hidden orders and secret ceremonies of initiation are the way for many avengers, but you have come to embrace a simpler tradition. You are a protector of the common folk who hides in plain sight. With a quiet manner and thoughtful devotion, you are a steward of the gods' teachings, and between adventures you pay as much attention to the spiritual well-being of the common folk as you pay to your avenger prayers.

Many of the people you guard think you are nothing more than a rustic village priest or a wandering friar—unusually wise and compassionate, perhaps, but certainly no monster-slaying hero. They're mistaken, of course, but that suits you just fine. While you tend to their spiritual needs, you remain vigilant for trouble; brigands, marauders, hungry monsters, and villains all seek to prey on the weak and defenseless, so you stand guard over your flock to keep these threats at bay.

You prefer to avoid fame and glory, since that way leads to pride and an inevitable fall. To you it's far better to allow your fellow adventurers to bask in the triumphs of the day and downplay your own contributions. After all, you believe that your reward lies in the next world, not in this one.

Watchful Shepherd Path Features

Stronger and Stronger (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you also regain hit points equal to 1d6 + one-half your level.

Shepherd's Guard (11th level): When you spend a healing surge, each ally adjacent to you regains hit points equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Humble Determination (16th level): While you are bloodied, when your oath of enmity target damages you (not with ongoing damage), your attacks deal 1d6 extra damage until the end of your next turn.

Watchful Shepherd Prayers

Shepherd's Aegis — Watchful Shepherd Attack 11

The brilliance of your holy symbol warns your enemy against hate and reckless wrath.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Melee touch
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target takes 2d10 radiant damage the first time it attacks you or an ally within 2 squares of you.

Hidden Strength — Watchful Shepherd Utility 12

Your devotion provides you with a reservoir of hidden strength, which your enemies do not suspect.

Daily ✦ Divine, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you gain a +1 power bonus to attack rolls and all defenses. If you have reached at least one milestone today, you instead gain a +2 power bonus.

Quell the Hateful — Watchful Shepherd Attack 20

Your prayer quells your foe's will to harm you and your allies. The anger you take from your foe becomes healing power in your hands.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Melee touch
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 3d8 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage, and the target takes a -4 penalty to attack rolls (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You and each bloodied ally within 5 squares of you can spend a healing surge.

MAZIN KASSIS

Weapon of Fortune

"Everything comes down to chance: whether I live and whether you die."

Prerequisite: Avenger, oath of enmity power

You are a servant of a deity of luck, and you completely trust your own good fortune. As a symbol of your devotion to chance, you always carry a set of dice with you. When in doubt, you trust the dice to determine your actions. Just like the wind, you can be gentle and complacent or a dangerous storm capable of destroying those who stand in your way. Although you are always unpredictable, you can be a brave and loyal companion; fortune brought your company together, after all, and you know better than most that great deeds often flow from unlikely friendships or chance meetings.

You are probably a worshiper of Avandra or a similar deity. Your purpose is to inspire people to be daring, to take chances and seize opportunities, for those who take no risks never realize their full potential. In battle, you have learned to rely on chance. You are a potent combatant when luck favors you.

Although you might not represent the typical image of a divine servant, you are nonetheless a faithful devotee of your deity and your beliefs. You have little regard for the strictures of formal worship—you're more likely to be found gambling in a tavern than praying in a temple. But when chance leads you to down the path to adventure or into a situation that demands action, you don't hesitate to join the fight. After all, that's what's the dice told you to do.

AMELIA STONER

Weapon of Fortune Path Features

Fortune Favors the Fortunate (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, roll a d6. If the result is 6, you take the extra action but keep the action point, and you can use another action point during the same encounter.

I'll Take that Bet (11th level): When you take a critical hit or when your oath of enmity target scores a critical hit, you can roll a d6 as a free action. If the result is 1, you take 2d6 damage. If the result is 5 or 6, the critical hit becomes a normal hit.

Luck Is on My Side (16th level): When you roll a 20 on a saving throw, you end two effects on yourself that a save can end.

Weapon of Fortune Prayers

Luck, Not Skill — Weapon of Fortune Attack 11

It's better to be lucky than skillful. You swing wildly, hoping that your enemy fails to get out of the way.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC. You can choose to take a -4 penalty to the attack roll. If you do so, the attack deals 2[W] extra damage if it hits.
Hit: 2[W] + Wisdom modifier damage.

Signs of Favor — Weapon of Fortune Utility 12

Your prayer invokes divine favor or disfavor on your efforts. Your successful strikes against your sworn foe lend you new strength, but each miss weakens you with doubt.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you hit your oath of enmity target, you regain hit points equal to your Wisdom modifier, but whenever you miss that target, you take 5 damage.

Gambler's Flourish — Weapon of Fortune Attack 20

Your weapon swings true, but sometimes a bit of extra risk is worth the payoff.

Daily ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. AC. You can choose to take a -5 penalty to the attack roll. If you take the penalty and the attack hits, the target is stunned instead of dazed and takes a -2 penalty to saving throws (save ends both). If you take the penalty and the attack misses, you grant combat advantage until the end of your next turn.
Hit: 4[W] + Wisdom modifier damage, and the target is dazed (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target is dazed until the end of its next turn.

CHAPTER 2

Cleric

"The powers of darkness do not deter me, foul demon! Pelor is my shield and strength!"

Wielding power sanctioned by the gods, you are the center of your adventuring party. You guard your comrades and heal them when they are hurt, and you direct the course of the battle by weakening chosen enemies.

Some clerics prefer to deal with foes directly, wading into hand-to-hand combat or scouring enemies with radiant blasts and pillars of flame. Others follow the path of the shielding cleric (a build introduced in this chapter) to defeat opponents by supporting stouthearted companions. In this role, you do not fear battle, but you understand that your divine power does the most good by blunting the attacks of your enemies and bolstering the efforts of your allies. Through your prayers, you share your own unshakable confidence and determination with your companions, heartening them for the challenges ahead.

Whether you're a skull-thumping battler, a devoted protector, or a charismatic source of inspiration, this chapter offers numerous ways to lead your comrades in your deity's cause.

- New Class Feature: A new Channel Divinity power, healer's mercy, lets you further focus on healing your comrades, though at the expense of your own strength.
- New Build: The shielding cleric is an expert at weakening and hindering enemies. In addition, you excel at helping your allies to help themselves by rewarding them for striking the foes you designate.
- New Cleric Powers: Almost a hundred new powers expand the possibilities for battle clerics and devoted clerics as well as shielding clerics.
- New Paragon Paths: Choose from among ten new paragon paths, such as the battle chaplain, the compassionate healer, and the miracle worker.

LUCIO PARRILLO

NEW CLASS FEATURE

When you make your cleric, you can select the Channel Divinity power healer's mercy in place of turn undead.

Channel Divinity: Healer's Mercy Cleric Feature

Strength flows out from you to your injured comrades, rekindling their resolve to see the battle to its end.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Healing
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: Each bloodied ally in burst
Effect: Each target can spend a healing surge. You are weakened until the end of your next turn.

NEW BUILD

The Player's Handbook features the battle cleric and the devoted cleric. This chapter adds the shielding cleric, who leads the party through subtle prayers that aid and support other heroes.

Shielding Cleric

As a shielding cleric, you believe that your place is not to take the fight to the enemy directly, but to bolster allies with your presence. Your prayers lend additional resources to your friends and create opportunities for them to defeat their foes. Yours is a life of leadership through self-sacrifice, ongoing support, and inspiration. You do not seek personal glory, and you take comfort in knowing that your allies couldn't have succeeded without you.

Wisdom is your most important ability, since the prayers that support your tactics rely on it. Charisma is a vital secondary ability, making many of your prayers more effective. A good Strength is important if you intend to take melee powers. You should select powers that emphasize your role as healer and facilitator.

Suggested Class Feature: Channel Divinity (healer's mercy)*

Suggested Feat: Defensive Grace*

Suggested Skills: Diplomacy, Heal, Insight, Religion

Suggested At-Will Powers: astral seal,* sacred flame

Suggested Encounter Power: *bane

Suggested Daily Power: *font of tears

*New option presented in this book

LAYNE JOHNSON

NEW CLERIC POWERS

Many of the powers described below benefit the shielding cleric, though any cleric interested in more of a support role can benefit from them. In addition, new powers expand options for the two cleric builds described in the Player's Handbook.

Level 1 At-Will Prayers

Astral Seal — Cleric Attack 1

You outline your enemy with the silver glow of the Astral Sea, and its healing light bathes your friend.

At-Will ✦ Divine, Healing, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom +2 vs. Reflex
Hit: Until the end of your next turn, the target takes a –2 penalty to all defenses. The next ally who hits it before the end of your next turn regains hit points equal to 2 + your Charisma modifier.

Recovery Strike — Cleric Attack 1

Your attack heals a companion who strikes at the foe you condemn.

At-Will ✦ Divine, Healing, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the next ally who hits the target before the end of your next turn regains hit points equal to your Charisma modifier.
Level 21: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Level 1 Encounter Prayers

Bane — Cleric Attack 1

You lay a divine curse upon your foe that shrouds it in enervating shadows.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: Until the end of your next turn, the target takes a penalty to attack rolls and all defenses equal to 1 + your Charisma modifier.

Exacting Utterance — Cleric Attack 1

The suffering of your enemy instills your comrades with righteous vigor.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: Until the end of your next turn, the target gains vulnerability to all damage equal to your Wisdom modifier, and any ally who attacks the target gains temporary hit points equal to your Wisdom modifier.

Numinous Shield — Cleric Attack 1

Divine radiance blazes from your holy symbol as you strike your foe, forming a halo of protection about you.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon, Zone
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier radiant damage. The attack creates a zone of shielding light in a close burst 2. The zone lasts until the end of your next turn. You and your allies gain a +2 power bonus to AC while within the zone.

Shield Bearer — Cleric Attack 1

A shimmering warrior steps from between the worlds to defend your allies.

Encounter ✦ Conjuration, Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage. You conjure a shield bearer in an unoccupied square adjacent to the target. The shield bearer lasts until the end of your next turn. The shield bearer occupies 1 square, and allies can move through it as if it were an ally. While adjacent to the shield bearer, any ally gains a +2 power bonus to all defenses.

War Priest's Strike — Cleric Attack 1

You smite your foe, crushing its armor and leaving a glowing rune that guides your allies' attacks.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier radiant damage. Until the end of your next turn, you and your allies have combat advantage against the target.

Level 1 Daily Prayers

You brand a foe with your god's glowing symbol to drain power from its attacks.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d6 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage.
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, the target takes a penalty to damage rolls equal to 5 + your Charisma modifier.
Sustain Minor: The effect persists.

Font of Tears — Cleric Attack 1

A glimmering rain showers enemies around you and saps their will.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Zone
Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: The target is dazed (save ends).
Effect: The burst creates a zone of shimmering energy that lasts until the end of your next turn. Any enemy that starts its turn within the zone takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of its next turn.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Moment of Glory — Cleric Attack 1

You call down a brilliant column of light that drives your enemies to the ground and bolsters your allies against harm.

Daily ✦ Divine, Fear, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: You push the target 3 squares and knock it prone.
Effect: You and each ally in the blast gain resist 5 to all damage until the end of your next turn.
Sustain Minor: The effect persists.

Shield of the Gods — Cleric Attack 1

Slamming your weapon into the ground, you create a blast of force that bowls over your foes. The energy then coalesces into a glowing shield.

Daily ✦ Divine, Force, Weapon
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Strength vs. Reflex
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier force damage, and you knock the target prone.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You or an ally within 5 squares of you gains a +3 shield bonus to AC and Reflex until the end of the encounter. As a minor action, you can transfer the bonus to yourself or a different ally within 5 squares of you.

Weapon of Astral Flame — Cleric Attack 1

You conjure a weapon of divine flame that duplicates the one you wield.

Daily ✦ Conjuration, Divine, Fire, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: You conjure a weapon of astral flame in your space. The weapon lasts until the end of your next turn. When you move, the weapon moves with you, remaining in your space. The weapon makes the following primary attack when it appears.
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. Reflex
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier fire damage, and the primary target takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.
Sustain Minor: The weapon persists and makes a secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Reflex
Hit: 1[W] fire damage.

WILLIAM O'CONNOR

Level 2 Utility Prayers

Armor of Faith — Cleric Utility 2

Level 5 Daily Prayers

Hallowed Advance — Cleric Attack 5

The power of your god draws an ally to your side, eager to share in victory.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: One ally within 5 squares of you can teleport adjacent to the target and make a melee basic attack against it as a free action. In addition, that ally can spend a healing surge.

Halo of Consequence — Cleric Attack 5

A ring of faint light surrounds your enemy and punishes it for attacking you or your allies.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Reliable
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: The target is affected by your halo of consequence (save ends). Until the halo ends, the target takes a -4 penalty to attack rolls, and after the target attacks you or any ally, it is dazed until the end of its next turn. The target takes a -2 penalty to saving throws against the halo.

Hold Foe — Cleric Attack 5

With an impassioned prayer, you transfix your enemy to the spot.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier damage. The target is dazed and immobilized (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage, and the target is slowed until the end of your next turn.

Iron to Glass — Cleric Attack 5

Tracing runes of denial in the air, you cause your foe's weapons to become as brittle as glass.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: Until the end of the encounter, the target takes a -4 penalty to melee damage rolls. Whenever the target hits with a melee attack, the penalty worsens by 2 to a maximum of -10.
Miss: Until the end of the encounter, the target takes a -2 penalty to melee damage rolls. Whenever the target hits with a melee attack, the penalty worsens by 1 to a maximum of -5.

Revealing Light — Cleric Attack 5

A narrow beam of brilliant blue-white light lances down to illuminate a foe that seeks the shadows.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex. The attack ignores concealment and cover.
Hit: 3d6 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage.
Effect: The target takes ongoing 5 radiant damage and cannot become hidden (save ends both).

Level 6 Utility Prayers

Blades of Holy Fire — Cleric Utility 6

Your allies' implements and weapons blaze with white-hot, consecrated flames.

Daily ✦ Divine, Fire, Radiant
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: Each ally in burst
Effect: The next time the target hits before the end of the encounter, that attack deals 1d6 extra fire and radiant damage.

Divine Favor — Cleric Utility 6

Sacred light suffuses your comrade, bestowing your god's blessing in battle.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing
Standard Action Melee touch
Target: You or one ally
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, the target gains a +2 power bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls, and when the target is first bloodied, he or she can spend a healing surge.

Holy Celerity — Cleric Utility 6

You imbue an ally with the confidence to advance against all impediments.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Ranged 10
Target: You or one ally
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, the target ignores the effects of the immobilized, restrained, and slowed conditions.

Spirit of Healing — Cleric Utility 6

A glowing figure appears at your command, casting an aura of health over your allies.

Daily ✦ Conjuration, Divine, Healing
Minor Action Ranged 10
Effect: You conjure a spirit of healing in 1 square within range. The spirit lasts until the end of your next turn. When an ally in the spirit's square or adjacent to it hits an enemy, that ally regains hit points equal to twice your Wisdom modifier. As a move action, you can move the spirit 4 squares.
Sustain Minor: The spirit persists.

Stream of Life — Cleric Utility 6

Your life energy flows into a companion and grants your friend the vigor to fight on.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You take ongoing 5 damage (save ends). This damage can't be reduced in any way. At the end of your turn, you can choose not to make a saving throw against this ongoing damage. Whenever you take the ongoing damage, an ally within 5 squares of you regains 15 hit points.

Level 7 Encounter Prayers

Bolts of Warding — Cleric Attack 7

Your weapon crackles with divine lightning that arcs out to strike any who threaten your allies.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Lightning, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon

Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: You and each ally within 5 squares of you can spend a healing surge.

Dismissal — Cleric Attack 9

You utter a mighty shout and cast your enemy out of the world.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Teleportation
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: The target disappears into an extraplanar prison (save ends). The target takes a -2 penalty to saving throws against this effect, or a -5 penalty if it is an aberrant, elemental, fey, immortal, or shadow creature. When the target saves against this effect, it reappears in its original space. If that space is occupied, the target returns to the nearest unoccupied space.
Aftereffect: The target is dazed until the end of its next turn.
Miss: The target disappears into an extraplanar prison until the end of your next turn. The target then reappears in its original space. If that space is occupied, the target returns to the nearest unoccupied space.

Divine Fury — Cleric Attack 9

Your patron's servants take notice of your struggle and reward companions while punishing your enemies.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing, Radiant, Weapon, Zone
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier radiant damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of divine fury that lasts until the end of your next turn. When any ally within the zone hits an enemy, that ally regains 10 hit points.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

DWARVES WHO DON'T WORSHIP MORADIN

Many dwarves revere Moradin first among the gods, but they also recognize that different deities hold sway over different aspects of life. Like other folk, the great majority of dwarves venerate various deities at appropriate times. Dwarves whose interests go beyond the typical values of industry, stoicism, and artisanship are just as likely to give homage to the deity of their vocation as to Moradin. The Soul Forger shaped them in body and soul long ago, but they have lived under the influence of many gods—both beneficial and malevolent—ever since.

For example, a dwarf soldier makes offerings in Moradin's name most of the time, but when marching off to war she might call upon Kord for strength, Bane for victory, or Bahamut for honor. A dwarf tomb-keeper might take the Raven Queen as his patron, while a dwarf rogue who travels in search of adventure is likely to honor Avandra. Likewise, dwarves know that their hearts are touched by Sehanine, their minds shaped by Erathis and Ioun, and their fates overseen by the Raven Queen. They thank Pelor for the warmth of the sun and Corellon for the inspiration to create works of beauty.

Rebuke Violence — Cleric Attack 9

With a fervent prayer, you purge all thoughts of battle from your enemy's mind.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature

While within the zone, any enemy takes 5 radiant damage at the start of its turn and provokes opportunity attacks when it shifts.

MATIAS TAPIA

Small Devotions

Many practices common among the people of the world have their origin in various minor devotions to the gods.

For example, someone telling a lie might splay wide the fingers of the left hand under a table or behind his or her back. Whether that person knows it or not, the gesture is meant to represent the holy symbol of Lolth, god of lies, and to ask her help in making sure the untruth is not discovered.

Another such gesture is to place the weapon of a fallen warrior in the corpse's hand. This act is believed to arm the warrior for the next world and to show Bane, the god of war, that he or she died fighting and therefore deserves honor.

Travelers setting out on journeys often scoop up a handful of dirt or dust from the road and let it fall from their hands. Most people regard this tradition as simply checking the strength and direction of the wind, but it is meant to honor Avandra. The god is said to show a sign of the fortune awaiting the journey by blowing the dust away (which favors departure) or back toward the traveler (indicating difficulty ahead).

Supernal Radiance — Cleric Attack 19

You create a pulse of light that gleams with divine clarity. No foe can hide within its brilliance.

Dead Gods

Gods cannot die of old age or mortal ailments and infirmities, but they can still be slain. Few beings have the power to kill a god: primordials, rival gods, and great entities of the Far Realm, several demon lords or archdevils working in concert—and sometimes a group of the mightiest mortals. Gods also have been known to simply fade away, forgotten by the mortal world. They slip into ever deeper slumber and linger dreaming through the ages, until finally they dream of nothing at all and cease to be.

Some of the dead gods known to have once existed include the following.

Amoth: Many centuries ago, Amoth was a god of justice and mercy who ruled over the astral dominion of Kalandurren. The demon lords Orcus, Demogorgon, and Rimmon conspired against him and launched an overwhelming attack against Kalandurren. Although Amoth destroyed Rimmon and nearly slew Demogorgon as well, Orcus struck him down, and the demons overthrew his realm. Kalandurren is now a ruined dominion, abandoned by all but a few demons who still prowl its shattered castles and gray hills.

He Who Was: Once among the mightiest of the gods, the lord of the great dominion Baathion presided over kingship, wisdom, and the sky. The archangel Asmodeus rebelled against him, and with the Ruby Rod struck down his lord. The dying god pronounced a curse against Asmodeus and his followers, transforming the idyllic realm of Baathion into Baator, a cruel prison of black rock and unending fire. Asmodeus has worked for ages to erase the knowledge of his defeated master's name, so only a handful of mortal scholars still know it; most refer to this being as He Who Was. It is whispered that Asmodeus dispatches powerful devils to slay any mortal who speaks the forbidden name, and that he fears the name to this day.

Io: The creator of dragons, Io was beset by mighty primordials and destroyed in the War of Creation. From his shattered body two new gods sprang—Bahamut, the Platinum Dragon, and Tiamat, the Queen of Evil Dragons. Some stories say that the god was betrayed to the primordials by Zehir, who envied Io his mighty children.

Khala: The original god of winter was a cruel, malicious being who schemed against the other gods and sought to extend her grip over all the mortal world. Her glaciers and blizzards threatened to destroy the fragile races of mortals as her son Kord ran wild, bringing storms and calamity to all. Khala and her allies—Gruumsh, Tiamat, Zehir, and several powerful primordials—grew strong enough to assault the dominions of the gods who stood against her. But Kord came to regret the harm he had done and turned against Khala. Pelor and the assembled gods who stood with him destroyed Khala and drove off Gruumsh; the Raven Queen later claimed dominion over winter.

Nerull: Formerly the god of the dead, Nerull ruled over the grim dominion of Pluton, where he held all the souls of mortals as powerless, miserable shades. In time the Raven Queen overthrew him and became goddess of death. See the "Rise of the Raven Queen" sidebar (page 43).

Tuern: A god of conquest and fire, Tuern was overthrown by a mortal king. Bane was the greatest of mortal tyrants in the dawn of the world, and he became so powerful that he dared to give battle to the war god. He launched an invasion of the war god's realm, defeated Tuern, and seized the dominion for his own.

Revive — Cleric Utility 22

You call back an ally from the clutches of death.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing
Standard Action Melee touch
Target: One bloodied or dying ally or a dead ally who died during this encounter
Effect: The target regains enough hit points to bring his or her current hit point total to his or her bloodied value. If the target is dead, he or she revives, then regains the hit points, and is considered not to have failed any death saving throws during this encounter.

Level 23 Encounter Prayers

Your god's power flares from your weapon to bless you and a companion as you batter down an enemy.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Healing, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier radiant damage.
Effect: You and an ally within 10 squares of you can each spend a healing surge.

Mortal Terror — Cleric Attack 23

You smash your foe and overwhelm it with fear of imminent death.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fear, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target moves its speed away from you, taking the safest path possible.

Rebuke the Wrathful — Cleric Attack 23

You reproach your foe, and your allies brutally punish its violence.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: The first time the target makes an attack before the end of your next turn, each ally within 10 squares of you can make a basic attack against the target as an opportunity action.

Spirit Flame — Cleric Attack 23

Raising your holy symbol high, you call down a great pulse of divine fire against your foes and restore yourself and your friends.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d10 + Wisdom modifier fire damage.
Effect: You end the following conditions on yourself: blinded, dazed, immobilized, slowed, stunned, and weakened. In addition, each ally in the blast can choose to have one of these conditions ended on himself or herself.

Word of Deterrence — Cleric Attack 23

You drive back the foe who injured your ally and dissuade it from further aggression.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Immediate Reaction Ranged 5
Trigger: An enemy within 5 squares of you hits your ally
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: You push the target 3 squares. If the target makes an attack roll before the end of your next turn, it takes radiant damage equal to 20 + your Wisdom modifier.

Level 25 Daily Prayers

Divine Intervention — Cleric Attack 25

You pull your friend out of the way, taking the brunt of the attack onto yourself. Your furious rebuke steals the sight from your foes.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Teleportation
Immediate Interrupt Close burst 5
Trigger: An enemy makes an attack roll against your ally within 5 squares of you, and you are not a target of that attack
Primary Target: The triggering ally
Effect: You teleport yourself and the primary target, swapping positions with him or her, and the triggering enemy makes the attack roll against you instead. If you take damage from the attack, the primary target gains temporary hit points equal to that damage. You then make the following secondary attack.
Secondary Target: Each enemy adjacent to you
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: The secondary target is blinded (save ends).

Flames of Torment — Cleric Attack 25

You smite your enemy with wrathful fire that feeds on its soul.

Daily ✦ Divine, Fire, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Reflex
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier fire damage. The target takes ongoing 10 fire damage and a penalty to all defenses equal to 1 + your Charisma modifier (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage. The target takes ongoing 5 fire damage and a -2 penalty to all defenses (save ends both).

Life Lanterns — Cleric Attack 25

Tiny lanterns appear next to your foes and bedazzle them with divine light, which can heal your friends' wounds.

Daily ✦ Conjuration, Divine, Healing, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One, two, or three creatures
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: The target is weakened (save ends).
Effect: For each target, you conjure a life lantern, which appears in 1 square occupied by that target and lasts until the end of the encounter. Any enemy that starts its turn in a life lantern's square is dazed until the start of its next turn. Any ally who starts or ends his or her turn in a life lantern's square can regain hit points as if he or she had spent a healing surge. Doing so destroys that lantern.

Prayer of Victory — Cleric Attack 25

You declaim an inspirational prayer as you march among your foes, leading your allies to strike true.

Daily ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier radiant damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever you hit an enemy with a melee attack, one ally adjacent to that enemy gains a +3 power bonus to his or her next melee attack roll against that enemy. In addition, whenever you move on your turn, one ally within 5 squares of you can shift 2 squares as a free action.

Righteous Might — Cleric Attack 25

Divine power wells up within you, and you seem to tower over your god's enemies.

Daily ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, your reach increases by 1, your melee attacks deal 1d6 extra damage, and you gain a +1 power bonus to speed and a +2 power bonus to AC. Then make the following attack.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Level 27 Encounter Prayers

Divine Contempt — Cleric Attack 27

You utter a scathing curse that crushes your enemy's spirit with despair.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage, and the target is stunned until the end of your next turn.
Aftereffect: Until the end of your next turn, the target is dazed and takes a penalty to attack rolls equal to 1 + your Charisma modifier.

Healer's Reproof — Cleric Attack 27

Your shout confounds your enemies and fills your ally with renewed strength.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Healing, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: The target is stunned until the end of your next turn.
Effect: One ally in the burst can spend a healing surge and regain additional hit points equal to 3d6 + your Wisdom modifier.

Scouring Smite — Cleric Attack 27

The shining power of your faith consumes your foe as you attack and lances out to assail others who threaten you.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier radiant damage, and the target and each enemy within 2 squares of it gain vulnerable 5 to all damage until the end of your next turn.

Stroke of Ruin — Cleric Attack 27

Your weapon opens a tear in the fabric of the cosmos that consumes the strength of the enemy you strike.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Necrotic, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier necrotic damage, and the target is weakened until the end of your next turn. If the target has resistance or immunity to necrotic damage, it takes no damage and is stunned instead of weakened.

Sublime Light — Cleric Attack 27

Your holy symbol blazes brightly, restoring your allies and blinding your foes with its irresistible glare.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d10 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage, and the target is blinded until the end of your next turn.
Effect: You and each ally in the blast make a saving throw. Also, each enemy in the blast cannot benefit from invisibility until the end of your next turn.

Level 29 Daily Prayers

Astral Exile — Cleric Attack 29

Your strike hurls your enemy deep into the Astral Sea.

Daily ✦ Divine, Radiant, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier radiant damage, and the target disappears into the Astral Sea (save ends). When this effect ends, the target reappears in a space of your choice within 5 squares of its original space.
Aftereffect: The target is dazed (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target is dazed (save ends).

Breath of the Stars — Cleric Attack 29

You exhale the cold, pale light of the Astral Sea, driving back your enemies and healing your friends.

Daily ✦ Cold, Divine, Healing, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d8 + Wisdom modifier cold and radiant damage, and you push the target 5 squares. The target is dazed (save ends).
Effect: Each ally in the blast regains hit points as if he or she had spent a healing surge. Each dying ally in the blast instead regains hit points equal to his or her bloodied value.

Chains of the Peacemaker — Cleric Attack 29

Glowing chains enwrap your foe and interfere with its attacks.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: The target takes a –5 penalty to attack rolls and is weakened (save ends both).
Aftereffect: The target takes a –5 penalty to attack rolls until it hits with an attack.
Miss: The target takes a –5 penalty to attack rolls and is weakened until the end of your next turn.

Enforced Surrender — Cleric Attack 29

Divine will echoes in your voice as you command your enemy to lay down its arms.

Daily ✦ Charm, Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: The target is dominated (save ends).
Aftereffect: Each ally within your line of sight gains a +5 power bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls against the target until the end of its next turn.
Miss: Each ally within your line of sight gains a +5 power bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls against the target until the end of your next turn.

Stern Judgment — Cleric Attack 29

Your weapon imposes blinding pain on a foe, cursing it and its fellows with your god's disfavor.

Daily ✦ Divine, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Will
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and ongoing 10 damage (save ends). Whenever the target takes the ongoing damage, it and each enemy adjacent to it are blinded until the end of the target's next turn.
Aftereffect: Ongoing 5 damage (save ends).

RISE OF THE RAVEN QUEEN

In the early ages of the world, the souls of mortals unclaimed by the gods were not free to pass to the great beyond after death. Instead Nerull, the god of the dead, held them in his gray, cheerless dominion of Pluton. There they would spend eternity as powerless shades, haunted by the memory of life's rich sensation and vigor. Nerull's dominion grew ever greater, as each day myriad souls came to his realm, never to depart. The god of the dead set his sights on making himself king over all the gods, and began to send blights and plagues into the world to speed the passage of mortals into his realm.

Then an especially powerful mortal died and came to Nerull's domain, a beautiful and proud sorcerer-queen. Unique among the gray shades held in Pluton, her ghostly form glowed with her fierce will and ambition. Nerull deemed her a worthy consort, and he gave her form and substance so that she could rule at his side. Her name in life is forgotten now, but some knew her as Nera, which was the name that Nerull bestowed on her. She proved to be Nerull's doom, for the sorcerer-queen refused to be second to any being, god or mortal.

Nera discovered the means by which Nerull held mortal shades in thrall and seized that power for herself. Strengthened by countless souls, she challenged the god of death and strove with him for mastery of Pluton. Although she was mighty indeed, Nerull was an old and formidable god, and even shorn of his dead legions he was too strong for her. In order to defeat him, she had to release the souls she held: Each one freed gave up a tiny surge of strength as it passed from bondage. By freeing almost all the souls imprisoned in Pluton, she grew strong enough to destroy Nerull and seize his dominion over death.

After her victory, the sorcerer-queen thought to take Nerull's place—but the other gods intervened. Rather than rising as the new deity of the dead, she instead presides over death itself. Mortal souls are no longer bound to eternal imprisonment but instead pass into the infinite, beyond the power or knowledge of the gods.

Ever since those events, the death goddess has sought to escape the strictures limiting her power. Soon after her ascension, she expunged her true name from the knowledge of all creatures and took to calling herself the Raven Queen. In this way she hoped to void the restrictions on her role. She abandoned Pluton, founding a realm of her own in the mountains of Letherna in the Shadowfell.

In the long centuries since the Raven Queen overthrew Nerull, she has slowly increased her power, adding dominion over fate and winter to her rule over death. She sorely resents the gods who denied her the full power Nerull once wielded, and she jealously guards her domain. She has no power over souls who do not bind themselves to gods or devils in life, but the Raven Queen claims all who place themselves in her power, and they are enslaved within her cold realm forever.

In addition to the paragon paths in this chapter, the hammer of Moradin paragon path (page 100) is open to clerics.

Anointed Champion

"Ancient blessings have I spoken over my armaments. I do not fear any power that stands against me."

Prerequisite: Cleric

In times long past, when the gods warred with the primordials, the divine armies were arrayed in majestic regalia blessed by angelic armorers with powerful wards against their foes. By long study of holy texts, you have learned those ancient prayers and rites.

As an anointed champion, you ward yourself against your foes by sanctifying the arms and armor you bear into battle with sacred oil and special ceremonies. You speak prayers that have not been heard by mortals for centuries, conferring the ancient blessings upon your companions as well. As you perform your holy tasks, you can feel the pull of history urging you on to the same glory the armies of the gods knew as they bested their enemies in ages past.

Anointed Champion Path Features

Anointed Regalia (11th level): You can choose to anoint one item you wear or carry. Doing so confers a benefit based on the item. Only one item can be anointed at a time, and the benefit lasts until you anoint a new item. As a free action, you can anoint a different item or choose a different benefit (if the anointed item is a weapon) during a short rest or after you use an anointed champion power.

Anointed Armor: You gain a +1 bonus to AC.

Anointed Weapon: You gain resistance equal to your Charisma modifier against a damage type of your choice: fire, necrotic, radiant, or thunder.

Anointed Amulet: You gain a +1 bonus to Fortitude, Reflex, and Will.

Anointed Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you also gain a bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls equal to your Charisma modifier. The bonus lasts until the end of your turn.

Additional Anointed Regalia (16th level): Your Anointed Regalia path feature includes two additional types of items.

Anointed Holy Symbol: When you hit with a divine attack, you grant temporary hit points equal to your Charisma modifier to yourself or to an ally within your line of sight.

Anointed Helm: You gain a +2 bonus to saving throws.

Anointed Champion Prayers

Blessed Blade — Anointed Champion Attack 11

You smite your foe with a spectral sword, and you speak a blessing for your allies to match that of your own armaments.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Force, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier force damage, and each ally within 5 squares of you gains your current Anointed Regalia benefit until the end of your next turn.

Exaltation — Anointed Champion Utility 12

Fired by your ancient blessing, your ally's armaments and armor glow with supernatural power.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Healing
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: One ally in burst
Effect: The target can make a saving throw or spend a healing surge. Until the end of your next turn, the target gains a +2 power bonus to his or her next attack roll and all defenses.

Anointed Army — Anointed Champion Attack 20

Divine brilliance burns your foes and grants your companions blessings that once warded the armies of the gods.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d10 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, each ally in the burst gains a +4 power bonus to all defenses and a +2 power bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls.

RON SPENCER

Astral Savant

"Beyond the world you know, higher powers dwell. There lies the font of my strength, and the source of your doom."

Prerequisite: Cleric

You are a theologian, and you have devoted yourself to learning the nature of the gods and their dominions. Through years of study, you have developed a philosophy that grants you a deep understanding of higher realities and the properties of divine power.

As an astral savant, you use your uncanny insights to tap into the raw power of the forces that shape the Astral Sea, creating a wide range of effects with your prayers. You wield divine energy in ways that other clerics cannot, warding and sustaining your allies against their foes.

Astral Savant Path Features

Astral Mask (11th level): You are considered an immortal creature for the purpose of effects that relate to creature origin.

Savant's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, one ally within your line of sight can also spend a healing surge.

Radiant Healing (11th level): Whenever you use the healing word power, each enemy adjacent to the power's target takes radiant damage equal to your Charisma modifier.

Divine Resurgence (16th level): When an enemy scores a critical hit against you or an ally within your line of sight, you regain the use of a Channel Divinity power you have used during this encounter. If you haven't used a Channel Divinity power during this encounter, you gain a +2 bonus to all defenses until the end of your next turn.

Astral Savant Prayers

Astral Flood — Astral Savant Attack 11

A wave of raw energy drawn from the Astral Sea flows through you and lashes out at your enemies.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement; Cold or Radiant
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier cold or radiant damage (choose one for all targets). The attack has an additional effect based on the damage type.
✦ Cold: The target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.
✦ Radiant: The target cannot see creatures more than 5 squares away from it.

Swim the Astral Sea — Astral Savant Utility 12

You and your companion move effortlessly through astral currents, bypassing mundane impediments.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 10
Target: You and one ally in burst
Effect: Each target can shift a number of squares equal to his or her speed, ignoring difficult terrain. Each target is unaffected by the immobilized, restrained, and slowed conditions during this movement.

Astral Terrain — Astral Savant Attack 20

You assail your enemies with the raw stuff of the Astral Sea, creating a temporary echo of that plane.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement; Cold or Radiant
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 10 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d8 + Wisdom modifier cold or radiant damage (choose one for all targets).
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of shimmering substance that lasts until the end of your next turn. The zone's effect depends on the attack's damage type.
✦ Cold: Any enemy that starts its turn within the zone takes a -2 penalty to all defenses until the end of your next turn.
✦ Radiant: Any ally within the zone who spends a healing surge regains 2d6 additional hit points.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

KIERAN YANNER

Battle Chaplain

"Fear not, friends, for we do the work of the gods."

Prerequisite: Cleric

When evil bubbles up from the Abyss and spills into the world, when insane hordes raid and plunder civilized lands, or when lawlessness threatens society, you fight back to preserve the world. You shoulder this burden willingly, but you can lighten the load by uniting your companions behind your holy mission. You lead through your inspiring presence, wise words, and brave deeds, with the goal of one day ushering your allies to the glory that awaits bold champions of your faith.

You are a soldier of your god, but not a proselytizer. All deities and their servants have a place in the world. Your role is to unite disparate beliefs and achieve a common victory. Your tolerance, however, does not extend to those agents of ruin who would subvert your harmonious message with their ambition and greed.

When you sing hymns and recite scripture in battle, a silver halo appears above your head as a symbol of your belief and divine blessing. Its light fills your comrades with hope and purpose, helping them to rise above the mundane and seize their destinies.

AMELIA STONER

Battle Chaplain Path Features

Battle Chant (11th level): Whenever an ally hits an enemy that is adjacent to you, you can mark that enemy. The mark lasts until the end of your next turn. If the enemy marked by you makes an attack that does not include you as a target, you can shift 1 square as a free action.

Shielded Priest (11th level): You gain proficiency with light and heavy shields.

Stirring Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, one ally adjacent to you or to the target of your attack can also make a melee basic attack as a free action, with a bonus to the attack roll equal to your Strength modifier.

Deeds not Words (16th level): When you bloody an enemy, reduce an enemy to 0 hit points, or score a critical hit with a melee attack, an ally adjacent to you gains a bonus to damage rolls equal to your Strength modifier until the start of your next turn.

Battle Chaplain Prayers

Revelation of Battle — Battle Chaplain Attack 11

A ringing impact from your favored weapon instructs your allies in the more direct matters of faith.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Reflex
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Each ally within 10 squares of you gains a +2 power bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls until the start of your next turn.

Battle Hymn — Battle Chaplain Utility 12

You raise your voice in song, and your companions carry its power into battle.

Daily ✦ Divine
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, each target deals 1d8 extra damage when making a melee basic attack as part of a charge.

Deny Defeat — Battle Chaplain Attack 20

You refuse to let your allies fall—their desperation drives you to heroic effort.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC. You gain a +2 bonus to the attack roll for each dying ally within your line of sight.
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Each dying ally within your line of sight can spend a healing surge.

Compassionate Healer

"To alleviate the suffering of the just, the innocent, and the valiant is the highest of callings."

Prerequisite: Cleric

Swords and spells can hold off enemies for a time, but still the best and bravest heroes fall to opposing forces. Thus, you have dedicated all your spirit to healing heroes' injuries and sustaining their efforts. You are a master of healing, and you are not afraid to give freely of your own strength and life to aid your companions.

Even more than your fellow heroes, you willingly risk yourself so that others might live, inspiring your comrades to daring acts of courage. You are not suicidal; you're just committed to your cause. Every wound you suffer spares another champion to fight on in the name of your god and beliefs. Death elicits no fear in you; your reward waits in the hereafter.

Compassionate Healer Path Features

Compassionate Blessing (11th level): When you restore hit points with a healing power, you can choose to take 5 damage. If you do, the power's target regains 2d6 additional hit points, and you gain a +2 power bonus to all defenses until the end of your next turn.

Selfless Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, an ally within 5 squares of you can also spend a healing surge.

Healer's Sacrifice (16th level): When you grant an ally the opportunity to spend one or more healing surges and that ally has no more than one healing surge left, you can spend one or more healing surges but regain no hit points. Each healing surge you spend reduces the number that ally spends by one. The ally regains hit points as if he or she had spent the healing surges.

Compassionate Healer Prayers

So Others Might Live — Compassionate Healer Attack 11

Your prayer saps your enemy's strength. You then take its attack onto yourself to protect your ally, who is healed by your sacrifice.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Healing, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: The target is weakened until the end of your next turn. The first time the target damages one of your allies with an attack before the end of your next turn, you take the damage instead, and that ally can spend a healing surge.

EMRAH ELMASLI

Bear the Wounds — Compassionate Healer Utility 12

Your ally's injuries fade, only to reappear on your body.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing
Standard Action Melee touch
Target: One ally
Effect: Choose a number up to your bloodied value. The target regains that number of hit points, and you take the same amount of damage. You can then transfer to yourself any effect on the target that a save can end.

Martyr's Cry — Compassionate Healer Attack 20

The wounds you suffer weaken your enemy.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement
Immediate Reaction Close burst 5
Trigger: An enemy within 5 squares of you bloodies you or damages you while you're bloodied
Target: The triggering enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: The target is weakened (save ends).
Aftereffect: The target is weakened (save ends).
Miss: The target is weakened (save ends).

Holy Emissary

"I bring a message from my god—and you will hear it, on pain of death."

Prerequisite: Cleric

You are a herald of the gods, imbued with divine will. Wherever you travel, you announce the intentions and desires of your patron. Your actions, words, and beliefs are windows into the gods' dominions, and through them shines the divine presence.

Although you serve a single deity, you enjoy a special connection with all divine powers, allowing them to subtly influence you and those around you. You might even be moved to prophesy from time to time. Some devotees of your faith might distrust this relationship; although they too honor all the gods, they take pride in their service to a single deity.

Whenever you speak in Supernal or utter your prayers, a tongue of fire appears over your head. The flame does not burn and sheds only the faintest light, but it does identify your special status.

Holy Emissary Path Features

Holy Tongue (11th level): You are fluent in Supernal.

Gift of Hope (11th level): Any ally who ends his or her turn adjacent to you gains a bonus to saving throws equal to your Wisdom modifier until the start of his or her next turn.

Gift of Grace Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, each ally adjacent to you also gains a bonus to all defenses equal to your Wisdom modifier until the end of your next turn.

Gift of Life (16th level): When you restore hit points to a bloodied target by using a divine healing power, the target regains 1d6 additional hit points.

Holy Emissary Prayers

Trumpet of Awe — Holy Emissary Attack 11

Astral trumpets announce your god. Your allies take heart and your enemies quail before the divine presence.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Wisdom modifier thunder damage, and the target grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn.
Effect: Each ally in the blast can make a saving throw with a bonus equal to your Charisma modifier.

Call Home the Weary — Holy Emissary Utility 12

Your ally has fought well, but now must withdraw to rest and recover.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Healing, Teleportation
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One bloodied ally
Effect: The target teleports to a square adjacent to you and can spend a healing surge, adding your Charisma modifier to the hit points regained.

Message of War — Holy Emissary Attack 20

You raise your voice in song, joining your music with an angelic choir to urge your comrades to victory.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One enemy
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d8 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage.
Effect: Each ally adjacent to the target can make a melee basic attack against it as a free action, with a bonus to the attack roll and the damage roll equal to your Charisma modifier.

CONCEPT ART HOUSE LLC

Messenger of Peace

"Violence should be the last resort."

Prerequisite: Cleric, trained in Diplomacy

You grieve for the so-called civilized races, too many of whom are locked in useless, never-ending strife. Unless some brave soul steps forward to set a better example, constant warfare can only create more conflict. Thus you have laid down your weapons and spoken vows of nonviolence, hoping to find a civilized solution to the problems of mortals.

As a messenger of peace, you always work to find a way around combat when battle is avoidable. Diplomacy is your principal weapon: Through carefully chosen words and accurate assessments of your opponent's desires, you might be able to circumvent conflict altogether. Not all enemies are willing to set aside their anger, though. Should battle erupt despite your best efforts, you are an eye of calm in war's hurricane. The weak, the weary, and the sorely wounded find succor in your presence.

Messenger of Peace Path Features

Vow of Nonviolence (11th level): When you hit with an attack that doesn't deal damage, you gain a +2 bonus to all defenses until the start of your next turn.

Peacemaker's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, you gain a +4 bonus to attack rolls with attacks that don't deal damage. The bonus lasts until the end of your turn.

Aura of Peace (16th level): Enemies within 2 squares of you take a –2 penalty to attack rolls.

Peace, Not Pacifism

Your commitment to nonviolence applies chiefly to thinking mortals who can be reasoned with. It doesn't make sense when you deal with monsters trying to eat you, creatures such as demons or evil dragons that are destructive by their very nature, or even intelligent beings that have an unslakable thirst for violence, such as gnolls and orcs. You can fight to defend yourself and your allies, although you should use as little violence as possible against foes who might someday choose a different path. If your enemies are capable of learning from your example, urge your companions to refrain from dealing killing blows, instead taking prisoners and showing mercy to the defeated.

Messenger of Peace Prayers

Pacify — Messenger of Peace Attack 11

Your words make your foe think twice before resorting to violence.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: If the target hits or misses with an attack before the start of your next turn, it is stunned until the end of its next turn.

Peacemaker's Pronouncement — Messenger of Peace Utility 12

At your word, an enemy's punishment or a friend's blessing continues.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: One creature in burst
Effect: One effect on the target that would otherwise end at the end of your current turn instead lasts until the end of your next turn.

End to Strife — Messenger of Peace Attack 20

You utter a stern command, and your enemies lose their will to fight.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 5 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: The target cannot attack until it is attacked or until the end of the encounter.
Miss: The target takes a –5 penalty to attack rolls until it is attacked or until the end of the encounter.

KIERAN YANNER

Miracle Worker

"These hands have cured the sick, healed the injured, and forestalled death's cruel touch."

Prerequisite: Cleric, trained in Heal

You've always had a knack for the healing arts. People just seem to recover more quickly under your care: Bones knit and cuts mend quickly, and even sickness flees your touch. As your mastery of divine power has strengthened, so too have your skills at tending the sick and injured. Now life energy flows through your fingertips to anyone you attend.

More than other clerics, you commit your life to alleviating suffering in any form. When you are not adventuring, you might work in the temples of any god and lend your talents to help the community, whether supplying food to the hungry or removing sickness from the afflicted. You bring these same sensibilities to an adventuring group. You move across the battlefield to shore up weakness and patch up the wounded so they can get back into the fight. You might not directly share in the glory enjoyed by your companions, but you take heart in knowing that they couldn't have done it without you.

Miracle Worker Path Features

Word of Life (11th level): When you use your healing word power, you roll d8s instead of d6s for the additional hit points restored.

Healing Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to use a divine healing power, each ally adjacent to you regains hit points equal to 1d6 + your Wisdom modifier. The hit points regained increase to 2d6 + your Wisdom modifier at 21st level.

Aura of Health (16th level): When an ally within 5 squares of you uses his or her second wind, that ally regains 3d6 additional hit points.

Miracle Worker Prayers

Reversal of Fortunes Miracle Worker Attack 11

A whispered benediction heals the injuries of an ally and gives the attacker a taste of the pain it inflicted.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Healing, Implement
Immediate Reaction Ranged 5
Trigger: An enemy within 5 squares of you hits your ally adjacent to it
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d10 + Wisdom modifier damage. The ally hit by the triggering enemy's attack can spend a healing surge and regain 2d10 additional hit points.

Miraculous Grace Miracle Worker Utility 12

Your timely prayer enables your ally to escape certain doom.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing
Immediate Reaction Ranged 5
Trigger: An ally within 5 squares of you drops to 0 hit points or fewer
Target: The triggering ally
Effect: The target regains hit points as if he or she had spent a healing surge and regains 2d6 additional hit points. In addition, the target makes a saving throw against each effect on him or her that a save can end.

Reap What You Sow Miracle Worker Attack 20

You denounce a foe, making it suffer all the pains dealt to your friends.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: One enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: You transfer all effects that a save can end from each ally within the burst to the target.
Miss: You transfer one effect that a save can end from each ally within the burst to the target.

AMELIA STONER

Seldarine Dedicate

"Corellon guide my heart, Sehanine my arrow."

Prerequisite: Elf or eladrin, cleric, proficiency with longbow or shortbow

The Seldarine, the fellowship of brothers and sisters of the woods, comprises Corellon, Sehanine, and the other gods and exarchs who dwell in the dominion of Arvandor. Revered by elves and eladrin alike, these gods watch over and protect their favored scions. Elf and eladrin clerics often worship one or another of the Seldarine, but a few pay homage to the whole, drawing their power from Arvandor's combined wisdom.

As a Seldarine dedicate, you occupy a high position within your temples. You and the few others like you enjoy a broader connection to the gods of Arvandor than other clerics do, and you know methods for communing with them. You draw a bow as readily as you raise your holy symbol to focus your prayers.

Your weapon is inscribed with sigils and runes, which flare with emerald light when you fire a shot with a whispered prayer.

Seldarine Dedicate Path Features

Honor the Bow (11th level): You can use a longbow or a shortbow as an implement for your cleric or Seldarine dedicate implement powers. When you use an implement power through a longbow or a shortbow, you add the weapon's enhancement bonus, if any, to the power's attack rolls and damage rolls, but you don't use the weapon's proficiency bonus. If you score a critical hit with a magic longbow or shortbow when using it as an implement, you use the weapon's critical hit effect.

Renewing Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you also gain an extra use of your healing word power for this encounter.

Footsteps of the Gods (16th level): When you use a cleric or a Seldarine dedicate implement power, you can use a free action to shift 1 square before or after using that power.

Seldarine Dedicate Prayers

Moonbeam Seldarine Dedicate Attack 11

A ray of frosty light streaks from your bow to slow the limbs of your prey.

Encounter ✦ Cold, Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 20
Requirement: You must be wielding a longbow or a shortbow.
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d10 + Wisdom modifier cold damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target grants combat advantage to anyone that makes a ranged attack against it.

Shroud of Stars Seldarine Dedicate Utility 12

Myriad specks of light swirl about you, hiding you from enemies.

Daily ✦ Divine, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you shift, you gain concealment until the start of your next turn.

Seldarine Wrath Seldarine Dedicate Attack 20

You launch a fiery bolt from your bow that erupts into white-hot flame where it hits.

Daily ✦ Divine, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 20
Requirement: You must be wielding a longbow or a shortbow.
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d10 + Wisdom modifier fire damage, and the target takes ongoing 10 fire damage and is dazed (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 10 fire damage (save ends).

HOWARD LYON

Stone Keeper

"Memory, like stone, lasts forever."

Prerequisite: Dwarf, cleric, trained in History

Dwarves have long memories. They strengthen their recollections by retelling stories passed down since the dark days of their enslavement to giants. Preserving these tales is the responsibility of the stone keepers, dwarves chosen for their wisdom and commitment to history. These stone fathers and mothers, as they are sometimes called, chisel stories into shrine walls and temple domes to give their history a physical presence, making them part of the architecture and wonder of dwarven cities.

As a stone keeper, you concern yourself with the past, but you are not simply a scholar. You are a holy champion who draws strength from your fury over all the wrongs ever committed against your people, bringing it to bear against foes who still threaten your race. When dwarven strongholds are in danger, you are the first to unite the clans against the enemy. You also travel widely, visiting ruined dwarven kingdoms and city-states to learn their fates and to exact vengeance when it is deserved.

Your views and beliefs encompass all of history and the place your people occupy in it. You harbor a deep-seated, smoldering anger born of ancient wrongs and long centuries of grief. Your prayers focus this anger into your attacks.

Stone Keeper Path Features

None So Great (11th level): When you score a critical hit against a target that is larger than you, the target is knocked prone after the attack's other effects are resolved.

Memorable Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, your weapon attacks deal 1[W] extra damage until the end of your next turn.

Unfailing Fortune (16th level): When you use your divine fortune power, you gain a +3 bonus instead of a +1 bonus. If you apply this bonus to an attack and miss, you gain another use of divine fortune for this encounter.

Stone Keeper Prayers

Rancorous Smite Stone Keeper Attack 11

Enraged by the harm done to your companions, you force your enemy to repay the debt in blood.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC. You gain a +1 bonus to the attack roll for each bloodied ally within your line of sight.
Hit: 3[W] + Wisdom modifier damage.

Scrape the Sky Stone Keeper Utility 12

Fury fills you, and you tower over your enemies.

Daily ✦ Divine
Standard Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, your reach and speed both increase by 1, and your melee attacks deal 2d6 extra damage.

Every Wrong Righted Stone Keeper Attack 20

You channel your smoldering resentment into a savage strike and inspire your allies to finish the job.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage, and each ally adjacent to you gains a +3 power bonus to attack rolls against the target until the start of your next turn.
Effect: You and each ally adjacent to you can spend a healing surge.

KEREM BEYIT

Truthseeker

"The light of truth reveals all secrets and denies all falsehoods."

Prerequisite: Cleric

Deception worms its way through the world, corroding morals and subverting ideals. Only through constant vigilance can this welling corruption be checked. Many divine servants battle obvious foes—undead, demons, and other foul creatures—but the enemies you face are far more insidious. You explore realms of shadow and deception, leading the fight against enemies who use guile instead of brutality.

To combat such forces, you armor yourself in the truth, using its radiance to burn away the lies and falsehoods your foes employ. In your presence, the enemy cannot hide or use its tricks, and it stands exposed before you.

Facing the worst sort of villains leaves its mark on you. You age prematurely, lines creasing your face, but such ravages of the body do not extend to your spirit. Each victory only firms your resolve. When you wield your truthseeker powers in the name of your god, your voice sounds like thunder and your enemies quail before your righteous presence.

LUCAS GRACIANO

Truthseeker Path Features

Censuring Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to use a divine attack power, until the end of your next turn, any enemy that ends its turn adjacent to you takes a –2 penalty to all defenses (save ends).

Healing Truth (11th level): Each target of your healing word power gains a +2 power bonus to all defenses against fear, illusion, and polymorph effects until the end of the encounter.

Unequaled Clarity (16th level): When you make an Insight check, you can roll twice and use either result. In addition, you gain a +4 bonus to passive Insight checks.

Truthseeker Prayers

Corruption Unveiled — Truthseeker Attack 11

You brandish your symbol, whose irresistible glow reveals your enemy's secrets.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d10 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage, and the target cannot use fear, illusion, or polymorph powers until the end of your next turn.

Shrine of Clarity — Truthseeker Utility 12

Tracing a circle of binding power, you force your enemies to stand and face you.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Zone
Standard Action Close burst 5
Effect: The burst creates a zone of planar interference that lasts until the end of your next turn. Enemies cannot teleport into the zone. While within the zone, enemies cannot teleport and cannot benefit from phasing or being insubstantial.

Moment of Truth — Truthseeker Attack 20

Your holy symbol flashes, confounding a foe.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: The target is stunned and helpless until the end of your next turn.
Aftereffect: The target is dazed (save ends).
Miss: The target is dazed (save ends).

Invoker

"Do not look to me for forgiveness. Do not implore me to be merciful. I am a truth unendurable and a reckoning of wrongs, and I am here to call you to account."

You are a speaker of truth and a shouter of defiance. Through your hand, your staff, and your voice the power of the gods is loosed against your foes. You scour enemies by the half-dozen with divine power: blinding them with radiance, hammering them with thunder, burning them with holy flame, driving them to the ground, and binding them in chains of light. Your words of judgment are the last the gods' enemies hear.

Unlike divine characters who gain their powers through rites of investiture, invokers gain their powers through covenants made directly with the gods. The Covenant of Preservation and the Covenant of Wrath are presented in Player's Handbook 2; the Covenant of Malediction is described here. All invokers rely on fragments of the words of creation to some extent, but as a malediction invoker, you master more of these ancient syllables and wield their power against your foes. Like the Covenant of Wrath, the Covenant of Malediction is an offensively oriented path. Many of its powers cripple enemies' defenses and prove unusually difficult to shake off.

Regardless of your choice of covenant, this chapter offers you new options for wielding divine power against your foes. The chapter includes the following material.

- New Class Feature: The Covenant of Malediction includes a new Channel Divinity power, which hinders your foes.
- New Build: As a malediction invoker, make your enemies quail at the sound of your very words.
- New Invoker Powers: Nearly a hundred new powers for you to choose from, including ones suitable for the Covenant of Preservation, the Covenant of Malediction, and the Covenant of Wrath.
- New Paragon Paths: A variety of new invoker paragon paths, including the adept of whispers, the Keeper of the Nine, and the stonecaller.

HOWARD LYON

NEW CLASS FEATURE

When you choose your Divine Covenant, you can select the Covenant of Malediction instead of another option, such as the ones in Player's Handbook 2.

Covenant of Malediction

The gods entrust you with the invocations of destruction used in their war against the primordials, so you can carry forward their sacred cause and ensure that the world's enemies never rise again.

Channel Divinity: You gain the Channel Divinity power malefictor's doom.

Covenant Manifestation: When you use a divine encounter or daily attack power on your turn, you can push one target hit by the power 1 square after the power's effect is resolved.

Channel Divinity: Malefictor's Doom — Invoker Feature

Foes who hear your solemn vow are shaken by its weighty promise.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fear
Minor Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Effect: Each target takes a -1 penalty to attack rolls and saving throws until the end of your next turn. In addition, whenever the target is hit by a fear attack before the end of your next turn, you push the target 1 square as a free action.

NEW BUILD

Player's Handbook 2 introduced the preserving invoker and the wrathful invoker. This chapter adds the malediction invoker, whose pronouncements on the battlefield bring ruin to those that would stand in opposition.

Malediction Invoker

The malediction invoker build is based on the Covenant of Malediction. The malediction invoker employs dread words of power to eradicate the gods' foes. These words of power come from the gods' lexicon, the very words of creation. The words are frequently too potent for mortals, imperiling the health and sanity of those who speak them. Malediction invokers need a high Wisdom score to intone the words properly and to piece together the inflections and holy grammar required to use the words in battle. Words of power bear a physical price, so malediction invokers should consider making Constitution their second highest ability, followed closely by Intelligence.

Suggested Class Feature: Covenant of Malediction*
Suggested Feat: Baleful Malediction
Suggested Skills: Arcana, Endurance, Insight, Religion
Suggested At-Will Powers: *grasping shards, visions of blood
Suggested Encounter Power: *summons of justice
Suggested Daily Power: *execration
*New option presented in this book

NEW INVOKER POWERS

The invoker is the hand of divine will, a champion of the gods who brings to bear terrible prayers in the name of his or her holy cause. This section expands the power options for all invokers, as well as presenting powers tailored for the Covenant of Malediction.

Level 1 At-Will Prayers

Hand of Radiance — Invoker Attack 1

Tendrils of radiance streak from your fingertips across the battlefield. The beams strike your enemies, raining sparks of light on impact.

At-Will ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One, two, or three creatures
Level 21: Target an additional creature.
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d4 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage.

Mantle of the Infidel — Invoker Attack 1

Holding your implement high, you conjure a radiant mantle that sears a foe and marks it as an enemy of the faith.

At-Will ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 1d6 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage. If the target is marked, the penalty to attack rolls it takes from the marked condition is -4 instead of -2.
Level 21: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage.

Visions of Blood — Invoker Attack 1

The images of carnage and death that you invoke sow doubt in your enemies.

At-Will ✦ Divine, Fear, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 1d6 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage, and the target takes a -1 penalty to all defenses until the start of your next turn.
Level 21: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage.

Level 1 Encounter Prayers

Forceful Denunciation — Invoker Attack 1

It is as if your god brushes aside your foes, such is the forcefulness of your denunciation.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier thunder damage, and you push the target 1 square.
Covenant of Preservation: The number of squares you push the target equals your Intelligence modifier.

Lightning's Revelation — Invoker Attack 1

Lightning splits the air, striking your foes and exposing their frailty.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier lightning damage, and the target takes a -1 penalty to all defenses until the end of your next turn.
Covenant of Wrath: The penalty to all defenses equals your Constitution modifier.

Summons of Justice — Invoker Attack 1

Justice will be served no matter the cost. You draw from your own vitality to hurl a brilliant ray that compels your enemies to come forward.

Encounter ✦ Charm, Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: One or two creatures in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage, and you pull the target 3 squares.
Covenant of Malediction: You also knock the target prone.
Effect: You are dazed until the end of your next turn.

Whispers of Defeat — Invoker Attack 1

Your words assume a life of their own, worming into your enemies' minds and creating a feeling that defeat is inevitable.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fear, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: Until the end of your next turn, the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls, and whenever the target misses with an attack, it takes 5 psychic damage.
Covenant of Malediction: Add your Wisdom modifier to the psychic damage.

MATIAS TAPIA

Level 1 Daily Prayers

Crown of Retaliation — Invoker Attack 1

You point at a foe and form a circle with your hands. A translucent crown then appears over that foe's head, searing it with each injury your companions suffer.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage.
Effect: The target is affected by your crown of retaliation (save ends). Until the crown ends, the target takes 5 radiant damage when any ally within 5 squares of it takes damage.

Execration — Invoker Attack 1

You spit a dread curse, which punishes your enemies and causes you to feel an echo of their pain.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: One or two creatures in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Wisdom modifier damage, or 2d8 + Wisdom modifier damage if you target only one creature. The target takes ongoing 10 damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 damage (save ends).
Effect: You take ongoing 5 damage (save ends).

Invocation of Ice and Fire — Invoker Attack 1

Flaming hail bludgeons your opponents.

Daily ✦ Cold, Divine, Fire, Implement, Zone
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier cold and fire damage.
Effect: The blast creates a zone of flaming hail that lasts until the end of your next turn. Any creature that starts its turn within the zone takes 5 cold and fire damage.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Silent Malediction — Invoker Attack 1

You enter a trance as your lips move. Your enemies don't hear what you're saying because of the thunder rumbling around them.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier thunder damage, and the target is stunned (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Effect: You are dazed until the end of your next turn.

Storm Call — Invoker Attack 1

Filled with the wrath of the gods, you call down thunder and lightning on your enemy.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Lightning, Thunder
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d8 + Wisdom modifier thunder damage. The target takes ongoing 5 lightning damage and is dazed (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage, and the target is slowed (save ends).

Level 2 Utility Prayers

Divine Protection — Invoker Utility 2

You act knowing that your god will save you from harm.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you don't provoke opportunity attacks.

Encouraging Chant — Invoker Utility 2

You shout a word of hope to restore your allies' confidence.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Zone
Minor Action Close burst 2
Effect: The burst creates a zone of hope that lasts until the end of your next turn. While within the zone, you and any allies gain a power bonus to saving throws equal to your Intelligence modifier.

AMELIA STONER

Know Weakness — Invoker Utility 2

You utter words of power that are also words of knowledge.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Choose a creature within 10 squares of you. You know that creature's current resistances and vulnerabilities, if any.

Lore of Shom — Invoker Utility 2

You invoke the vast knowledge of the lost civilization of Shom, gaining access to esoteric lore that might otherwise escape you.

Daily ✦ Divine
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You make an Arcana check, a History check, or a Religion check and dislike the result
Effect: You reroll the skill check with a power bonus equal to your Intelligence modifier and use either result.

Miraculous Fortune — Invoker Utility 2

Though the attack strikes you, your timely prayer reduces the worst of the injury and inspires a nearby ally.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: You are damaged by an enemy's attack
Effect: The damage is reduced by 5. One ally within 5 squares of you gains a +1 power bonus to attack rolls until the start of your next turn.

Level 3 Encounter Prayers

Knives of the Soul — Invoker Attack 3

Two translucent blades burst out of your body and streak toward your enemies. You stagger from the unleashed power.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Force, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d10 + Wisdom modifier force damage, or 2d12 + Wisdom modifier force damage if you target only one creature. You push the target 1 square.
Covenant of Malediction: The number of squares you push the target equals your Constitution modifier.
Effect: You take 5 damage.

Penance Compelled — Invoker Attack 3

Someone will pay for these crimes; you guarantee it.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage. The next time the target deals damage before the end of your next turn, choose another enemy within 10 squares of you. That enemy takes 5 radiant damage.
Covenant of Wrath: The radiant damage that the chosen enemy takes equals 5 + your Constitution modifier.

Symbol of the Broken Sword — Invoker Attack 3

You place a symbol of pacification on your enemy, partly subduing it.

Encounter ✦ Charm, Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: Until the end of your next turn, the target cannot use any attack power that requires a standard action, other than basic attacks.
Covenant of Preservation: Until the end of your next turn, the target also takes a penalty to attack rolls equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Word of Ruin — Invoker Attack 3

You utter syllables of damnation, which attack the minds of creatures around you and cloud your own.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage, and the target is dazed and slowed until the end of your next turn.
Effect: You are dazed until the end of your next turn.

Level 5 Daily Prayers

Deluge of Blood — Invoker Attack 5

Fresh blood streams from the wounds of your enemy as it is dazed by wracking pain. You must endure some of the pain too and are momentarily dazed.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement
Immediate Reaction Close burst 5
Trigger: An enemy within 5 squares of you is damaged by a melee or a ranged attack
Target: The triggering enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: The target is dazed and takes ongoing 10 damage (save ends both).
Miss: Ongoing 5 damage (save ends).
Effect: You are dazed until the end of your next turn.

Lamentation of the Wicked — Invoker Attack 5

You speak an ancient curse. Your enemies gnash their teeth and wail at the doom you promise, distracted from their own defense. Your and your allies' attacks take advantage of this distraction.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage, and the target grants combat advantage and cannot shift (save ends both).
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, when you or any ally within 5 squares of you attacks an enemy and has combat advantage against it, the attack deals extra damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

Malediction of Blindness — Invoker Attack 5

At your command, your foes lose their sight. The power of this prayer leaves you barely able to defend yourself for a moment.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier damage, and the target is blinded (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.
Effect: You grant combat advantage until the start of your next turn.

Sun Shard — Invoker Attack 5

You call down a fragment of solar essence on your enemies.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage, and the target is dazed until the end of its next turn. If this power targets only one creature, the target is dazed (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.

CRAFTING A COVENANT

Invokers take an oath to oppose the gods' enemies when they gain their powers, but your invoker's covenant need not be so simple. Consider adding other promises or special taboos to make your connection to your deity more distinct.

Maybe you agreed to bear the gods' power in order to avenge some wrong, and as repayment for the power they granted toward this end, you must complete a particular quest. Perhaps you have sworn not to kill members of some race or organization favored by the god you serve. You covenant might drive you to take seemingly inconsequential events or concepts as seriously as life and death. For example, you might have sworn to protect love as a follower of Sehanine, thus forcing you to break battle lines as you seek to reunite two young lovers drawn apart by war.

Your worship might include rites unknown to other faithful, or you might adhere to prohibitions that seem odd. You can simply do strange things for the humor of it, or you can craft these taboos or ceremonies so that they have meaning based on the deity you follow. Perhaps, as a follower of Melora, you can't cross running water without first throwing something in. Maybe Moradin demands that you say a blessing over every forge you see. Kord might call upon you to engage in all contests of strength that you encounter. As an adherent of the Raven Queen, you might speak a small prayer for the souls of the dead bodies you discover, and you might even breathe a well-wishing in the midst of battle for the souls you send on their way.

Trumpet the Star's Fall — Invoker Attack 5

A brilliant orb appears overhead and then smashes into your enemies in a storm of light and fire.

Fiery letters flicker in the air and sear nearby enemies.

Encounter ✦ Conjuration, Divine, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Effect: You conjure fiery symbols in 1 square within range. The symbols last until the end of your next turn. Any enemy that starts its turn within 5 squares of the symbols and does not end its turn at least 6 squares away from them takes fire damage equal to 10 + your Wisdom modifier.

Level 9 Daily Prayers

Baleful Admonishment — Invoker Attack 9

Your damning words wrack your body at the same time that they doom your foes to defeat.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One, two, or three creatures
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 1d10 + Wisdom modifier damage, and the target is affected by your baleful admonishment (save ends). Whenever the target hits with an attack before the baleful admonishment ends, you can take 5 damage as a free action to force the target to reroll the attack and use the second result. If the rerolled attack misses, the target takes 5 + your Constitution modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.

EMRAH ELMASLI

Hall of Thunderous Battle — Invoker Attack 9

You evoke a vision of a divine hall of battle. Your allies are emboldened by the brave shouts within it, while the sounds of battle thunder over your enemies, pushing them back.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Thunder, Zone
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier thunder damage, and you push the target a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier.
Miss: Half damage, and you push the target 1 square.
Effect: The burst creates a thundering zone that lasts until the end of your next turn. When you move, the zone moves with you, remaining centered on you. While within the zone, any ally gains a +2 power bonus to AC and Fortitude.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists, and you push each enemy within it 1 square.

Herald the Storm Unleashed — Invoker Attack 9

From a mote of flashing light, a savage storm is born, scourging enemies with lightning and thunder.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Lightning, Thunder, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d6 + Wisdom modifier lightning and thunder damage, and you slide the target 2 squares.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of lightning and thunder that lasts until the end of your next turn. Any creature that begins its turn within the zone takes 5 lightning damage. Any creature that leaves the zone takes 5 thunder damage. As a move action, you can move the zone 5 squares.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Malediction of Rigidity — Invoker Attack 9

Those arrayed around you are reluctant to move lest you blister them again with your punishing words, which stiffen your own limbs.

Daily ✦ Divine, Fear, Implement
Minor Action Close blast 5
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Wisdom modifier damage. The target takes ongoing 10 damage and is immobilized (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage. The target takes ongoing 5 damage and is slowed (save ends both).
Covenant of Malediction: The target takes a -2 penalty to saving throws against these effects.
Effect: You are immobilized until the end of your next turn.

Twist of Fate — Invoker Attack 9

You assault your enemies' minds and invoke destiny to alter the course of events, limiting the attacks the enemies can make.

Daily ✦ Charm, Divine, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage. The only attacks the target can make during its next turn are basic attacks. If your attack hits only one enemy, the only attacks it can make during its turn are basic attacks (save ends).
Covenant of Preservation: Until the end of your next turn, the target also takes a penalty to attack rolls equal to your Intelligence modifier.
Miss: Half damage.

Level 10 Utility Prayers

Call of the Vanguard — Invoker Utility 10

Divine inspiration turns an ambush to your advantage.

Daily ✦ Divine
No Action Ranged 10
Trigger: You roll initiative
Target: You and one ally
Effect: Each target gains a bonus to his or her initiative check equal to your Intelligence modifier. In addition, neither target is surprised.

Enunciation — Invoker Utility 10

Your voice raised, you extend the reach of your prayers.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you can increase the size of your close blast or close burst attacks by 1.

Prayer of Vengeance — Invoker Utility 10

You recite the ancient declaration of war against the primordials. Friends who hear it are filled with righteous indignation against their attackers.

Daily ✦ Divine, Zone
Minor Action Close burst 3
Effect: The burst creates a zone of retribution that lasts until the end of your next turn. When any ally within the zone takes damage from an attack, that ally gains a +2 power bonus to attack rolls against the attacker until the start of the ally's next turn.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Word of Urgency — Invoker Utility 10

You exclaim with authority, inspiring your friend to leap away from harm.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Free Action Close burst 10
Trigger: You use an area or a close attack power and an ally within 10 squares of you is in the area of effect
Target: The triggering ally in burst
Effect: The target can shift a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier as a free action.

Level 13 Encounter Prayers

Brilliant Revelation — Invoker Attack 13

You blast nearby creatures' minds with a dizzying vision of divine dominions.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 1d10 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage, and the target is dazed and slowed until the end of your next turn. The first time the target attacks before the end of your next turn, it takes 10 psychic damage.
Covenant of Malediction: The psychic damage the target takes when it attacks equals 10 + your Constitution modifier.

Deadly Doubt — Invoker Attack 13

Your words assail your foes' minds with self-doubt strong enough to wound them. Any further attack dazes the victims too.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage. If the target is hit again before the end of your next turn, it is dazed until the end of its next turn.
Covenant of Wrath: The first creature to attack the target before the end of your next turn gains a power bonus to its attack roll equal to your Constitution modifier.

Earthen Reversal — Invoker Attack 13

You utter a nearly forgotten word dedicated to the earth, and it heaves in response, lifting allies and upturning enemies.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 10 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1d8 + Wisdom modifier damage, and you knock the target prone.
Effect: You and each ally in the burst can stand up as a free action.
Covenant of Preservation: Each ally in the burst can also shift 1 square as a free action.

Thunderous Rebuke — Invoker Attack 13

You blast your enemies away in a wave of thunder and destruction.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Thunder
Immediate Reaction Close blast 5
Trigger: You are hit by an enemy attack
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier thunder damage, and the target is pushed 1 square and deafened until the end of your next turn.

Word of Blindness — Invoker Attack 13

At your command, creatures around you lose their sight. The power of this prayer leaves you dazed for a short time.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage, and the target is blinded until the end of your next turn.
Effect: You are dazed until the end of your next turn.
Covenant of Malediction: The size of the burst increases by 1.

Level 15 Daily Prayers

Deific Imprecation — Invoker Attack 15

You are a conduit for your god's wrath. You feel its sting as it smites your enemies.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier damage, and ongoing 10 damage (save ends).
Aftereffect: Each enemy within 3 squares of the target takes 10 damage.
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 damage (save ends).
Effect: You take ongoing 5 damage (save ends). Whenever you take this ongoing damage, choose an enemy within 5 squares of you. That enemy also takes 5 damage.

Dire Banishment — Invoker Attack 15

You temporarily banish your enemy from this world, using your life force to prevent the enemy from returning.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Necrotic, Teleportation
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 4d10 + Wisdom modifier necrotic damage, and the target vanishes from this world (save ends). You can end the effect as a minor action. When the effect ends, the target reappears in the space it last occupied or in the nearest unoccupied space.
Each Failed Saving Throw: You take 5 damage.
Miss: Half damage, and you teleport the target 5 squares.

Destined for Greatness

As an invoker, you have been personally chosen by the gods to serve their ends. How does that make you feel?

Do you envy those who are able to pursue their own destinies, or do you take great pride in your contact with the divine? Others, even other divine characters, lack your direct, moment-by-moment connection to the gods. They have faith, but you know. Do you feel pity for them, or are you awed by their greater devotion?

Is your covenant a burden imposed upon you, or did you seek it? Do you revel in your power, or do you regret the oath you made? Do you seek the gods' approval with your deeds, or are you confident that the choices you make represent their desires?

Shadowdark Invocation — Invoker Attack 15

You call forth a chill darkness, which deepens until light is but a dim memory.

Daily ✦ Cold, Divine, Implement, Zone
Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier cold damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of shadow that lasts until the end of your next turn. The zone is heavily obscured. When any creature starts its turn within the zone, that creature takes 10 cold damage, and you can slide it 3 squares as a free action. You are immune to the zone's effects. As a move action, you can move the zone 3 squares.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Storm of Punishment — Invoker Attack 15

Raising your implement, you invoke the gods and create a hole in the sky through which thunder and lightning cascade onto your foes.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Lightning, Thunder
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier lightning and thunder damage, and the target is blinded and deafened (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage, and the target is blinded and deafened until the end of your next turn.

Level 16 Utility Prayers

Confounding Utterance — Invoker Utility 16

You speak a word of seeming gibberish and then take shelter behind the confusion it creates.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, when any enemy makes a melee attack roll against you, it must roll twice and use the lower result.

Pennant of Heaven's Armies — Invoker Utility 16

A tattered white flag appears. Those who behold it find the courage they need to win the day.

Daily ✦ Conjuration, Divine
Standard Action Ranged 10
Effect: You conjure a shining banner in 1 square within range. The banner lasts until the end of your next turn. Any ally who has line of sight to the banner gains a bonus to all defenses, saving throws against fear effects, and damage rolls. The bonus equals your Wisdom modifier.
Sustain Minor: The banner persists.

Serene Visage — Invoker Utility 16

Your god's visage overlays your own and draws the attention of your foes, buying your allies a needed reprieve.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 2
Target: Each ally in burst
Effect: The target doesn't provoke opportunity attacks until the end of your next turn.

Walls of Hestavar — Invoker Utility 16

You trace your implement through the air and conjure a simulacrum of the Bright City's walls.

Daily ✦ Conjuration, Divine
Minor Action Area wall 10 within 10 squares
Effect: You conjure a wall of divine energy. The wall can be up to 2 squares high, and it lasts until the end of your next turn. The wall is a solid obstacle, and it blocks line of sight. It can be climbed with an Athletics check (DC 20 + one-half your level).
Sustain Minor: The wall persists.

Word of Refuge — Invoker Utility 16

With a word, you escape an attack, but at a price.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Teleportation
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: An enemy makes an attack against you
Effect: You negate the triggering enemy's attack against you and teleport 10 squares. You are dazed until the end of your next turn. If you were the only target of the triggering enemy's attack, the attacker can take a different action.

Level 17 Encounter Prayers

Astral Dust — Invoker Attack 17

Motes of silvery dust rain from above, burning whatever enemy they land on.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fire, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier fire and radiant damage. If the target doesn't move away from you before the end of its next turn, it takes 5 fire and radiant damage and a -2 penalty to all defenses until the end of your next turn.

Words of Creation

You character uses the words the gods spoke to command the substance of the world and bring about life. What do those words sound like? Does your invoker speak bold sounds or mumble eerie chants?

Since you have a relatively small number of powers, you can easily devise unique words of phrases for each. Your words of creation might be nonsense sounds or peculiar sayings. If you're familiar with the movie Dune or with the Klingon language from Star Trek, you can probably think of some nonsense words that sound cool. Below are some other suggestions to get your creative juices flowing.

"The Maimed Lord seeks truth in the darkness."
"Time is a door that cannot be closed."
"I pass beyond to arrive within."
"This fire already burns in all souls."

Chainfire — Invoker Attack 17

You ignite a foe in a column of holy flames, from which fire streams to nearby enemies.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d6 + Wisdom modifier fire damage. Make a secondary attack that is an area burst 2 centered on the primary target.
Secondary Target: Each enemy in burst other than the primary target
Secondary Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier fire damage.

Daunting Blasphemy — Invoker Attack 17

The vile words you speak darken your soul as they eat away at your enemies, who dare not move.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d10 + Wisdom modifier necrotic damage. The first time the target moves before the start of your next turn, it takes 5 necrotic damage.
Effect: You take 5 damage.

Sound of the Golden Clarion — Invoker Attack 17

Heavenly trumpets sound, blasting your foes with a perfect note.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d6 + Wisdom modifier thunder damage, and the target is pushed 1 square and deafened until the end of its next turn.

SERVING EVIL GODS

As an invoker, you can't dedicate yourself to an evil deity without matching the god's alignment, but that doesn't mean the dark gods can't ask for some return on the immortals' divine investment. Perhaps you hear Tiamat's whispers amid the clinking of coins. Maybe snakes occasionally raise their heads and hiss Zehir's wishes. When you battle Bane's followers, they might salute you and not raise their hands against you unless you first attack them.

If you're interested in roleplaying through this gray area, talk about it with your DM and discuss some of the ways that the evil gods might call in their debts. You don't want to derail the game by betraying the other PCs or committing disruptive acts, but a character who occasionally walks the narrow path between right and wrong can give the DM story ideas and be great fun for everyone. Then, when an envoy of Vecna gives you the information you need to do some great service for the gods and the world, surely you can do some small favor in return. . . .

Word of Pain — Invoker Attack 17

At your word, agony lances through the minds of the creatures around you. You are momentarily distracted by their mental screams.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d10 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage, and the target is weakened until the end of your next turn.
Effect: You are dazed until the end of your next turn.
Covenant of Malediction: The size of the burst increases by 1.

Level 19 Daily Prayers

Forced Submission — Invoker Attack 19

Your enemy bends to the divine will expressed through you. You cease focusing on your own defense while you harness it.

Daily ✦ Charm, Divine, Implement, Psychic, Reliable
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d10 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage, and the target is dominated (save ends). Until this domination ends, you grant combat advantage.
Covenant of Malediction: The target takes a -2 penalty to saving throws against this domination.

Mark of Forbearance — Invoker Attack 19

You superimpose a divine glyph on your foe. The ancient mark sears your foe with radiant damage and interferes with its attacks.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 4d8 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The target takes a -5 penalty to attack rolls against your bloodied allies (save ends). On each of the target's turns, it can make a saving throw against this effect only if it does not attack during that turn.

Thunderous Shout — Invoker Attack 19

Intoning a word of creation, you split the air with a cacophonous blast. Your ears bleed as the word hurls your foes away.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d10 + Wisdom modifier thunder damage, and you push the target 5 squares and knock it prone. In addition, the target is deafened (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and you push the target 2 squares.
Effect: You take 10 damage.
Covenant of Malediction: You instead take 5 damage.

Wrath of the Fallen God — Invoker Attack 19

The memory of a fallen god's anger and agony fills nearby creatures' minds.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Psychic, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d6 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage, and ongoing 10 psychic damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 psychic damage (save ends).
Effect: The burst creates a zone of agony that lasts until the end of your next turn. Any creature that starts its turn within the zone is slowed and takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Level 22 Utility Prayers

Call Angelic Shield — Invoker Utility 22

You summon angelic energy to shield you from harm.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You gain a bonus to all defenses equal to your Intelligence modifier. Each time an attack misses you, the bonus is reduced by 1. This effect lasts until the end of the encounter or until the bonus is 0.

Herald of God — Invoker Utility 22

Your voice resonates with divine might.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain a +10 power bonus to Bluff checks, Diplomacy checks, and Intimidate checks.

Invoke Sight — Invoker Utility 22

Calling on the gods, you bestow the ability to see the unseen.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Melee touch
Target: You or one ally
Effect: The target gains truesight until the end of your next turn. If the target is blinded, that condition ends.
Sustain Minor: The truesight persists.

Invoker Origins

As an invoker, you make a covenant with one or more gods to carry a fraction of their power and use it in their names. How did that promise come about? Did you have a fateful meeting with a strange mystic? Did the gods speak to you in a dream or through a waking vision? Have you met an angel, an exarch, or even the deity embodied? Perhaps you sealed the deal on another plane, miraculously transported there by the power that desired your service. It could be that you were born with your gifts and grew up knowing that your destiny was to use them in a deity's service. For a darker twist, maybe an evil deity gave you your powers, but you seek to use them in a righteous way and to serve another deity in the hopes that your deeds can overcome the oaths you swore.

Level 23 Encounter Prayers

Fateful Foresight — Invoker Attack 23

Prophetic forces showed you this moment long ago. With this foresight, you invoke fate to alter the course of events.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Psychic
Immediate Interrupt Ranged 10
Trigger: An enemy within 10 squares of you makes an attack on its turn
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage. The target's attack is negated and is not expended, and the target can't use that attack until the start of its next turn, unless that attack is a basic attack. The target can immediately make a different attack.
Covenant of Preservation: The target takes a penalty to its next attack roll before the end of your next turn equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Fetters of Darkness — Invoker Attack 23

You tether your enemies with shadowy manacles.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Necrotic, Teleportation
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier necrotic damage. You teleport the target 5 squares, and it is immobilized until the end of your next turn. If you target only one creature, the attack deals 1d8 extra necrotic damage, and you teleport the target 10 squares instead of 5.

Final Reproach — Invoker Attack 23

You warned them, but they wouldn't listen.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Force, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: Whenever the target deals damage with an attack before the end of your next turn, it takes 15 force damage and is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Plague of Poison — Invoker Attack 23

The gods answered the blasphemies of the city Sazarus with six vicious plagues. You call down the poisonous plague on your enemies.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Poison, Zone
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d6 + Wisdom modifier poison damage. The target's space becomes a zone of poison gas that lasts until the end of your next turn. Any creature that starts its turn within the zone or adjacent to it takes 5 poison damage.
Covenant of Wrath: The zone deals extra poison damage equal to your Wisdom modifier.

THE WAR OF WINTER

Over the ages, the gods have battled one another on many occasions. Battles between Tiamat and Bahamut and between Bane and Gruumsh are still being fought. But most deities do not come into direct conflict with each other. The gods are bound by alliances forged during the Dawn War and by other mythic events. One of those events was a clash in the waning moments of the Dawn War when Khala, the god of winter, tried to make herself queen over all the deities.

Khala aimed to establish supremacy over the world and over the gods who had survived the nearly completed war with the primordials. Khala relied on her son Kord and her consort Zehir, and on Gruumsh and Tiamat, who preferred Khala's vision of a winter-bound world of savagery and darkness to Avandra's ancient compromise that also offered days of light and seasons of hope.

The forces of winter attacked the dominions of the strongest gods most likely to object to Khala's reign—Pelor, Erathis, Moradin, Amoth, and Bahamut—and scored early victories. Amoth's defenses were devastated on Kalandurren, the lower slopes of Celestia fell, and Hestavar was besieged. But Khala's success was temporary, for the remaining gods leagued against her. Bane joined the war against winter to preserve the world for conquest and tyranny, rather than abandon it to unceasing savagery. Sehanine intervened alongside Pelor to protect the ancient compromises of night and day from being overthrown. Even Lolth worked secretly against Khala, unwilling to allow a single deity to subjugate the rest.

The turning point came when Kord and Moradin battled in the mountains of Celestia. Despite Kord's irresistible fury, Moradin refused to yield; Kord's storms battered Moradin's mountains in vain. After a long battle, Kord drew back. Moradin showed Kord the destruction their battle had wrought in the mortal world, and Kord regretted his actions. He abandoned the cause of winter and turned against his mother.

With the aid of Kord, Bane, and others, the forces standing against Khala rallied. They broke the siege of Hestavar and destroyed or imprisoned the primordials and abominations Khala had released. Tiamat retreated to her lair, and Gruumsh abandoned Khala's cause as well. But Khala refused to yield and sought to destroy the mortal world under never-ending winter rather than admit defeat. Pelor, Bane, and Moradin defeated her in her great castle of ice, and the Raven Queen was called on to expel Khala into death. The Raven Queen agreed, but only if she was given power over winter. So the War of Winter ended with Khala's death, Kord's transformation, and the Raven Queen's dominion over winter.

The gods are not quick to admit it, but the War of Winter had another huge consequence, convincing the great primal spirits that the world needed to be protected from the gods as much as it needed to be protected from the primordials. That story is in Player's Handbook 2 and the upcoming Primal Power supplement.

Word of Bewilderment — Invoker Attack 23

One word is all it takes to strip your enemies of their faculties. Yours are also temporarily dimmed.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 1d10 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage, and the target is stunned until the end of your next turn.
Effect: You are dazed until the end of your next turn.
Covenant of Malediction: You can choose to become stunned until the end of your next turn to increase the size of the burst by as much as 3.

Level 25 Daily Prayers

Despised of the Gods — Invoker Attack 25

Your words strip away your enemy's defenses, exposing the soul of your foe before the ominous eye of your god.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d10 + Wisdom modifier damage. The target loses all resistances and gains vulnerable 20 to all damage (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage, and the target gains vulnerable 10 to all damage until the end of your next turn.
Covenant of Malediction: You can choose to gain vulnerable 20 to all damage until the end of your next turn. If you do so, the target takes a penalty to saving throws equal to your Constitution modifier until the end of your next turn.

Eye of the Sun — Invoker Attack 25

You conjure a glimmering ball of radiant energy, which expands into a diminutive sun. It can sear enemies and protect allies.

Daily ✦ Conjuration, Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Effect: You conjure a radiant sphere in an unoccupied square within range. The sphere occupies 1 square, and it lasts until the end of your next turn. Any enemy that starts its turn adjacent to the sphere takes 1d8 + your Wisdom modifier radiant damage. While adjacent to the sphere, any ally gains a +2 power bonus to all defenses. As a move action, you can move the sphere 8 squares. When the sphere appears, it makes the following attack.
Target: One creature adjacent to the sphere
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d8 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage, and the target cannot attack bloodied creatures until the end of its next turn.
Sustain Minor: The sphere persists, and you can make another attack with it as a standard action.

Shackles of the Chained God — Invoker Attack 25

The Unspeakable One sought power and for his greed found chains and suffering. Those chains wrap around your foe and lash out at its allies.

Daily ✦ Divine, Force, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d6 + Wisdom modifier force damage, and the target takes ongoing 20 force damage and is immobilized (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage, and the target takes ongoing 10 force damage and is slowed (save ends both).
Effect: Whenever the target takes this power's ongoing damage, each enemy within 5 squares of it is pulled 1 square toward it, and then each enemy adjacent to it takes 10 force damage.

Trumpet the Eight Dooms — Invoker Attack 25

Angels blew eight trumpets, each sounding a doom more terrible than the last. Your invocation calls one of those dooms onto your enemies.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d8 + Wisdom modifier thunder damage. Roll a d8 to determine an effect.
1. The target takes ongoing 10 damage (save ends).
2. You push the target 1 square, and it takes ongoing 10 damage (save ends).
3. You push the target 2 squares, and it takes ongoing 10 damage (save ends).
4. You push the target 3 squares, and it takes ongoing 10 damage (save ends).
5. You push the target 3 squares, and it takes ongoing 10 damage and is slowed (save ends both).
6. You push the target 3 squares and knock it prone, and it takes ongoing 10 damage (save ends).
7. You push the target 3 squares, and it takes ongoing 10 damage and is dazed (save ends both).
8. The target takes 2d8 extra thunder damage.

Miss: 6d6 + Wisdom modifier thunder damage.

Word of Cessation — Invoker Attack 25

You utter a word so potent that it can snuff out your enemy's life. Even if the foe survives, its ability to fight is reduced for a time. The price you pay is momentary defenselessness.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One target
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 8d6 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage. The only attacks the target can make are basic attacks (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.
Effect: You grant combat advantage until the start of your next turn.

Level 27 Encounter Prayers

Brand of Fire — Invoker Attack 27

Your solemn curse causes fire to leap at your enemies to brand them.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One, two, or three creatures
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d6 + Wisdom modifier fire damage. The first time the target is hit by a melee or a close attack before the end of your next turn, it takes 10 fire damage.
Covenant of Wrath: The first time the target is hit by any attack (not just a melee or a close attack) before the end of your next turn, it takes 10 fire damage.

Compel Action — Invoker Attack 27

You force your enemies to act as you command for a moment. Controlling them requires much of your attention.

Encounter ✦ Charm, Divine, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: The target is dominated until the end of your next turn.
Covenant of Preservation: The target gains a +2 bonus to attack rolls until the domination ends.
Effect: You grant combat advantage until the start of your next turn.

Pall of the Shadowfell — Invoker Attack 27

A shadowy shroud of chill descends on two foes, dooming them together.

Encounter ✦ Cold, Divine, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: Two creatures
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d8 + Wisdom modifier cold damage. Whenever the target deals damage before the end of your next turn, the other target of this power takes 15 cold damage.

Word of Death — Invoker Attack 27

You enter a trance and make an ancient utterance, inviting creatures around you to enter the realm of death.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 4d10 + Wisdom modifier necrotic damage.
Covenant of Malediction: If the target is already bloodied, it takes extra necrotic damage equal to your Constitution modifier.
Effect: You are dazed until the end of your next turn.

Level 29 Daily Prayers

Apocalypse from the Sky — Invoker Attack 29

You invoke a gigantic, ghostly fist of magical force that smashes down from overhead and blasts out a great pit in one titanic blow.

Daily ✦ Divine, Force, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d8 + Wisdom modifier force damage, and the target is dazed (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and you knock the target prone. You must slide the target to the nearest unoccupied space outside the burst.
Effect: A pit fills the area of the burst and is 10 feet deep. Any creature fully within the area of the pit descends 10 feet, taking no falling damage for descending that distance.

Invoked Devastation — Invoker Attack 29

In ancient days, invokers spoke the word of ending to annihilate their enemies, but at such a dreadful cost that it nearly erased their own civilization.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Zone; Varies
Standard Action Area burst 3 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude, Reflex, Will. You make one attack roll per target, comparing the result against all three defenses. A target might be hit up to three times, depending on which defenses are hit.
Hit (Fortitude): 1d8 + Wisdom modifier force damage, and ongoing 5 cold damage (save ends).
Hit (Reflex): 1d8 + Wisdom modifier lightning damage, and ongoing 5 fire damage (save ends).
Hit (Will): 1d8 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage, and ongoing 5 psychic damage (save ends).
Effect: The zone creates an area of devastation that lasts until the end of the encounter. The zone is difficult terrain. Any creature that enters the zone or starts its turn there takes 10 damage.

Malediction of the Eternal Pyre — Invoker Attack 29

Flames roar out of you as you consign your enemies to a fiery death.

Daily ✦ Divine, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d10 + Wisdom modifier fire damage, and ongoing 20 fire damage (save ends).
Miss: 1d10 + Wisdom modifier fire damage, and ongoing 10 fire damage (save ends).
Effect: You take ongoing 10 fire damage (save ends).

Storm of Creation — Invoker Attack 29

You tap into the power of creation itself and use it to pound your foes with a force that disrupts their very existence.

Daily ✦ Divine, Force, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d8 + Wisdom modifier force damage, and the target is stunned (save ends).
Aftereffect: The target is dazed (save ends). This aftereffect applies only if you target a single creature.
Miss: Half damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Avandra and the First Doppelganger

When the world was young, Avandra was deeply involved in the lives of its creatures. She delighted in making their lives better. One mortal who was the object of Avandra's favor was a beautiful woman who was pursued by a cruel suitor. This suitor set his servants on her like hunting dogs. Two times Avandra helped the woman to flee or fight by changing her luck, and each time the woman praised Avandra after her escape.

The third time the woman was threatened, Avandra gifted her with the power to change her form so that she could save herself from any future threat. The woman used her power to become an assassin, killing her suitor and all who served him. When Avandra sought her out to rebuke her, the woman used her power to hide from the goddess. By the time Avandra found the woman, her children's children had given birth to many more offspring, all having the power to change shape. The goddess's gift, once given, could not be taken away. Thus the race of doppelgangers, or changelings, was born.

From that episode Avandra learned a bitter lesson about being overly generous to mortals. Ever since then, she has been careful to help mortals only in small ways, often hiding her hand. By allowing mortals to face their own problems, Avandra provides them with the chance to discover their full potential.

Adept of Whispers

"The wise know that one cannot speak and listen at the same time."

Prerequisite: Invoker

The words of creation can bend the elements to your desires, but the words of mortal speech also have power to create or destroy. Far better to listen instead of speak, to seek the wisdom that comes with quiet understanding. You speak sparingly and softly, and you choose your words with great care. By husbanding the power of your voice for the words of creation, you ensure that your mind and soul are focused on the powerful prayers you utter.

Adept of Whispers Path Features

Adept's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you also gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls with divine powers, and you can increase the size of your divine blasts or bursts by 1. These benefits last until the start of your next turn.

Silent Presence (11th level): You gain a +2 bonus to Stealth checks, Insight checks, and Intimidate checks, and creatures cannot perceive you with blindsight or tremorsense. You take a –2 penalty to Bluff checks and Diplomacy checks.

Raised Voice (16th level): When you use a divine attack power, you can choose to raise your voice before you make any attack rolls for it. For that attack, you can score a critical hit on a roll of 19–20, and enemies take a –2 penalty to saving throws against the attack's effects. However, you are dazed until the end of your next turn.

Adept of Whispers Prayers

Admonishing Whisper Adept of Whispers Attack 11

You whisper a single word of power, and your enemies reel back from its might, deafened by it and admonished to do no more harm to your friends.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 3d6 + Wisdom modifier damage, and you push the target 2 squares. The target is deafened until the end of your next turn. If the target is then adjacent to a bloodied ally, the target is also dazed until the end of your next turn.

Restorative Word Adept of Whispers Utility 12

You softly call your comrade's name and whisper a word of healing power.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing
Standard Action Melee touch
Target: One ally
Effect: The target can spend two healing surges and make a saving throw.

Whisper of Doom Adept of Whispers Attack 20

You whisper an ancient curse of dire potency against your enemies.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d8 + Wisdom modifier damage. The target takes ongoing 10 damage and is weakened (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage.

Vow of Silence

Your adept of whispers might have taken a vow of silence. If so, you can still talk to the DM to tell him what your character is doing. You can also take part in normal table discussions and repartee with other players; you can assume that your character uses a basic sign language or a chalk and slate to contribute to party decisions. When your character addresses a PC or another character, you can roleplay your character's taciturn nature by describing nods, hard looks, head shakes, or hand gestures. Finally, your character can speak in times of great need, since the adept's vow is voluntary.

DAN SCOTT

Crimson Arbiter

"You have transgressed, and restitution must be made. Drink deep of your misfortune."

Prerequisite: Invoker

You are an agent of justice to your deity's enemies. You are judge, jury, and executioner, although you are more than an inflicter of punishment. You are also a redresser of wrongs and a giver of absolution, enjoined to aid those who have been unfairly treated and to set injustices aright. According to long-standing tradition, you conceal your features beneath a crimson mask or hood while you perform your duties. By this sign the condemned and the forgiven alike know that you are acting not from your mortal passions or preferences, but as your divine master instructs. Crimson arbiters are most likely to serve deities concerned with law or justice, such as Erathis, Bahamut, Pelor, or Bane.

You carry small strips of paper marked with sacred glyphs that lend strength to your prayers for justice. Each holds the name of a power epitomizing mercy, perception, balance, or punishment, guiding you in your judgments.

Crimson Arbiter Path Features

Arbiter's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, any enemy you hit with that attack takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls (save ends).

Just Presence (11th level): When you score a critical hit with an invoker power, you gain a +2 power bonus to attack rolls against any enemy within 2 squares of you. This bonus lasts until the end of the encounter.

Justice's Wrath (16th level): The first enemy that damages you in an encounter is subject to your wrath. Until the end of the encounter, you can reroll any damage die that comes up as a 1 when you make a damage roll that includes that enemy as a target.

Crimson Arbiter Prayers

Sign of Guilt Crimson Arbiter Attack 11

You trace a magical glyph in the air. Your enemy cannot bear the sight of it as the magic evokes deep guilt, causing the enemy to waver in its attacks.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fear, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One enemy
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 1d10 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target takes a –5 penalty to attack rolls, and if the target attacks and misses, it must make a melee basic attack against an enemy adjacent to it as a free action.

AMELIA STONER

No Rest for the Wicked Crimson Arbiter Utility 12

You call forth souls from the Shadowfell. As foes strike you, the souls distract them with wailing.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal
Effect: When any enemy hits you before the end of your next turn, that enemy takes a –2 penalty to all defenses (save ends).
Sustain Minor: The effect persists.

Sign of Penance Crimson Arbiter Attack 20

A glyph of penance appears before you and ignites. Divine fire leaps from it to enemies of weak will.

Daily ✦ Divine, Fire, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Primary Target: One target
Primary Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 3d6 + Wisdom modifier fire and radiant damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack that is an area burst 1 centered on the primary target.
Secondary Target: Each creature in burst other than the primary target
Secondary Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier fire and radiant damage, and the secondary target is slowed (save ends).
Effect: If the primary attack reduces the primary target to 0 hit points, the burst creates an area of difficult terrain that lasts until the end of the encounter.

Devoted Orator

"Take heed! My words are those of the gods, and they are to be feared."

Prerequisite: Invoker

You are a messenger of the gods and a preacher of divine virtues. Your speech evokes devotion in the faithful and fear in the irreligious. You are an authority for anyone wishing to know the desires of your deity, and you are renowned for your power to enhance and amplify your voice and for your ability to speak in ominous, multilayered tones.

A few devoted orators are trained at temples, but most arise through private devotion. You might have communed directly with a deity and been forever moved by the experience, or you could be one whose faith is strong enough to bridge the mortal and immortal. People who dislike your message might regard you as a scolder, a rabble-rouser, or a threat to the established order, but you have little concern for how they react to you; you speak what the gods put in your heart, and you trust that they will deal harshly with those who ignore you or hinder you in your mission. If you serve a temple, you often prove to be difficult for your superiors to deal with, since your pronouncements chastise the great and the powerful as well as the rest of the people. Consequently, you rarely stay in one place for long. A few theocracies have devoted orators at their head or in close service to the ruler, for few dare to refute the power of one such as you.

HOWARD LYON

Devoted Orator Path Features

Brilliant Rhetoric (11th level): You can use your Intelligence modifier instead of your Charisma modifier when making Diplomacy checks.

Fearsome Oration (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you either pull or push each enemy within 5 squares of you a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Thundering Prayer (16th level): When you use a close attack power, you can choose to deal extra thunder damage equal to one-half your Intelligence modifier, and you can push a target you hit 1 square. If you do so, the power gains the thunder keyword.

Devoted Orator Prayers

Legion Rebuke — Devoted Orator Attack 11

You chastise nearby enemies with divine displeasure. Your voice sounds as if many people are speaking at once.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fear, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Wisdom modifier thunder damage. The target moves its speed + your Intelligence modifier away from you by the safest path possible.

Chastisement — Devoted Orator Utility 12

Your thunderous rebuke weakens an enemy's resolve.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Immediate Reaction Close burst 5
Trigger: An enemy within 5 squares of you makes an attack
Target: The triggering enemy in burst
Effect: The target gains vulnerable 10 thunder until the end of your next turn.

Thunderous Oration — Devoted Orator Attack 20

Your enemies reel upon hearing your thunderous voice.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d8 + Wisdom modifier thunder damage, and the target is dazed and deafened until the end of your next turn.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: As the first action of your next turn, you can make the attack again as a free action.

Divine Hand

"I am the hand of my god. Through my actions, my god's touch is felt, whether it be a tender caress or a crushing fist."

Prerequisite: Invoker

Through faithful devotion, you have attracted the attention of your deity, who has elevated you as a divine hand. A mortal representative of your deity, you have a divine mission, such as to construct a great monument in your god's image, to subdue a tyrant, or to create a temple in a distant land. Your actions sometimes seem without purpose, but they are part of your deity's grand design. Many divine hands are marked physically by their god in the form of unusual eye or hair color or a blemish on the skin.

As a divine hand, you wield powerful invocations for smiting the enemies of your deity. You are a dauntless soldier for your cause, because your fervor fills your heart with limitless courage. Your great faith strikes fear into your enemies and blazes a bright path across the world.

Divine Hand Path Features

Inspire Terror (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you also end any slowed or immobilized conditions on you. In addition, if you make an attack with your extra action, each enemy you hit with that attack is immobilized until the end of your next turn. This attack is a fear effect.

Undaunted (11th level): You gain a +2 bonus to saving throws and to all defenses against fear effects.

Quell the Fearful (16th level): When you hit an enemy with a fear power, that enemy takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls against you until the end of your next turn.

Divine Hand Prayers

Harvest the Craven Divine Hand Attack 11

You call terror down on your foes. They fear to remain alone.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fear, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 10 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is slowed, and it takes a -2 penalty to all defenses when it is not adjacent to another enemy.

Tenor of Wrath Divine Hand Utility 12

The sky darkens and the ground trembles as you manifest your god's terrifying presence.

Daily ✦ Divine, Fear, Zone
Minor Action Close burst 5
Effect: The burst creates a zone of fear that lasts until the end of your next turn. When you move, the zone moves with you, remaining centered on you. If willingly entering a square within the zone would bring an enemy closer to you, entering that square costs the enemy 1 extra square of movement.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Cascade of Fear Divine Hand Attack 20

You raise your implement high and speak words of portent, assuring your foes of your god's wrath and sending them sprawling in fear.

Daily ✦ Divine, Fear, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage, and the target is knocked prone and dazed (save ends). The target takes a penalty to saving throws against this effect equal to your Constitution modifier.
Miss: Half damage, and the target is knocked prone.

CONCEPT ART HOUSE LLC

Divine Philosopher

"Knowledge is my weapon, for it cuts truer than any sword."

Prerequisite: Invoker

A paragon of scholarship, you wield the power of knowledge. You believe that the gods are the ultimate vessels of wisdom in the universe, and through devotion to them and careful study of their words, you seek to understand and shape reality itself.

Divine philosophers generally arise from remote monasteries where the words of the gods are studied and debated amid daily chants and meditations. A rare few divine philosophers are self-taught savants, who learn through careful study of divine texts and personal devotion to the gods. Whatever their origins, divine philosophers seek knowledge throughout the world, in temple archives, hidden vaults, and ancient libraries.

As a divine philosopher, you call on your deep understanding of the gods to aid you in your adventures. Your tireless pursuit of knowledge leads you across the planes to ancient civilizations and hostile lands. Although you might serve a particular deity, you seek the wisdom of all the gods, wherever it can be found.

LUCAS GRACIANO

Divine Philosopher Path Features

Insight of the Ancients (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, you can reroll one attack roll you make as part of that attack. You must use the second result.

Student of the Gods (11th level): You gain one divine at-will attack power from a class other than your own as an encounter power.

Knowledge Is Power (16th level): When you succeed on a DC 20 monster knowledge check about a particular creature (DC 25 for a paragon tier creature or DC 30 for an epic tier creature), you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls and a +2 bonus to damage rolls against that creature until the end of the encounter. If your check result is 25 (30 for a paragon tier creature or 35 for an epic tier creature), you instead gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls and a +4 bonus to damage rolls. You can use this path feature once per day.

Divine Philosopher Prayers

Hit the Weak Spot Divine Philosopher Attack 11

You invoke the knowledge of the gods and send out a beam of radiance that lowers your foe's resistances.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target's resistances are reduced by 5 + your Intelligence modifier, and its vulnerabilities are increased by your Intelligence modifier.

Uncanny Insight Divine Philosopher Utility 12

You foresee your foe's next course of action and act, taking advantage of that knowledge.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: An enemy within your line of sight takes a standard action, and you are trained in the skill related to that creature's origin
Effect: You take a standard action.

Word of Anathema Divine Philosopher Attack 20

You speak one of the sacred words handed down to you from the gods. The word is anathema to your enemies, enfeebling them.

Daily ✦ Divine, Fear, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: Each enemy in burst that has a creature origin related to a skill you're trained in
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 1d10 + Wisdom modifier damage, and the target is weakened and gains vulnerable 5 + your Intelligence modifier to all damage (save ends both).
Miss: The target is slowed and gains vulnerable 5 to all damage until the end of your next turn.

Keeper of the Nine

"You brought this onto yourself."

Prerequisite: Invoker, trained in History

Ancient scrolls speak of the world's last days, foretelling a time of violence and destruction that will consume everything. You have studied these scrolls and know the disasters destined to befall the world: nine terrible catastrophes that will one day cause its doom. These supernatural disasters were sown in the world's foundations during the first days and now lie buried beneath mighty seals in its far corners. It is your task to ensure that these seals remain intact, for each time some evil power breaks one, the end of all things draws closer. Those who meddle with the seals flirt with the destruction of all and risk upsetting the great purpose of the cosmos.

To safeguard the ancient seals, you are initiated into a secretive order: the Keepers of the Nine. You learn powerful prayers of warding and destruction so that you can deal with those who meddle with forces they do not understand. Keepers are drawn from many races and include servants of different gods, but most are dedicated to Erathis, Ioun, or Moradin. Old disagreements and jealousies are common among the Keepers, but all agree that the Nine Seals must remain hidden and unbroken.

Keeper of the Nine Path Features

Dooming Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, one target hit by that attack gains vulnerable 5 to all damage (save ends).

Ruining Prayer (11th level): When you use any invoker power that is a close attack, you can turn the ground around you into rubble; each square adjacent to you becomes difficult terrain until the rubble is cleared.

Keeper's Vengeance (16th level): When you are bloodied and use an invoker power that creates a burst, you can increase the size of the burst by 1.

Keeper of the Nine Prayers

Glyph of Warning Keeper of the Nine Attack 11

A complex glyph appears in the air above you, repelling your enemies.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fear
Standard Action Close burst 10
Target: Each enemy in burst
Effect: Each target moves its speed away from you as a free action. Any ally who makes an opportunity attack provoked by this movement gains a power bonus to the attack roll and the damage roll equal to 2 + your Intelligence modifier.

WILLIAM O'CONNOR

Keeper's Mantle Keeper of the Nine Utility 12

A shimmering blue aura of energy settles over your shoulders, whisking you away from your enemies' attacks and distracting foes standing too close to you.

Daily ✦ Divine, Teleportation
Immediate Reaction Personal
Trigger: You take damage from an enemy's attack while you are bloodied
Effect: You teleport 5 squares. Each enemy adjacent to you when you teleport grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn.

The Tenth Seal Keeper of the Nine Attack 20

You conjure a glyph that unleashes the magic of the Tenth Seal, known only to the most powerful Keepers of the Nine. Your enemies are stunned by its thunder.

Daily ✦ Conjuration, Divine, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Ranged 10
Effect: You conjure a glyph of the Tenth Seal in an unoccupied square within range. The glyph lasts until the end of your next turn. When the glyph appears, it makes an attack that is a close burst 3.
Primary Target: Each enemy in burst
Primary Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier thunder damage, and the primary target is stunned (save ends).
Sustain Minor: The glyph persists and makes a secondary attack that is a close burst 3.
Secondary Target: Each enemy in burst
Secondary Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Wisdom modifier thunder damage, and the secondary target is dazed (save ends).

Speaker of the Word

"It is simple to speak the Word. Knowing how and when to use the Word—and how to ease your conscience after you unleash its power—is more complex."

Prerequisite: Invoker

You are an initiate in a rare tradition, one that embraces a unified religious concept summed up in one word of power. The Word was crafted by the gods to be a great weapon. Only the most trustworthy and compassionate invokers are taught the syllables of the Word, and even they seldom use its power. Each syllable, when spoken in the proper pitch and cadence, is a powerful prayer in its own right, and those brief tones are the most powerful weapons of your faith.

It is not enough simply to repeat the syllables that comprise the Word; to unleash its power you must desire to do so, speaking it exactly and framing the philosophical significance of each syllable in your mind as you say it. Uttering the Word unleashes dangerous divine energy, and even speakers of the Word dare not utter it in a voice louder than a whisper.

Speaker of the Word Path Features

Speaker's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can also reroll one die you roll during the same turn for an attack roll, a damage roll, a skill check, or a saving throw and use either result.

Influencing Syllable (11th level): You gain a +2 bonus to Charisma-based skill checks.

Empowering Syllable (16th level): After you use a speaker of the Word power, you gain a +2 power bonus to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Speaker of the Word Prayers

Syllable of Light — Speaker of the Word Attack 11

You whisper an otherworldly tone, and lights swirl around you, blinding your foes and surrounding your allies in cloaks of radiance.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage, and the target is blinded and deafened until the end of your next turn.
Effect: Each ally in the burst gains a +2 power bonus to all defenses and resist 5 radiant until the end of your next turn.

Guiding Syllable — Speaker of the Word Utility 12

A syllable of the Word is enough to guide others' steps.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: You slide the target a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier. The next time the target hits with an attack before the end of your next turn, you can slide the hit creature 1 square as a free action.

The Word Spoken — Speaker of the Word Attack 20

In a soft voice, you intone the complete Word, unleashing sublime destruction.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Area burst 3 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 3d8 + Wisdom modifier psychic damage, and ongoing 10 psychic damage (save ends). In addition, the target fails its next saving throw before the end of the encounter.
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 psychic damage (save ends).

RALPH BEISNER

Stonecaller

"The wrongs of old are remembered in the very rocks of the world. Secret wrath lies sleeping in stone."

Prerequisite: Invoker

The ancient language of creation lies locked within the bones of the earth. You have mastered some of the oldest and most fundamental syllables of this language, syllables so sonorous that they almost defy being uttered by mortals. With your words and your will, you can wake the very stone of the world to lend you its strength or lash out at your enemies.

Dwarves were the first mortal stonecallers, but the tradition has since spread to other races, especially goliaths, shifters, and barbaric humans—people who live close to the elements. Throughout the world, mountain folk know the power of the stonecaller's voice.

Stonecaller Path Features

Stonecaller's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you also create an earthquake in a close burst 2, 5, or 10 (your choice). Until the start of your next turn, all creatures other than you treat the area of the burst as difficult terrain, and any creature you hit while it is in the burst is knocked prone after the attack's effects are resolved.

Strong Footing (11th level): When any attack would knock you prone, you can make a saving throw. If you save, you don't fall prone. In addition, you ignore difficult terrain if it is the result of rubble, uneven stone, or an earthen construction.

Stonesight (16th level): You gain tremorsense 5 as long as you are in contact with the ground.

Stonecaller Prayers

Earthbolt Stonecaller Attack 11

At your command, the ground beneath your enemies erupts in jagged fangs of stone.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d6 + Wisdom modifier damage, and the target is knocked prone.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of uneven stone that lasts until the end of your next turn. The zone is difficult terrain.

Rooted to the Earth Stonecaller Utility 12

The earth grants you or your friend its immovable mass and deep power.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Immediate Interrupt Close burst 2
Trigger: You or an ally within 2 squares of you is bloodied, pulled, pushed, or slid by an enemy attack
Target: The triggering character
Effect: The target can use his or her second wind and isn't subject to the forced movement, if any.

Black Obelisk of Doom Stonecaller Attack 20

You call forth a great pillar of rock. An ancient rune of destruction is carved on it. Enemies that behold it are drawn to their doom.

Daily ✦ Conjuration, Divine, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Ranged 20
Effect: You conjure a black obelisk that fills an unoccupied square within range. The obelisk must be on a solid surface and is a 10-foot-high solid obstacle. It lasts until the end of your next turn. Any enemy that starts its turn adjacent to the obelisk is weakened until the start of its next turn. When the obelisk appears, it makes an attack that is a close burst 4.
Target: One creature in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Will
Hit: 3d8 + Wisdom modifier necrotic damage, and the target is pulled 3 squares toward the obelisk and immobilized (save ends).
Sustain Minor: The obelisk persists. As a standard action, you can make its attack again.

KIERAN YANNER

Theurge of the Compact

"I will not bow."

Prerequisite: Invoker, Covenant of Wrath class feature

You walk a perilous path, for you study the rare and dangerous fragments of the Compact Infernal. Through your understanding of this dark lore, you have harnessed the power of the Nine Hells. You hold mastery over infernal conflagrations and can conjure fiendish servants. With such power at your command, you run the risk of becoming consumed by pride and being seduced by fell whispers. You must use your powers with great care—if you falter, the fiends that serve you might become your masters.

Theurge of the Compact Path Features

Incendiary Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, each target hit by that attack gains vulnerable 5 fire until the end of your next turn.

Bringer of Despair (11th level): When you score a critical hit with an invoker attack power, you can take 5 damage. If you do so, the target of the critical hit takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls (save ends).

Fiery Wrath (16th level): The bonus damage of your Covenant Manifestation is fire and is 2 instead of 1 for each enemy.

GORAN JOSIC

Theurge of the Compact Prayers

Hellfire Unleashed Theurge of the Compact Attack 11

Hellish fire erupts within your enemy, while black smoke poisons the air around it.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fire, Implement, Poison
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d10 + Wisdom modifier fire and poison damage. Each creature adjacent to the target takes 5 poison damage and grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn.

Infernal Guardian Theurge of the Compact Utility 12

A sinister figure formed from hellfire appears beside you to protect you from harm.

Encounter ✦ Conjuration, Divine
Minor Action Melee 1
Effect: You conjure an infernal guardian in an unoccupied square adjacent to you. The guardian lasts until the end of your next turn. While you are adjacent to the guardian, you are immune to charm effects and fear effects, and you gain resist 10 fire.
Sustain Minor: The guardian persists.

Fiery Companions Theurge of the Compact Attack 20

Fire erupts across your body as you scream the word to rip open reality and call forth fiends to aid you.

Daily ✦ Conjuration, Divine, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 10
Effect: You conjure four fiery fiends in four unoccupied squares in the burst. The fiends occupy their squares, and they last until the end of your next turn. Any creature that leaves a square adjacent to a fiend on its turn takes ongoing 10 fire damage (save ends). When the fiends appear, they each make the following melee attack (determine line of sight from each fiend). A fiend attacks an ally if no enemies are adjacent to it.
Target: One adjacent creature
Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Wisdom modifier fire damage, and ongoing 5 fire damage (save ends).
Sustain Minor: The fiends persist. As a standard action, you can cause each of the fiends to make its attack again. As before, a fiend attacks an ally if no enemies are adjacent to it.

Vessel of Ichor

"I am more than mortal, for I have tasted the blood of the gods."

Prerequisite: Invoker, Covenant of Wrath class feature

To strengthen you for the hardships that lie ahead, you have been given a rare blessing: You have drunk a single drop of ichor, the blood of the gods. The potency of ichor is more than the mortal frame was meant to bear, and the effect of consuming even a drop was almost enough to kill you. But you survived, and now a tiny portion of immortal blood flows through your veins.

Ichor is exceedingly rare in the world. Secretive religious orders carefully hoard vials containing the silvery substance, concealing it in well-defended temples, remote monasteries, or hidden shrines. You might have discovered the drop you consumed in a long-forgotten vault years ago and carried the vial until you grew powerful enough to drink its contents and live. Or emissaries of those who first schooled you in the invoker's way might have arrived when you were ready to take this path, bringing you the drop of ichor. In any event, your goal as a vessel of ichor is to defend the great and noble things the gods have created against those who would tear them down. Whenever a servant of the gods is murdered, whenever something sacred is defiled, it is an affront to divine sovereignty.

GEORGI "CALADER" SIMEONOV

Vessel of Ichor Path Features

Vessel's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra standard action, you also gain an extra minor action you can use before the end of your next turn. If you are bloodied when you spend the action point, you gain an extra move action instead.

Invoker's Blood (11th level): When you use your armor of wrath power, you deal 2d6 extra damage if you are bloodied.

Vessel's Resistance (16th level): You gain resist 5 to all damage while you are bloodied.

Vessel of Ichor Prayers

Fiery Glance — Vessel of Ichor Attack 11

You summon the divine power in your blood. Your eyes blaze with silver fire as you fix your gaze on your foe.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 20
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d10 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn. Make a secondary attack that is an area burst 2 centered on the primary target.
Secondary Target: Each enemy in burst other than the primary target
Secondary Attack: Wisdom vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d10 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage.

Holy Vigor — Vessel of Ichor Utility 12

You call on the divine potency in your blood. In a flash, you and your friend are emboldened to strike back at your foe.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing
Immediate Reaction Close burst 10
Trigger: An enemy hits your ally within 10 squares of you
Target: The triggering ally in burst
Effect: You and the target gain a +2 power bonus to the next attack roll each of you makes against the triggering enemy before the end of the encounter. If the target was bloodied by the triggering enemy's attack, he or she can spend a healing surge.

Silver Rain — Vessel of Ichor Attack 20

A rain of silver droplets showers your friends and foes with the power of divine ichor.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing, Implement, Radiant, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 3 within 20 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Wisdom vs. Fortitude. You gain a bonus to the attack roll and the damage roll equal to the number of bloodied allies in the burst and an additional +1 if you are bloodied.
Hit: 4d8 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage, and ongoing 5 radiant damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of ichor that lasts until the end of your next turn. Any bloodied ally who starts his or her turn within the zone regains hit points equal to your Constitution modifier. Any enemy that isn't bloodied that starts its turn within the zone takes radiant damage equal to your Constitution modifier.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

CHAPTER 4

Paladin

My good blade carves the casques of men,
My tough lance thrusteth sure,
My strength is as the strength of ten,
Because my heart is pure.

–Tennyson, "Sir Galahad"

A LIVING rampart of steel and courage, you stand against all enemies. You anchor the front line of the adventuring party, first to throw yourself in harm's way. With bold challenges, you defy the most fearsome of enemies and force them to reckon with you. Your place is in the middle of the fray, testing your mettle in hand-to-hand combat.

Different deities have varying expectations of their paladins. Some deities favor those who excel in shielding their comrades from harm, while others demand vengeance from their champions. But you might instead be an ardent paladin, one who sacrifices your own defense and even your health for greater offensive power. Or you are a virtuous paladin, a warrior of pure heart who can withstand the wiles and blights of your gods' enemies. You might follow one of these paths exclusively, or you might forge a course of your own.

However you choose to serve your divine patron, this chapter provides you with many new options.

- New Class Features: In place of your lay on hands power, you can select one of two new powers to better focus on dealing damage or overcoming harmful conditions. These are best suited to the paladin builds presented in this chapter, though any paladin can choose them.
- New Builds: The ardent paladin takes the battle to the enemy, heedless of personal risk. The virtuous paladin excels in resisting conditions imposed by enemies.
- New Paladin Powers: Almost one hundred new paladin powers include prayers for ardent and virtuous paladins, as well as prayers suited to avenging and protecting paladins.
- New Paragon Paths: New paragon paths focus your paladin's service, including the champion of Corellon, the demonslayer, and the holy conqueror.

GORAN JOSIC

NEW CLASS FEATURES

When you make your paladin, you can select one of these powers in place of lay on hands.

Ardent Vow Paladin Feature

You draw on unwavering faith and inner strength to strike with divine fury.

Daily (Special) ✦ Divine
Minor Action Melee touch
Target: One creature
Effect: The next time you attack the target before the end of your next turn, you gain a bonus to the damage roll equal to 5 + your Wisdom modifier. In addition, whenever you attack the target before the end of the encounter, it is subject to your divine sanction until the end of your next turn.
Special: You can use this power a number of times per day equal to your Wisdom modifier (minimum 1), but only once per round.

Virtue's Touch Paladin Feature

Your gentle touch removes affliction.

Daily (Special) ✦ Divine
Minor Action Melee touch
Target: One creature
Effect: You remove one condition from the target: blinded, dazed, deafened, slowed, stunned, or weakened.
Special: You can use this power a number of times per day equal to your Wisdom modifier (minimum 1), but only once per round.

NEW BUILDS

The avenging paladin and the protecting paladin are described in the Player's Handbook. This chapter introduces two paladin builds: the ardent paladin, who specializes in offense, and the virtuous paladin, who focuses on resisting harmful effects.

Ardent Paladin

Your brutal assaults demonstrate the power of your god's wrath. You're more like a striker than other paladins are. You willingly sacrifice your own health and defense to strike down your foes, even giving up some healing ability to be a more powerful attacker. The ardent vow power allows you to focus on a specific opponent, dealing additional damage with attacks and keeping that foe's attention on you. This power also enhances powers that work better against enemies marked by you.

Take Strength as your highest ability score, since you use it for many attacks and damage. Wisdom should be your second-highest score, to maximize the number of uses you get of ardent vow. A good Constitution score can help soothe the sting of powers that require you to spend some of your own hit points for best effect. Because of this build's focus on dealing damage, choose a weapon with the best possible damage capacity, typically a two-handed weapon.

Suggested Class Feature: *ardent vow
Suggested Feat: Mighty Challenge
Suggested Skills: Heal, Insight, Intimidate, Religion
Suggested At-Will Powers: ardent strike,* valiant strike
Suggested Encounter Power: *divine pursuit
Suggested Daily Power: *blood of the mighty
*New option presented in this book

Virtuous Paladin

You are a tower of faith; enchantments and dreadful powers wielded by your foes can find little purchase in your devoted heart. Like the protecting paladin, you shield your companions, but you do so while protecting yourself so that you can stay in the fight. No matter how your enemies attack you, you excel at resisting conditions that would impede others. As a warrior of exceptional piety, you also make more use of your holy symbol than other paladins do. You have several options for engaging enemies at range, so that even foes beyond your weapon's reach cannot escape your challenge.

Your highest ability score should be Charisma. Choose Wisdom for your second-best score, since a good Wisdom enhances the effects of many of your powers. Strength should be your third-best score. First choose powers that let you make extra saving throws or use healing surges, then powers that bolster your allies or deal high damage. You should wield a shield and a one-handed weapon, since having high defenses is a goal of this build.

DIVINE SANCTION

Many new paladin powers and some of the new feats in this book subject a target to your divine sanction. Being subject to it means the target is marked by you for a duration specified in the description of the power or feat. Unless otherwise noted, the mark ends before the specified duration if someone else marks the target.

Until the mark ends, the target takes radiant damage equal to 3 + your Charisma modifier the first time each round it makes an attack that doesn't include you as a target. The damage increases to 6 + your Charisma modifier at 11th level and 9 + your Charisma modifier at 21st level.

Divine sanction is meant to complement divine challenge. You can use divine challenge to mark one creature and use divine sanction to mark others. Divine sanction has fewer restrictions than divine challenge so that you can easily use the two in concert.

Suggested Class Feature: *virtue's touch
Suggested Feat: Virtuous Recovery
Suggested Skills: Endurance, Heal, Insight, Religion
Suggested At-Will Powers: *bolstering strike, virtuous strike
Suggested Encounter Power: *valorous smite
Suggested Daily Power: *majestic halo
*New option presented in this book

NEW PALADIN POWERS

Paladins excel at calling out foes, and a number of the new powers presented here reinforce that ability using divine sanction. Ardent paladin powers represent zealous devotion to deity and cause, dealing tremendous damage at a cost to yourself, and virtuous paladin powers reflect devotion and strength of spirit to guard you from enemy attacks. Avenging paladins might choose a few ardent paladin powers for a boost to damage, and protecting paladins can make good use of many virtuous paladin powers.

Level 1 At-Will Prayers

Ardent Strike Paladin Attack 1

You attack your enemy and make it the focus of your god's anger.

At-Will ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength or Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength or Charisma modifier damage, and the target is subject to your divine sanction until the end of your next turn.
Level 21: 2[W] + Strength or Charisma modifier damage.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Virtuous Strike Paladin Attack 1

The clean light of your weapon pierces your enemies and fills you with resolve.

At-Will ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Charisma modifier radiant damage, and you gain a +2 bonus to saving throws until the start of your next turn.
Level 21: 2[W] + Charisma modifier radiant damage.
Special: This power can be used as a melee basic attack.

EMRAH ELMASLI

Level 1 Encounter Prayers

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage. Each enemy within 3 squares of you is subject to your divine sanction until the end of your next turn.

Level 1 Daily Prayers

Blood of the Mighty — Paladin Attack 1

You draw on your own life force to deal a decisive blow.

Daily ✦ Divine, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: You take 5 damage, which can't be reduced in any way.

Blazing Brand — Paladin Attack 1

Your strike burns your god's symbol onto the enemy, a beacon to your companions.

Daily ✦ Divine, Fire, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier fire damage. The target takes ongoing 5 fire damage and grants combat advantage to any ally adjacent to it (save ends both).

Glorious Charge — Paladin Attack 1

You wade into battle and urge your allies to greater heights.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage.
Effect: After the attack, each ally within 2 squares of you regains hit points equal to one-half your level + your Wisdom modifier.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Majestic Halo — Paladin Attack 1

You shine with divine radiance that sears your enemies as you attack and commands their respect.

Daily ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Charisma modifier radiant damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, any enemy that starts its turn adjacent to you is subject to your divine sanction until the end of its turn.

Level 2 Utility Prayers

Bless Weapon — Paladin Utility 2

You recite an ancient prayer to imbue your weapon with the power of pure faith.

Daily ✦ Divine, Radiant
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Choose one weapon you are wielding. Until the end of the encounter, you gain a +1 power bonus to attack rolls with that weapon, and it deals 1d6 extra radiant damage on a hit. In addition, you can score a critical hit with the weapon on a roll of 18-20 against creatures vulnerable to radiant damage.

Call of Challenge — Paladin Utility 2

You brandish your weapon and demand that all foes nearby face you in battle.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 3
Target: Each enemy in burst
Effect: Each target is subject to your divine sanction until the end of your next turn.

Divine Counter — Paladin Utility 2

The power of your god deflects part of an attack against you, and you call out the attacker.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: An enemy hits your Fortitude, Reflex, or Will
Effect: You take only half damage from the triggering enemy's attack, and the triggering enemy is subject to your divine sanction until the end of its next turn.

Touch of Grace — Paladin Utility 2

You take onto yourself the suffering of your ally.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Melee touch
Target: One ally
Effect: You transfer to yourself one effect on the target that a save can end.

Virtue — Paladin Utility 2

You gird yourself in your high ideals and face the enemy with renewed determination.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You spend a healing surge but regain no hit points. You instead gain temporary hit points equal to your healing surge value.

Level 3 Encounter Prayers

Avenging Smite — Paladin Attack 3

Your steel transfixes an enemy that harms your friend.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Immediate Reaction Melee 1
Trigger: An enemy adjacent to you hits your ally
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.

Call to Arms — Paladin Attack 3

You lead your foe to the ground where you want to fight.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: One creature marked by you
Primary Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: You pull the target to a square adjacent to you. Then make a melee secondary attack against it using your weapon.
Secondary Attack: Charisma + 2 vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage.

Hold Fast — Paladin Attack 3

You engage your foe and prevent it from advancing on your allies.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength or Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength or Charisma modifier damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.
Special: You can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Strength from Valor — Paladin Attack 3

As foes encircle you, you fight all the harder.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage. You gain 5 temporary hit points for each target hit by the attack.

Trial of Strength — Paladin Attack 3

You shake off affliction to strike true and hard.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Effect: Before the attack, you make a saving throw with a bonus equal to your Wisdom modifier.
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage.

Level 5 Daily Prayers

Arc of Vengeance — Paladin Attack 5

Your flashing weapon promises a swift end to your foes.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Make a ranged secondary attack using your implement. Doing so doesn't provoke opportunity attacks.
Secondary Target: One creature other than the primary target within 5 squares of you
Secondary Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier radiant damage, and you regain hit points equal to 1d6 + your Charisma modifier.

Unrelenting Punishment — Paladin Attack 5

After your initial attack, divine power continues to assault your foe, and you grow stronger all the while.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: The target takes ongoing 5 damage (save ends). Whenever the target takes this ongoing damage, you regain hit points equal to your Wisdom modifier.

Hymn to Corellon

Lord of the wood, lord of the stars,
Maker of songs and teacher of arts–
Great Corellon, as your servant I stand.
Open my eyes to the works of your hand.

Lord of the wood, lighten my heart;
Maker of songs, your wisdom impart.
Great Corellon, grant me a dream
Of the twilight courts of the Seldarine!

Lord of magic, lord of starlight,
Lover of beauty and poet of night–
Long lies the path through mists and through moor
But home I will come to Arvandor.

The Divine Compromises

When the immortals had won the war against the primordials, they fought among themselves for dominion over various aspects of the natural world. Zehir contested with Pelor over mastery of the sky, for the sun banished darkness. Pelor in turn fought with Khala, whose icy mists and snows blocked the life-giving rays of the sun. Each of Pelor's opponents gathered allies, and Pelor had allies of his own. On one side stood Corellon, Khala, Zehir, and Sehanine, while on the other stood Pelor, Erathis, Moradin, and Melora. The two forces argued for ages to no avail, leaving hurts and grudges that linger still.

At last Avandra parlayed between the two factions. To settle the argument between Pelor and Zehir, she offered day and night. As a compromise between Khala and Pelor, she proposed alternating seasons of summer and winter. The gods, weary of their quarrels, agreed. Pelor abides faithfully by his agreement with Zehir, but from time to time Zehir seeks to shadow the sun during daytime with an eclipse. Khala is no more, but the Raven Queen—who holds sway over winter now—honors the ancient pact. Yet she also tests Pelor's resolve, seeking to end summers early and delaying springs as long as she can. In this way, autumn snows and spring thaws can come early or late.

Level 23 Encounter Prayers

Censuring Radiance — Paladin Attack 23

Your weapon sears a sigil into your foe that hinders its attacks against your companions.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon

Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. If you have used ardent vow during this encounter, the target also gains vulnerable 10 to all damage until the end of your next turn.

Astral Thunderbolt — Paladin Attack 27

The power of the dominions rings through your strike, and you raise your symbol to hurl divine thunder at a nearby foe.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Thunder, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4[W] + Charisma modifier thunder damage. The primary target is slowed and takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn. Make a secondary attack that is a close burst 10 using your implement.
Secondary Target: One creature in burst
Secondary Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier thunder damage, and the secondary target takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Overwhelming Smite — Paladin Attack 27

The shining hand of the divine guides your weapon, and none can ignore you.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier radiant damage, and each enemy adjacent to you is subject to your divine sanction until the end of your next turn.

Terrible Charge — Paladin Attack 27

Your fervor drives you into the fray and strikes terror into your enemy.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fear, Weapon
Standard Action Melee 1
Effect: You charge and make the following attack in place of a melee basic attack.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is stunned until the end of your next turn.

Wrathful Flame — Paladin Attack 27

Pure blue fire blazes from your holy symbol to devastate foes around you.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d8 + Charisma modifier fire damage. If the target is marked by you, it is also dazed until the end of your next turn.

Level 29 Daily Prayers

Day of Reckoning — Paladin Attack 29

Like an agent of vengeance, you appear beside your foe to deliver the killing blow.

Daily ✦ Divine, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee 1
Effect: You teleport 10 squares to a square adjacent to a creature marked by you.
Target: One creature marked by you
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 6[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Devastating Surge — Paladin Attack 29

You give of your own vitality to heal an ally and wound an enemy.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must have at least one healing surge remaining.
Effect: You spend a healing surge but do not regain hit points. Choose an ally within 10 squares of you. That ally regains hit points equal to your healing surge value. Then make the following attack.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: The target takes damage equal to your healing surge value + your Strength modifier.
Miss: Half damage.

Name of Awe — Paladin Attack 29

You utter an ancient name of such power that your enemies are rooted to the spot, unable to escape.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 5d8 + Charisma modifier thunder damage, and the target is immobilized and weakened (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage, and the target is slowed (save ends).
Effect: Each target is subject to your divine sanction until the end of your next turn.

Prostration — Paladin Attack 29

In a resounding voice, you command the respect of your enemies.

Daily ✦ Divine, Lightning, Thunder, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Strength vs. Reflex
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier lightning and thunder damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You knock each target prone.

Sanctioned Slaughter — Paladin Attack 29

Your god demands your enemy's blood, and your weapon draws it.

Daily ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage, and ongoing 10 damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 damage (save ends).

NEW PARAGON PATHS

Champion of Corellon

"With Corellon's grace I fear no foe in reach of my sword."

Prerequisite: Paladin, must worship Corellon

A knight of the eladrin courts, you are pledged to the service of the lords of the fey. Along with valor and martial skill, you have shown exceptional patience, grace, and compassion—qualities admired in eladrin and elven realms alike. You follow a personal code that resembles the chivalric traditions of the mortal world, but you bring a fey perspective to the concepts of honor, valor, and fidelity. Most knights are obligated to prove their bravery by declining advantages that reduce risk in battle, but you do not scorn the bow, the spell, or the ruse of war when such tactics are effective. You have learned techniques for making the best use of agility and quickness even while wearing the heaviest armor.

Among the eladrin, those who follow this path are known as the Aelavellin Seldarine—the Sword Knights of the Seldarine. Most such champions are eladrin, elves, or half-elves, for Corellon is the patron of these peoples. However, any noble warrior devoted to the lord of the Seldarine can become a champion of Corellon. Those champions of Corellon who are of other races find a warm welcome in most eladrin and elven communities and are usually regarded as ruathar ("star-friends"), honored allies.

MAZIN KASSIS

Champion of Corellon Path Features

Restorative Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can also spend a healing surge.

Superior Defense (11th level): If your Dexterity score is 13 or higher, you gain a +1 bonus to AC while wearing heavy armor. If your Dexterity score is 15 or higher, the bonus is +2.

Light-Footed Warrior (16th level): You ignore the speed penalty for wearing heavy armor. In addition, when you bloody an enemy or reduce it to 0 hit points on your turn, you can shift 1 square as a free action.

Champion of Corellon Prayers

Elegant Strike Champion of Corellon Attack 11

You move and strike with a dancer's grace, confounding your foe.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Charisma modifier damage, and the target is slowed and cannot shift until the end of your next turn.
Weapon: If you are wielding a light blade or a heavy blade, you gain a bonus to the damage roll equal to your Dexterity modifier.

Graceful Step Champion of Corellon Utility 12

You maneuver with speed and balance that few warriors can match.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Move Action Personal
Effect: You shift your speed. During this movement, you ignore difficult terrain and gain a +5 bonus to Acrobatics checks and Athletics checks.

Corellon's Wrath Champion of Corellon Attack 20

Just as Corellon's blade once took the eye of Gruumsh, so too does your weapon seek your enemy's eyes.

Daily ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 4[W] + Charisma modifier radiant damage, and the target is blinded (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Your opportunity attacks deal 1d10 extra radiant damage until the end of the encounter.

Demonslayer

"Run back to the Abyss and tell them I'm coming. Let them prepare their defenses and raise their armies. I look forward to obliterating them all!"

Prerequisite: Paladin

Embodiments of chaos and cruelty, demons are an affront to your faith, and you seek to destroy them at every opportunity. You have received special blessings and learned battle prayers that are anathema to the denizens of the Abyss. Your attacks pierce their unholy defenses, and simply being near you causes them pain. You won't rest until every demon is dead.

All but the darkest and most vile of gods regard demons as a blight upon the cosmos and urge their followers to root out demonic threats wherever they appear. Most well-organized faiths support orders devoted to confronting demons; some anoint demonslayers from among the ranks of the faithful using ancient rituals.

Demonslayer Path Features

Demonslayer's Presence (11th level): Any demon that starts its turn adjacent to you takes damage equal to your Wisdom modifier. While any demon is adjacent to you, it can't shift.

Demonslayer's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, the attack deals extra damage equal to one-half your level and ignores resistances.

Suppress Resistance (16th level): When you hit a creature that has variable resistance with a melee attack, you negate the resistance until the end of the creature's next turn.

Demonslayer Prayers

Demonslayer's Smite Demonslayer Attack 11

You intone a prayer over your weapon, empowering it to overwhelm demonic defenses.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC. If the target is a demon, you gain a +2 bonus to the attack roll.
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target loses its resistances until the end of your next turn.
Special: Whenever a demon within 10 squares of you scores a critical hit or spends an action point, you regain the use of this power.

Demonslayer's Resistance Demonslayer Utility 12

A gleaming halo surrounds you and blunts the attacks of your demonic foes.

Daily ✦ Divine
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: An enemy hits you
Effect: You gain resist 5 against damage dealt by the triggering enemy until the end of the encounter. If the triggering enemy is a demon, the resistance increases to 10, and the enemy is subject to your divine sanction until the end of the encounter.
Level 21: Resist 10, or resist 15 if the triggering enemy is a demon.

Edict of Destruction Demonslayer Attack 20

You recite words of divine law as you attack, twisting your prey's very being.

Daily ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is affected by your edict of destruction (save ends). Until the edict ends, roll a d4 at the start of each of the target's turns to determine the edict's effect at that time. If the target is a demon, roll two times and apply both results (if you roll the same number twice, roll again).
1. The target and each enemy adjacent to it take 1d10 + your Strength modifier damage.
2. The target gains vulnerable 5 to all damage until the end of your next turn.
3. The target is blinded until the end of your next turn.
4. The target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Miss: Half damage. At the start of the target's next turn, roll a d4 to determine the effect, as above.

AMELIA STONER

Dragonslayer

"My sword, my shield, and my faith are all I need to confront the most terrifying monsters."

Prerequisite: Paladin

A champion must fight many monsters, and the most savage and ferocious of these are dragons. They sport a daunting arsenal of claws, fangs, stings, roars, and breath weapons, and they are protected by iron-hard scales and supernatural vitality. Many also have a wicked, calculating intelligence. Few warriors stand a chance against such foes, but you have made it your duty to protect defenseless folk against their depredations. You seek out all destructive monsters—including other fantastic beasts such as manticores, wyverns, and sphinxes—and put an end to their reigns of terror.

You might be a hunter of some skill, but you do not rely on patient stalking, trap-setting, or sudden ambush to defeat your sworn enemies. You meet monsters openly in chivalrous combat, pitting your skill and courage against fiery breath and flashing fang. It's a fair fight.

Dragonslayer Path Features

Dragonslayer's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you also gain a +2 bonus to all defenses against creatures marked by you. This bonus lasts until the end of your next turn.

Dragonslayer's Challenge (11th level): The first time you mark a target during an encounter, you gain a +2 bonus to damage rolls against that target until that mark ends. The bonus increases to +4 at 21st level.

True Heart (16th level): You gain a +2 bonus to Will against fear effects.

Dragonslayer Prayers

Challenging Smite — Dragonslayer Attack 11

Your strike demands the attention of your chosen enemy, and that enemy ignores you at its peril.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature marked by you
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Charisma modifier damage. Until the start of your next turn, your divine sanction and divine challenge deal 10 extra radiant damage.

Deflect the Blast — Dragonslayer Utility 12

You take shelter behind your trusty shield, protecting a nearby friend as well.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Immediate Interrupt Melee 1
Trigger: A close or an area attack against AC or Reflex damages you
Requirement: You must be using a shield.
Effect: You take only half damage from the triggering attack. The damage is also halved against one adjacent ally who took damage from the triggering attack.

Ground the Foe — Dragonslayer Attack 20

The power of your prayer hurls your foe to the ground.

Daily ✦ Divine, Force, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma + 2 vs. Reflex
Hit: 5d6 + Charisma modifier force damage, and the target is knocked prone and immobilized (save ends).
Aftereffect: The target is slowed and cannot fly (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage. The target is slowed and is clumsy while flying (save ends both).

CONCEPT ART HOUSE LLC

Faithful Shield

"Behind me, friends! They shall not touch you."

Prerequisite: Paladin

You are a living bulwark, protecting the defenseless. You are the shelter in the storm. As a faithful shield, you place your companions' well-being above your own.

Faithful shields are supreme examples of devout warriors, found in most of the world's faiths. Such warriors safeguard holy sites and divine servants. Others set out into the world to lend their talents to those who need it most, whether the folk of a frontier town surrounded by enemies or a band of adventurers working to thwart a dire threat.

Rather than focusing on dealing damage, you give your companions the time they need to win through. You might partner with another defender, forming an impregnable wall, or work with a trusted striker, blocking enemy attacks and creating openings for your ally. When your group is hard pressed, you might cover the retreat, slowly giving ground while your friends flee to safety.

Faithful Shield Path Features

Sheltering Hands (11th level): Whenever you use your lay on hands power, the power's target gains a +2 power bonus to all defenses until the start of his or her next turn.

Shielding Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you and each ally within 5 squares of you also gain a +2 bonus to AC and Reflex until the start of your next turn.

Defensive Presence (16th level): When any ally within 5 squares of you takes the second wind or the total defense action, any enemy that hits that ally before the end of his or her next turn takes radiant damage equal to 5 + your Wisdom modifier.

Faithful Shield Prayers

Protecting Smite — Faithful Shield Attack 11

A decisive strike against your enemy gives your allies a chance to see to their own defense.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage, and each ally within 5 squares of you gains a +2 power bonus to all defenses until the start of your next turn.

Constant Shield — Faithful Shield Utility 12

You channel divine might through your shield to defend yourself and your charges.

Daily ✦ Divine, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Requirement: You must be using a shield.
Effect: Until the stance ends, you and any allies adjacent to you gain a +2 power bonus to AC and Reflex. In addition, when you or any ally adjacent to you is pulled, pushed, or slid, you can reduce the forced movement by 1 square.

Rampart of Strength — Faithful Shield Attack 20

You raise your shield, and from it bursts scintillating astral radiance that drives back your foes.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Close burst 5
Requirement: You must be using a shield.
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier radiant damage, and you push the target 3 squares.
Miss: Half damage, and you push the target 1 square.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, at the start of each of your turns, if you have not moved since the start of your last turn, you can use a free action to grant yourself and each ally adjacent to you a +4 power bonus to all defenses until the start of your next turn.

KIERAN YANNER

Gray Guard

"Do whatever it takes to get the job done, and worry about the moral questions later."

Prerequisite: Paladin, trained in Insight and Intimidate

As a paladin, you cleave to principles that guide you through life, shaping your worldview and forming your moral foundation. Even if you don't follow a code of behavior, you follow the precepts of your god and work to live up to your faith's expectations. Yet the enemy never plays fair. Sometimes rules must be bent, or even broken, for the greater good.

No one knows this better than you, a gray guard. You have made a career of defying expectations and making the tough choices that your peers avoid. For you, the ends justify the means—even stealing, lying, or brutal interrogation. You do what you must to defeat the enemy. Your tactics don't make you popular with others in service to your god. Many see you as dangerous, almost as much of a threat as your enemies. Let them say what they will. You know that, deep down, they fear you and might even respect you.

WILLIAM O'CONNOR

As you continue down this path, you might feel estranged from your god, a disappointment to the one for whom you have sacrificed so much. The blood staining your hands has somehow darkened your soul, although your abilities are unaffected. But you do what you must.

Gray Guard Path Features

Gray Guard Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can also shift 3 squares as a free action. In addition, you gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls until the start of your next turn.

Gray Guard Vigilance (11th level): You are trained in Perception and Streetwise. In addition, enemies marked by you cannot benefit from concealment or total concealment against your attacks.

Demoralizing Critical (16th level): When you score a critical hit, the enemy nearest to the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls and all defenses until the end of your next turn.

Gray Guard Prayers

Debilitating Smite Gray Guard Attack 11

So painful is the injury to your enemy that it can barely continue to fight.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is dazed and slowed until the end of your next turn. If the target makes an attack before then, it is dazed until the end of its next turn.

Relentless Justice Gray Guard Utility 12

You persevere in your attacks until you make an enemy pay.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You do not hit with a paladin encounter attack power
Effect: You regain the use of one paladin encounter attack power that you have used during this encounter.

Devastating Smite Gray Guard Attack 20

Divine power charges your strike, tearing through your foe and opening it to your ally's attack.

Daily ✦ Divine, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage. You can expend a use of your lay on hands power (or a power that you took in place of it) to cause the attack to deal extra damage equal to your healing surge value. Until the end of your next turn, the target grants combat advantage to one ally within 5 squares of you.

Hammer of Moradin

"I strike in the name of the Soul Forger. Let my enemies taste Moradin's wrath!"

Prerequisite: Cleric or paladin, proficiency with warhammer or throwing hammer, must worship Moradin

As a devotee of Moradin, you have dedicated yourself to the destruction of your god's traditional enemies and the protection of his faith. In return for your dedication, Moradin lends strength to your hand and shields you with his power. In some lands, hammers of Moradin form an elite knightly order of clerics and paladins who defend dwarven citadels. Others are solitary agents of order who use their powers to protect the weak and confront injustice wherever they encounter it.

Although many hammers of Moradin are dwarves, any hero who wields Moradin's divine power is free to choose this path. Champions of many races turn to Moradin for the strength to hold back evil and defeat the wicked. Human knights, eladrin swordsmiths, and dragonborn battle-priests are all numbered among the hammers of Moradin.

Hammer of Moradin Path Features

Hammer Bond (11th level): You gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls with hammers.

Powerful Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, each target hit by the attack is knocked prone or dazed until the end of your next turn. You choose the effect for each target after the attack's other effects are resolved.

Champion's Aura (16th level): You and any allies within 3 squares of you gain a +4 bonus to all defenses against fear effects.

Hammer of Moradin Prayers

Hammer Throw Hammer of Moradin Attack 11

You hurl your hammer. It bashes one foe and spins through the air to knock another to the ground before returning to your hand.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged 10
Requirement: You must be wielding a hammer.
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn. Make a secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature within 3 squares of the primary target
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you knock the secondary target prone.
Special: When you use this power, you can make the attacks as if your hammer was a heavy thrown weapon. The hammer returns to your hand after the attacks are resolved.

Stalwart Defense Hammer of Moradin Utility 12

Moradin's power shields you from the onslaught of your foes.

Daily ✦ Divine, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you gain resist 5 to all damage and a +2 bonus to Fortitude.

Quake Strike Hammer of Moradin Attack 20

You slam your hammer to the ground, unleashing an earthquake that represents Moradin's wrath.

Daily ✦ Divine, Thunder, Weapon, Zone
Standard Action Close blast 5
Requirement: You must be wielding a hammer.
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier thunder damage, and you knock the target prone.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of difficult terrain that lasts until the end of the encounter.

RALPH BEISNER

Holy Conqueror

"No wall is too high and no moat too wide to protect a villain from my wrath. Bastions of evil cannot stand before me."

Prerequisite: Paladin, ardent vow power

You are a divine warrior in service to a deity of order and righteousness, looking beyond the immediate threat of evil to its source. You set mighty goals of triumph, such as the overthrow of a terrible tyrant or the fall of a nation of villains, to tear power from your deity's enemies and give it to the deserving. You have no interest in possessing a territory and seek to preserve governance by virtuous rulers.

You are single-minded in your pursuit of a goal and go to almost any length to achieve it, and you are better suited to the role of a frontline soldier than a leader. You prefer to charge into battle, using ardent vow to smite your foes. You have little patience for negotiation and can be impulsive to a fault.

Holy conquerors often worship Bahamut, Kord, or Pelor, glorifying their god with each victory in battle. Many have strong connections to specific locations that were seized in battle or that hold particular religious significance.

WILLIAM O'CONNOR

Holy Conqueror Path Features

Holy Rebuke (11th level): When you deal extra damage with your ardent vow, you also push the target 1 square. As a free action, you can shift 1 square closer to the target.

Divine Fortification (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, each enemy adjacent to you is subject to your divine sanction until the end of your next turn.

Hold the Line (16th level): When you or any ally adjacent to you is pulled, pushed, or slid, you can use a free action to reduce the forced movement by a number of squares equal to one-half your Strength modifier.

Holy Conqueror Prayers

Charge of the Conqueror — Holy Conqueror Attack 11

As an enemy launches an attack at your comrade, you give a defiant yell and charge across the battlefield at the foe.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Immediate Interrupt Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy makes an attack roll against your ally within 5 squares of you
Effect: You charge the triggering enemy and make the following attack in place of a melee basic attack.
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: The target is subject to your divine sanction until the start of your next turn.

Sacrificial Intervention — Holy Conqueror Utility 12

You appeal to your god and leap to take the wound meant for an ally, condemning the foe for its insolence.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Teleportation
Immediate Interrupt Close burst 5
Trigger: An enemy hits your ally within 5 squares of you with a melee or a ranged attack
Target: The ally hit by the triggering enemy's attack
Effect: You and the target teleport, swapping positions. The triggering enemy's attack hits you instead. Until the end of the encounter, whenever you end your turn adjacent to the triggering enemy, it is subject to your divine sanction until the end of your next turn.

Take the Keep — Holy Conqueror Attack 20

You cry out, urging your foes to attack you. Your shout encourages your allies to seize enemy ground.

Daily ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Each enemy in burst
Effect: You pull each target to a square adjacent to you, and each target is subject to your divine sanction until the end of your next turn. Each ally in the burst can shift a number of squares equal to your Wisdom modifier as a free action but cannot end this movement closer to you. You then make the following melee attack.
Target: Each enemy adjacent to you
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Knight of the Chalice

"Begone, devils! You have no power here!"

Prerequisite: Paladin

Devils scheme amid the layers of the Nine Hells and infest the world with evil. You are sworn to protect innocents from their infernal machinations. To this end, you have joined an order of like-minded warriors.

The Knights of the Chalice take their order's name from an artifact belonging to the deity slain by Asmodeus when he ascended to godhood. It is rumored that with a single draught of water from the chalice of that deity, the drinker can atone for any wrong and completely purify his or her soul. Some say that drinking from the cup can turn any being, even Asmodeus himself, from evil to good. Whether or not these tales of these legendary properties are true, the chalice is undoubtedly a powerful artifact for good, and many Knights of the Chalice seek it. Some pursue a loftier goal still: to resurrect the chalice's divine owner and restore him to his throne.

As a Knight of the Chalice, you remain vigilant for any signs of infernal activity. You aid all of good heart who stand in the path of devilish influence, and you answer the call of your fellow knights when the powers of the Nine Hells gather in force.

MICHAEL PHILLIPPI

Knight of the Chalice Path Features

Censure Devils (11th level): You gain the Channel Divinity power censure devils.

Saving Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you also make a saving throw against each effect on you that a save can end. If an effect was caused by a devil, you gain a +2 bonus to the saving throw against that effect.

Aura Suppression (16th level): When you hit any creature marked by you that has an aura, the aura is deactivated. The creature cannot reactivate the aura before the end of your next turn.

Knight of the Chalice Prayers

Channel Divinity: Censure Devils — Knight of the Chalice Feature

The power of your faith pains your diabolical enemies.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Implement
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: Each devil in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: The target is weakened until the end of your next turn.

Ensnaring Smite — Knight of the Chalice Attack 11

You bind your foe with ancient magic used to imprison devils.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Charisma modifier damage, and the target is restrained until the end of your next turn. If the target is a devil marked by you, it takes 1[W] extra damage and can't teleport (save ends).

Heavenly Courage — Knight of the Chalice Utility 12

Honeyed words and malicious threats have no effect on you but bring punishment to your foes.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Radiant
No Action Personal
Trigger: You fail a saving throw against acharm or fear effect
Effect: You reroll the saving throw. If you save, the enemy that caused the charm or fear effect takes radiant damage equal to your Charisma modifier.

Blessing of the Chalice — Knight of the Chalice Attack 20

Invoking the power of your order's oath, you infuse your blade with holy light to thwart your enemy.

Daily ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Charisma modifier radiant damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls (save ends). If the target is a devil, it also takes ongoing 10 radiant damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Questing Knight

"I measure my worth by that which I seek."

Prerequisite: Paladin

You have sworn a sacred vow to pursue a great quest that has challenged the devotion of divine champions for centuries.

As a questing knight, you must meet your god's demanding standards to prove yourself worthy of success. Depending on the nature of your deity, you might have to demonstrate outstanding courage, perseverance, humility, indomitability, wisdom, honor, fury, or piety. The object of the quest could be a lost relic, a hidden oracle, the words of a holy verse now forgotten, the destruction of an artifact inimical to your god, or the defeat of a legendary foe.

Because the trail leading to your ultimate goal sometimes grows cold, you need not abandon your current concerns entirely. Continue with your adventures, and strive to be the best you can be, but watch carefully for signs and portents that lead you onward in your quest.

Questing Knight Path Features

Resolute Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you also make a saving throw with a +2 bonus.

Truth Sense (11th level): You gain a +2 bonus to Will against charm, fear, and illusion effects and a +2 bonus to Insight checks.

Knight's Resurgence (16th level): While you are bloodied, you can use your second wind as a free action on your turn.

For the DM: Devising a Quest

If a player chooses this path, you should provide a challenging quest that allows the other party members to contribute. A good structure is three clues scattered through adventures during the paragon tier.

For example, if the questing knight is seeking a lost crown, you might design a quest that ultimately leads to a crypt below a ruined castle. The first clue could be a signet ring belonging to a noble who served the ancient ruler, found among treasure in an otherwise unrelated adventure. The second clue might be a fresco in an abandoned shrine, depicting the noble wearing the ring and relating his story to a scribe. The third clue might be the scribe's long-lost book, which contains the name of the castle where the crown now lies.

Clues can serve as excellent hooks for intermediate adventures. For example, after finding the signet ring, some research might lead the questing knight to an old account of a traveler who visited the ancient noble's palace, which just happens to lie near the locale where you have set the party's next adventure.

Questing Knight Prayers

Strength of Ten — Questing Knight Attack 11

Your conviction lends you the force to repel nearby foes.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Force, Weapon
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier force damage, and you push the target 3 squares. The target is also subject to your divine sanction until the start of your next turn.
Effect: After the attack, you shift to a square within the blast.

Quester's Discipline — Questing Knight Utility 12

Deceit, despair, and weakness find no purchase in your heart.

Daily ✦ Divine
No Action Personal
Trigger: An attack that would blind, daze, dominate, stun, or weaken you hits you
Effect: The triggering attack's conditions are negated against you.

Virtuous Wrath — Questing Knight Attack 20

Your unflinching dedication is a dreadful bane to your enemies, who recoil from the strike.

Daily ✦ Divine, Fear, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: [4W] + Charisma modifier damage, and you push the target 5 squares. The target is weakened (save ends).

Scion of Sacrifice

"Your threats are meaningless to me. Nothing you say can save you from death at my hands."

Prerequisite: Paladin, ardent vow power

The core of your values and the code you follow are rooted in your willingness to give your life for a greater purpose. Your body and soul are strong, and you do not shrink from giving up some of that strength to help others. You strike out with divine fury that racks you with pain but imbues you with even greater strength. You measure your worth by the foes you defeat.

As a scion of sacrifice, you are zealous in the extreme, eager to meet the enemies of your faith regardless of the circumstances. When others pause and deliberate, you act–for better or for worse. However, you are not suicidal. If you encounter a foe clearly beyond your ability to defeat, you retreat to work toward the day when your power matches the enemy's. Or you might turn aside to aid companions who are in danger, or withdraw to carry the injured away from battle. But in most fights you are grim and fearless. Whether you fall in the effort to defeat a mighty foe or survive to face a new threat tomorrow lies in the hands of your god.

Scion of Sacrifice Path Features

Devastating Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, the attack deals extra damage equal to your Charisma modifier. If you are bloodied, you also add your Wisdom modifier to the damage.

Unflinching Persistence (11th level): You gain an additional use of ardent vow each day.

Martyr's Strike (16th level): When an attack reduces you to 0 hit points or fewer, you can use an at-will attack power before falling unconscious.

Scion of Sacrifice Prayers

Scion's Sanction Scion of Sacrifice Attack 11

You lash out against foes around you and dare them to strike back.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Effect: Before the attack, you can take damage equal to your level, which can't be reduced in any way. If you do so, the attack deals 2[W] extra damage.
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage.
Effect: Each target is subject to your divine sanction until the start of your next turn.

Scion's Healing Scion of Sacrifice Utility 12

You offer up part of your life force to restore your wounded ally.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing
Minor Action Close burst 10
Target: One ally in burst
Effect: You take damage equal to your level, which can't be reduced in any way. The target regains hit points equal to his or her healing surge value.

Punishing Flame Scion of Sacrifice Attack 20

Divine flames flood over you, consuming nearby foes in a pyre of retribution.

Daily ✦ Divine, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 5d8 + Charisma modifier fire damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, when any enemy within 5 squares of you deals damage (not ongoing damage) to any ally, that enemy takes fire damage equal to your Charisma modifier.

Slayer of the Dead

"Stay in your graves, hungry dead! Or when I am done with you there will be nothing left to rebury."

Prerequisite: Paladin

The undead that crawl out of the earth and shamble from chill barrows are an unnatural blight upon the land. You have taken up the charge of destroying these horrors with the brilliant light of your faith. The undead are no longer the people they once were, and sending them back to their graves is the only way to respect those whose corpses walk again in undeath.

You were appointed to your holy task after undergoing sacred rituals and learning ancient prayers that invest you with the power to eradicate the walking dead. This paragon path is well suited to followers of Pelor, god of the sun and enemy of the creatures of darkness. Paladins of Ioun too are dedicated to foiling the plans of Vecna, who is the god of undeath as well as the keeper of foul secrets. However, many deities encourage their followers to dispatch the undead as violations of divine law, so slayer traditions are strong among the devotees of many gods.

Slayer of the Dead Path Features

Incandescent Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, that attack deals extra radiant damage equal to 5 + your Wisdom modifier against the first target hit by it.

Scorn the Dead (11th level): You gain resist necrotic equal to 5 + your Strength modifier. The resistance increases to 10 + your Strength modifier at 21st level.

Slayer's Presence (16th level): When you bloody any undead creature or reduce it to 0 hit points, each enemy within 5 squares of you takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn. This is a fear effect.

Slayer of the Dead Prayers

Light of the Living — Slayer of the Dead Attack 11

Your strike flares with holy radiance, which sears nearby undead.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier radiant damage. Each undead creature within 5 squares of you takes radiant damage equal to your Strength modifier and is subject to your divine sanction until the end of your next turn.

Life and Death Entwined — Slayer of the Dead Utility 12

The undead horror strikes at you, but your divine patron foils its loathsome touch and turns its aggression against it.

Daily ✦ Divine, Radiant
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: An undead enemy hits you
Target: The triggering enemy
Effect: You take no damage from the target's attack. Your next attack against the target deals extra radiant damage equal to one-half the damage you would have taken from the target's attack.

Bury the Dead — Slayer of the Dead Attack 20

The light of life gleams around you as you command the restless dead to return to their graves.

Daily ✦ Divine, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Strength vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d8 + Strength modifier radiant damage. If the target is undead, it is also restrained (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.

CHAPTER 5

Divine Options

One of the most distinctive features of any Dungeons & Dragons campaign world is its pantheon, the collection of deities available for player characters, villains, and monsters to follow or oppose. Just as there are many deities in the D&D pantheon, so too are there many ways for characters to gain the gods' blessings, study their teachings, or demonstrate devotion to them. One dwarf paladin devoted to Pelor might select powers and feats that would be useful to any paladin, while another might choose radiant powers and feats related to them, reflecting Pelor's ascendancy as god of the sun. Both are capable characters, and each is a unique take on what a dwarf paladin of Pelor might look like.

With the options available to you in this chapter, you can customize your divine heroes to your own satisfaction. These options include the following material.

- Divine Domains: Deities often have several spheres of influence, represented by divine domains. You have access to feats, including divinity feats, associated with your deity's domains. This chapter presents over thirty divine domains and their related feats.
- Your Deity and You: How does your character's deity inform the way he or she thinks and acts? This section provides some roleplaying advice.
- Divine Backgrounds: This section provides several brief character backgrounds you can use or adapt to your own divine character.
- New Feats: Many new feats are presented here, providing you with new options for customizing your divine character. These include divinity feats related to evil deities, as well as feats specific to the avenger, cleric, invoker, and paladin classes.
- Epic Destinies: Ten epic destinies appear in this chapter, including the Chosen, the Saint, and Avatar, a destiny that involves you becoming an embodiment of your deity.
- New Rituals: The chapter concludes with several new rituals oriented toward divine characters.

GEORGI "CALADER" SIMEONOV

Divine Domains

Each deity holds sway over certain aspects of existence. For example, Erathis is the god of cities and nations. She often represents law, order, authority, and invention. Aspects of existence such as these are summed up in domains, spheres of divine influence. Each deity is associated with two or three divine domains.

More than thirty divine domains are presented in this chapter, and the domains of the deities from the Player's Handbook and the Dungeon Master's Guide are noted. Erathis, for example, is associated with the civilization, creation, and justice domains.

Using Domains

Your divine character gains access to the domains of his or her deity, which means you gain access to those domains' feats. Each divine domain has a divinity feat and a domain feat associated with it. These feats follow the normal rules for feat selection.

If your character worships multiple deities with a common theme (such as the three gods of destiny, Avandra, Ioun, and the Raven Queen), you gain access to all their domains.

Divinity Feats

Characters who have the Channel Divinity class feature can gain additional Channel Divinity powers by taking divinity feats. As long as you have a particular divinity feat, you can use its power.

Domain Feats

Domain feats provide benefits when you use divine at-will attack powers associated with them. Each domain feat notes its associated powers.

If you have more than one domain feat associated with the same power, that power can benefit from only one domain feat at a time. You decide which domain feat applies each time you use the power. For example, if your cleric of Kord has the domain feats Power of Strength and Power of War and uses priest's shield, you choose which feat's benefit to apply.

Changing Domain Choices

With your DM's permission, you can assign different domains to your character's deity. For example, in a campaign rife with giants, your dwarf paladin might choose to worship an aspect of Moradin that represents the ancient dwarven struggle for freedom from the giants. This version of Moradin has the freedom and war domains, instead of the creation and earth domains.

Deities and Domains

These tables show which domains are associated with each deity.

GOOD, LAWFUL GOOD, AND UNALIGNED

| Deity | Domains |
|---|---|
| Avandra | Change, freedom, luck |
| Bahamut | Hope, justice, protection |
| Corellon | Arcana, skill, wilderness |
| Erathis | Civilization, creation, justice |
| Ioun | Fate, knowledge, skill |
| Kord | Storm, strength, war |
| Melora | Life, sea, wilderness |
| Moradin | Creation, earth, protection |
| Pelor | Hope, life, sun |
| The Raven Queen | Death, fate, winter |
| Sehanine | Love, moon, trickery |

EVIL AND CHAOTIC EVIL

| Deity | Domains |
|---|---|
| Asmodeus | Civilization, tyranny |
| Bane | Skill, war |
| Gruumsh | Destruction, strength |
| Lolth | Darkness, trickery |
| Tharizdun | Destruction, madness |
| Tiamat | Strife, vengeance |
| Torog | Earth, torment |
| Vecna | Knowledge, undeath |
| Zehir | Darkness, poison |

Domain Descriptions

Each divine domain includes two feats associated with it: a domain feat and a divinity feat. The domain feats note which books their associated powers come from: the Player's Handbook (PH), Player's Handbook 2 (PH2), or Divine Power (DP).

Arcana

The arcana domain rests securely within Corellon's sphere of influence. Other deities have interests in the arcane realm: Ioun wants to spread arcane knowledge as far as possible, Sehanine delights in arcane powers' potent illusions, and Vecna prefers that the secrets of arcana be granted only to a worthy few.

For the DM: Your Own Pantheon

If you decide to assign divine domains to a pantheon you created, assign two or three appropriate domains to each deity. The domains' descriptions should help you choose which domains to assign to each deity. It's all right to assign the same domain to more than one deity. For instance, you might have a good deity of the war domain as well as an evil deity of that domain.

In contrast, Corellon glories in all aspects of arcane power and appreciates the use of it as the highest art. Any who create new arcane works or share lost secrets of the art can receive the Master of Magic's blessing, but those who have no dealings with the arcane may discover that Corellon has little interest in them.

As an unaligned deity, Corellon cares more for the elegance and potency of arcane magic than for the morality of its masters, but other gods might have different agendas. An evil deity of arcana might demand that it be used to exert dominance, while a good deity of arcana might command that it be used to seek truth.

Power of Arcana [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the arcana domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Arcana checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat, that power is arcane as well as divine. After using the power, you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls with arcane powers until the end of your next turn.

Powers: divine bolts (invoker PH2), lance of faith (cleric PH), radiant vengeance (avenger PH2), virtuous strike (paladin DP)

Arcana Ward [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the arcana domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power arcana ward.

Channel Divinity: Arcana Ward Feat Power

Your god's comprehension of arcane mysteries extends to shielding you from elemental forces.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: You are hit by an attack that deals acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder damage to you
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you gain resist 5 to a damage type of your choice: acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder.
Level 11: Resist 10.
Level 21: Resist 15.

Change

Avandra enjoys the winds of change and exhorts her faithful to follow where they blow. For Avandra, change represents ever-renewing opportunities. Each moment is a chance to alter the course, either personally or on a grander scale, and to take things in a better direction than in the past.

An unaligned deity might champion change in the form of evolution or the passage of time. Alternatively, a god might be seeking a particular change in the world or the cosmos. If that god is good or unaligned, the desired change—even if it is simply change for change's sake—falls short of tearing the structure apart, but an evil deity might elevate change precisely because of how it can destabilize people and societies.

Power of Change [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the change domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Thievery checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat, you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls with the next encounter or daily attack power you use before the end of your next turn.

Powers: bolstering strike (paladin PH), divine bolts (invoker PH2), overwhelming strike (avenger PH2), recovery strike (cleric DP)

Cycle of Change [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the change domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power cycle of change.

Channel Divinity: Cycle of Change Feat Power

With your god's help, you move the burden to where it can be borne with ease.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Melee 1
Target: One ally
Effect: You transfer an effect that a save can end from the target to yourself or vice versa.

Civilization

Both Erathis and Asmodeus prize civilization as the most important force for greatness, but they seize upon the concept in different ways.

Erathis sees civilization as the means of bringing order and illumination to a dark and chaotic cosmos. For her, any culture of laws advances society better than the wild aspirations of individuals. Large and stable communities give people the chance to create the inventions that further propel the ascendancy of civilization as a whole.

Asmodeus understands civilization as a means of gaining power. Confused rabble roaming the wilderness make for easy conquests, but conquering them means bringing them under control. The laws, technologies, and structures of civil society provide the tools to pinion the weak beneath the boots of the mighty.

A good god of civilization might view it as the best way for people to help one another. The laws and shared responsibilities of societies give people the opportunities to show their better selves. In a world where cities are separated by vast areas of peril, expanding the reach of civilization can be a heroic task indeed.

Power of Civilization [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the civilization domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Diplomacy checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat, you gain a +1 bonus to the damage roll for each enemy adjacent to you.

Powers: leading strike (avenger DP), mantle of the infidel (invoker DP), priest's shield (cleric PH), valiant strike (paladin PH)

Anthem of Civilization [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the civilization domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power anthem of civilization.

Channel Divinity: Anthem of Civilization Feat Power

You inspire your allies to work in concert to turn the tide of battle.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal

Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you or an ally of your choice within 3 squares of you gains an additional +2 bonus to attack rolls against any enemy he or she flanks.

Creation

Erathis and Moradin both claim the domain of creation, and their followers share an appreciation for works of craft. Yet each god places different emphasis on what they inspire their worshipers to create.

Erathis values creations that advance civilization. Faster ships to speed trade, great roads carved through mountains, new cities where no person had thought they might live—these bring Erathis joy. Even an invention as small as a new kind of hinge receives Erathis's sanction.

Moradin encourages others to bring works into being that will see generations of use. He was intimately involved in hammering the raw creation of the primordials into a durable and refined world that mortals could thrive in. Now that the work of original creation is done, his followers focus on the lasting works of hammer and forge, chisel and stone.

Other gods of creation likely make their own marks on the domain. A deity of creation and magic might focus on the invention of new spells or magic items. A god of creation and war might value inventions only for their destructive potential.

Power of Creation [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the creation domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Religion checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit one or more enemies with it, you or an ally of your choice within 5 squares of you gains a +1 power bonus to AC until the end of your next turn.

Powers: bolstering strike (paladin PH), grasping shards (invoker PH2), radiant vengeance (avenger PH2), righteous brand (cleric PH)

Creation Secret [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the creation domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power creation secret.

Channel Divinity: Creation Secret Feat Power

Your prayer has a chance of extending the magic contained within an item.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You use a magic item's daily power

Effect: Roll a d20. If you roll 10 or higher, the use of the daily power is not expended.

Darkness

Drow and darkness go together like spiders and webs, a fact often reinforced by priestesses of the dark elves' patron. Lolth commands her followers to use darkness as cover for their deceptions and attacks. No biting blade or cutting remark can be better delivered than from the shadows.

Zehir sees darkness in a broader scope. He delights in the darkness of ignorance and fear as well as the death of the light. Zehir's worshipers know they can stave off their patron's wrath by killing in darkness and by driving others to turn toward evil.

Darkness need not be the exclusive domain of evil gods. An unaligned or good deity of stealth could favor it, and so might a god of rest and rejuvenation.

Power of Darkness [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the darkness domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Stealth checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit an enemy with it, you gain concealment against the next attack made against you before the end of your next turn.

Powers: ardent strike (paladin DP), overwhelming strike (avenger PH2), priest's shield (cleric PH), visions of blood (invoker DP)

Darkness Consumes [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the darkness domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power darkness consumes.

Channel Divinity: Darkness Consumes Feat Power

You cause darkness to swirl around you and your allies for a moment.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 1
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Each target gains concealment until the end of your next turn.

Death

The Raven Queen holds dominion over death. It represents her ultimate role in the cosmos, and she stands as its dispassionate symbol.

If they are true to her intent, the Raven Queen's followers advance death as the proper progression of the soul toward its ultimate destination. Death should be neither thrilling nor frightful. It comes as night to day and as naturally as winter bites at the heels of autumn. Those who break with that fate through undeath or other extraordinary means must be forcibly brought to their ends.

Other deities with death among their domains likely view it differently. An evil death god might be a tyrant who delights in the sorrow that death sows, whereas a good death god might be a compassionate guide to the next world, a stern judge of the dead, a guardian of the eternal gates, or a protector of tombs.

Power of Death [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the death domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Religion checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit a bloodied enemy with it, you gain a +2 bonus to the damage roll. The bonus increases to +3 at 11th level and +4 at 21st level.

Powers: enfeebling strike (paladin PH), radiant vengeance (avenger PH2), righteous brand (cleric PH), visions of blood (invoker DP)

Death Knell [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the death domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power death knell.

Channel Divinity: Death Knell Feat Power

Death comes to all, and your god counts on you to hasten the moment.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Melee touch
Target: One bloodied creature
Effect: If the target's current hit points equal 5 + one-half your level or fewer, it drops to 0 hit points. Otherwise, you can use one of your other Channel Divinity powers during this encounter.

Destruction

Gruumsh and Tharizdun share the destruction domain, but their outlooks have little in common.

Gruumsh exhorts followers to senseless carnage, burning, and the defilement of lands. His raging hordes scour the world, bringing cities down and dragging nations to their knees. Destruction is an end in itself, and the more violent the end, the better.

Tharizdun desires destruction on a grander scale. He is the god of cataclysms. No mere wildfire or volcanic eruption satiates his demands on his followers. The mad god seeks the world's end by whatever means possible. His crazed followers are often truly mad.

Other gods of destruction might be associated with natural disasters: storms, earthquakes, and the like. An unaligned god of destruction could be an uncaring agent of doom or a herald of the world's end, duty-bound to begin a cycle of cosmic rebirth by unleashing devastation upon the world. A good god of destruction might exist in a very dark world, where most of what exists is corrupt and must be wiped clean.

Power of Destruction [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the destruction domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Intimidate checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit an unbloodied enemy with it, you gain a +2 bonus to the damage roll. The bonus increases to +3 at 11th level and +4 at 21st level.

Powers: ardent strike (paladin DP), bond of censure (avenger DP), grasping shards (invoker PH2), righteous brand (cleric PH)

Path of Destruction [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the destruction domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power path of destruction.

Channel Divinity: Path of Destruction Feat Power

A snarled prayer is enough to invoke the power of the Breaker, the Mangler, the Destroyer—your god.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You roll damage for a melee attack
Effect: You reroll the damage and use either result.

Earth

Moradin and Torog oppose one another for many reasons, including their competing claims on the domain of earth. Moradin sees earth as the foundation of creation and a source of stability, wealth, and strength. He honors stone as the bones of the world and loves mountains as the domain's greatest symbols.

Torog has acquired power over earth during his imprisonment in the Underdark. First he drew the power of earth into the Underdark to provide islands of permanence in that ever-changing realm. Now he continues to scrape at the world above, clawing earth down into the unfinished creation of the Underdark where it can be used as a durable prison, a weapon of confinement.

Other earth gods are often some of the oldest deities and are frequently associated with the formation of the world. They are the carvers of mountains, the binders of stone, and the makers of law who fixed the work of the primordials in its place. An earth god might personify the earth itself as the soul of the world's physical shell. Many earth gods are associated with strength, stability, and time. Others have aspects of agriculture or mineral wealth. Evil earth gods are often jealous, destructive beings who demand placation and resent the exploration of the Underdark.

Power of Earth [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the earth domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Athletics checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit an enemy with it, that enemy is slowed until the start of your next turn.

Powers: bolstering strike (paladin PH), overwhelming strike (avenger PH2), recovery strike (cleric DP), visions of blood (invoker DP)

Earth Hold [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the earth domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power earth hold.

Channel Divinity: Earth Hold Feat Power

For a few moments, you give yourself up to your god's hold. Those around you sense the divine presence as fearsome gravity.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 2
Target: You and each enemy in burst
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you are immobilized, and the other targets are slowed.

Fate

To many mortals, fate is inescapable. Their destinies are written before they're born, and throughout their lives, events conspire to lead them along their appointed path. A few mortals—particularly great heroes—sometimes overpower fate, but very few defy it indefinitely. Sooner or later all but the most extraordinary are caught up in fate's web.

The Raven Queen takes fate as her domain, acting as the guardian of destiny. In keeping with her cold nature, her vision of fate is grim, and she frequently resents great heroes for flouting their destinies. The irony of her situation is that she achieved mastery of fate by overcoming a mortal's destiny, so extraordinary heroes who survive long enough eventually find that fate begins to tip in their favor.

Ioun has fate as a domain for its aspect of prognostication. Ioun's followers seek to know and record the paths of events—in the past, the present, and the future. Her devotees hope to understand their own fates and to help those who do not comprehend their destinies to perceive what it is they are meant to do, for good or ill.

Power of Fate [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the fate domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Insight checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat against a bloodied enemy, you gain a +1 bonus to the attack roll.

Powers: astral seal (cleric DP), avenging light (invoker PH2), bond of retribution (avenger PH2), holy strike (paladin PH)

Fate Rolls On [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the fate domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power fate rolls on.

Channel Divinity: Fate Rolls On Feat Power

In your god's presence, what was mere luck becomes destiny.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Immediate Reaction Ranged 5
Trigger: A creature within 5 squares of you makes a saving throw
Target: The triggering creature
Effect: If the target failed the saving throw, it takes a -2 penalty to its next saving throw before the end of the encounter. If the target saved, it gains a +2 bonus to its next saving throw before the end of the encounter.

Freedom

Sehanine advocates that people follow their hearts without constraint, but Avandra stands as the symbol of true freedom. She commands the domain not to protect the selfish feelings of individuals but to defend the sovereign right of all people to take control of their destinies.

Avandra hopes that others use their freedom to do the right thing, and she stands against tyranny of any kind. Her followers keep alive flames of hope in oppressive societies, serving as the seeds of rebellion or peaceful reform.

It would be unusual for an evil deity to champion freedom, but the domain has dangerous aspects: anarchy, violence, and debauchery. An evil or unaligned god who promotes personal freedom above all other ideals could have the domain.

Power of Freedom [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the freedom domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Acrobatics checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit one or more enemies with it, you or an ally within 5 squares of you gains a +2 bonus to his or her next saving throw before the start of your next turn.

Powers: holy strike (paladin PH), leading strike (avenger DP), righteous brand (cleric PH), vanguard's lightning (invoker PH2)

Path of Freedom [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the freedom domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power path of freedom.

Channel Divinity: Path of Freedom Feat Power

Through your prayer, you remind your friends that they are always truly free.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: Each ally in burst
Effect: Each target can choose to make an escape attempt against a grab as a free action or to make a saving throw against an immobilizing, restraining, or slowing effect that a save can end.

Hope

The hope domain doesn't exist for those who merely wish for something to come to pass; it stands for those who express an optimistic faith in the future. As such, Bahamut and Pelor share reign over the domain.

Pelor shines the light of hope into all hearts that accept his benevolent message. His followers express hope not just for a kinder future but for good harvests from their just labors. Pelor's hope is the faith that the sun will rise, that winter will end, and that compassion will flourish.

Bahamut claims hope among his domains in a different form. The Platinum Dragon's followers rely on the ideals of justice and honor as shields against the darkness that can claim souls. Their hope is that righteous action can prevent a drastic fall. Bahamut places faith not in the external world, but in the spirit of the individual.

Power of Hope [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the hope domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Diplomacy checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit one or more enemies with it, one ally within 5 squares of you gains a +1 power bonus to the next attack roll he or she makes before the start of your next turn.

Powers: avenging light (invoker PH2), leading strike (avenger DP), righteous brand (cleric PH), valiant strike (paladin PH)

Hope Remains [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the hope domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power hope remains.

Channel Divinity: Hope Remains Feat Power

Those who rise again fight with renewed vigor.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Free Action Close burst 10
Trigger: You or an ally within 10 squares of you regains consciousness after being reduced to 0 hit points or fewer
Target: The triggering character in burst
Effect: The target gains a +2 power bonus to attack rolls, saving throws, and all defenses until the end of its next turn.

Justice

Justice lives differently in the mind of each person, and laws change with each ruler, but ideals of integrity and fairness exist in most societies—even among those who see such ideals as weaknesses. Two gods take up the banner of justice, placing it among their highest virtues.

Bahamut sees justice as the tool of good intentions. Laws and honor exist to protect those who cannot protect themselves and to prevent those who wield power from taking the path of evil.

Erathis views justice as the driving force behind civilization. Without law—without the shared understanding of what should and should not be—society dissolves into chaos.

Other gods of justice would place their own perspectives on the concept. A deity of justice and death might be concerned only with providing the proper rewards and punishments to souls. An evil deity of justice might be an unforgiving judge who cleaves to the letter of the law, relishing in the technicalities that entrap decent souls.

Power of Justice [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the justice domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Insight checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit an enemy with it, each bloodied ally within 10 squares of you gains a +1 power bonus to attack rolls until the start of your next turn.

Powers: bond of censure (avenger DP), mantle of the infidel (invoker DP), righteous brand (cleric PH), virtuous strike (paladin DP)

Immediate Justice [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the justice domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power immediate justice.

Channel Divinity: Immediate Justice Feat Power

You enforce balance with a flare of divine energy that lances your enemy.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Radiant
Immediate Reaction Ranged 10
Trigger: An enemy reduces your ally to 0 hit points or fewer or damages your unconscious ally
Target: The triggering enemy
Effect: The target takes radiant damage equal to 5 + one-half your level.

Knowledge

Ioun and Vecna take opposing perspectives on knowledge. Ioun believes that knowledge of any kind is for the benefit of all. Vecna encourages his followers to hide learning so that only their actions and his plans can profit by them. Ioun sees knowledge as a light that can illuminate the world. Vecna sees it as the secrets that can keep people bound in the darkness of ignorance.

Another god of knowledge might emphasize particular types of knowledge that god values. A deity of arcana and knowledge likely drives followers to discover the secrets of magic and the cosmos. A deity of knowledge and trickery emphasizes the power of using truth to make others believe lies.

If you serve a god of knowledge, you are naturally interested in discovering and preserving lore, especially the ancient or the esoteric. You might fill journals with descriptions of your travels and sketches of things you've seen.

Power of Knowledge [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the knowledge domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to History checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit an enemy with it, you gain a +1 power bonus to all defenses until the start of your next turn.

Powers: astral seal (cleric DP), grasping shards (invoker PH2), leading strike (avenger DP), virtuous strike (paladin DP)

Sure Knowledge [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the knowledge domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power sure knowledge.

Channel Divinity: Sure Knowledge Feat Power

Some portion of your god's wisdom flows through you or your ally.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Free Action Ranged 5
Trigger: You or an ally within 5 squares of you makes a knowledge check and doesn't like the result
Target: The triggering character
Effect: The target makes the knowledge check again and uses the new result.

Life

All but a few deities have an interest in life as a domain, but only two place it among their primary concerns.

Melora stands as the world's advocate. If it originates in the world, and it breathes and draws sustenance, she champions its right to exist. Yet Melora does not value one of the world's living things over another. All have the right to play out the natural processes of struggle and survival. Melora does not control the world's primal spirits, but she recognizes their importance and has allied with the elder spirits many times. Primal peoples who would never consider worshiping another deity sometimes acknowledge Melora as a respected ally of the primal spirits.

Pelor brings focus to the cause of life in two different ways. He watches over the life of the fields and farms, and the harvests and herds. As his priests are wont to say, good food is sustenance for the soul. He cares also for the lives of good people and blesses those who show mercy and alleviate suffering.

Other deities of the life domain likely color their interpretation of the domain with their other concerns. There might even be a chaotic evil deity of destruction and the wilderness who promotes the life of ravenous beasts.

Power of Life [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the life domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Heal checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit one or more enemies with it, one ally within 10 squares of you gains 3 temporary hit points. The temporary hit points increase to 5 at 11th level and 8 at 21st level.

Powers: avenging light (invoker PH2), bolstering strike (paladin PH), astral seal (cleric DP), radiant vengeance (avenger PH2)

Pulse of Life [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the life domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power pulse of life.

Channel Divinity: Pulse of Life Feat Power

In the mortal world, death cannot be entirely denied. But it can be postponed.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Immediate Interrupt Ranged 10
Trigger: A creature within 10 squares of you makes a death saving throw
Target: The triggering creature
Effect: The target gains a +10 power bonus to the death saving throw.

Love

The domain of love includes friendship, romance, merriment, and desire. Sehanine accepts all of these as her province, but she places particular emphasis on the passions of new love and the changes it can create in the lives of people who thought their personal stories were set.

Most love deities are positive influences in the world, but some are known for being fickle. Other love deities might be cunning seducers or jealous beauties who delight in broken hearts.

If you serve a deity of love, you are probably a light-hearted and encouraging presence. Love has the power to melt the hardest of hearts, and you believe that your courage and compassion can change the world.

Power of Love [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the love domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Diplomacy checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit one or more enemies with it, you can choose to deal no damage and instead grant 5 temporary hit points to one or two allies within 5 squares of you. The temporary hit points increase to 10 at 11th level and 15 at 21st level.

Powers: radiant vengeance (avenger PH2), recovery strike (cleric DP), sun strike (invoker PH2), virtuous strike (paladin DP)

Loving Sacrifice [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the love domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power loving sacrifice.

Channel Divinity: Loving Sacrifice Feat Power

The loving tie between you and your friend allows you to take some of the pain he or she would have suffered alone.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Immediate Interrupt Ranged 5
Trigger: An ally within 5 squares of you takes damage
Target: The triggering ally
Effect: The damage against the target is reduced by 5, and you take 5 damage, which can't be reduced in any way.
Level 11: The damage is reduced by 10, and you take 10.
Level 21: The damage is reduced by 15, and you take 15.

Luck

Chance, coincidence, fortune, randomness—whatever you call it, luck is a powerful and unpredictable force. Avandra takes this powerful force in hand as a weapon against drab destiny and dark fatalism. For her followers, luck provides excitement and opportunity even in the face of terrible odds.

Another luck god might be a trickster figure, a troublemaker who injects an element of uncertainty into divine circles. Another might be a god of prosperity and good fortune, who rewards the virtuous and worthy. An evil deity of luck might take from it the aspect of misfortune and delight in accidents and disasters.

If you serve a god of luck, you believe in keeping your eyes open for the unexpected opportunity. After all, most people make their own luck by being prepared and decisive. If you're respectful, if you're ready, you'll see the moments when a divine hand arranges some small coincidence or decides some seemingly random outcome in your favor.

Power of Luck [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the luck domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Acrobatics checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat, you can score a critical hit on a roll of 19–20.

Powers: bond of censure (avenger DP), holy strike (paladin PH), lance of faith (cleric PH), vanguard's lightning (invoker PH2)

Imminent Luck [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the luck domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power imminent luck.

Channel Divinity: Imminent Luck Feat Power

Your god gives you another chance at good fortune.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You use a power that gives you a reroll, and the reroll is lower than the original roll
Effect: You don't expend the use of the power that gave you the reroll.

Madness

Those who know the name of Tharizdun attempt to avoid even thinking it, for fear of the thought's echoes in their minds. His worshipers are given to creeping suspicion, maniacal rage, or bizarre fixations. Lost in delusions and inner torment, they grovel before a divinity that exists to bring doom and the dissolution of all things.

A different god of madness might be one whose secrets are too much for the mortal mind to bear. Perhaps instead the deity claims madness as a domain because it comes from an insanity-inspiring place, such as the Far Realm, whose unnatural blessings overwhelm mortals wretched and foolish enough to seek them out. An unaligned deity of madness might take the form of a senile sage or a capering jester. There might even be a beneficent deity of madness and invention who offers inspiration through bouts of insanity.

Power of Madness [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the madness domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Bluff checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit an enemy with it, that enemy takes a -1 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Powers: enfeebling strike (paladin PH), overwhelming strike (avenger PH2), righteous brand (cleric PH), visions of blood (invoker DP)

Screaming Madness [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the madness domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power screaming madness.

Channel Divinity: Screaming Madness Feat Power

Ambushed by your dread god's madness, your enemy lurches into lunacy.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal

Effect: The next enemy you hit during this turn with a fear power hits itself with its melee basic attack the first time it makes an attack on its next turn. The enemy hits itself after its attack is resolved.

Moon

People place many different meanings on the moon. Some see it as a symbol of predictable cycles and time. Others take it as a sign of change, a symbol of magic, or an emblem of beauty and love. A deity of the moon might be seen as a hunter in the darkness, a patron of nightly revelry, or a god of ill fortune or savage madness.

Sehanine takes from the moon the aspect of shadows and masks. Its glow allows her followers to see dangers in the dark, and its darkness cloaks the dangers they present to others.

Sehanine's worshipers see her blessings in the moon's phases. The full moon shields the faithful from harm. A bladelike crescent bodes well for their attacks. And a dark moon presents opportunities to take what you will.

Power of the Moon [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the moon domain

Benefit: You gain a +1 feat bonus to Perception checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit an enemy with it, that enemy takes a -2 penalty to the defense targeted by the power. The penalty lasts until the end of your next turn.

Powers: bond of censure (avenger DP), enfeebling strike (paladin PH), hand of radiance (invoker DP), righteous brand (cleric PH)

Moon Touched [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the moon domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power moon touched.

Channel Divinity: Moon Touched Feat Power

You glow with the healing light of the moon. The light waxes and wanes for a time.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Healing
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: You or one ally in burst; target must be bloodied
Effect: The target regains hit points equal to your Wisdom or Charisma modifier. At the start of each of your turns, roll a d8. If the roll is odd, the target gains temporary hit points equal to the roll, and if the target already has temporary hit points, the effect ends. If the roll is even, the target regains hit points equal to the roll, and the effect ends.
Level 11: Roll a d10 instead of a d8.
Level 21: Roll a d12 instead of a d8.

Poison

Zehir's words are venom, and his teachings poison minds wherever his priests' hisses can be heard. His followers value all kinds of poison: the toxins that debilitate or kill the body as well as the venomous ideas that ruin the mind and sap the spirit.

The followers of other gods might use poison, but for Zehir, poison itself is worthy of honor. His faithful pay homage to venomous creatures and often say prayers while applying poison to their objects or administering it for ingestion.

In your campaign, poison might not be the province of an evil god. Poison represents a hidden danger, so any deity accustomed to stealth and deception might take poison as a domain. But good and forthright gods likely avoid it.

Power of Poison [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the poison domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Bluff checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat, you can choose to change its damage type to poison (the power gains the poison keyword and loses the keywords of its former damage types). If you do so, you gain a +2 bonus to the damage roll. The bonus increases to +3 at 11th level and +4 at 21st level.

Powers: overwhelming strike (avenger PH2), enfeebling strike (paladin PH), grasping shards (invoker PH2), righteous brand (cleric PH)

Original Poison [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the poison domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power original poison.

Channel Divinity: Original Poison Feat Power

Your prayer empowers your venomous attacks.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you gain a +2 power bonus to attack rolls against the target with poison powers.

Protection

Gods of protection wield their divine influence to minimize the effect of disasters, to guide those in peril to shelter, and to influence mortals away from overly destructive actions. Some protection gods inspire their followers to engage enemies through force of arms, while others work indirectly, shielding their chosen people with helpful weather, unexpected good fortune, or inspired champions.

Bahamut and Moradin share the domain of protection in a spirit of solidarity. Moradin emphasizes guardianship of home, family, and clan, while Bahamut takes a wider view of protecting society and good people wherever evil finds them. When danger comes, the followers of Moradin draw back to stand on solid ground, and Bahamut's faithful come forward to strike down threats.

Power of Protection [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the protection domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Heal checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit one or more enemies with it, one ally within 5 squares of you gains a +1 power bonus to all defenses until the start of your next turn.

Powers: leading strike (avenger DP), priest's shield (cleric PH), valiant strike (paladin PH), vanguard's lightning (invoker PH2)

Sure Protection [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the protection domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power sure protection.

Channel Divinity: Sure Protection Feat Power

You ensure that a moment of respite is not interrupted.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Free Action Close burst 5
Trigger: You or an ally within 5 squares of you uses his or her second wind
Target: The triggering character
Effect: The target gains a +3 power bonus to all defenses until the start of his or her next turn.

Sea

The sea is a mighty force in the world. It offers the bounty of fish, the threat of storms, a means for commerce and exploration, and a wilderness in which ships and sailors sometimes vanish without a trace. A god of the sea can therefore be a protective figure who grants blessings to seafaring folk, a monstrous being who delights in drowning mortals, or a fickle divinity who helps or harms as the whim strikes. People see in Melora all three aspects.

Melora claims uncontested rule of the seas, and her whim is iron law. Yet she exercises little control over the vast waters of the world, preferring to allow events to unfold naturally. When she is roused to anger, her wrath comes in endless waves of destruction, and when brought to sympathy, she offers up astonishing treasures lost to the sea.

Power of the Sea [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the sea domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Athletics checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit one or more enemies with it, you can choose an effect: You make a saving throw against an effect that a save can end, or one enemy hit by the power takes a -2 penalty to the next saving throw it makes before the start of your next turn.

Powers: bond of censure (avenger DP), divine bolts (invoker PH2), recovery strike (cleric DP), virtuous strike (paladin DP)

Sea Surge [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the sea domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power sea surge.

Channel Divinity: Sea Surge Feat Power

Your prayer calls forth a wave to carry you or your friend to safety.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Immediate Reaction Close burst 10
Trigger: You or an ally within 10 squares of you is pulled, pushed, or slid
Target: The triggering character in burst
Effect: You slide the target 2 squares.

Skill

A deity of the skill domain values excellence and precision in one's actions. The god's followers often seek mastery of some art or proficiency, spending much time in pursuit of perfection.

Bane demands martial skill from his followers, many of whom spend hours in drills and practice battles. If they are not hefting a weapon on a battlefield, his most faithful are studying theories of warfare or playing games of strategy to hone the military mind.

Corellon appreciates beauty and art, be it in song, story, sculpture, dress, or any form of decoration. Everyone seeking beauty in their actions prays to Corellon for the skill to bring their visions into existence.

As god of knowledge, Ioun offers the comprehension necessary to grow skilled and the deeper understanding that practice of a skill engenders. Sometimes dismissed by the ignorant as the patron of scholars, Ioun stands for truth and learning in all areas of thought and action.

Power of Skill [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the skill domain

Benefit: You gain a +1 feat bonus to trained skill checks.

You can use any power you have that is associated with this feat as a basic attack.

Powers: divine bolts (invoker PH2), overwhelming strike (avenger PH2), righteous brand (cleric PH), valiant strike (paladin PH)

Divine Excellence [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the skill domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power divine excellence.

Channel Divinity: Divine Excellence Feat Power

Your prayer inspires excellence in yourself and your allies.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You make a skill check
Effect: You gain a +2 power bonus to the skill check. Until the end of your next turn, you and each ally within 10 squares of you gain a +2 power bonus to checks using the same skill.

Storm

Slashing rain, roaring winds, brooding clouds, punishing hail—these are moods of Kord. People hear his laughter in thunder and fear the lightning of his fierce smile. Sailors seeking calm winds and farmers who hope for gentle rain beg Kord to vent his fury elsewhere. They engage in contests of strength and raise toasts in Kord's name to let him know they have neither forgotten his power nor taken his clemency for granted.

Like Kord, another god of storms is likely a deity of raging passions. A good god of storms might be thought of as scouring the world of evil, while a malignant deity of the domain would inflict storms simply out of cruelty.

Power of the Storm [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the storm domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Intimidate checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat, you can choose to change its damage type to thunder (the power gains the thunder keyword and loses the keywords of its former damage types). If you do so, you gain a +2 bonus to the damage roll. The bonus increases to +3 at 11th level and +4 at 21st level.

Powers: overwhelming strike (avenger PH2), righteous brand (cleric PH), valiant strike (paladin PH), vanguard's lightning (invoker PH2)

Storm Sacrifice [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the storm domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power storm sacrifice.

Channel Divinity: Storm Sacrifice Feat Power

If it is your god's will, the coming storm will strike as a blessing.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Effect: You gain vulnerable 5 lightning and vulnerable 5 thunder. If the target has no lightning or thunder resistance, it gains vulnerable 5 lightning and vulnerable 5 thunder. If it has lightning or thunder resistance, it loses that resistance. These effects last until the end of your next turn.

Strength

Popular among barbaric peoples, the gods of strength are patrons to warriors and hunters. Violent and short-tempered, these deities act rather than reflect.

Blood-spattered Gruumsh glories in the slaughter of weaker foes, disdaining strategy and skill. He believes that the world belongs to those who can crush skulls in their fists or break bones with a bite. Strength is the license to do as you please, and it pleases Gruumsh when his followers use their might to destroy.

Kord acts as patron of strength to all who seek to avoid the wanton destruction urged by Gruumsh. Athletes, soldiers, laborers, and others who prize the power of the body pray to Kord, and so do those of weakness who are willing to act against the strong.

A strength god need not be so impulsive, and such a deity could be aligned with good. Perhaps your campaign has room for a god of strength and knowledge, patron of athletes and an asceticism seeking physical perfection. A strength god could instead be aligned with justice and promote the use of might for what is right.

Power of Strength [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the strength domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Athletics checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat, you gain a +2 bonus to the damage roll. The bonus increases to +3 at 11th level and +4 at 21st level.

Powers: avenging light (invoker PH2), holy strike (paladin PH), overwhelming strike (avenger PH2), priest's shield (cleric PH)

Strength of the Gods [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the strength domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power strength of the gods.

Channel Divinity: Strength of the Gods Feat Power

From your god, to your ally, and into the enemy: a passage of strength and impact.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: One ally in burst
Effect: The target gains a power bonus equal to your Strength modifier to its next damage roll before the end of your next turn.

Strife

Tiamat rules the strife domain. It stands for her avarice and the greed she foments in her followers. Chaos too is her ally. When others cannot stand together, they are more easily torn apart.

The domain of strife exists for gods who act as thorns in the world's flesh, bloody troublemakers who don't want to get along with anyone else. Those people drawn to serve a strife god are attracted by the pure, driving ambition that the god represents—the desire to get ahead, regardless of the cost. Strife might be the single problematic domain of a god who is otherwise one of the world's defenders, representing the god's penchant for stirring up anger or a dangerous curiosity.

Power of Strife [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the strife domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Bluff checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat, you gain a +1 bonus to the damage roll for each enemy within 3 squares of the target. The bonus increases to +2 at 11th level and +3 at 21st level.

Powers: ardent strike (paladin DP), bond of retribution (avenger PH2), lance of faith (cleric PH), sun strike (invoker PH2)

Sudden Strife [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the strife domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power sudden strife.

Channel Divinity: Sudden Strife Feat Power

You sow doubt in two enemies, causing them to question each other's loyalty. Their combat acumen suffers as a result.

Encounter ✦ Charm, Divine
Free Action Ranged 5
Target: Two enemies within 3 squares of each other
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, the targets take a -4 penalty to attack rolls while they are within 3 squares of each other.

Sun

The sun's influence and brilliance are obvious to all, acting as a daily reminder of Pelor's power and beneficence. The sun is the light of growth and renewal. It is warmth in winter and ensures good harvest come the fall. Pelor extends its light to all just as he hopes his followers extend their compassion to all. The sun also peels back the veil of night, and Pelor's followers see in that a metaphor for the light they must bring to shadowy deeds and dark hearts.

Sun gods frequently rule pantheons or stand as the first among equals. Although usually portrayed as benevolent or dispassionate deities, sun gods don't need to be good or unaligned. An evil sun god might be a bloodthirsty tyrant who threatens drought and fire unless slaked by sacrifices.

Power of the Sun [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the sun domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Insight checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit an enemy with it, that enemy gains vulnerable 3 radiant until the end of your next turn, after the power's effects are resolved. The vulnerability increases to 5 at 11th level and 8 at 21st level.

Powers: lance of faith (cleric PH), radiant vengeance (avenger PH2), sun strike (invoker PH2), virtuous strike (paladin DP)

Solar Enemy [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the sun domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power solar enemy.

Channel Divinity: Solar Enemy Feat Power

The divine sunlight playing across your enemies is a sign of the radiance to come.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 2
Target: Each enemy in burst
Effect: Each target gains vulnerable 5 radiant, or its vulnerability to radiant damage increases by 5.

Torment

Torog crawls through the gloom of the Underdark, his broken back hunched as his bleeding knees and elbows scrape their way through the earth. This tortured deity vents his imprisoned rage against existence as the god of torment. Patron of jailers, slavers, torturers, and sadists of all stripes, the King that Crawls takes pleasure in causing pain and in the agony inflicted by his devotees.

The torment domain typically belongs to evil deities, but your campaign might host a good or unaligned god subjected to torture. Mortals might ask such a divine martyr for the ability to endure the pains they face or to take on their troubles.

Power of Torment [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the torment domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Intimidate checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit an enemy with it, that enemy grants combat advantage to your next ally who attacks it before the start of your next turn.

Powers: ardent strike (paladin DP), astral seal (cleric DP), overwhelming strike (avenger PH2), mantle of the infidel (invoker DP)

Perfect Torment [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the torment domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power perfect torment.

Channel Divinity: Perfect Torment Feat Power

Your prayer prolongs your enemies' suffering.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: Each enemy in burst
Effect: Each target takes a –2 penalty to saving throws until the end of your next turn.

Trickery

Cleverness, deceit, illusion, stealth—these are the tools of deities who hold sway over the domain of trickery. A god of trickery might be an irrepressible jokester whose misadventures serve to illuminate the follies and inanities of life; a shadowy patron to thieves and illusionists; or a cruel deceiver whose lies poison the world.

Sehanine and Lolth assert control over the domain of trickery, an uncomfortable allocation of power extant since before Lolth's rebellion. Though that conflict ended in an era long past, the followers of both deities open fresh wounds over it every year.

For Lolth, trickery presents the means of gaining and keeping power. Why fight foes when you can manipulate them?

Sehanine sees trickery in a more winsome light. Trickery can delight as well as devastate, and she encourages her followers to moderate one with the other as they pursue their destinies.

Power of Trickery [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the trickery domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Thievery checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit one or more enemies with it, you or an ally adjacent to that enemy can shift 1 square as a free action.

Powers: avenging light (invoker PH2), overwhelming strike (avenger PH2), enfeebling strike (paladin PH), recovery strike (cleric DP)

Trickster's Fortune [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the trickery domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power trickster's fortune.

Channel Divinity: Trickster's Fortune Feat Power

You slyly twist your foe's fate and try to turn its misfortune into your fortune.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Immediate Interrupt Close burst 5
Trigger: An enemy within 5 squares of you makes a saving throw
Target: The triggering enemy in burst
Effect: The target takes a –2 penalty to the saving throw. If the saving throw fails, you or an ally in the burst can make a saving throw.

Tyranny

Asmodeus seeks nothing less than complete dominion over all existence, and thus he jealously protects his control of the tyranny domain. Oppression, coercion, repression—these are the tools of the tyrant. Those who follow Asmodeus accept the domination of his agents or seek to gain power for themselves by crushing others in an iron grip.

Few adventurers devote themselves to the ruthless acquisition of power that the tyranny domain entails. However, tyranny might be the lesser of two evils in a setting that faces an even worse threat, such as demonic hordes or invasion from the Far Realm.

Power of Tyranny [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the tyranny domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Intimidate checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat, the power's targets each take a –2 penalty to saving throws until the start of your next turn, whether or not you hit.

Powers: astral seal (cleric DP), bond of censure (avenger DP), divine bolts (invoker PH2), enfeebling strike (paladin PH)

Master of Tyranny [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the tyranny domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power master of tyranny.

Channel Divinity: Master of Tyranny Feat Power

Your enemies' weakness gives you strength.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls against bloodied creatures until the end of your next turn.

Undeath

Death is the natural end to mortal lives, but throughout the ages, some mortals have rebelled against this common fate. Undeath offers some mortals a way to cling to worldly existence long after they should have passed into the beyond. For most, undeath is a terrible curse that corrupts the soul.

Vecna clasps the secrets of the domain of undeath tightly to his bony breast. He envisions a world in which a chosen few rule over masses of undead, which are easily subjugated to his will. Although not all undead owe their allegiance to Vecna, the Maimed One keeps secret watch on the plans of unknown numbers of them, and many unwittingly do his will.

An evil god of undeath might usurp death as well, becoming a frightful master of all fates beyond life. More rarely, a good or unaligned god of undeath might be concerned with the preservation of ancestral spirits and the protection of burial places.

Power of Undeath [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the undeath domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Religion checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat, the power's damage changes to necrotic (the power gains the necrotic keyword and loses the keywords of its former damage types). You also gain a +2 bonus to the damage roll. The bonus increases to +3 at 11th level and +4 at 21st level.

Powers: bond of censure (avenger DP), enfeebling strike (paladin PH), grasping shards (invoker PH2), lance of faith (cleric PH)

Undeath's Ally [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the undeath domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power undeath's ally.

Channel Divinity: Undeath's Ally Feat Power

At your touch, your friend's life begins to slip away, but he or she gains some of the resilience of undeath.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Melee 1
Target: One ally
Effect: The target loses a healing surge but gains temporary hit points equal to his or her healing surge value + one-half your level.

Vengeance

Tiamat rises as the queen of vengeance. She exhorts her faithful to forgive nothing and avenge even the slightest wrong. Her worshipers believe that power can be respected only when it is exercised, and the way to gain power is by tearing down those who have what you desire.

A god of vengeance probably takes delight in revenge that far exceeds the original damage. Although an evil alignment is most likely, a god of vengeance might be an unaligned lord of strife. A good-aligned god of vengeance might be in a setting dominated by evil, where the forces of good seek redress for centuries of abuse.

Power of Vengeance [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the vengeance domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Intimidate checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit an enemy with it, that enemy takes 2 damage the first time it attacks you or an ally of yours before the start of your next turn. The damage increases to 3 at 11th level and 4 at 21st level.

Powers: astral seal (cleric DP), avenging light (invoker PH2), holy strike (paladin PH), radiant vengeance (avenger PH2)

Small Vengeance [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the vengeance domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power small vengeance.

Channel Divinity: Small Vengeance Feat Power

You channel your god's essence and return pain to your foe.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Immediate Reaction Close burst 10
Trigger: You are bloodied by an enemy within 10 squares of you
Target: The triggering enemy in burst
Effect: The target takes 1d8 damage.
Level 11: 2d8 damage.
Level 21: 3d8 damage.

War

War is a powerful force in the world, the ultimate test of martial fitness. A war god can be an honorable champion who delights in demonstrations of courage, a cruel conqueror who revels in bloody triumph, or a harsh judge who measures mortals by how they meet their hour of doom.

Bane commands the domain of war for its aspects of conquest and strict military structures. Ordered battle plans and improvised strategies please Bane, as do masses of troops and tiny tactical units. Bane embraces every aspect of war and sees it as an end in its own right, an outlook shared by many of those devoted to him.

Kord sees war as the testing ground for strength. He values it as a storm of blood—a passion that rages in the heart of true warriors. Kord has little patience for strategizing and deception, and those who carry his standard into battle try simply to pit strength against strength, or they look to another power—such as Ioun, Bahamut, or even Bane—for the tactics they need to win.

If you are a devotee of a god of war, you regard battle as the principal test of your worth and devotion. And sometimes a fist in the face says more than a thousand honeyed words.

Power of War [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the war domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to History checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat against an unbloodied target, you gain a +1 bonus to the attack roll.

Powers: bolstering strike (paladin PH), bond of retribution (avenger PH2), priest's shield (cleric PH), visions of blood (invoker DP)

Path of War [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the war domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power path of war.

Channel Divinity: Path of War Feat Power

You encourage your friends to throw themselves into glorious battle.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: Each ally in burst
Effect: Each target gains a +2 bonus to attack rolls and a -2 penalty to all defenses until the end of your next turn.

For the DM: Evil Feats

The Player's Handbook provides divinity feats only for good and unaligned deities. In contrast, this book provides divinity feats and domain feats usable with evil deities. Evil player characters don't mesh well with most D&D campaigns and the shared experience of the game table, so the evil-related feats, such as Perfect Torment, will prove most useful for DMs building evil NPCs. Evil-flavored domains, such as tyranny, are also useful for building complete pantheons.

In rare cases, a player character might try to walk the moral tightrope of worshiping an evil god while maintaining an unaligned alignment. This situation provides quite a few dramatic hooks, but such dramas usually end with only a few survivors. You should therefore think carefully before inviting such tensions into a campaign.

If you want to try running a campaign full of evil player characters, the new divinity feats and domain feats should prove invaluable. Quite a few of them capture the core evil experience—it's not necessarily hard to be evil, but it's hell being around other people who are evil.

Wilderness

During the world's creation, gods shaped the forests, the mountains, the plains, and the deserts. These vast landscapes form the foundation of life. The wilderness is the realm of primal spirits and fey powers, and Melora and Corellon divide their control of the wilderness domain on similar lines.

Melora concerns herself with the wilderness of the world, its cycles and the survival of its many beings: animals, plants, and spirits that are the source of primal power. Melora's view of nature is broad enough that she does not care if someone cares more for primal spirits than for her. Just as with her other domains, the sea and life, Melora has little impact on the wilderness so long as nothing dramatically affects its existence. Only when truly devastating threats loom will Melora marshal her resources to defend the world.

Corellon's interests are the wild places of the Feywild and the ancient forests that stand across the world. He most values locations of natural beauty, and his followers often protect them in his name, especially places of splendor in the Feywild.

An alternative wilderness deity might be an evil or unaligned power who emphasizes the harshness and cruelty of the wilds. A deity of trickery and the wilderness might act as patron to mercurial fey beings, offering other mortals infrequent protection from the pique of those mysterious beings.

Power of the Wilderness [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the wilderness domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Nature checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat and hit an enemy with it, you and each ally adjacent to you ignore difficult terrain until the end of your next turn.

Powers: overwhelming strike (avenger PH2), recovery strike (cleric DP), sun strike (invoker PH2), valiant strike (paladin PH)

Grasp of the Wild [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the wilderness domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power grasp of the wild.

Channel Divinity: Grasp of the Wild Feat Power

You cause the environment to clutch at creatures in an area. Vines wrap around them, the earth softens under them, water churns about them—whatever is natural for the environs.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Effect: The area of the burst is difficult terrain until the end of your next turn.

Winter

The Raven Queen rules over winter as the uncaring marshal of its beginning and end. She pulls the white veil over the world with cold efficiency, and lets the world rise from the dead of winter only because the natural order demands it. The Raven Queen's servants see winter as a pure and fair means of culling the weak. It represents a time of hardship through which the world emerges stronger than before.

Mortals typically associate winter with darkness, hunger, and death, so many pray to a winter god out of fear, hoping to placate icy wrath. Those who adapt their lives to wintry environments might enjoy the protection of good god of winter. In lands where seasons change little, the winter god might be a god of the high mountains, where snow and ice never melt. An evil winter deity might dream about plunging the world into eternal ice but be held in check by a god of the sun and summer such as Pelor.

Power of Winter [Domain]

Prerequisite: Any divine class, must worship a deity of the winter domain

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Endurance checks.

When you use a power associated with this feat, the power's damage changes to cold (the power gains the cold keyword and loses the keywords of its former damage types). You also gain a +2 bonus to the damage roll. The bonus increases to +3 at 11th level and +4 at 21st level.

Powers: bond of censure (avenger DP), enfeebling strike (paladin PH), hand of radiance (invoker DP), lance of faith (cleric PH)

Path of Winter [Divinity]

Prerequisite: Channel Divinity class feature, must worship a deity of the winter domain

Benefit: You gain the Channel Divinity power path of winter.

Channel Divinity: Path of Winter Feat Power

At your prayer, you and your allies endure winter's chill.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Each target gains resist 5 cold until the end of your next turn.
Level 11: Resist 10 cold.
Level 21: Resist 15 cold.

YOUR DEITY AND YOU

Each of the deities in the core pantheon has a unique outlook and a special mindset, just as do the devotees of those deities. This section provides advice on how to tailor the abilities and attitudes of your divine character so they are in concert with the god that he or she seeks to emulate.

In many of these passages, recommended trained skills are not all on the class list of every divine class. It's still possible for your character to become trained in such a skill, by taking either the Skill Training feat or a class-specific multiclass feat.

Avandra

You hope to become a quintessential adventurer, a walking symbol of the spirit of exploration as guided by Avandra's wishes. As you and your compatriots travel, you serve as a guide and a representative of the party. Though you give prayers and offerings to Avandra, you know it's more important to be assertive and take action. Nothing is more vile in your eyes than oppression and slavery, and you take up Avandra's mandate to right those great wrongs.

Choose powers—especially utilities—that grant movement or alter luck. Obtain training in skills that make travel easier in both civilization and wilderness, such as Diplomacy, Dungeoneering, Nature, and Streetwise.

Avenger: Less focused on a single goal than most other avengers, you travel across the world, finding your own targets. Those who enslave or confine others are your greatest foes. You might start your career fighting brigands who block a road and cap it fighting an archdevil who enslaves millions.

Cleric: Freedom is the core of your belief. While you might lead your allies, you are never domineering. Your devotion leads you to many lands, and the world is dotted with shrines you have built and consecrated, both humble and grand.

Invoker: You realize from the histories you've read that absolute freedom is far from ideal. It can cause pain as easily as joy, and it led to chaos in the times before deities ruled. Though Avandra encourages change, you believe she wants that change to be directed. Speaking with holy authority, you seek to bring change only for good and to drive the wicked to follow the will of the good deities.

Paladin: Those who expect a paladin to be a humorless, self-righteous soldier will be surprised by you. Though you are reliable and strong, you're hard to predict, and sometimes incautious. You never take prisoners, for it's better to be dead than bound.

Bahamut

Your philosophy exalts the good and righteous, the honorable and lawful, above all. Evil, no matter how powerful, must be opposed, and you will stand against any force of darkness. You make it your business to know the laws of any land you visit. The law can mask the workings of evil, and you cleave to the higher law—the divine law—set forth by Bahamut.

Pick powers that will best protect your allies, and possibly cold powers to mimic the frost of Bahamut's breath. Skills that overpower (such as Intimidate) and skills of understanding (such as Diplomacy and Insight) exemplify the strength and nobility of your deity.

Avenger: The retributive side of Bahamut intrigues you. You bring swift, bloody justice to those who transgress. With blade or bow in hand, you fight with the ferocity of a dragon.

Cleric: To protect the weak, you are willing to risk your life. Your divine power is a blessing, and you owe it to the world to safeguard those who have less power. You give aid to the person with the most need before you think of anyone else.

Invoker: You consider Bahamut to be a fragment of Io, the progenitor of dragons. As contradictory as it might seem, you pay tribute to Tiamat for the same reason. You use prayers to emulate Io's might, and the lawful code you follow is actually closer to Io's more brutish, prideful principles than to Bahamut's nobility and honor.

Paladin: None exemplify the way of the paladin as you do. You bring justice to your foes, but you do so with fairness and mercy. You allow no weakness in yourself, since you must stand as a paragon of law and honor.

Corellon

To serve Corellon is to serve enchantment—both the magic of beauty and the beauty of magic. You feel Corellon's favor when you find and foster magic and when you protect or create beauty. You take inspiration from exquisite things and seek ways to bring magic to others' lives.

As a worshiper of Corellon, you favor powers that emphasize the power of magic. Select showy powers, particularly those that deal radiant damage or force damage. Choose training in Arcana, Diplomacy, and Insight.

LEE MOYER (2)

Avenger: In an enchanted refuge you received your training and the investiture of your divine power. You didn't need the advice of others to tell you how to use Corellon's gifts. You heard your calling in songs and saw your path written across a starlit sky: Strike down those who destroy beauty, and tear through the web of Lolth's followers to stab at the heart of her plans. Death, too, can be a work of art.

Cleric: The splendor of the world and its peoples' creations inspires you, and you hope your deeds will inspire others to feel what you know in your soul. Corellon is a god of renewal, so you seek to restore and rebuild wherever destruction has wrought sorrow.

Invoker: You were granted a gift you're not sure you can ever repay. Thanks to Corellon, you can speak words of such grace that you command the attention of even the most hideous souls. With his magic behind your will, you feel compelled to share the joy your spirit feels. A magic so great should never be kept secret.

Paladin: Too often, ugly brutality ruins the gentle or glorious things in life. You chose the path of the paladin not for the song of the sword's arc, but for the sound of the next breath of a would-be victim bought by your weapon's strike against an attacker. Whether beauty takes the form of the most enchanting place in the world or the face of a kind soul, how could you not stand between it and destruction?

Erathis

The lights of civilization and invention are all that keep the world from descending into chaos and barbarism. You create new societies and protect those you find. To embody the virtues of progress, you study the histories of civilizations and learn some type of craft.

Choose powers that encourage teamwork by giving bonuses to allies, either directly or by imposing conditions on enemies. Take skills that encourage cooperation, such as Diplomacy, and ones you'll use in civilized areas, such as History and Streetwise.

Avenger: Rather than looking for new places to create civilization, you make existing cities run more smoothly. Frequently, this effort entails removing from power those who work against the goals of others (often criminal organizations).

Cleric: You seek to forge alliances, broaden understanding, and ultimately bring disparate groups together to create new societies. Encourage the building of great temples in civilized lands, with shrines to many deities (to draw many people to the city).

Invoker: When the gods are strong, the world is ruled by law and great cities rise. You seek to pull the world from darkness and return it to glory under divine rule. Erathis's laws lay the groundwork that will bring law and prosperity to all.

Paladin: An aggressive, devout follower, you drive the progress of societies forward, delving into the wilds to reshape them into settlements that are both safe and civilized. You might even have an ambition to rule as a monarch one day.

Ioun

Serving Ioun means discovering and sharing secrets. Yet this quest ranges further than cobwebbed libraries and musty books. Your hunger for knowledge draws you to understand strategic thinking, foresight, and all forms of mental prowess.

As a worshiper of Ioun, you favor powers of prescience and those that deal psychic damage. Choose training in knowledge skills (particularly History), Insight, and Streetwise.

Avenger: Knowledge is a weapon, and you don't ever want to be caught unarmed. No secret is safe from you. Then again, neither are those who keep them. Vecna and his followers are a sickness that your blade can cut out of the world. You see your foes' future, and the prognosis for them isn't good.

Cleric: A secret dies with its keepers, but knowledge gains power when shared. Though you fight mortal foes, ignorance is your true enemy. You walk in a world unaware of its potential, so you strive to share your skills and learn the lessons others can teach you. You hope your example will lead others to take the right path.

Invoker: Ioun knows your mind, and your heart is turned toward her purposes. You know the peace of soul that comes from meditation and study. If others open their hearts to enlightenment, you're hopeful that they can share that peace. If not, you'll teach them the error of their ways.

Paladin: Knowledge shields people from many mistakes, but to take the proper path, one needs the wisdom to perceive it and the strength to stay the course. You know that many people will falter as they take the necessary steps, and it's your duty to make certain they don't fall.

LEE MOYER (3)

Kord

As a follower of Kord, you serve as the fighting heart of your adventuring group—the character others can depend on to show great courage, to take risks, and to stand and fight against overwhelming odds. To show true devotion, you must act with bravery and skill, not simply pray at a shrine or carry a trinket of faith. You see no need to mince words, especially with those who are weak. Those who use subterfuge and honeyed words might show great skill, but such actions are fundamentally cowardly—not befitting a true adherent of Kord's teachings.

You prefer melee attacks and powers that deal lightning or thunder damage. Choose training in physical skills such as Athletics, Acrobatics, and Endurance.

Avenger: The teachings of Kord are always on your mind as you enter single combat. You focus on defeating one foe using only your personal might and skill, and you continually seek your next battle—your next victory.

Cleric: You shout out boisterous encouragement to your allies, providing emotional encouragement in addition to your magical boons. You lead by example, rushing headlong into battle and exhorting your allies to keep up with you.

Invoker: In ancient times, Kord's battles shook the world. You still feel the reverberations of those great fights and have an instinctual knowledge of the lord of battle's power. Though you might seem entirely different during travel or negotiation, in battle you enter a trance as you call on the strength of your god.

Paladin: You find it easy to follow Kord's teachings as a paladin, and your code of honor includes his commands. Although you seek battle and glory, you're never cruel, and you are quick to grant mercy to a foe that concedes defeat.

Melora

With a close connection to your animal instincts, you possess a mercurial temperament that alternates between the contradicting parts of nature. Sometimes you show grace and calm, but you also rage like a wild beast when in danger. Nature is your true home, and it's difficult for you to be confined in claustrophobic tombs or constructed tunnels.

Choose powers that bring out the savagery of yourself and your allies. Your skills should include those that help you persevere in the wild, such as Athletics, Endurance, Nature, and Perception.

Avenger: As an avenger worshiping Melora, you might be a member of an elite cabal of aberration hunters who have vast knowledge about the Far Realm and how to spot its influence. Until every aberrant spawn of that dread place is slain, you won't rest.

Cleric: You are the pack leader of your adventuring group, and you take on both the responsibility and power of an alpha animal. When fighting, you urge your allies to be merciless hunters.

Invoker: In the winding rivers, the lush jungles, and the rolling waves of the oceans, you see the care and skill the deities brought to creating the world. You revere and protect these natural wilds, considering them as important among the domains of the gods as any city or temple.

Paladin: Calling upon the strength of the oak and the power of the avalanche, you become a mighty protector of all living things. You remain vigilant, opposing anyone that attempts to destroy nature or slaughter beasts, beyond what is needed to survive.

Moradin

Your determination in the face of hardship is outweighed only by your loyalty to your friends. You apply your indomitable will toward crafting a better world. Order and goodwill clearly present the righteous path, and you try to exemplify these traits even in the worst moments.

As a worshiper of Moradin, you favor powers that aid allies and protect yourself. Choose training in Dungeoneering, Endurance, and History.

Avenger: Just as a smith beats weakness from metal or a sculptor chips away unwanted stone, you make the world a better place by carving out the bad parts. And as with any great work of craftsmanship, when you've finished making your mark on history, no one will mourn the missing pieces.

Cleric: Amid waves of chaos and destruction, you stand as solid as stone. Your solidarity provides an anchor for allies and presents an unfaltering wall to a tide of foes. You know that others look to you for guidance, and your steady hand gives them the confidence to take their own paths.

Invoker: Moradin fashioned your soul to further his will in the world, and you're determined to make great works with the materials your life provides. You're the keystone in these plans, while those around you need to be moved into place before their full roles can be realized.

Paladin: Anything worth making is worth protecting, especially friendship. Loyalty is your legacy, and you never break the oaths you forge. Come what may, your allies know they can depend on you.

Pelor

Pelor represents many things to many people, and so must you. You stand as the light to guide others out of darkness, and you offer redemption to those who seek it. Even so, you rise against darkness and see it put in its place. You serve Pelor best when you help others and protect them from evil.

As a worshiper of Pelor, pick powers that deal radiant damage or heal allies. Choose training in Diplomacy, Heal, and Nature.

Avenger: Pelor's priests often speak of showing compassion and kindness, but you know there is a difference between mercy and forgiveness. Those who truly see the light deserve its warmth. All others earn cold steel. When the path you walk seems dark, it is only because you stand in the shadows produced by Pelor's light.

Cleric: Your righteous stance is the light meant to lead others out of darkness. When your friends falter, you are beside them with the warm words and kind heart that illuminate the proper path.

Invoker: The warmth of summer ever fills your soul, and the world would be a better place if all could share the joy you feel. By sowing the seeds of empathy and goodwill, you're confident you'll reap a fine harvest. When you inevitably encounter resistance, you know Pelor's light shall reveal the errors of your enemies' ways. The sun causes crops to grow, but it can burn them too.

Paladin: Each sunrise brings a new day, and each day is a chance to start anew. Yet compassion for a foe is no excuse for allowing the innocent to come to harm. Your first duty is to protect those who choose the bright way. Only after innocence is shielded from evil does an evildoer deserve a second chance.

The Raven Queen

Death represents not an end but a transition. It holds no fear for you beyond the concern that it would cause you to miss opportunities to serve the Raven Queen. While you draw breath, you seek to help others with death, whether by comforting a mourner or helping someone find his or her way beyond.

As a worshiper of the Raven Queen, pick powers that deal necrotic damage or elicit fear. Choose training in Insight, Intimidate, and Religion.

Avenger: There is little passion in your killing, and no pity. Death is the threshold all must cross to meet their final destiny. Of course, some deserve to make that crossing sooner than others. That's where you come in.

Cleric: Fear and pride—these are the enemies of great deeds. You take advantage of these traits in your foes, and you quell them in your allies. You guide your companions on the path to greatness, but you know that their stories will eventually end.

Invoker: There is winter in your soul, as if ice flows through your veins. You see death in the faces of your closest friends, and even babes in their mothers' arms seem but guttering candles in a limitless darkness. You bear a power older than the Raven Queen, yet she granted it to you as her hand in the world. You are honored to take that mantle upon your shoulders, but sometimes it weighs heavily.

Paladin: You do not fear your own death, but your friends are another matter. You see in their deeds the hand of fate, and it is your duty to protect them until their deaths serve providence. You don't know how it all ends, but when your soul goes to meet the Raven Queen, you will not regret how you served her.

Sehanine

The moon's glow, the crisp leaves of autumn, the magician's trick, the kiss between lovers—all are signs of Sehanine's favor. You know this because you can feel her smile in your soul when you see them. You roam the world seeking your destiny, taking such omens as signals to guide your shadowy way.

As a worshiper of Sehanine, pick powers that allow you to avoid notice or escape trouble. Choose training in Bluff, Perception, and Stealth.

Avenger: Your soul has always lurked in the shadows. Even in the center of a crowded room, you felt as though you watched from hiding. Only the moon saw you for who you are. Only Sehanine answered the call you could not utter. Now beneath her bright smile you serve as her hidden blade, and when she clasps your soul in her hand, you strike.

Cleric: Life is a prank the gods play upon souls, but at least you're in on the joke. Fate, life, death—those ideas mean little when it comes down to it. The truth is that each moment is what you make it, and for you there's nothing better than spending those moments with friends. They don't always see what you find so funny, but with a little help from you, they can laugh at death too.

Invoker: Some would call you a trickster, others would call you a thief or a cheat, but they'd have to catch you first, and even then you'd figure out how to slip free. You know that the secret to life is living it well, and you use others as unwitting pawns in ways that amuse you. Sehanine approves, of course. If she didn't, you know she'd steal back the gifts she has given—because you'd do the same in her place.

Paladin: You can't say for certain where the boundary between right and wrong lies, but as you travel the road of life, you make sure to keep between those ditches. Yet there's one thing you and Sehanine can't leave behind, one thing that's worth going off your course for: love. Whether it's for the passion between two or the camaraderie of many, you'll stand your ground. Right and wrong don't mean a thing when you raise your shield—or draw your sword—for love.

Divine Backgrounds

The background section in Chapter 3 of Player's Handbook 2 fleshes out the basics of character generation. It provides story hooks for a character's background and adds game benefits that reflect who you were before you became an adventurer.

Here are several backgrounds you can use or adapt to your divine character. After choosing your background elements, you can (with your DM's consent) select one of the following background benefits.

- Gain a +2 bonus to checks with a skill associated with your background.
- Add a skill associated with your background to your class's skills list before you choose your trained skills.
- Choose one language connected to your background. You can speak, read, and write that language fluently.
- If you are using a campaign setting that offers regional benefits (such as the Forgotten Realms® setting), gain a regional benefit.

Convert

You were a member of the clergy of a different deity, but something made you change your allegiance. What deity did you worship before? Was it an evil god or some false idol? Did some tragedy or miracle drive you to follow another god? Did you lose faith in your previous deity for some reason, or did you walk away from that life due to more worldly concerns? Did you meet someone who changed your mind? Do your old allies wish you well, or do they want you back?

Associated Skills: Insight, Religion

Disbeliever

In your early life, you never had much respect for gods, but something changed your mind. You still don't know if you can trust the gods you pray to, but you can't turn away from the powers they give. What happened in the past that made you wary of religion? What happened to provoke your return to worship? Are you a true believer now, or are you doing the god's work because of what you hope to gain?

Associated Skills: Bluff, Insight

Divinely Inspired

Following your divine path seems as natural to you as breathing air. You never heard the call to religion because it's always been in you. Even as a child, you heard voices others could not and saw signs no one else seemed to understand. Did you hide your connection to the divine, or did others know about it? Were you an outcast because of your odd behavior, or did the community look to you because of your gifts?

Associated Skills: Insight, Religion

Family Tradition

You come from a long family line with members devoted to religion. Does the tradition of worship in your family extend to everyone, or just certain members of the family? Are members of the family forced to adopt the tradition, or is the divine calling something happily shared by everyone? Has everyone worshiped the same deity? Are you breaking with tradition in some way?

Associated Skills: Diplomacy, History

Followed a Cult

You participated in a cult and worshiped a false god before you saw the true path. Did you follow a mortal demagogue, or was the cult dedicated to some magical creature or supernatural threat? Was the cult nefarious or simply misguided? How did you escape the cult and find your way? Does the cult still exist, or was it crushed or dispersed? Do you still secretly believe the cult's teachings, or do you hunger for revenge against those who lied to you?

Associated Skills: Stealth, Streetwise

Found Religion Among Others

You gained your appreciation of your deity in a culture not your own, and you worship in a manner unfamiliar to your own people. Did you come to worship among another race or in some foreign culture? Was the place where you gained your appreciation for the faith in a distant land or on some other plane? What are the ways that you worship that others might find strange?

Associated Skills: Diplomacy, a skill another race gains a bonus to

Heretic

You worship the same god or gods as others who share your choice, but you see those deities differently. You believe some legend in contradiction to common thought about your gods, or you practice rites in honor of your deity to which others object. What is it that you do or think that most people reject? Are you looking to make converts, or do you come from a heretical sect? Are you hunted by other faithful? Why did you take this difficult path when ordinary belief was open to you?

Associated Skills: History, Stealth

KYLE ANDERSON

Missionary Life

You or your parents struck out into the wilds to spread the word of your god. Did you travel all over, or stay in one place to preach to a particular group? Were you met with hospitality or hostility? How did you survive in your travels? Did you give up the work, or do you still seek converts? Do you count any converts in distant places as friends?

Associated Skills: Endurance, Nature

Out for Revenge

You follow your god not because you believe in what the god stands for, but because you and your deity have a common enemy. What individual, nation, or race do you desire vengeance against? What happened that made you so hell-bent on justice? How are other faithful likely to view your single-minded pursuit?

Associated Skills: Endurance, Intimidate

Penitent

You did something you're not proud of, a crime that still haunts your thoughts. What did you do? Were you a worshiper of your god when you committed the deed? Why is dedication to a deity the answer for you? Are those you wronged dead, or are they still looking for you? Did you really do something terrible, or do you just think you did?

Associated Skills: Stealth, Thievery

Touched by an Angel

You have encountered dangerous immortals for as long as you can remember, and a guardian angel taught you much of what you know about your god. What was the angel who watched over you like? Is the angel alive or dead? Why did the angel take an interest? What other immortals might interfere with your life?

Associated Skills: Arcana, Perception

Veteran of a Religious War

You fought hard for a divine cause but later turned away from that life. Why did you take up arms for your god? Is the war over, or are people still fighting it? Have you left that life behind, or do the feelings that brought you to battle for your religion still seethe within you?

Associated Skills: Athletics, Intimidate

Ward of the Temple

You grew up in a temple. You ran barefoot there and played games in the shadow of statues. Why were you left at the temple as an orphan or a ward? Are your parents still alive? Who took care of you, and is that person still alive? Where was the temple? Was more than one deity worshiped there? Did you have any rivals among the worshipers or the clergy?

Associated Skills: Heal, Religion

New Feats

Feats provide you with a powerful tool for describing your character's unique experiences, training, and natural knacks and talents. Two human clerics of Pelor might have similar ability scores and power selections, but if one chooses feats that reinforce healing powers and the other selects feats that give numerous options for Channel Divinity, they'll play differently at the table.

You must meet a feat's prerequisites, if any, to take the feat. If you ever lose a prerequisite for a feat, you can't use the feat until you meet the prerequisite again. A feat that has a class as a prerequisite is available only to members of that class, including characters who have joined the class through a class-specific multiclass feat.

Heroic Tier Feats

Feats in this section are available to characters of any level who meet the prerequisites.

Armor of Burning Wrath

Prerequisite: Invoker, Covenant of Wrath class feature

Benefit: Your armor of wrath power deals fire and radiant damage and gains the fire keyword. The target of your armor of wrath power takes a –1 penalty to saving throws until the end of your next turn.

Armor of Vengeance

Prerequisite: Avenger, Censure of Retribution class feature, oath of enmity power

Benefit: While you are adjacent to your oath of enmity target, you gain a +1 bonus to all defenses against all creatures other than that one.

Astral Enmity

Prerequisite: Deva, avenger, oath of enmity power

Benefit: If you use your memory of a thousand lifetimes racial power to increase an attack roll against your oath of enmity target, you deal extra damage equal to the bonus gained from the racial power.

Astral Preservation

Prerequisite: Deva, invoker, Covenant of Preservation class feature

Benefit: When you use your preserver's rebuke power, each ally within 2 squares of you gains a +1 bonus to all defenses against attacks made by bloodied creatures until the end of the encounter.

Avenging Allure

Prerequisite: Avenger, Censure of Unity class feature

Benefit: When you use your bond of censure power, add 2 to the number of squares you can pull the target.

Avenging Opportunist

Prerequisite: Human, avenger, oath of enmity power

Benefit: The first time in an encounter when you reduce your oath of enmity target to 0 hit points, you gain an extra move action that you must use before the end of your next turn.

Baleful Malediction

Prerequisite: Invoker, Covenant of Malediction class feature

Benefit: Whenever you use a divine encounter or daily attack power on your turn, each target hit by the power takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls against you until the start of your next turn.

Battle Healer

Prerequisite: Cleric, healing word power

Benefit: When you use your healing word, you regain hit points equal to your Strength modifier.

Blessed Scoundrel

Prerequisite: Halfling, any divine class

Benefit: When you use your second chance racial power and the enemy misses you with its attack, you can spend a healing surge.

Blessed Shifter

Prerequisite: Shifter, paladin

Benefit: When you use your longtooth shifting or razorclaw shifting racial power, you gain a bonus equal to your Wisdom modifier to melee damage rolls with divine powers until the end of your next turn.

Blessing of Avandra

Prerequisite: Halfling, cleric

Benefit: When you use your second chance racial power and the attack misses, one ally within 5 squares of you can spend a healing surge.

Blessing of Corellon

Prerequisite: Elf, cleric, healing word power

Benefit: When you use your elven accuracy racial power and the attack hits, one ally within 5 squares of you can spend a healing surge.

Breath of Life
Prerequisite: Dragonborn, cleric
Benefit: Your dragon breath racial power targets only enemies. Allies within the blast of your dragon breath gain temporary hit points equal to your Strength modifier.

Brilliant Darkfire
Prerequisite: Drow, any divine class
Benefit: When you hit a target with your darkfire racial power, the target gains vulnerability to radiant damage equal to your Charisma modifier until the end of your next turn.

Channel Might
Prerequisite: Paladin
Benefit: After you use a Channel Divinity power, you gain a +1 power bonus to your next melee attack roll made before the end of your next turn.

Clarity of Spirit
Prerequisite: Kalashtar, any divine class
Benefit: When you use your bastion of mental clarity racial power, you or one ally in the burst can spend a healing surge.

Closing Pledge
Prerequisite: Avenger, Censure of Pursuit class feature, oath of enmity power
Benefit: When you hit your oath of enmity target with a ranged attack, you can shift a number of squares equal to 1 + your Dexterity modifier as a free action, as long as you end that shift closer to the target.

Darkfire Vitality
Prerequisite: Drow, cleric
Benefit: When any ally hits an enemy that is under the effect of your darkfire racial power, that ally gains temporary hit points equal to your Charisma modifier.

Deadly Rebuke
Prerequisite: Invoker, Covenant of Preservation class feature
Benefit: When you use your preserver's rebuke power, add your Intelligence modifier to the damage roll of the attack that gains the bonus from the power.

Defensive Grace
Prerequisite: Cleric, healer's mercy power
Benefit: When you use your healer's mercy, you gain a power bonus equal to your Charisma modifier to all defenses until the end of your next turn.

Defensive Healing Word
Prerequisite: Cleric, healing word power
Benefit: When you use your healing word, the target also gains a power bonus to all defenses equal to your Charisma modifier against the next attack made against him or her.

Demonbane
Prerequisite: Any divine class
Benefit: When you use a divine power that normally targets undead, you can also target creatures of the elemental origin.

Demonbane Malediction
Prerequisite: Invoker, Covenant of Malediction class feature
Benefit: If you hit a creature of the elemental origin with your malefactor's doom power, that target also grants combat advantage to the next ally of yours who attacks it before the end of your next turn.

Devilbane
Prerequisite: Any divine class
Benefit: When you use a divine power that normally targets undead, you can also target creatures of the immortal origin.

Devoted Paladin
Prerequisite: Paladin, lay on hands power
Benefit: When you use your lay on hands on an ally, that ally regains additional hit points equal to your Charisma modifier.

When you select this feat, your number of healing surges increases by one.

Divine Approval
Prerequisite: Human, any divine class, Channel Divinity class feature
Benefit: When you use a Channel Divinity power, you can also make a saving throw as a free action.

Divine Assault
Prerequisite: Half-orc, paladin
Benefit: When you use your furious assault racial power, one ally within 5 squares of you gains a bonus equal to your Strength modifier to his or her melee damage rolls against the target until the start of your next turn.

Divine Distraction
Prerequisites: Avenger, Censure of Unity class feature, oath of enmity power
Benefit: When you are adjacent to your oath of enmity target, your allies gain a +1 bonus to damage rolls against that target.

The bonus increases to +2 at 11th level and +3 at 21st level.

Benefit: When you use a divine daily attack power on your turn, you can pull each ally within 5 squares of you 1 square instead of using the normal benefit of your Covenant Manifestation.

Preserving Concealment

Prerequisite: Gnome, invoker, Covenant of Preservation class feature

Benefit: When you use your preserver's rebuke power, you can also grant concealment to the ally who was hit by the triggering enemy. The concealment lasts until the end of your next turn.

Protector's Commitment

Prerequisite: Cha 15, paladin

Benefit: When you or your target is adjacent to a bloodied ally, you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls.

Psychic Retaliation

Prerequisite: Kalashtar, avenger, oath of enmity power

Benefit: When you use your bastion of mental clarity racial power, you can make the triggering enemy your new oath of enmity target as a free action.

Religious Dabbler

Prerequisite: Half-elf, any divine class

Benefit: Choose a 1st-level at-will attack power from a divine class other than your own. From now on, you can use either that power or the power you gained from your Dilettante racial trait as an encounter power (but you can't use both in the same encounter).

Shared Perseverance

Prerequisite: Human, cleric

Benefit: When you use a power that allows an ally to make a saving throw, the ally gains a +1 bonus to the saving throw.

Strength of Stone

Prerequisite: Goliath, paladin

Benefit: When you use your lay on hands or call of virtue power on an ally, the ally gains resistance to all damage equal to your Strength modifier until the end of your next turn.

Taunting Visage

Prerequisite: Changeling or doppelganger, avenger, oath of enmity power

Benefit: If you use your change shape racial power to assume the appearance of your oath of enmity target, you gain combat advantage against that creature until the end of your next turn.

Unleash the Beast

Prerequisite: Shifter, avenger, oath of enmity power

Benefit: If you are bloodied after your oath of enmity target hits you, you can use your longtooth shifting or razorclaw shifting racial power as an immediate reaction.

Versatile Channeler

Prerequisite: Any divine class, Channel Divinity class feature

Benefit: Choose a divine class other than your own and a Channel Divinity power available as a class feature for that class. Add that Channel Divinity power to your list of available Channel Divinity powers.

Vicious Darkfire

Prerequisite: Drow, avenger, oath of enmity power

Benefit: Whenever you hit your oath of enmity target with your darkfire racial power, it gains vulnerability to all damage equal to your Dexterity modifier until the start of your next turn.

Virtuous Recovery
Prerequisite: Paladin
Benefit: Whenever you spend a healing surge, you gain resistance to all damage equal to your Wisdom modifier until the start of your next turn.

Warforged Example
Prerequisite: Warforged, paladin
Benefit: When you use your warforged resolve racial power, each ally within 5 squares of you can make a saving throw against one effect that deals ongoing damage and that a save can end.

Warforged Faith
Prerequisite: Warforged, any divine class
Benefit: When you use your warforged resolve racial power, one ally adjacent to you gains temporary hit points equal to your Constitution modifier and can make a saving throw against an effect that deals ongoing damage and that a save can end.

Wrath of Ages Past
Prerequisite: Dwarf, invoker, Covenant of Wrath class feature
Benefit: When you use your armor of wrath power against an enemy larger than you, add your Wisdom modifier to the damage dealt by the power.

Wrath of the Mountain King
Prerequisite: Goliath, invoker, Covenant of Wrath class feature
Benefit: When you use your armor of wrath power, you can choose to knock the target prone after pushing it.

Avenging Surge
Prerequisite: 11th level, avenger, Censure of Unity class feature, oath of enmity power
Benefit: When an ally hits your oath of enmity target, you gain temporary hit points equal to 3 + 3 per ally adjacent to that target.

Censure's Grip
Prerequisite: 11th level, avenger, Censure of Pursuit class feature, oath of enmity power
Benefit: When you have combat advantage against your oath of enmity target and hit it with an avenger power, your target cannot shift away from you until the end of your next turn.

Clinging Radiance
Prerequisite: 11th level, any divine class
Benefit: When you hit a target with a divine attack power that has the radiant keyword, the target loses any concealment or total concealment it has and cannot gain concealment or total concealment until the end of your next turn.

Contagious Challenge

Prerequisite: 11th level, paladin, divine challenge power

Benefit: When you hit an enemy marked by your divine challenge, you also subject one enemy adjacent to the target to your divine sanction. This divine sanction lasts until the start of your next turn.

Darkfoe

Prerequisite: 11th level, any divine class, Channel Divinity class feature

Benefit: When you use a Channel Divinity power, you and each ally within 10 squares of you gain resistance to necrotic damage equal to 5 + your Wisdom modifier until the start of your next turn.

Devout Guidance

Prerequisite: 11th level, avenger, divine guidance power

Benefit: When you use your divine guidance, the target gains a +3 power bonus to the second attack roll.

Divine Cleansing

Prerequisite: 11th level, cleric, turn undead power

Benefit: When you deal damage to at least one undead enemy with your turn undead, each ally in the power's burst can make a saving throw.

Eager for Blood

Prerequisite: 11th level, avenger

Benefit: During the first round of combat, your avenger weapon attacks deal 1[W] extra damage.

Extended Healing

Prerequisite: 11th level, cleric, healing word power

Benefit: The burst of your healing word increases by 5.

Focused Wrath

Prerequisite: 11th level, invoker, Covenant of Wrath class feature

Benefit: When you use your armor of wrath power and the triggering enemy is the only enemy in the burst, you deal 1d6 extra damage with that power.

At 21st level, this extra damage increases to 2d6.

Footsteps of Doom

Prerequisite: 11th level, invoker, Covenant of Malediction class feature

Benefit: Each target of your malefactor's doom power gains vulnerable 5 to all damage from fear attacks until the end of your next turn.

Forceful Covenant

Prerequisite: 11th level, invoker, Covenant of Malediction class feature

Benefit: Add 1 square to the distance that your Covenant Manifestation allows you to push a target.

What Is an Exarch?

An exarch is the champion or agent of a god, demon lord, or other being of great power. There is no one path leading to the title of exarch; an exarch might be someone who has adopted an appropriate epic destiny, a legendary monster, an archangel, or a damned or exalted soul of great power. Almost any epic character might become an exarch, regardless of his or her choice of destiny. However, characters who take the Chosen, the Demigod, or the Saint epic destiny are naturally suited to becoming exarchs.

The number of exarchs a deity employs, and their exact nature, varies wildly from deity to deity. Most deities have one or two exarchs in their service; some have no exarchs at all, and a few such as Pelor or Moradin have significantly more. For example, Moradin is the leader of the shining host known as the Morndinsamman, which includes the exarchs Berronar, Clangeddin, Dugmaren, Dumathoin, Gorm, Haela, Marthammor, Sharindlar, and Vergadain. At the other extreme, Avandra has taken no exarch into her service in ages. She chooses to interact directly with her followers, and she guides her mortal servants to battle against her enemies—not out of any sort of personal cowardice, but because she believes in allowing mortals to solve their own problems.

Choosing to become an exarch is a matter of mutual agreement between character and patron. Sometimes the prospective exarch approaches the deity and offers service, and other times the deity appears to a character with promise and offers patronage. A Chosen or a Saint is generally expected to serve as an exarch; characters of other destinies are generally free to seek or refuse patronage as they wish, although gods are not above manipulating promising Demigods into entering their service.

An exarch gains no special powers above and beyond any offered by his or her epic destiny or nature. However, an exarch has access to his or her patron and is expected to give and receive counsel when in the presence of that deity. In addition, most deities check up on their exarchs from time to time. An exarch off on some mission or adventure in the mortal world might be contacted through a dream or a vision, visited by a messenger angel or a physical manifestation, or sometimes summoned back to the deity's dominion. Some deities manage their exarchs' affairs closely, and others leave exarchs to act at their own discretion. An exarch doesn't have any innate ability to signal for his or her deity's attention, but in practice most deities provide their exarchs with rituals, magic items, or special powers to commune when necessary.

Benefit: Whenever you reach a milestone, you gain one additional use of your ardent vow, call of virtue, or lay on hands for today.

Warding Covenant

Prerequisite: 11th level, invoker, Covenant of Preservation class feature

Benefit: When you use your Covenant Manifestation to slide an ally, no enemy can gain combat advantage against that ally until the end of your next turn.

Epic Tier Feats

The following feats are available only to characters of 21st level or higher.

Beatific Healer

Prerequisite: 21st level, cleric, trained in Heal

Benefit: When you use a divine healing power, add your Charisma modifier to the hit points the recipient regains.

Crusading Wrath

Prerequisite: 21st level, Str 21, Wis 15, paladin, divine strength power

Benefit: When you use your divine strength, the next enemy you attack before the end of your next turn is subject to your divine sanction until the end of the encounter.

While the target is subject to your divine sanction, add your Wisdom modifier to the damage it takes from the divine sanction.

Devastating Invocation

Prerequisite: 21st level, invoker

Benefit: When you score a critical hit with an invoker power, each enemy within 5 squares of the target of the critical hit takes damage equal to 5 + your Wisdom modifier. The damage type is the same as that dealt by the critical hit.

Divine Health

Prerequisite: 21st level, any divine class

Benefit: You gain resistance to poison equal to one-half your level + your Wisdom modifier.

You can't become infected by any disease of level 30 or lower.

Divine Mastery

Prerequisite: 21st level, any divine class

Benefit: When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you also regain the use of a divine encounter power you have used during this encounter.

Enmity Shared

Prerequisite: 21st level, avenger, oath of enmity power

Benefit: When you use your oath of enmity, the target grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn.

Epic Turning

Prerequisite: 21st level, cleric, turn undead power

Benefit: When you use your turn undead, the size of the burst increases by 2, and each target is pushed even on a miss.

Fist of Heaven

Prerequisite: 21st level, avenger, oath of enmity power

Benefit: Your oath of enmity target takes a –2 penalty to saving throws.

Glorious Channeler

Prerequisite: 21st level, any divine class, Channel Divinity class feature

Benefit: Twice per encounter, you can use a Channel Divinity power, but not the same power twice.

Great Malediction

Prerequisite: 21st level, invoker, Covenant of Malediction class feature

Benefit: When you use a divine encounter or daily attack power on your turn, you can push each target hit by the power 1 square (instead of applying the normal effect of your Covenant Manifestation).

Guiding Rebuke

Prerequisite: 21st level, invoker, Covenant of Preservation class feature

Benefit: When you use your preserver's rebuke power, one ally within 10 squares of you gains a bonus equal to your Intelligence modifier on his or her next attack roll against the triggering enemy.

Heavenly Torrent

Prerequisite: 21st level, avenger, oath of enmity power

Benefit: The first time you score a critical hit on your oath of enmity target during an encounter, each ally can make a second attack roll and use either result on the next attack he or she makes against that target before the start of your next turn.

Icon of Hope

Prerequisite: 21st level, any divine class

Benefit: Bloodied allies within 10 squares of you gain a +1 bonus to saving throws.

Icon of Purity

Prerequisite: 21st level, any divine class

Benefit: You gain resistance to necrotic damage equal to one-half your level + your Wisdom modifier.

Indiscriminate Wrath

Prerequisite: 21st level, invoker, Covenant of Wrath class feature

Benefit: When you use your armor of wrath power, you can target each enemy in the burst, rather than only the triggering enemy.

Invoker's Aura

Prerequisite: 21st level, invoker

Benefit: Until the end of your next turn, after you use a Channel Divinity power, any enemy within 2 squares of you that hits you or any enemy that ends its turn within 2 squares of you takes radiant damage equal to 5 + your Wisdom modifier. No enemy can take this damage more than once per turn.

Paladin's Truth

Prerequisite: 21st level, paladin

Benefit: When you attack a creature marked by you, you ignore that creature's resistances and immunities.

EPIC TIER FEATS

| Any Divine Class | Other Prerequisites | Benefit |
|---|---|---|

| Virtuous Company | Cha 21, Wis 15, divine mettle | Grant temporary hp to each ally who succeeds on a saving throw granted by divine mettle |

Pious Champion

Prerequisite: 21st level, paladin, call of virtue or lay on hands power

Benefit: When you use your call of virtue or lay on hands, you can target one or two creatures. If you target two creatures with lay on hands, you spend one healing surge and each target regains hit points as normal for the power.

Protecting Boon

Prerequisite: 21st level, Cha 21, Str 15, paladin, divine mettle power

Benefit: When you use your divine mettle, you can target each ally in the burst.

Punishing Radiance

Prerequisite: 21st level, any divine class

Benefit: Whenever you score a critical hit with a divine attack power that has the radiant keyword, the target and each enemy within 5 squares of it gain vulnerable 10 radiant (or its existing vulnerability to radiant damage increases by 10) until the end of your next turn.

Radiant Advantage
Prerequisite: 21st level, cleric
Benefit: When you deal radiant damage to an enemy, you and your allies gain combat advantage against it until the end of your next turn.

Reactive Healing
Prerequisite: 21st level, cleric, healing word power
Benefit: You can use your healing word as an immediate reaction, triggered when an ally within 5 squares of you drops to 0 hit points or fewer. You must target the triggering ally with the healing word.

Righteous Focus
Prerequisite: 21st level, avenger, Censure of Unity class feature, oath of enmity power
Benefit: While you are adjacent to your oath of enmity target, your allies gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls against it.

Shared Healing
Prerequisite: 21st level, cleric
Benefit: When you use a power that allows an ally to spend a healing surge, you can instead have that ally regain hit points as if he or she had spent a healing surge, and you or another willing ally within 5 squares of you spends the healing surge instead.

Supreme Healer
Prerequisite: 21st level, cleric, healing word power
Benefit: When you use your healing word, you can heal two targets instead of one (either two allies or one ally and yourself).

Rites for the Deities
The people of the world and planes worship the deities in different ways. Some common practices are almost universal from culture to culture.

- When you are proven wrong, write down two copies of the truth you discover, keeping one and taking the other to a shrine to Ioun.
- After you take fruit, herbs, or wood from a forest, trace a star in the soil so Corellon's magic can replace what you've taken.
- Swear by Bahamut when you make an oath to bring someone to justice.
- When you agree to an alliance or a business arrangement, interlock your fingers like the teeth of two gears—forming the symbol of Erathis.
- Etch Avandra's symbol on a path to indicate a safe course or on a building to show it is a safe house.
- Shout at the heavens during a storm to prove your bravery to Kord.
- Wear golden jewelry during the day and silver at night, to please both Pelor and Sehanine.
- Inter a raven's feather with a corpse to keep undeath from claiming the body.

Tireless Wrath
Prerequisite: 21st level, Str 21, Cha 15, paladin, divine strength power
Benefit: When you use your divine strength, the effect applies to all attacks you make until the end of your next turn.

Unbearable Malediction
Prerequisite: 21st level, invoker, Covenant of Malediction class feature
Benefit: Whenever your maledictor's doom power allows you to push a target, you can add one-half your Intelligence modifier to the number of squares pushed.

Vengeance Recalled
Prerequisite: 21st level, avenger, oath of enmity power
Benefit: When you miss with an avenger power against your oath of enmity target, you gain a +5 bonus to damage rolls against that target until the end of your next turn.

Virtuous Company
Prerequisite: 21st level, Cha 21, Wis 15, paladin, divine mettle power
Benefit: When you use your divine mettle, you gain temporary hit points equal to your Charisma modifier for each ally who succeeds on a saving throw granted by this power.

Multiclass Feats
Some of these feats have paragon multiclassing in a particular class as a prerequisite. To qualify for such a feat, you must have chosen paragon multiclassing (Player's Handbook, page 209).

Divine Channeler [Multiclass]

Prerequisite: Wis 13, trained in Religion

Benefit: Choose a divine class other than your own and a Channel Divinity power available as a class feature for that class.

If you don't already have the Channel Divinity class feature, you can use the selected Channel Divinity power once per day.

If you already have the Channel Divinity class feature, add the selected Channel Divinity power to your list of available Channel Divinity powers.

You are treated as having the Channel Divinity class feature for the purpose of meeting prerequisites. If you gain additional Channel Divinity powers by selecting divinity feats, you can use them in place of the power granted by this feat, but that doesn't change your normal limit on uses of Channel Divinity.

Special: This feat counts as a class-specific multiclass feat for the chosen class.

Divine Healer [Multiclass Cleric]

Prerequisite: Wis 15

Benefit: You gain training in the Heal skill.

You gain the cleric's Healer's Lore class feature.

In addition, you can wield cleric implements.

Divine Secretkeeper [Multiclass Invoker]

Prerequisite: Wis 13, Int 13

Benefit: You gain training in the Arcana skill, the History skill, or the Religion skill.

You gain the invoker's Ritual Casting class feature.

In addition, you can wield invoker implements.

Hero of Faith [Multiclass Avenger]

Prerequisite: Wis 15

Benefit: You gain training in one skill from the avenger's class skills list.

Once per encounter, you can use the oath of enmity power. You do not regain the use of the power if the target drops to 0 hit points.

In addition, you can wield avenger implements.

Soldier of Virtue [Multiclass Paladin]

Prerequisite: Wis 15

Benefit: You gain training in one skill from the paladin's class skills list.

Once per day, you can use the virtue's touch power.

In addition, you can wield paladin implements.

EPIC DESTINIES

Many epic-level divine characters can anticipate exaltation or damnation after death; as powerful stewards of divine causes in the mortal world, they are naturally among the favorites of the gods. The following epic destinies offer paths that transition the divine hero from the mortal world to the dominions beyond.

AVATAR OF DEATH

You know that life is fleeting, but death is forever. Your enemies would be well advised to remember that as they face you.

Prerequisite: 21st level, Death Knell feat

You are the mortal incarnation of a deity who holds sway over death. You are not simply Jozan the cleric; you are the Raven Queen, who for a time incarnates in the form of Jozan. Your body is a mere shell, a temporary vessel for the unthinkable might of a deity's soul. You were born to be the Raven Queen's mortal form, and as you grow in understanding and power, the light (or darkness) within you shines out for all to see. You might not have realized your true nature before, but now you know exactly what you are.

As an avatar of death, you incarnate the death aspect of your deity. Most likely this is the Raven Queen, but on rare occasions avatars of dead, dormant, or interloper gods arise—you might be an avatar of the dead god Nerull, or some other death deity contesting the Raven Queen's sway.

Good and evil are just words to you, for death makes all causes meaningless. You stare into the vacant sockets of long-dead kings, gaze across the soul-filled plains of the Shadowfell, and stand upon blood-soaked fields of battle. Through it all, you feel no sorrow, no remorse—only a grim sense of bemusement at mortal foolishness in the face of the inevitable. Adventuring is an amusing way to entertain yourself before life comes to an end.

AVATARS HAVE MANY USES

Gods create avatars for many reasons. Some deities want to experience mortality and learn from mortal trials. Some use their avatars as agents and champions to battle their enemies in the world. Others send avatars as teachers and exemplars to their followers. Likewise, different gods might choose to incarnate their avatars in secret or to prophesy their arrival, to incarnate with full awareness of their true nature or to allow their mortal vessels to live well into life before becoming aware of themselves.

WILLIAM O'CONNOR

IMMORTALITY

You care little about the fate of your mortal shell, for you know that in time you will rejoin with your true self. After all, even gods must die in time. One or two previous incarnations have turned against the Raven Queen in ages past, using their powers to prolong their mortal existences. Whether you meet your fate with joy, resignation, or defiance is up to you.

Divine Reunion: When you complete your final quest, the purpose of your current incarnation is accomplished. The winds of oblivion sweep your body into nothingness, freeing your soul to return to its divine origin. You rejoin the deity whose incarnation you were, and you resume your existence in the eternal.

AVATAR OF DEATH FEATURES

Foresight of Mortality (21st level): Your Intelligence score and your Wisdom score both increase by 2.

Death Comes to All (21st level): Your powers ignore necrotic resistance up to 20.

Deadly Revival (24th level): The first time each day you begin your turn dying or dead, you revive. You regain hit points equal to your bloodied value, and each enemy within 10 squares of you gains vulnerable 15 necrotic until the end of your next turn.

Harbinger of Demise (30th level): Enemies that end their turn adjacent to you and have 25 hit points or fewer die.

AVATAR OF DEATH POWER

Inevitable Death — Avatar of Death Utility 26

Dark energy swirls about you and then explodes in a burst that encircles your enemies, causing their wounds to remain open.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: Each enemy in burst
Effect: The target gains vulnerable 10 to all damage and cannot regain hit points from healing powers or regeneration (save ends both).

Avatar of Freedom

Prerequisite: 21st level, Path of Freedom feat

You are the incarnation of a deity of freedom and liberation. Every word you speak, every action you take, is in exact accordance with your deity's will—because your choices are your deity's choices. In time you will abandon your mortal form and rejoin your eternal essence in the heavenly dominions, but until that time comes you are a champion, teacher, and example for all whom you and your deity hold dear.

As an avatar of freedom, you incarnate your deity's aspects of liberation. You might be Avandra or Melora in mortal form.

Regardless of your divine identity, you believe that the natural state of mortalkind is one free from oppression. You fight any force that seeks the enslavement of others and stand against deities bent on war and domination, such as Asmodeus and Bane. You believe that freedom of choice is the paramount freedom of all mortal creatures, and that destiny is not predetermined. You inspire the downtrodden with words of freedom, and you lead them in attempts to overthrow their vile masters.

Immortality

As your life's tribulations come to a close and your Destiny Quest comes to an end, you are ready to free yourself of the shackles of mortality and physicality. Great struggles await you throughout the cosmos, and immortality represents an opportunity to continue your fight against the oppressive forces in the universe. As long as tyranny flourishes anywhere, freedom everywhere is threatened.

Divine Reunion: At the conclusion of your Destiny Quest, you abandon your current incarnation. Amid golden light and peals of thunder, your soul ascends to the heavenly dominions to rejoin your deity. You are once again Avandra, Melora, or a cosmic spirit of revolution—but you still recall your mortal persona. For ages to come the memories of your experiences and companions in your mortal existence influence your divine thoughts and actions.

Avatar of Freedom Features

Freedom of Mind and Body (21st level): Your Dexterity score and your Wisdom score both increase by 2.

Liberate the Mind (21st level): Allies adjacent to you gain a +2 bonus to saving throws against being dominated, immobilized, restrained, or slowed.

Liberating Revival (24th level): The first time each day you begin your turn dying or dead, you revive. You regain hit points equal to your bloodied value, and each ally within 10 squares of you ends any immobilizing, slowing, or restraining effect currently affecting him or her.

Agent of Freedom (30th level): You cannot be dominated, immobilized, slowed, restrained, or petrified. You ignore difficult terrain, and you can shift your speed as a move action.

Avatar of Freedom Power

Broken Chains Avatar of Freedom Utility 26

Raising your weapon or implement high, you issue a proclamation that you shall not abide oppression. Your allies respond by shaking off their afflictions.

Daily ✦ Divine, Stance
Minor Action Personal

Effect: Until the stance ends, when an ally starts his or her turn within 5 squares of you, that ally can make a saving throw against each effect on him or her that a save can end.

MATIAS TAPIA

Avatar of Hope

You steadfastly believe that hope lifts up everyone even in the darkest times. By word and deed, you spread hope wherever you go.

Prerequisite: 21st level, Hope Remains feat

As an avatar of hope, you are an aspect of a god of hope who has chosen to incarnate himself or herself in a mortal body for a time. You now know that you are both your deity and your own mortal shell at the same time. When you speak, when you act, your god speaks and acts through you. No matter what your name, you are a beacon of hope in a dark world.

Sorrow cannot abide your presence; you bring optimism and virtue to places of despair and sadness. You are an enemy of all the gods of evil, for they are destroyers of hope. You hold particular vehemence toward devils and demons—devils for their malicious practices, and demons for their recklessly destructive intentions. It's true that you've seen some terrible sights during your travels—murder, cruelty, slavery, war—but these horrors only fortify your determination. By your power, the points of light that lie within a sea of darkness burn a little brighter for a time.

Immortality

You have fought battles against despair all your life, bringing light to the darkest corners of the world. Your experience has taught you that people need only a little inspiration to find hope, so you have set yourself the task of providing an example, a legend, that will inspire people for ages to come.

Divine Reunion: When you complete your Destiny Quest, your soul bursts forth in a golden flame that consumes your mortal form, and you are reunited with your immortal self.

Avatar of Hope Features

Undaunted Will (21st level): Your Wisdom score and your Charisma score both increase by 2.

Creating Avatars

Most deities have incarnated only a handful of avatars throughout the ages of the world, although some have never done so, and a few (for example, Moradin and Avandra) incarnate in every generation of mortalkind. Creating an avatar weakens a god for a time and can render it vulnerable to its enemies. Being in two places at once is difficult, even for a god. In the past, powerful devils or wicked mortals have managed to trap, coerce, or corrupt gods through their avatars. However, doing this is difficult in the extreme, since the deity can end its incarnation at any time and rejoin its true being.

WAYNE REYNOLDS

Indomitable Courage (21st level): You are immune to fear effects. In addition, you and any allies within 5 squares of you gain a +1 bonus to saving throws.

Hopeful Revival (24th level): The first time each day you begin your turn dying or dead, you revive. You regain hit points equal to your bloodied value, and each ally within 10 squares of you gains 20 temporary hit points.

Triumph of the Heart (30th level): Once per day, you can change the result of a single d20 roll made by an ally to 20. This requires no action on your part, but you must be conscious to do so.

Avatar of Hope Power

Elevate the Spirit Avatar of Hope Utility 26

You conjure an angelic entity that infuses one of your allies' with hope and the mental fortitude to withstand attempts at control.

Daily ✦ Conjuration, Divine
Minor Action Ranged 10

Effect: You conjure an angelic figure in a square within range. The figure lasts until the end of your next turn. While the figure is in an ally's space, that ally gains a +4 power bonus to all defenses and can't be dominated. If an ally is affected by a dominating effect that a save can end while the figure is in his or her space, that effect immediately ends. As a move action, you can move the figure 5 squares.

Sustain Minor: The figure persists.

Avatar of Justice

Your sole purpose is to balance the scales of justice, punishing the wicked and rewarding the good.

Prerequisite: 21st level, Immediate Justice feat

You are a god of justice incarnated in mortal form. All your life you have fought for justice, but now you know yourself for what you are. Your self-awareness merges with divine truth, and your consciousness becomes one with the concept of justice. In years to come, people will remember that you were your deity in the flesh, a shining champion who battled against wrong and a golden example of a righteous and courageous life well lived, but for now it is up to you to forge that legend.

In your true self you might be Bahamut, some other active deity, or even a dead deity such as Amoth—avatars of dormant deities, interloper gods, or cosmic principles sometimes appear in the world. Regardless of which deity you are the incarnation of, you grasp your destiny as a great lawgiver and a force for righteousness. As you take the guise of justice itself, divine knowledge guides you along the right course.

Immortality

Your path might involve the elimination of a major source of injustice, such as an evil deity. The evil gods and their worshipers scoff at justice, reveling in cruelty, theft, and murder. Destroying one of these deities brings the scales of justice closer to balance.

Divine Reunion: During your Destiny Quest, you begin to change. You no longer make decisions—you merely do the will of justice. When your final foe is vanquished, you abandon your mortal body, which falls to silvery dust and blows away in the wind. Your soul finds its way back to your eternal being and reunites, bringing with it all the joys, the sorrows, the wisdom, and the compassion you have learned in your mortal years. Your mortal existence might be done—but as a god of justice you well remember the lessons you learned during your time in the world, and temper your judgments with memories of your mortal experience.

Avatar of Justice Features

Justice's Mind (21st level): Your Intelligence score and your Wisdom score both increase by 2.

Just Consequence (21st level): When an enemy hits you or an ally adjacent to you, the next ally who attacks that enemy before the end of your next turn gains a +1 bonus to the attack roll.

Just Revival (24th level): The first time each day you begin your turn dying or dead, you revive. You regain hit points equal to your bloodied value. Each ally within 10 squares of you gains a +2 power bonus to attack rolls until the end of your next turn, and each enemy within 10 squares of you takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Instant Retribution (30th level): Each time an enemy within 5 squares of you scores a critical hit against you or one of your allies, the enemy takes damage equal to the damage it dealt with the hit.

Avatar of Justice Power

Word of Undoing — Avatar of Justice Utility 26

You deem an attack unjust, and reverse its effects.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing
Immediate Reaction Ranged 10
Trigger: An ally within 10 squares of you is hit by an attack
Target: The triggering ally
Effect: The target takes no damage from the triggering attack and gains hit points equal to the damage he or she would have taken.

Trappings of Justice

You might choose to use symbols that represent justice as your insignia. Here are some of the most common symbols used by avatars of justice:

- ✦ Balance scales
- ✦ Flames (especially silver or white)
- ✦ Double-edged weapons (such as swords or battleaxes)
- ✦ Closed eyes or a blindfold

AMELIA STONER

Avatar of Life

Despite war, chaos, and hate, life endures, and you will ensure that it never falters.

Prerequisite: 21st level, Pulse of Life feat

You are the incarnation of a god, mortal and immortal beings united in the same flesh. You exist for the purpose of battling your true godly self's foes in the mortal world, of providing inspiration and hope to all who worship your divine being, and just possibly to learn a few things about what it means to walk in the world you helped to shape at the dawn of time. At the same time, you are also the mortal persona you have been throughout your current life, and you are destined to become part of the god you have served so well.

Avatars represent many different aspects of the gods, but you specifically embody the vital principle, the animating spirit of your deity. All life is sacred to you, and you are its divine protector. Your time as an adventurer has taught you how precarious life can be, whether it is the life of a butterfly struggling to escape its cocoon or a civilization living on the edge of lands inhabited by orcs and goblins. You hate taking life, but you recognize that it is the nature of the world that you must sometimes kill or be killed.

Immortality

As an avatar of life, you might be blessed with incredible longevity. Your calling could draw you to retire to a monastery or a temple to live in obscurity, protecting a small community from harm. You might be fated to heal some great sickness in the world, battling a magical plague or putting an end to some corruption or mockery of life that threatens the natural order. Or you might be compelled to venture across the planes, bringing an example of hope and healing wherever you go.

Divine Reunion: After you have completed your Destiny Quest and lived out the years appointed to you, you are called back to your true self. Lying down in a fair green meadow or forest clearing, you allow your body to crumble into dust, nourishing flowering vines and creepers. Your soul returns to your divine self, recalling the awesome power and understanding that comes with godhood. But some part of your mortal being still survives, since your memories, your cares, and your journeys are now your deity's too.

Avatar of Life Features

Life's Wisdom (21st level): Your Constitution score and your Wisdom score both increase by 2.

Unfettered Durability (21st level): When you roll a 20 on a saving throw, each ally within your line of sight can make a saving throw against one effect that a save can end.

RALPH BEISNER

Vital Revival (24th level): The first time each day you begin your turn dying or dead, you revive. You regain hit points equal to your bloodied value, and each ally within 10 squares of you can spend a healing surge.

Persistence of Life (30th level): You and any allies within 5 squares of you can use second wind as a minor action. If a character can already use second wind as a minor action, then the character can use it as a free action. When you or an ally within 5 squares of you uses second wind, twice the normal number of hit points are restored.

Avatar of Life Power

Font of Life — Avatar of Life Utility 26

Forming a circle with your fingers, you bring forth a sphere of divine energy that helps you and your allies continuously recover from wounds.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing
Minor Action Close burst 2
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Each target gains regeneration equal to 5 + your Wisdom modifier until the end of the encounter.

Avatar of Storm

You ride the force of nature's fury, bringing wind and thunder and lightning with you. Where you go, the tempest goes.

Prerequisite: 21st level, Storm Sacrifice feat

You are two beings at the same time: a great mortal hero and the god of storms. You have always known you were different from the people around you, but now you understand what you are and why your heart sings when lightning flashes and thunder rolls in the distance. You are destined to walk the world in mortal form for a single brief lifetime, an inspiration to those who worship your true self and a terrible foe to those who oppose you. And after your incarnation ends and you reunite with your immortal being, people will look back on your deeds for centuries to come and see in them the hand of the divine.

As an avatar of storm, you are most likely an incarnation of Kord. However, minor storm deities or dormant powers sometimes incarnate as avatars, so you might be the mortal vessel of some other deity, or even a cosmic principle of storms and destruction.

Thunder and lightning are your weapons, and you wield them with all the fury and wrath of the most violent storm. Wherever you go, storms follow in your wake. You command them and use their power to bring your vengeance upon your enemies.

KIERAN YANNER

Immortality

Longevity is rarely important to an avatar of storm. You recognize that life and civilization are fleeting things in this world, and that enough wind and rain can wash away the existence of anything. You might wander into the wilderness to live in isolation or to revel in your communion with the primal forces of the universe. You might even challenge the Elemental Chaos, battling primordials for dominion over storms.

Divine Reunion: When you accomplish your final quest, your mortal existence comes to an end and you return to your divine form. Your body vanishes in a blinding thunderstroke, leaping upward into the dark storm clouds that gather overhead. Your ascension is marked by a thunderstorm of spectacular power. While your mortal life is at an end, your memories, your passions, and your struggles are all now part of your divine being.

Avatar of Storm Features

Strength of the Storm (21st level): Your Constitution score and your Strength score both increase by 2.

Stormhand (21st level): When you use a lightning or a thunder power, you can choose to turn its lightning damage or thunder damage into lightning and thunder damage (if you do so, the power gains the keyword of the second damage type if the power didn't already have it).

Thundering Revival (24th level): The first time each day you begin your turn dying or dead, you revive. You regain hit points equal to your bloodied value, and each enemy within 5 squares of you takes 2d10 + Constitution modifier thunder damage and is pushed 2 squares.

Windstrider (30th level): You gain a fly speed equal to your speed + 2, and you can hover.

Avatar of Storm Power

Gather the Storm Avatar of Storm Utility 26

You stand at the heart of the storm, surrounded by rumbling thunder and crackling lightning that leaves nearby foes vulnerable.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal

Effect: Until the end of the encounter, any enemy that ends its turn within 5 squares of you gains vulnerable 10 thunder and vulnerable 10 lightning until the end of your next turn.

Avatar of War

You know that peace cannot endure, and when it fails, you will be there to take over.

Prerequisite: 21st level, Path of War feat

Battle calls you, for you are the god of war. For a mortal lifetime you are incarnated in humanoid shape, sharing the existence and consciousness of a mortal hero. When you speak, you speak for your true divine self. When you act, you act as your godly essence directs. You exist to champion causes worth fighting for, to provide the people of the world with a shining example of valor and skill, and to teach people how to survive in a world filled with darkness and strife.

As an avatar of war, you are probably the incarnation of Bahamut, Kord, Bane, or possibly a dead war deity such as Tuern. However, war is a cosmic force that seems to have its own guiding consciousness, and you might in fact be the incarnation of the principle of war, or an eternal hero reborn to fight in every conflict spawned upon the mortal world.

Life as an adventurer has opened your eyes to the fact that strife and evil are ubiquitous. You have journeyed through many lands, both civilized and wild, and the only constant is the fragility of peace. Others work hard to stop war, but you believe it is the natural state of the world. You recognize that conflict is everywhere, and you embrace it. The machinations of usurpers, tyrants, and warlords will always drive civilization toward violence and destruction—but sometimes it is exactly this destructive force that gives rise to the most powerful and enduring of civilizations.

Immortality

The route to immortality is fraught with danger for an avatar of war. Due to a thirst for conflict, an avatar of war engages in many mortal contests. History tells the tale of several avatars of war cut down in epic battles—it could be that your fate is to forge a legend of a hero who only succeeded in dying well. The ultimate challenge lies in giving battle to the gods and primordials. Whether you hope to usurp power from Bane and conquer his home plane of Chernoggar or to rain destruction down upon surviving primordials, you carry in your ambition a war the likes of which hasn't been seen in a thousand years.

Divine Reunion: When your final quest is accomplished and your last foe lies vanquished at your feet, your mortal incarnation ends. Your body falls into gray dust and blows away to the sounds of ravens croaking and tattered banners flapping in the cold wind. Your soul ascends to the astral dominions to rejoin your divine being, bringing with it a lifetime of memories: battles won, battles lost, deeds of courage, acts of cowardice.

Avatar of War Features

Power in Conflict (21st level): Your Strength score and either your Intelligence score or your Charisma score increase by 2.

Master of the Battlefield (21st level): You never grant combat advantage.

Invoker of War (24th level): Your Channel Divinity power path of war grants a +4 bonus to damage rolls in addition to a +2 bonus to attack rolls.

Lord of War (30th level): Your first attack of each encounter that hits deals 25 extra damage.

Avatar of War Power

Rouse Conflict Avatar of War Utility 26

You raise your weapon or implement and let out a rousing war-cry, invoking your powers of battle. Your shout and divine power stirs allies into action against nearby foes.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 10
Target: Each ally in burst
Effect: The target can make an at-will attack as a free action. If the target has an unused divine encounter attack power, he or she can instead use that power as a free action.

WAYNE REYNOLDS

Chosen

Your deity makes you the living vessel of his or her power in the mortal world.

Prerequisite: 21st level, any divine class

Your deity selects you to serve as his or her agent in the mortal world. You watch over your deity's worshipers, protect sacred sites, and work to oppose your deity's foes. To prepare you for this task, your deity bestows upon you a spark of divine energy that grants you powers comparable to those of a demigod. As with the Demigod epic destiny detailed in the Player's Handbook, this divine spark increases your abilities and bestows great physical resilience. However, your epic destiny utility power is unique to the deity you serve.

Unlike a Demigod, you are sworn to the service of a particular deity. Some deities might leave you to pursue causes dear to them as you see fit, trusting in the good judgment you have demonstrated in your adventuring career. Other deities might task you with missions of importance to them, making sure that you keep their concerns foremost in your mind.

Not all deities have the power or the inclination to elevate a Chosen. Some deities can elevate several Chosen at once, but most have only a single Chosen at any given time. Deities most often bestow this honor on the most faithful of their worshipers, but a few gods take pleasure in selecting undeserving or fickle mortals for their earthly agents.

Immortality

Chosen often live for centuries. However, as you grow more powerful, the divine fire placed in your soul inevitably transfigures your mortal body. When no vestige of your mortal nature remains, it is time for you to join your deity in the astral dominions and champion his or her causes there. In your place, another deserving mortal can be raised up.

Chosen Features

Chosen have the same features as the Demigod epic destiny.

Divine Spark (21st level): Two ability scores of your choice both increase by 2.

Divine Recovery (24th level): The first time you are reduced to 0 hit points or fewer each day, you regain hit points equal to half your maximum hit points.

Divine Miracle (30th level): When you have expended your last remaining encounter power, you regain the use of one encounter power of your choice. In this way, you never run out of encounter powers.

Chosen Powers

Each Chosen has a specific level 26 utility power granted by his or her deity. The powers associated with gods who are either good, lawful good, or unaligned are described below.

Freedom Is Life — Chosen of Avandra Utility 26

Ribbons of glowing symbols flow out of you, linking you and your allies in a river of celestial light.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you and any allies within 20 squares of you gain a +10 bonus to saving throws.

Sheltering Wings — Chosen of Bahamut Utility 26

It is no shame to take refuge beneath the Platinum Dragon's wings.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing
Minor Action Melee 1
Effect: You regain hit points equal to your bloodied value. One ally adjacent to you also regains hit points equal to your bloodied value.

High Arcana — Chosen of Corellon Utility 26

Corellon's mastery of the arcane allows you to choose between empowerment or defense for you and your allies.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 10
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, at the start of each target's turn, the target can choose to gain either a +2 power bonus to implement attack rolls or a +4 bonus to Fortitude, Reflex, and Will until the start of his or her next turn.

Anthem of Progress — Chosen of Erathis Utility 26

Erathis's grim efficiency inspires your comrades to their necessary work.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Close burst 10
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, each target can score a critical hit with any at-will attack on a roll of 16-20.

Divine Allies Bring Divine Enemies

As you might expect, your deity's enemies are yours as well. You, however, are a much more accessible target. Because very few beings can seriously entertain the idea of challenging Pelor, for instance, destroying the Chosen of Pelor is a more realistic and attainable goal. Most deities don't directly attack each other's Chosen, but they are certainly capable of instructing their own Chosen or lesser servants to do so in their stead.

Unerring Foreknowledge Chosen of Ioun Utility 26

Hints of action and intention spread like gossamer trails that only you and your friends can perceive. Follow the trails and pierce the veils of time.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Ranged 10
Target: One ally
Effect: The target can take an extra standard action on his or her next turn.
Sustain Minor: Choose a different ally within range. That ally can take an extra standard action on his or her next turn. You cannot choose an ally as a target of this power more than once during an encounter.

Test of Strength Chosen of Kord Utility 26

Strong? Worthy? Kord will judge.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Melee 1
Target: You and one enemy
Effect: The targets simultaneously hit each other with melee basic attacks as free actions. If your attack deals more damage than the enemy's, you can take a standard action as a free action. Any attack roll you make with this standard action has a +4 power bonus.

Wild Surge Chosen of Melora Utility 26

Wild Melora blesses those who can kill for themselves.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you and any ally within 5 squares of you can score a critical hit with any daily attack power on a roll of 18-20.

Forge of Creation Chosen of Moradin Utility 26

The fervor of Moradin's ancient workshops of creation inspires you and your allies as you hammer upon your foes.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you and any of your allies who hit with at least one attack regain their second wind if they have already used it during this encounter, regain one healing surge, and gain the use of another daily magic item power.

Celestial Balance Chosen of Pelor Utility 26

Against the mightiest enemies, there is one hope: Pelor endures.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing
Immediate Interrupt Close burst 10
Trigger: A creature within 10 squares of you spends an action point
Target: You or one ally in burst
Effect: The target can spend a healing surge and gains a +1 bonus to all defenses until the end of the encounter.

WILLIAM O'CONNOR

Death Is Nigh Chosen of the Raven Queen Utility 26

The shadow of the queen's wing falls over your fight.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal
Requirement: You or one of your allies must have failed a death saving throw during this encounter.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you and your allies gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls.

Horns of the Moon Chosen of Sehanine Utility 26

The goddess blesses and curses, sometimes in the same breath.

Daily ✦ Divine
Minor Action Personal
Effect: At the start of each of your turns until the end of the encounter, as a free action you choose one ally and one enemy within your line of sight. The ally you choose gains a +2 bonus to attack rolls until the start of your next turn. The enemy you choose takes a -2 penalty to all defenses until the start of your next turn.

Exalted Angel

Your wisdom, courage, and devotion have earned you an honor granted to only a handful of mortals across all the ages of the world—you are transformed into an angel.

Prerequisites: 21st level, any divine class

By the favor of the gods, you transcend mortality and join the angelic hosts. Your mortal flesh and blood are transformed into immortal substance; even though you still have your mortal appearance, your spirit shines inside your perfected body like a blazing fire in a crystal vessel. As an angel, you no longer age, and all the infirmities of mortality fall away. In time you learn to assume more and more of the appearance and powers of angels.

You are closely bound to the god who raised you up. You can continue to pursue the quests and goals of your mortal life, but from time to time your deity summons you to specific missions or dispatches you on important errands, and you are expected to answer any such call. Because you were once mortal, you can resume your mortal appearance whenever you wish, hiding your immortal nature. This attribute makes you a valuable servant, since you can go where other angels cannot; exalted angels often serve as spies or advise mortals on important matters without ever revealing their true nature.

CONCEPT ART HOUSE LLC

Immortality

Even saints and other elevated souls know the bitterness of death, but you are spared that fate. From the moment of your ascension, you are immortal. For a time you walk the world, an agent of whatever cause your deity holds dear. But eventually you are called away to serve your patron in the astral dominions, leaving the affairs of your mortal life behind.

Exalted Angel Features

Angelic Nature (21st level): Your origin changes to immortal, and you cease to age. You gain the ability to speak Supernal, resist 15 fire, and resist 15 radiant. You are immune to fear attacks.

You gain a pair of angelic wings, which you can manifest or conceal as a minor action. While your wings are manifested, you can fly at a speed equal to your speed + 2, but you land at the end of your turn. If your turn ends while you are still flying, you swiftly descend and land without taking falling damage. While your wings are concealed, your angelic nature is hidden, and you resemble the mortal you once were.

If you already have wings from some other source (such as the favored soul paragon path; see page 23), these angelic wings take the place of the wings you previously gained.

Reborn in Light (24th level): Once per day, when you die, your body disappears in a flash of radiance. Each enemy within 10 squares of you takes 2d10 + Wisdom modifier radiant damage and is blinded (save ends). You reappear in a column of light at the end of the encounter at full hit points with all harmful effects ended.

Angelic Form (30th level): Attacks against you take a –2 penalty as long as you are not bloodied. Also, while your angelic wings are manifested, you can hover. (You no longer need to land at the end of your turn.)

Exalted Angel Power

Angelic Hosts Exalted Angel Utility 26

You fly a short distance, while a host of minor angels appear to bear your comrades out of peril.

Encounter ✦ Divine
Move Action Close burst 10
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Each target gains a +2 power bonus to all defenses until the end of your next turn. In addition, you fly your speed + 2 and land, and as a free action, targeted allies can fly 8 squares and land, without provoking opportunity attacks.

Saint

You are the perfected mortal servant of a god, a shining example of all your deity holds dear.

Prerequisite: 21st level, any divine class

In recognition of your faith, holiness, courage, and piety, you are elevated to sainthood. From the day you embark on this path, you can claim the title of Saint. Through dreams, omens, or angelic visitations, your deity makes your sainthood known to followers around the world. Those who share your faith hold you in the highest regard, while the enemies of your god naturally view you as the most terrible of foes. You might be a great crusader, a mighty prophet, or a revered sage. You set a sterling example of your deity's values and guidance.

Immortality

In the mortal world, you have only the years allotted by nature and fate. You could live to great old age, or you might die young as a hero or a martyr. When at last death draws near, you meet your end with joy—for now you go to the presence of the deity you have served so long and well. Your mortal body remains uncorrupted, and seems to be merely asleep; even the most gruesome wounds slowly vanish, leaving your body an imperishable symbol of divine grace.

Your immortality lies beyond this world, where you will stand among the highest of the elevated souls granted life after life in the divine dominions. In the dominion of your deity, you have a new, immortal body. You join his or her celestial court as a wise and valued counselor. Throughout the world you are regarded as an example of devotion and honor. When people face challenges and hardships similar to those you faced in your mortal life, they are heartened by your example.

Saint Features

Saintly Grace (21st level): You gain a +2 bonus to Fortitude, Reflex, and Will and resistance to necrotic damage equal to 15 + your Wisdom modifier. You cannot be dominated; any attack or effect that would dominate you dazes you instead.

Dark Saints

Although few saints serve evil gods, those that do are fearsome beings indeed. A dark saint gains resist radiant instead of resist necrotic at 21st level.

MAZIN KASSIS

Sanctified Touch (24th level): When you enable a creature adjacent to you to spend a healing surge, the recipient can also make a saving throw. When you grant a saving throw to a creature adjacent to you, that creature can also spend a healing surge. When you use the Heal skill, any creature you grant a saving throw or stabilize with a successful Heal check can spend a healing surge.

Golden Halo (30th level): Holy light streams from your visage. Your halo gives off bright light within 5 squares, and you gain a +2 bonus to Diplomacy checks and Intimidate checks. You can suppress or resume your halo as a free action. In addition, when you use a divine healing power, the recipient regains 25 additional hit points.

Saint Power

Sanctified Revival — Saint Utility 26

A halo appears around your head, shining with bright golden light. A fallen ally is lifted up and healed by the heavenly light.

Daily ✦ Divine, Healing
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: One dead or dying ally in burst
Effect: The target is restored to maximum hit points, ends any one effect on him or her that a save can end, and stands up. Until the end of the encounter, the target gains a +2 power bonus to attack rolls and all defenses.

NEW RITUALS

Countless minor rites exist in the various holy writings of the world's shrines and temples. Rituals, on the other hand, are powerful magical ceremonies that can summon and shape awesome, long-lasting magical effects. Although any character who has the Ritual Caster feat can master and perform the rituals appearing here, most are associated with the Religion skill, and therefore more easily accessible to divine characters than to others.

RITUALS BY LEVEL

| Lvl | Ritual | Key Skill |
|---|---|---|
| 1 | Create Holy Water | Religion |
| 3 | Thief's Lament | Arcana or Religion |
| 4 | Iron Vigil | Religion |
| 12 | Hallowed Temple | Religion |
| 12 | Mark of Justice | Religion |
| 16 | Adjure | Religion |
| 20 | Succor | Religion |
| 25 | Ease Spirit | Heal |

Adjure

Filled with righteous authority, you order an immortal entity to serve you.

Level: 16
Category: Binding
Time: 1 hour
Duration: 8 hours or until discharged

Component Cost: 3,000 gp
Market Price: 7,500 gp
Key Skill: Religion

You command an immortal creature whose level does not exceed yours. The subject of this ritual must be able to see and hear you and must remain within 5 squares of you for the entire time necessary to perform the ritual. Because most creatures do not willingly submit to this ritual, you must usually make the creature helpless or restrain the creature by means of a Magic Circle ritual. Unless it is prevented from doing so, the creature can leave at any time. Finally, you must be able to communicate with the creature, or the ritual automatically fails.

To determine the extent of your authority over the subject, you engage in a special skill challenge during the time it takes to perform the ritual. The DCs for the checks in this challenge are equal to the subject's level + 10. Religion is the primary skill; each time you or an ally succeeds on a Religion check in the challenge, you or an ally can use Diplomacy, History, Arcana, or Intimidate for one subsequent check. Once you have amassed 3 failures or achieved 10 successes, the skill challenge ends. Consult the following table and apply the effect associated with the number of successes you achieved.

| Number of Successes | Effect |
|---|---|
| 0 or 1 | The creature has authority over you and can issue one command that you must obey, a task that requires up to a day of effort. |
| 2 or 3 | You have immediate authority over the creature. You can command the creature to perform one task that takes no more than 5 minutes. |
| 4 or 5 | You have moderate authority over the creature. You can command the creature to perform a task that requires up to a day of effort. |
| 6 or 7 | You have significant authority over the creature. You can command the creature to perform a task that requires up to a week of effort. |
| 8 or 9 | You have great authority over the creature. You can command the creature to perform a task that requires up to a month of effort. |
| 10 | You have ultimate authority over the creature. You can command the creature to perform a task that requires up to a year and a day of effort. |

When the specified task is completed, the ritual is discharged, and the creature (or you) is released from service. You can request any kind of service that does not compel the subject to obey multiple commands, force the subject to engage in combat, or ensure the subject's death. (The subject can engage in combat to achieve a task if it wishes, but combat cannot be required.) If the task is impossible, such as commanding a creature that cannot fly to soar into the sky, the creature can ignore the command.

Create Holy Water

The sparkling water you create seems proof against all impurities.

Level: 1
Category: Creation
Time: 1 hour
Duration: 24 hours

Component Cost: Special
Market Price: 50 gp
Key Skill: Religion (no check)

This ritual infuses astral radiance into a small quantity of ordinary water. The cost to do so depends on the level of the holy water you choose to create. You cannot create holy water of a level higher than your own. Aside from its effect on undead and demons, holy water acts as normal pure water in all ways. It can be distinguished from normal water with examination and a successful DC 15 Religion or Arcana check.

REBECCA GUAY

Holy Water Level 1+

Undead and demons react poorly to the touch of this liquid.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Lvl 1 | 20 gp | Lvl 16 | 1,800 gp |
| Lvl 6 | 75 gp | Lvl 21 | 9,000 gp |
| Lvl 11 | 350 gp | Lvl 26 | 45,000 gp |

Alchemical Item

Power (Consumable ✦ Radiant): Minor Action. Make an attack: Ranged 3/6; +4 vs. Reflex; on a hit, the attack deals 1d10 radiant damage to an undead creature or a demon.
Level 6: +9 vs. Reflex; 1d10 radiant damage.
Level 11: +14 vs. Reflex; 2d10 radiant damage.
Level 16: +19 vs. Reflex; 2d10 radiant damage.
Level 21: +24 vs. Reflex; 3d10 radiant damage.
Level 26: +29 vs. Reflex; 3d10 radiant damage.

Ease Spirit

Death's memory fades as the spirit settles more firmly into the flesh.

Level: 25
Category: Restoration
Time: 2 hours
Duration: Instantaneous
Component Cost: 25,000 gp
Market Price: 70,000 gp
Key Skill: Heal (no check)

You designate one creature adjacent to you that is currently affected by a death penalty, such as that gained from the Raise Dead ritual. This ritual lessens the subject's death penalty by 1.

Hallowed Temple

A brilliant shrine appears in the area, welcoming those pure of heart and striking fear in those who know only corruption.

Level: 12
Category: Creation
Time: 1 hour
Duration: 8 hours
Component Cost: 520 gp
Market Price: 1,300 gp
Key Skill: Religion (no check)

The Hallowed Temple ritual creates a shimmering temple associated with your deity. The temple occupies a close burst 7 as it materializes around you. The structure incorporates as many appropriate artistic elements as you like: the exterior features iconography, stained-glass windows, and other decorative features, and the interior contains an altar, statues, or other appropriate items related to your faith.

The temple is comfortable, and creatures inside it feel close to your god. It is immune to damage. Access to the interior is through the temple's front (and only) door. The walls of the temple, including the door, are solid obstacles. The temple and all its contents (even items removed from the temple) vanish at the end of the ritual's duration.

Demons and undead cannot cross the temple's threshold. Any creatures within the burst (except for you) when the temple materializes are displaced to a space outside the temple as close to their former location as possible. If insufficient space exists either for the temple itself or for the displacement of creatures, the ritual cannot be performed.

Iron Vigil

Meditation and prayer are all the sustenance you need.

Level: 4
Category: Exploration
Time: 10 minutes
Duration: 8 hours
Component Cost: 35 gp
Market Price: 170 gp
Key Skill: Religion (no check)

You invoke your dedication to your god and let it wash your fatigue and needs from you. Iron Vigil fulfills your body's need for food and water when you perform it and allows you to remain aware and alert while taking an extended rest anytime during the ritual's duration.

Mark of Justice

Some lessons are best learned through suffering. Your magic ensures that the guilty creature continues its offenses only at great peril.

Level: 12
Category: Binding
Time: 10 minutes
Duration: Permanent
Component Cost: 1,000 gp
Market Price: 2,600 gp
Key Skill: Religion (no check)

You draw a mark on the subject of the ritual, who must be willing or helpless for the time it takes to perform the ritual. At the ritual's completion, designate an action or a kind of behavior that the mark forbids, and select one of the following penalties or another worked out by you and your DM. When the subject performs the forbidden action or displays the forbidden behavior, the subject is affected by the penalty for the next 24 hours. Example penalties include the following:

Ineptness: When the subject makes a successful d20 roll, it must roll again and use the second result.

Weakness of Flesh: The subject gains vulnerable 10 to all damage.

Curse of Solitude: The subject is blinded and deafened.

No matter the distance, you are aware when the subject triggers the penalty or when the penalty is lifted. The Remove Affliction ritual can end the effect of Mark of Justice, using twice your level as the penalty to the Heal check.

Succor

A site sacred to your deity is always open to those in need.

Level: 20
Category: Travel
Time: 8 hours
Duration: Permanent until discharged
Component Cost: 5,000 gp, plus 4 healing surges and a focus worth 5,000 gp
Market Price: 25,000 gp
Key Skill: Religion (no check)

You must perform this ritual inside a shrine, a temple, or some other site of religious significance to your deity. Succor attunes the ritual's focus to the site, linking the two until the ritual is discharged. After the time required to perform the ritual, the creature holding the focus can spend a standard action to activate the ritual's effect: At the end of the creature's next turn, the creature and up to eight willing creatures within its line of sight teleport to the holy site to which the focus was attuned, and the ritual is discharged. Succor crosses any distance and planar boundaries.

Any effect or condition that prevents teleportation also prevents this ritual from functioning (but does not discharge it).

Focus: Prayer beads, a holy book, or some other item of religious significance.

Thief's Lament

Those of criminal intent find their talents fail them when they enter the area protected by this magic.

Level: 6
Category: Warding
Time: 1 hour
Duration: 24 hours or more (see text)
Component Cost: 140 gp, plus 2 healing surges
Market Price: 360 gp
Key Skill: Arcana or Religion

Creatures in the warded area take a -5 penalty to Stealth checks and Thievery checks.

Your Arcana or Religion check determines the size of the warded area.

| Skill Check Result | Warded Area |
|---|---|
| 9 or lower | Burst 1 |
| 10–19 | Burst 3 |
| 20-29 | Burst 5 |
| 30-39 | Burst 8 |
| 40 or higher | Burst 12 |

The warding effect lasts for 24 hours, but you (and not any assistants) can extend the duration by an additional 24 hours for each extra healing surge you expend just before the current duration expires. You need not be in the same area or even on the same plane to extend the duration. If you extend the ritual's duration for a year and a day without interruption, the effect becomes permanent.

GLOSSARY

This brief glossary contains game terms that appear in this book and are defined in a book other than a Player's Handbook.

attacking objects: With your DM's permission, you can use a power that normally attacks creatures to attack objects. See the Dungeon Master's Guide, page 65, for how to damage objects.

blindsight: A creature that has blindsight can clearly see creatures or objects within a specified range and within line of effect, even if they are invisible or obscured. The creature otherwise relies on its normal vision.

fly speed: If you have a fly speed, you can fly a number of squares up to that speed as a move action. To remain in the air, you must move at least 2 squares during your turn, or you crash at the end of your turn. While flying, you can't shift or make opportunity attacks, and you crash if you're knocked prone. See the Dungeon Master's Guide, page 47, for more about flying.

hover: If you have a fly speed and can hover, you can remain in the air without moving during your turn. You can also shift and make opportunity attacks while flying.

tremorsense: If you have tremorsense, you can clearly see creatures or objects within a specified range, even if they are invisible, obscured, or outside line of effect, but you and they must be in contact with the ground or the same substance, such as water or a web. You otherwise rely on your normal vision.

truesight: If you have truesight, you can see insivible creatures or objects within a specified range, as long as they are within your line of sight.
